Spring arrives

Blossoming trees are one of the surest signs of spring. Montevallo Elementary School fourth grader Mary Dott wonders if the blossoms on the Japanese Cherry tree planted six years ago at MES have much fragrance. Looking on are classmates

Laura Jones and DeWayne Bice who will be involved with other fourth graders in heading up a drive to plant another Japanese Cherry as part of the school's April Arbor Day activities. (Photo by Seaman)

Math tourney brings surprises

The fourth annual Shelby County math tournament produced some surprises last Saturday.

As proof of what special instruction can do, when youngsters are motivated, Montevallo Middle School swept the Algebra I category, even though algebra is not generally taught in the eighth grade in MMS or in any Shelby County school.

But last fall, when teachers saw that a group of four eighth graders at MMS had special interest in the subject, they offered algebra to them. These students were allowed to enter the county-wide algebra category with the following results: Erin Spicer won first place. Joy Williams of Montevallo High School won second place, and Susan Hardin of the Middle School won third.

In the team competition in algebra the team from MMS took first place, the team from Montevallo High won second place, and the team from Thompson High took third place.

There were three other categories of competition. In Level I for sixth, seventh and eighth graders, Shane Mills was the sixth grade winner. He attends Thompson Middle School. Bert Lott of Montevallo Middle was the top seventh grade winner. The top winner among eighth graders was Laurie Davidson, also of Montevallo Middle.

The top overall winners in the category were Laurie Davidson, Bert Lott and Chris Cox of Columbiana Middle.

In team competition at this level Columbiana Middle took first place, followed by Montevallo Middle in second and Riverchase in third.

In Level II, or general math, the first place winner was Michael Staffs of Montevallo High. Second place went to Michael White of Calera High and third place was won by Bonnie Merritte, also of Calera High. Calera sent the best team, followed by Montevallo High with the second.

In the Advanced Math Level, the winner of the tenth grade competition was Taylor Lawrence of Montevallo High.

Winner of the 11th grade competition was Todd Austin, also of MHS.

The top 12th grader was Tom Denney of Shelby County High. The three overall winners were the same, but in this order: Lawrence, Denney and Austin.

Shelby County High sent the top team in the advanced math level, followed by MHS in second place. Third place was won by the Three hour bridge

It took three scout troops about three hours Saturday morning to cut poles and construct an X-bridge over Bay Creek. Tied together with rope, the bridge was capable of holding several scouts at the same time. Bridge building was one of the many activities at the Scout jamboree held over the weekend south of Shelby. (Photo by Ralph Sears.)

County observes Easter season

Lent and Passion Week culminate this weekend in Easter Sunday. Religious services will be held all over Shelby County to commemorate that event, the eighth consecutive Easter to find our country at peace.

Sunrise ceremonies are especially popular because a spring dawn is particularly beautiful in this part of the state, as well as to symbolize the rebirth of Jesus Christ, who was nailed, to our advantage, on a cross near Jerusalem some nineteen and a half centuries ago.

The custom of decking out the entire family in bright new clothes and an "Easter Bonnet" is still practiced by some, also to symbolize a rebirth.

Our method of determining the date of Easter is one of the most complicated calculations in the calendar, since the right day of the week must be dovetailed with the time of year, and also with the Jewish lunar calendar. After centuries of controversy, almost all Christians finally settled on the scheme presently in use.

As Shelby Countians celebrate the most religiously important Christian holiday, and as mother nature begins a new year, let us all hope that we truly are on the threshold of a new era of honesty, openness, and progress.

Since so many people observe with a festive holiday the proclamation of God's kingdom on earth, perhaps it would be an appropriate occasion to try to imitate life in that kingdom

Zoning election goes forward

The zoning election in Beat 12 is going forward as scheduled on Saturday, April 12.

According to William Hill, president of Indian Springs Civic Club, the legal challenge to the authority of the Shelby County Planning Commission, which has been pending since 1974, will not affect the election.

Groups on both sides of the issue are holding meetings and planning election strategy.

Persons desiring to vote on absentee ballot must apply for the ballot by Friday, April 4, which is the last day ballots can be mailed from the Circuit Clerk's office.

In the event the voters favor zoning for the north Shelby County area it will go into effect immediately, Hill said.

The election was requested by a number of residents of the beat after plans for two proposed industrial parks were placed before the Planning Commission for the Cahaba Valley.

All existing businesses, industries and subdivisions would remain, even if zoning is approved, but new developments would have to be approved by a zoning commission.

If industries are now approved by the Planning Commission, Hill believes they cannot be built unless construction on them is started before a vote favorable to zoning takes place.

The polls will be open at the usual voting places in Beat 12. Those appointed to serve at the polls are:

New Hope Presbyterian Church - Kathryn G. Street, Paul Frank, Wendell H. Trotter, Nellie B. Vizzina, Margurite Richards, Ida Bishop and Sarah B. Street.

Quality Furniture - Harry

Cosper, Marilyn Haapanen, Judy Cornett McLaughlin and Kathleen C. McWhorton.

Bryan Memorial Church - Billie Winslett Rich, Robert H. Bailey, Betty Bishop, Barbara

Ruth Strayner and Claude F. Fulmer.

Inverness Apt. Clubhouse - Maurice H. Phillips, Miriam Fowler, Claire Terry and Gayle Sommers Coble.

Teenagers can get aid through new group

by Marcia M. Sears

The alarming increase in the number of teenage pregnancies in Shelby County has led to the formation of a group to try to deal with the problem.

Called the "Shelby County Teenage Pregnancy Prevention Task Force" the group of about 20 interested professional persons and parents has been studying the statistics and the problems associated with such pregnancies for some time.

To help youngsters and teachers become more aware of the help they can receive when faced with a teenage pregnancy, the task force recently provided books entitled, "Community Resource Directory" to the schools of the county.

The book lists all kinds of resources for help for Shelby County and Jefferson County residents. It was compiled by the Volunteer Bureau, a United Way agency. In it can be found health agencies, counseling agencies and

The Red Cross helped make the directories available.

Parents air charges

The Shelby County Board of Education went into a closed session at its March 25 meeting. The purpose was to hear charges made against the administration of Shelby County High School.

Glen Vincent of Columbiana was spokesman for a group of parents whose children attend the school. About 100 parents attended the meeting, but only Vincent went into the closed session with the board members to present the parents' complaints.

When the group emerged, it was announced that all the complaints having to do with the school's operation would be investigated by board of education personnel.

Superintendent Charles Knowles told the Reporter this week that all written communications from the parents' group are being screened closely. The charges have been listed and those concerning the school are being investigated completely and methodically, he said.

The board promised that when the investigation is complete, a written report will be given to each board of education member and to Vincent, as spokesman for the parents' group.

One of the decisions made by the panel at the March meeting was to purchase a third bus for handicapped students.

Eddins Bus Sales was awarded the contract for supplying the body for $10,780 and the accepted bid for supplying the chassis went to Key GMC Trucks Inc. of Mobile for the price of $10,724.89.

The board also agreed to $1,000 monthly payments to the city of Alabaster for Thompson High School's sewer assessment.

In his report, Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles announced that next year the commercial food program at the Vocational Center would be replaced by a course in distributive education.

The education panel approved a proposal to put up a Butler type building at the Vocational Center to be used for EMR instruction.

Knowles was given the authority to seek bids on the building.

Metal recycler collects beer cans

by Marcia M. Sears

A metal recycling center in Columbiana is increasing its business weekly. Aluminum, copper and other metals are being saved to be used again at the business on Highway 25.

As an example of the work going on, the owner Bennie Davis, told the Reporter, people are bringing him from 27,000 to 36,000 empty beer cans a week to reprocess for the aluminum.

He buys discarded metal objects, and recycles them, and sells the metals that he extracts.

He provides work for ten families he says.

But a few residents near his place of business complained about smoke to the Columbiana City Council at the last meeting. Davis said he will be at the next council meeting applying for a permit to build a special burner that will meet environmental specifications.

He already has on hand some of the fire brick and other materials for the smelter which will cost over $7,000 to build, he says.

Cable recycling has produced most of the smoke, Davis says, because the outer layer of rubber must be burned off to get to the layers of aluminum and copper within the cable.

Since he began recycling over a year ago, Davis says more and more people every week have been bring him truckloads of discarded metals.

He says that people are combing the highways now for discarded beer cans and soft drink cans because he offers a price for them. He maintains this helps the entire county, by ridding the roads of unwanted litter.

Old refrigerators, air conditioners, auto parts and other discarded metals arrive at his place by the truckload, which he points out, relieves the load at the county landfills.

"People would rather drive it to my place and get a few dollars for their junk than drive it to the landfill, where they have to pay to get rid of it," he says. He also points out it saves gasoline and money for local people to drive to his place of business rather than to Birmingham.

He looks forward to equipping his big tractor with a magnet so he can speed up the loading of metals for transport.

With an approved burner, Davis feels there is a good future for his business as well as providing a public service through recycling of resources.

Mother abducts two year old

A two year old boy was snatched Monday from the Columbiana home of his half sister who has been caring for him.

According to Shelby County Sheriff's Department Chief Deputy James Jones, the baby was taken by the child's natural mother, 22 year old Patricia Charlene Pennington of Bryan, Texas.

A 17 year old youth, reportedly the baby's half brother, was also involved in the snatching which occurred at 9:45 a.m.

At presstime Tuesday, the baby still had not been found. The teenager was reported to have broken down the door of the home where the baby was staying and tied up his guardian.

A warrant for third degree burglary has been issued for Pennington who also goes by the names Charlene Patricia Hines and Charlene Patricia Robinson.

The baby's half sister, who wasn't identified, was providing foster care for the child under the auspices of the Department of Pensions and Security.

Because of serious illness, the child's father reportedly had asked his daughter by another marriage to care for the little boy until the courts decided who would get permanent custody.

The Columbiana woman recently went to Texas to see her father and get the baby whom the natural mother reportedly hadn't seen since he was six weeks old.

Scouts hold jamboree

Three hundred Scouts from the Vulcan district descended on the farm Friday night to try their skills at building bridges and signal towers. They cooked their own food on open fires.

The ground was muddy when they arrived, and a Caterpillar got stuck in the mud trying to clear a parking area, but the Scouts went at their planned activities with enthusiasm.

An X-bridge was built across Bay Creek in less than three hours by three troops: 83, 554 and 355.

Other troops put together signal towers. When rain started falling Saturday afternoon and turned into a downpour during the night, the Scouts made the best of it. Several troops from Shelby County were among those attending.

Scoutmaster Bob Hume of Columbiana aided the troops with transportation, busing them from paved parking lots in Columbiana to the camp site. No automobiles were allowed into the camping area after the road became impassable.

About 125 adults worked with the camporee.

The tests at the advanced math level were written by faculty members at the University of Montevallo.

Trophies were awarded to winners, and funds to purchase them were given by several Shelby County industries, banks and interested merchants in the county.

Hoover continues

Riverchase plans

The City of Hoover is continuing its plans to annex Riverchase.

The Alabama Supreme Court reviewed the proposed annexation bill last week and found technicalities that might make the bill unconstitutional if passed.

Jack Harrison, attorney for the City of Hoover, told the Reporter Tuesday that the city is proceeding with legal steps to complete the annexation in accordance with the court's findings.

Rep. Sonny Moore, of Sterrett, who opposed the annexation, asked the Supreme Court to rule on its constitutionality.

Tragedy repeated

A mathematics textbook and work sheets can be seen on the front seat of the demolished '70 Mercury in which schoolteacher Sandra Kay Middleton was killed early Sunday morning. She was the second person to die in an accident at the I-65 exit at Alabaster within a ten day period.

Alabaster exit ramp claims another life

Ten days after a Florida truck driver lost his life on the I-65 exit ramp in Alabaster, a schoolteacher from that state met the same fate.

Sandra Kay Middleton was thrown from her car when it hit the guard rail and overturned at 2:34 Sunday morning.

She was taken to Shelby Memorial Hospital and then transferred to University Hospital where she died Monday evening.

According to a witness, the 27 year old teacher was traveling too fast to negotiate the curve.

Speed was also blamed for the accident which resulted in the death of the truck driver and the amputation of his passenger's legs.

On the accident report, Middleton was identified as Sandra Kay Browder and Jacksonville, FL was listed as her address.

Citizen urged to help with Calera clean-up

April 12 through 19 has been proclaimed "Clean-up, Paint-up, and Fix-up Week" in Calera.

The proposal was made by the Calera Chamber of Commerce.

Mayor George W. Roy issued the proclamation. He urged all individuals, families, business enterprises and civic organizations to unite in this campaign.

He asked that homes and businesses be repaired, yard and properties be cleaned, and cleanliness and beauty of streets and parks be maintained during this period.

"An effort of this type will greatly improve the beauty and health of our community," he said.

Pelham education aid increased to $15,000

Writer agrees with editorial

Officials should straighten county house

Letter to the Editor:

I would like to take a little time to let you know the Editorial comment in the Reporter last week hit the nail on the head. I agree with you 100 percent as I am sure the majority of the people do.

The people of Shelby County are going to have to demand more out of these officials and cleaning up around their own houses and getting some errors straightened out before asking for more taxes. It seems as if every day in the paper some dept. needs more money even though their budget has already been allotted to them. The sheriff needs more cars and men, the Supt. of Ed. doesn't know what he is going to do or get the money to operate on and the Probate Judge and Commission trying to figure out new ways to add more tax on the people of this county not only for us but our children, grandchildren, the old and the poor. The one per cent sales tax was voted on during the week of A.E.A. and a president preference election which didn't stir up too much interest and only 15% of the qualified voters voted and the county went Republican. This should tell the Democrat official of this county something. I wonder if any of these officials would have liked to have had their names on this ballot. I bet not.

Now we learn we are not going to get the 2.4 million from the tax. Who made the Boo! Boo! I don't think we will ever know.

It doesn't take the highest elected official or the highest paid official in the county to know that 1% of $4,394,000 doesn't equal to 2.5 million dollars. They needed to go to some of the school and let the children figure it for them. This is the biggest laugh of the decade and we still have 10 years to go, but only 3 till election time.

I was also very surprised to learn that on Friday before the election certain people at Thompson High School were passing out leaflets to the children to take home to their parents so the children could try and talk their parents into voting for the taxes. I think, Mr. Knowles could save a little money in this one school by letting the teachers teach instead of passing out handbills.

Where are the great leaders of the taxes that were in the courthouse with the probate judge patting each other on the back because they work so hard to see the taxes passed.

I guess by now you realized I am against taxes of this form and I am also against the support the County Commission gave Fob James' 5% gasoline tax. Now I don't know where all the building funds to the schools are coming from the new buses or the new sheriff cars or men but leave it to the commission and I bet they will think of a new tax within another year.

The only good thing that came out of this foul up is, I being an Auburn fan, the figures came from the center for Business and Economic Research at the University of Alabama.

But who knows what's on a martin's mind.

I predict that inside of five years half of Shelby County will be as thick as rabbits everywhere you look...

We took it away from the Indians and now we're giving it to the beavers...

A thank you to Wales Milam for getting my vacuum cleaner going again... that baby has been a bigger nuisance than a stone-bruise...

But she's humming now.

The grate fell down and the smoke was bubbling up and filling the house... The fire department got there in two jerks and got everything fixed...

Only those who have needed them appreciate fully the job these men do.

Nora Talton says she and Alfred have their pea seed ready to go... they're just waiting for the rains to stop... and maybe they will by May 15... And probably come again by October 1.

I've got a notion things will be so dry this summer folks will be going around selling second-hand wells.

Word came that Mildred White Wallace was in the hospital... and the years start coming back... All the way from the old Shelby County Democrat to a few months ago when this fine lady retired from the newspaper business...

We came all the way down the road together and enjoyed every minute of it.

This for any member of the Ralph Parker family who might still be around... We didn't put the goat on the stage because we disliked Mr. Parker... it was just a boyish prank... we all liked him...

I wonder, sometimes, why I let them twist my arm and convince me to go along... when everybody knew I didn't want to.

Don't tell Virginia I told you, but that wasn't day before yesterday.

I spent a week at the library... hunting up old columns... and this is to say those nice ladies down there know all that's to be known about being friendly and pleasant...

Band Boosters

praised at THS

Letter to Editor:

It has been my distinct pleasure for the past ten years to be a part of an outstanding parent group known as the Thompson Band Boosters.

During the past years, this dedicated group of faithful parents has braved rain, mud, and cold temperatures to assist the band directors in carrying the band to contests in Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, and Louisiana.

Wherever the band performs you can count on the band parents to be there with food, medical attention, and financial as well as moral support.

Large-scale fund raising activities such as marching band contests, horse shows, and beauty pageants are only a few of the well-organized fund raising activities that reflect the business-like approach to their success.

"You teach the music we'll finance your band," was the straight-forward approach by the Booster Club.

Thus, evidence of the band's success which is shown by the trophy-lined bandroom wall, is a direct reflection of the sacrifice of a well organized, highly motivated group of band parents.

This attitude, in my opinion, is indication of concerned parents for education.

State needs more prisons

By Fob James

One of the most dangerous situations we have in Alabama is the housing of state prisoners in county jails. As of March 1, more than 1,600 state prisoners were being kept in jails which were never built to hold dangerous criminals.

Last week we made a big step toward relieving that problem when we successfully negotiated with Kimberly-Clark Corp. For the purchase of 600 acres of land for a prison site in St. Clair County.

Commissioner Robert Britton has begun work toward getting this new 600-man prison built and construction should begin by mid-November. It is expected to be ready for occupancy by May of 1982.

In addition, plans are to construct two more prisons, one to be located in the Tennessee Valley and the other in an area not yet determined. Presently some 52 percent of the total inmate population in the Alabama state prison system comes from Jefferson County northward, and yet there is not a single prison located north of Elmore County.

With the construction of these prisons, it is hoped that we can return county jails to their original purpose and not give them the added burden of housing maximum security prisoners in facilities never designed for that kind of inmate.

Selecting a prison site is an emotional issue. Nobody wants a prison in their county. But, actually, we have 67 state prisons in our county jails because every single one of them currently houses state prisoners.

There are 179 state prisoners in Madison County, 91 in Mobile, 43 in Morgan County, 55 in Lauderdale, and so on. And these numbers are probably low because it takes time for sheriff's to send us transcripts on state prisoners. There are probably many of which we will not be aware for several weeks.

Not only is this a dangerous situation because of the types of state prisoners we are forced to keep in county jails, but because of these state prisoners the county jails in most counties are now overcrowded. This only compounds the security problem and it is this problem we want to solve by building the prisons we need so desperately.

Counties also have to pay for medical care and clothing for state prisoners, a burden they should not have to carry. It is my hope that with three new prisons with a total capacity of around 1,800, we can eliminate this unfair situation in our 67 counties and put state prisoners in the kinds of institutions designed to adequately protect the lives and property of law-abiding Alabamians.

Last week I made a surprise visit to Bryce Hospital and Partlow School in Tuscaloosa to view first hand Alabama's largest mental health situations.

For 12 hours, five on Tuesday night and seven on Wednesday morning, I toured with Mental Health Department officials and was impressed with the physical facilities, especially at Bryce. I am told that until the Pentagon was built Bryce Hospital was the largest building under one roof in the United States.

After touring it Tuesday and Wednesday, I can believe it.

I found that there is much to be proud of in our mental health system, but I also found that we can do some improving. Already the improvements have been significant and with renovation of some physical facilities and additional professional staff, Alabama can have a mental health system of which it can be proud.

Fed's 'debt' called dirty word

by Sen. Donald Stewart

Back in my father's day, debt was considered a four-letter word. The federal government could use a healthy dose of that kind of old-fashioned virtue.

For 12 years, the federal government has been operating our national budget on the "buy now, pay later" mentality of the credit card era. And that is costing us plenty today.

With inflation running at 18 percent, every one of us feels the bite of an economy out of kilter. And while I'd like to say there's a shortcut out of this economic mess, there just isn't.

If it was an easy ride into inflation, it's going to be a tough road out. Still, the only thing to do now is to chart the course to economic stability and begin moving in that direction -- and I believe Congress is prepared to make the serious decisions that will roll back excessive federal spending.

I've been working for the last few weeks with members of the Senate Democratic leadership on a balanced budget proposal for the upcoming fiscal year. We're not just talking about the benefits of such an effort, we are mapping out the specific areas that must be cut to actually achieve a balanced budget. Of most importance, I am confident that we are building the support we need to get this specific, detailed budget balancing proposal passed and enacted.

Yet, I would be less than honest if I promised you this action alone will be the cure-all to the bounding inflation we are experiencing. It is, in fact, only a first step -- but it is significant in that it gears the machinery towards a more healthy economic future.

If we look around us, we can all begin to identify root causes of inflation. Many of them can be directly attributed to federal policies that have hindered the growth and operation of our free enterprise system. I am already working, and I plan to continue working, in Congress to remove these government barriers.

I am also supporting measures such as the small savers amendment that will better align federal policies with our economic goals and with some of those old-fashioned virtues, such as thriftiness, that can only serve to strengthen our economy.

As I see it, my job here is to represent Alabama in providing leadership at the national level. To me, that means moving the federal government out of the credit card mentality and back into a more disciplined approach to spending. My dad's words -- never spend more than you can pay cash for -- never had a truer ring than they do today.

UM honors Stewart

Sen. Donald Stewart will be honored with a reception at the University of Montevallo Thursday, April 3.

The public is invited to the reception, 10:30-11:30 a.m. in Montevallo's Reynolds Hall foyer.

Sen. Stewart's stop in Montevallo will be part of his series of community visits next week around the state, according to Elaine Hughes of the UM English Department, local coordinator.

The Anniston native, Alabama's senior senator, was elected to fill the term of the late Sen. James Allen last year.

Under The Courthouse Dome

A jury last week found a Shelby County jail inmate guilty of destroying state property.

According to evidence presented by the state, David Blankenship had used a heated spoon handle in an attempt to remove a section of one of the protective glass panels which replaced bars in the new jail.

The cost of the panel was estimated at $120.

According to Deputy District Attorney Bob Williams, nine people entered guilty pleas in the March 24 term of Circuit Court. They were as follows: Avery Lodge, BRCSF; Ocie Tanniehill, two counts of manslaughter, 2nd degree; Phillip Martin Jr., child abuse.

Rosevelt Collins, passing a forged prescription; Roger Dale Clark, leaving the scene of an accident and attempted kidnapping.

Jimmy Swain, two counts of burglary, 3rd degree; Clemson Martin, grand larceny.

Beverly Ann Connell, two counts of VAUCSA and James Oden, VAUCSA.

In District Court, Coosa County judge Robert Teel Jr. sentenced

ed five men for non support of their children.

The Coosa County judge held court because Shelby County District Judge Patti Smith had written the papers on the defendants when she was a member of the District Attorney's staff.

According to District Attorney William R. Hill Jr., "This represents an intensified effort from this office to make the child support program effective."

"Since I've taken office," Hill commented, "the money coming in for monthly child support payments has more than doubled."

There's no doubt in my mind about the domino theory. It's absolutely infallible.

Have you ever heard of it? Probably not since I formulated it.

But it works like this. What you have to do before meeting a deadline can be compared to setting up a dominos in a line.

And pushing against one of them triggers a chain reaction that can't be halted until the last one goes down.

Confused? Well, let me tell you about Saturday, which is a perfect example of how it works.

I was supposed to be at a luncheon at a Birmingham club at 11 a.m.

Thinking everything was progressing smoothly, I suddenly ran into a snag which set the falling dominos in motion.

My only pair of stockings developed a hole in the toe and I was wearing open toed shoes. After solving that problem with closed toe footwear, I couldn't find a clean pair of socks for my granddaughter.

She was to be dropped off at the home of a babysitter. And we were about to dig into the dirty clothes basket when, her uncle arrived and agreed to take care of her.

I thought it would be smooth sailing after that. But as I drove down the road, I noticed the gas gauge was on empty.

With only a couple of dollars in my pocket, I headed for a gas station where I could use my credit card. But, guess what? It was closed.

All dressed up in my Sunday best, I had to go to a nearby self service station and pump in $2 worth myself.

And then matters started getting worse. It was nearly time for the luncheon and I still had to take a picture before heading north.

On my way to the affair, I had to go across some railroad tracks. And on those tracks was a train that went back and forth, back and forth for what seemed like an eternity.

When it finally went on its way, I hurried to the subdivision where I thought the picture was to be taken. But when I arrived, I realized my mistake.

Both developments had the word South in them and I had confused the two. So I backtracked a few miles, found the house and managed to take a picture without further incident.

But finding the street where the entrance to the club was located posed another difficulty. After finally discovering where it was, I didn't have much hope that I would even arrive in time for dessert.

Rushing to park my car, I went down the wrong lane and almost had a head-on with a car coming out. Fortunately we managed to avoid a collision.

Breathless and disheveled, I hurried into the club and asked where I might find my friends.

But the room where I thought I'd been directed was occupied by several little old ladies who looked annoyed at my entrance.

They pointed the way to another room which was occupied by no one.

"Well, I've bombed," I thought. "Everyone must have left."

And then, the last domino must have fallen because things started to look up.

The hostess for the affair found me and led me to the table where luncheon was just being served.

I hope it will be awhile before the dominos start falling again -- at least until after my daughter's outdoor wedding Saturday.

Everybody hold your breath!

EHE playground will go up like barn

An event similar to an old fashioned barn raising will take place in the Columbiana park

April 12.

With the effort of the whole community behind the project, a creative playground for youngsters attending Elvin Hill Elementary School is expected to go up in just one day.

Sixteen work crews consisting of 150 men are scheduled to embark on the project at 7 a.m. after being served breakfast in the Elementary School lunchroom.

Except for a lunch break at 11:30, the crews will work throughout the day to construct the playground designed by Dr. Tom Jambor from UAB.

Many business and clubs in Columbiana have contributed time, money and materials to the project.

Anyone who is interested in giving further assistance may call 669-6098.

Man loses life in pickup wreck

A one-car accident took the life of Fred Bailey, Jr., of Columbiana Monday morning.

According to Shelby County Coroner Billy Thompson, Bailey was one of four passengers in a pickup truck that apparently went out of control on Highway 47 south of Columbiana.

The truck went into a creek and Bailey drowned, Thompson said. The three others were treated at Shelby Memorial Hospital.

The Invocation will be given by Rev. Dan Kitchens and the service will be concluded with the dramatization, "Christ Arose."

The Alabaster Church of God extends a warm welcome to all to worship on Easter Sunday.

A price error in this week's Piggly Wiggly ad on page B-8 means good news for consumers.

The eggs that are advertised at one dozen for 99 cents, are really being offered at two dozen for 99 cents.

The special price for the eggs was determined after the original ad was made up, but the change did not make it through the printing process.

Tragic discovery made

by David Moore

A human fetus in the fifth month of gestation was found in a grocery sack on a Pelham road-side last week.

Two students on their way to Riverchase School Wednesday morning discovered the fetus on the side of Hwy. 261 a block west of Old Montgomery Highway.

The students, unsure of what they had found, left the fetus and went to school. During the day, one of the students, apparently concerned with the find, called his mother. She in turn notified Pelham police.

According to PPD detective Tommy Thomas, it was not until a preliminary autopsy report was made available that police knew for sure what the students had found. The report identified the badly dehydrated body as that of a male, but the race and time of death were unknown.

Thomas said that the final autopsy report might clue investigators as to just long the fetus had been dead, as well as whether an abortion had been performed, or a miscarriage had occurred.

Considering the circumstances surrounding the recovery of the fetus, however, Thomas said that an illegal abortion may have been performed.

A spokeswoman for an area pregnancy clinic told the Reporter that most legal abortions are performed within the first three months of pregnancy. An abortion the fifth month of pregnancy would normally be done under hospital conditions and would cost from $500-$1,000, "if you could find someone to do it," she said.

The fetus was found in a grocery bag on top of a white cotton cloth.

Pelham offers classes

Have you always admired the stained glass art objects you see in stores and thought you might like to try your hand at making a decorative piece?

Well, now you have that opportunity. That course and many others are being offered through the Pelham Learning Resources Center.

Approximately 50 classes will be taught in areas which include business, music and dance, cooking, photography, CPR, at home instruction for pre-schoolers, understanding teenagers and sports and physical fitness.

Most of the classes last from 6-8 weeks and are scheduled in the evening.

For more information or to register for a course, call Pelham High School office, 663-2600 or write the school at P. O. Box 38.

Registration began April 1 and will go through April 8.

Letter clarifies issue

A letter from Governor Fob James' office clarifies an issue that was raised during the Shelby County Board of Education hearings on the Shane Mills case.

At a meeting on February 23, where school officials heard comments from the parents of Shane Mills on the inadequacy of the curriculum for gifted children, the report circulated that the governor had sent a representative to the meeting.

At the time, no one could determine if there was such a representative in the room, and the matter caused controversy in school circles.

Elizabeth Nolen, of the office staff at Thompson High School, wrote to the governor and received the following reply, dated March 18:

Dear Mrs. Nolen:

Governor James has asked that I reply to your letter regarding the due process hearing which took place in Shelby County on February 23. No representative from the Governor's Office was present at the hearing. In fact we knew nothing about the hearing until we received your letter on March 4.

I appreciate your concerns in this matter. Thank you for taking the time to write.

With kindest personal regards,

Sincerely,
Robert Lager

Stolen truck found in mud

A pickup truck stolen from a lumber supply company earlier this month was recovered Sunday by Harpersville police.

The 1973 3/4-ton pickup was found at 3:30 that day less than half a mile off Hwy. 62 by HPD Chief Elvis Lineger and reserve officer Wayne Tucker. The two officers were cruising the area in an off-road vehicle when they found the truck.

Lineger said the truck had been stolen on the night of March 7 or early March 8 from Brown Lumber and Building Supply in Harpersville along with approximately $400 worth of hardware.

The truck was found bogged down in a mud puddle. A portion of the merchandise was in back of the truck, Lineger said, but much of it had been ruined by the weather.

No arrests have been made in connection with the stolen vehi-

Agent hits top

A Montevallo insurance agent reached the top of the ladder in his field last year when he became a member of the Millionaire Club.

And for selling a million dollars worth of insurance during 1979, Bill Weston was not only designated as a member of the select club, but given a gold embossed plaque as well.

In addition to that honor, the State Farm agent also made the company's All-Star team and was named Outstanding agent in the Jack Dean District.

Only 11 agents in the state are selected annually to be All-Stars. Weston had been a State Farm agent in Montevallo for 27 years.

Sendoff

DPS Director Susan Treadwell (r), presents a brass bowl from the staff to departing social worker Freddie Akridge during a farewell party Friday.

DPS gives sendoff to departing worker

A social worker with the Shelby County Department of Pensions and Security is changing her focus from finding homes for children to finding buyers for homes.

Freddie Akridge, who has been with the department for ten years, is going into the real estate business.

And Friday, fellow workers gave the departing employee a party and presented her with a brass bowl as a token of appreciation for her years of service.

When she first started working for the department, Akridge related that she handled old age pensions.

However, in recent years, she said, adoptions and foster care have been her areas of responsibility.

Although excited about her new venture, Akridge remarked that she would miss fellow workers and especially the children.

Akridge and her husband, former Calera High School principal, Willie Akridge, have lived in Calera for 25 years.

Return census forms now

Census forms were to have been mailed in Tuesday. But if there are families who did not receive the questionnaire or if anyone is uncertain about how to fill out the forms, they are asked to call 326-4444. According to Steve Lembesis, Manager of the local census office, the forms were delivered by address, not on the basis of name. The information asked for, noted the manager, was to be the current status of the household on April 1. For anyone who still has the forms to fill out, Lembesis suggests that it would be a good idea to make it a family project so everyone can supply the correct information about themselves. He also notes that answers should be marked with a black lead pencil. A team of trained census workers will be available to answer questions from 8 a.m.-8:30 p.m. Monday-Friday and from 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday until April 11 at the number listed above.

Open field

Montevallo's Reggie Evans (33) breezes through an open field as Chelsea's Bobby Bearden (85) follows in pursuit.

In 2-A jamboree

Hornets taste honey in 8-0 win over MHS

A bunch of Hornets from Chelsea got a taste of honey Monday night, defeating the Montevallo Bulldogs 8-0 in the county 2-A spring jamboree.

For 16 will-be Chelsea seniors and their teammates, the sweet taste of victory has been a rarity, having won only 3 games in two years. Furthermore, Monday night's win was the first time since 1969 that Hornets have stung the Bulldogs and brought them to their kneepads.

Chelsea's touchdown came midway through the second 12 minute half when the Hornets drove down inside Montevallo's ten. Two plays later quarterback Randy Kennedy plunged over for the TD.

Keith McCullers scored the two point conversion.

The game started out just as one might have suspected, considering the number of rained out practice sessions. Montevallo fumbled the ball and lost it on their first possession. Chelsea turned around and did the same thing two plays later.

Chelsea fumbled one other time, but recovered it. The Dogs fumbled three times in all, losing two of them.

A Montevallo fumble late in the game put the Hornets in scoring position once again when Chris Thomas recovered the loose ball. But the Dog defense rallied to the occasion and prevented another Chelsea score.

Montevallo controlled most of the first quarter; Chelsea most of the second.

Averaging 4.2 yards per carry for 46 yards in 11 rushes, MHS Coach Richard Gilliam said he was pleased with his team's ground game, the execution of QB David Melsoni and the running of fullback Wade Bice.

Tight end Scott Lightfoot pulled in two of Melsoni's (4-9) passes for 21 yards, but Gilliam said the air attack would have to improve a good bit before fall.

Without having viewed the films, Gilliam noted that Michael Booth (LB) and Rex Wallace (NG) played a good game, and that Tim Jones (WB), Lloyd Pickett (DE), Glenn Hammrick (G) and J.J. Moore (DE) had come a long way during spring practice.

"I'm always disappointed to lose," Gilliam commented. "But I thought we had a good spring and I'm pleased with that."

Chelsea Coach Richard Conkle, as might be guessed, was pleased, too.

"Our attitude has always been right," he said. "But this is one of the best groups around in the last several years. I was real pleased with all of them—all of them. They'll be all right come fall."

The Hornet's offense bested the Dogs in total yardage 89 to 70 (unofficial).

Halfback Kelly Cooper, who rushed for 48 yards in 11 carries, led Chelsea's ground attack, followed by running back Phil Blackerby who also caught QB

Kennedy's only pass completion out of two attempts.

Keith McCullers quarterbacked for the Hornets in the first quarter.

Conkle noted that ends Bobby Bearden and Dennis Jacobs and noseman Scott Moore played good defense.

The Hornets open their season August 29 with a trip to Lincoln to face Talladega County. Montevallo plays Calera for their opener the same night.

Pelham loses

to Childersburg

The Pelham baseball team fell to Childersburg 4-1 Monday night on the road.

Jim Batton was the losing pitcher for the Panthers, giving up four hits.

Compliments of Childersburg's magic gloves, Pelham did not even get a hit until the last inning.

Jammed up

Tim Loftin (24) of Calera, finds the going tough as Vincent's defense jams up the middle with a lot of muscle. (Photos by Moore)

Both go scoreless

Vincent and Calera fight to tie

Nobody sang and nobody cried after the second game of the county 2-A spring jamboree. Hosting Calera and Vincent duked it out on the gridiron for 24 minutes. The final score: 0-0.

Calera Coach Danny Alverson nutshelled the game when he said, "We stopped ourselves too many times, and Vincent stopped themselves too many times."

Round one of the game was controlled by Vincent, with quarterback James Oden and running back Sidney Yowe doing most of the ground work.

Oden completed only 1-4 in the passing department, but Jacket Coach Harold Garrett attributed the inconsistency to the lack of time they had to concentrate on their receivers during the wet spring.

The several good drives Vincent started all got bogged down by yellow flying flags and crucial fumbles. Although the jackets recovered their bobbled footballs, the loss of yardage on the fumbles deadended two drives.

During the spring, Garrett had been concerned about replacing his defense. But even though the Eagles flew a few offensive surprises by getting away from an expected I-formation veer attack, the Jackets were able to prevent he big play.

Garrett said the defense was led by Dwight Spradley (DE), linebackers Bobby Howard and Maurice Kelly, Ronnie Flemming (DE), Brian Hartsfield (T) and Jerry Dates (NG).

Calera started finding holes in that defense at the beginning of the second quarter, however.

QB Ricky Winterbottom, Terry Hall (TB) and Edward Wilson (TB), with the help of a quick, scrappy line, cranked off a drive and ran the ball right at Vincent.

But penalties backed up the drive and the Eagles found themselves with a fourth and long situation. Winterbottom dropped back and let fly a beautiful bomb. Tight end Raymond King leaped for it in traffic on the goal, but the ball slipped through his hands.

Defensively for Calera, Alverson said that nose guard Todd Killingsworth, tackle John

Vincent will open its season August 29 at home against Abrams, whom the Jackets haven't beaten in two years. Calera opens its first season as a 2-A football team the same night against rival Montevallo.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

You've got a friend...

CVA plays on soggy field to victory

Football in the mud

Coosa Valley and Talladega Academy square off at the Spring jamboree. Coosa Valley running back picks his way through the Talladega

Braving the threats of spring monsoons, some 350 spectators may have gotten a little damp sitting in the bleachers Friday night at Coosa Valley. But they got something else, too.

If the rains left them soggy, the Rebel's 18-0 zipping of Talladega Academy should have left the spectators with the feeling that come fall, CVA would be writing different football history than it did last year. That's the impression they gave Coach Mark Green.

Said Green, "I was pleasantly surprised—pretty well pleased, overall. We were a little rusty, but still we looked good. We are going to be a lot better football team than we were last year."

Playing on a well soaked field that got even more spongy during a third quarter drizzle, the Rebel offense showed they have the capacity to drive the football, strike quickly with the big play, and score. Talladega's goose egg tells the story of the CVA defense.

The first score was set at 5:00 in the first quarter on a 60 yard punt return by Jim Haney. CVA fumbled on the first play and lost the ball, however, only to have the defense come in and pick up an Eagle fumble on the following day.

From there, halfback Mike Wheeler rolled it over from the six for six. The PAT missed.

In the second quarter, the Rebels staged an 80 yard drive capped by the diving touchdown catch by tight end Ricky Earnest of a 25 yard aerial from quarterback Mike Norred. CVA failed on the two point conversion attempt.

A drizzle started in the third quarter, and so did a 65 yard march by the Rebels, which ended in six points when Haney ran it over from the ten.

The defense had several bright spots in third quarter, too. Earnest stopped a 40 yard drive by the Eagles with an interception. Another Talladega penetration, this to the 25, ended when the defense refused to give up four yards on a fourth down attempt.

Among CVA defensive standouts were tackle Ken Holston, linebacker Chris Studdard and Hayne, who also played linebacker. Coach Green said that Ricky Earnest "may have found a home" in the defensive secondary.

Wheeler racked up approximately 100 yards rushing and made three catches, one for a TD. Fullback Alan Casaday reeled off 60 yards rushing.

CVA lost 2 wet fumbles on the center-quarterback exchange. Talladega lost three fumbles and had one interception.

Official stats on the game and players were not available.

"If it'd been dry, the score might have been 30-0. Our offense looked good," commented assistant coach Ricky Naugher.

Green said the game was very physical and some good ticks were thrown by both teams. But, he noted, the TA Eagles played without a permanent head coach in the driver's seat.

Green added that the attitude of his team was real good, and he and his staff played everybody at least one quarter, with the exception of "three or four" potential starters who are on the injured list.

"At least they know they can accomplish things," the CVA boss said.

The Rebels kick off their season August 29 at home against Chambers Academy.

Falcons wind up week with a wild victory

For a while, it appeared as though the past week would go down in the books as one of those "lost weeks" in the University of Montevallo baseball ledger.

First, the Falcons dropped a doubleheader 7-1 and 4-3 at Jacksonville State University on March 26, just when the team was on the verge of snapping the 19-game winning streak of the 4th-ranked (NCAA Division II) Gamecocks.

Then, on March 29, the Falcons were rained out of their twinbill against Alabama State University in Montgomery, a team Montevallo had handled rather easily twice earlier in the season.

On March 30, a scheduled doubleheader with Athens State College was also postponed due to wet grounds. St. Xavier College of Chicago, Ill., happened to be in the area with nothing to do, so the two teams got together for a late afternoon game and St. Xavier, an NAIA world Series participant last year, came from behind to whip the Falcons 8-5.

That same night, however, under the lights in Centreville, Montevallo managed to salvage something out of the week, swatting a record-tying five home runs in one game and defeating St. Xavier in a wild one, 10-9.

Leading the five-homer salvo was Mike Dunn, who slugged solo home runs on the first pitch his first two times up. Joining him were Jeff Myers with a two-run blast, and Ron Potter and Danny Bailey, each with a solo homer. Bailey, who picked up on the win in relief to raise his record to 2-0, hit his in the bottom of the 7th inning to tie the game at 9-9 and send it into extra innings.

The five home runs tied the UM single-game record, set last year against Campbellsville.

Montevallo won it in the last of the eighth when Potter singled, his third straight hit, was sacrificed to second by Tommy Walker, and scored on Robbie Guesnard's single over the right fielder's head.

Parade to open Helena season

A parade will begin opening day festivities for the Helena Dixie Youth baseball league on April 12.

Twelve baseball and softball teams will ride on decorated trucks through the streets of the town. They will be led by the Helena Police Department to Joe Tucker Park, for opening ceremonies.

Scott Palmer, T.V. Sportscaster of The Year, and a resident of Helena, will introduce players and coaches.

Games will be scheduled at the park throughout the day. Prize drawings will be held during each game. A bicycle will be given away at the 6 p.m. game.

Food will be available at the concession stand.

Three new teams will be fielded by Helena this year. The TBall Tigers will be coached by Jim Boyd. The new minor league team is the Padres, coached by Billy R. Hinds. The Yankees, a new major league team, will be coached by Jimmy Lovelady.

A new sports complex is being built by the town of Helena to accommodate the expanded program. Officials had hoped that the three-field complex could be used this spring. However, rainy weather has hampered construction.

Opening day activities are being coordinated by field officials and the Ladies Auxiliary. Parade chairman is Sheri Brown. Publicity chairman is Joy Childers.

Coaches, not already mentioned, are Butch Brougher, Jim Connor, Phillip Bakane, Carl Blevins, Nick Ryder, Ron Erwin and Steve Shirley. Girls' softball coaches are Dan Manual and Larry Childers.

All teams will play on opening day.

UM signs 3rd player

Tim Price, a 5-10 guard from George Wallace Community College in Dothan, has become the third player signed by the University of Montevallo for the 1980 basketball season.

An excellent outside shooter, Price averaged 16.5 points a game this past year to earn All-Alabama Jr. College Conference honors. He earned all tournaments at Lurleen Wallace Community College in Enterprise, George Wallace in Selma, and George Wallace in Hanceville, and participated in this year's Jr. College All-Star Game.

In announcing the signing of Price, UM coach Bill Elder pointed out, "He is a good ballhandler for a point guard, but for us, he will probably play a wing because of his shooting ability. He is also an excellent student who will be majoring in Science here."

What a slam

Ronnie Dutton slams a return in a doubles competition held in Chelsea this weekend. Tennis is growing in popularity in Shelby County and teams are lining up to play at available courts.

Chelsea slams it out with Chandalar team

The Chelsea Slam C-team picked up its third win of the tennis season Saturday defeating Chandalar South of Pelham, 4-1½.

Blakey Crowe beat Chandalar Team Captain Jim Owen, 6-3, 6-4, and James Efferson picked up another Chelsea win defeating Jerry Bell, 7-6, 6-1.

In doubles, Chelsea's Dutton Brothers, Jimmy and Ronnie, handily downed Chandalar's Marvin Smith and Steve Kirkemier, 6-0, 6-0. Everett Scroggs and Collis Holcombe downed Chandalar's Charles Dixon and Lynn Tanterley, 6-1, 6-0.

Gerald Rodgers picked up Chandalar's only win by defeating Jimmy Miller, 6-2, 6-0 in the first match.

The win upped Chelsea's C-team record to 3-1 in the Birmingham Men's Metro League standings. Chandalar South, last year's league runner-up, now falls to 0-4 this season.

EVERYDAY IS DOLLAR DAY AT DOLLAR GENERAL STORES

More than 25,000 years ago, prehistoric man stalked the jungles, woods and plains of the earth, making a living with a primitive weapon called the bow and arrow.

Last Sunday, bowhunters were stalking the woods of Wilsonville. But their purpose was not the prevention of starvation. They did not shoot primitive weapons. And those bearing bows were not just men, but women and children, too.

The newly organized Howard Hill Archery Club—Home of the Longbow, held its first club competition shoot at their range on Hwy. 25 Sunday afternoon.

"We deem it a total success," said Jerry Hill, one of the club's organizers and grand-nephew to the late Howard Hill. "We figure the event was a major success considering it was just a club shoot and not an invitational."

The range is laid out on better than 30 acres of woods and the shoot is set up much like a golf course.

A path winds its way through the course with 28 targets set up at various intervals. Groups of about six archers shoot together, starting at any given point and working their way around the course.

The archers shoot beavers, bears, deer, ducks and other paper targets of differing sizes from ranges of 10-100 yards.

Hill explained that the terrain is kept in as natural a condition as possible to simulate actual hunting conditions. In this fashion, the competition upgrades the bowhunter's skill as a marksman.

Each target has a kill and wound zone and the archer can shoot up to three arrows to score, but the second and third arrows count less than the first hit.

The total possible number of points for the course was 560.

Hill said that during practice, the course can be covered in about two hours, but under competition it takes about three hours.

When the arrows stopped flying and all the scores were tabulated, the following people placed first, second and third, respectively, in their divisions:

◀ Cub division: Heith Davis, Wilsonville, 468; Kenny Parker, Wilsonville, 416; Greg Bates, Shelby, 270.

◀ Youth Compound: Scotty Wales, Calera, 318.

Doug Chambliss, Childersburg, shot a 226 as a visitor-competitor.

The next shoot for the Howard Hill Archery Club will be at the club's range April 13, at 1:30 p.m.

Hill said that about 20 new families joined the club at its meeting last Friday, bringing the total club membership to about 120.

Charles Chappell of Sylacauga is president of the club. Roy Poe, Calera, is vice president, Edwin Brasher, Shelby, is treasurer and Linda Hill, Wilsonville, is secretary.

Truck-tractor pull planned

Over $10,000 in prize money will be awarded at Alabama's first nationally sanctioned truck and tractor pull.

Top drivers from across the country will compete April 4 and 5, at the State Fairgrounds.

The event is presented by Broadway Enterprises. According to Broadway, truck and tractor pulling is north America's fastest growing motor sport. The newest and fastest-growing part of pulling are four-wheel drive pickups. These machines generate in excess of 1,000 horsepower.

Trucks will compete in 5,500 pound and 6,500 pound classes. They will attempt to pull a 5,000 pound sled down a specially constructed 300 foot clay track.

Also competing will be hot rod mini-tractors, equipped with turbo jets, super charged and blown V-8's. The minis, according to Broadway, have the highest power to weight ratio of any vehicle on the face of the earth. They weigh only 1,550 pounds and 1,750 pounds, and pull with up to 1,500 horsepower.

The First Annual Alabama National pull will begin at 7 p.m. on both Friday and Saturday.

Free phone call helps make park reservations

A wide variety of recreational experiences are available at our 21 state parks, and more are being planned.

To make these facilities more accessible to Alabamians, a new free reservations service system has been established. Effective April 15, reservations may be made at any of the state parks by dialing toll-free 1-800-329-5832.

However, Shelby countians may still make reservations at our largest state park, Oak Mountain Park, by dialing local.

Oak Mountain has ten rental cottages, 50 recreational vehicle spaces, and around 90 spaces for tents. According to Marsha Hawkins, park naturalist recreator, cottages rent for $40 nightly, for four people. Additional persons, up to nine, may share a cottage at an additional cost of $3 per person. Linens and dishes are provided.

"Guess how far it could travel on a truck."

L. Stanley Crane, Chairman, Southern Railway System, Washington, D.C. 20013

The railroad is the most efficient user of fuel in the transportation industry. Bar none.

And the Southern Railway is one of the most efficient railroads in the country.

For instance, on the Southern, this 7,354-lb. tractor loader travels 61 miles on one gallon of fuel. How far could a truck carry

ON SOUTHERN RAILWAY, THIS TRACTOR LOADER TRAVELS 61 MILES ON ONE GALLON OF FUEL.

Strawberries grow year round

by Shelba Nivens
"Now is a good time to get strawberries out," says J.T. Shelton, our garden consultant for this week. "If you get them out right away and fertilize them good, they will make this spring."

He adds, "Strawberries that are already out (from last fall) should be fertilized now, too."

Shelton is getting a jump on the strawberry season by setting out plants in pots and protecting them indoors. He will use some of the plants in hanging baskets, he says. Some will be transplanted to his backyard garden near Helena. He's planning to grow others in a 55 gallon drum.

"I'm putting holes around the top and bottom of the drum," he says, "so it can drain." I figure I can grow 30 or 35 plants in that small area."

Some of his potted strawberry plants have been growing all year. The family ate fruit from them even during winter months. Other plants have only recently sprouted indoors.

He showed us how he packs dry roots, as you buy for planting, in a bucket of damp sand where they sprout. Every few days, he digs around in the sand with his hands, and takes out the sprouted plants to set out in pots. He now has over 100 potted strawberry plants.

Shelton grows several types of strawberries. But, the kind he prefers for a hanging pot was brought from California by his son. It's the "Ogallala," an ever-bearing hybrid type.

"They will grow three or four feet long," he says. "They make pretty, green plants."

"Every four to six inches, they put on runners. You can just break these off and root them for new plants."

Shelton advises, "When transplanting strawberries, plant them only as deep as they were growing in the pot."

He spaces plants every 10 - 12 inches in "raised" rows 18 - 24 inches apart.

He prefers rows to beds, he says, because "when you have more than one row in a bed they get tangled as they grow."

Jump on the season

Helena gardener, J.T. Shelton, sprouts seeds in cups and strawberries in a bucket for transplanting to the garden when the weather is warmer.

For transplants

Root soaking insures success

by John E. Jones
Before setting out garden transplants, Shelby Countians should be sure to take time to give the root systems a good soaking.

Do this by immersing the roots of bare root plants in water for about 30 minutes before setting the plants. If the weather is warm, puddle the roots in a thick mud mixture before setting.

Soak the roots of plants growing in peat pots for about an hour before planting them. Commercially grown transplants are often grown in an artificial soil or soil mix that dries quickly and is difficult to wet without soaking it in a pan of water.

Set plants growing in peat pots deeply enough to cover the pot with about two inches of soil. This will minimize premature drying of the root system of the transplants.

Egg hunt set in Montevallo

An Easter egg hunt will be held Saturday, April 5 at Orr Park in Montevallo. Starting time will be 3 p.m.

Four age groups of children, up to age 12, will be able to search for hidden prize eggs in the park. A parent or guardian is asked to accompany participating children.

Prizes are being provided by Montevallo area merchants. Jimmy Vernon is donating 40 to 50 dozen eggs for the occasion.

The event is being sponsored by the Montevallo Park and Recreation Board. Admission is free. For more information, contact Ott Knight at 665-7143.

Rebel Rousers win jamboree trophies

The Rebel Rousers CB Club brought home four trophies from an Anniston Jamboree last weekend. According to a spokesman for the club, this was two-thirds of the in-state trophies presented.

A certificate of appreciation was also awarded the club. Billy Holliman won a second grand prize of $125.

Anniston Yack Sack CB Club sponsored the jamboree. Twenty-five Rebel Rousers attended.

The new trophies will be displayed at the next Rebel Rouser coffee break. It will be held Saturday, April 5 at 7 p.m.

The speaker for the coffee break will be Katie Roberson. The public is invited.

Big bird

Jerry Gardner took a prize 22 pound turkey with a 10 inch beard, Monday morning at the Coosa Management Area. He was inspired to go to the area after reading last week's "Heart of Alabama Outdoors" special section in the Reporter.

Family violence heads topics

The problem of violence within families will be the major point of discussion in a workshop on April 12.

Co-sponsors by the University of Montevallo and the Shelby County Task Force on Family Violence, the workshop will be held at the Crosscreek Baptist Church in Pelham from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The occurrence of battered wives, abused children, and abused elder citizens in Shelby County has drawn the attention of several community agencies and interested individuals during the past year. The workshop is an outgrowth of the study these groups have conducted on the subject.

Members of the board of the task force are Mary Manning, University of Montevallo; Barbara Ashby, Director Social Services at Shelby Memorial; Ed Snow, assistant pastor, Crosscreek Baptist Church; Bob Davis, pastor University Baptist Church; Pat Leamon, Department of Pensions and Security; and Lyn Doverspike, UM student.

The number of families where violence occurs is said to be large in Shelby County, and the workshop will focus on ways of preventing and dealing with violence.

Judy Bretz Prince, a family counselor from Birmingham will be the major speaker at the workshop. In addition there will be panel discussions and audience participation.

The public is urged to attend to learn more about the problem. Lunch will be provided. For more information, call 665-1825.

Seniors to get discounts

The Shelby County Aging Program now has an active Senior Citizen Discount program operating in the county.

According to Sue Tedford, Coordinator, many merchants in every area were contacted, with great success. Names of other merchants will be added periodically as the program grows, she said.

Cards will be issued to persons over 60 who would like to receive the discount. To apply for this card, senior citizens may call the Aging office in Alabaster or Vincent. The Alabaster number is 663-1307. In Vincent, it is 672-7053.

Shelby County Program on Aging is sponsored by the Shelby County Commission. Clubs and centers are located in Alabaster, Calera, Chelsea, Dunnavant, Montevallo, Pea Ridge, Westover and Wilsonville.

Great turnout

CowBelle officers and committee chairman who attended the organization's first membership tea were: (front row) Janet Braden, Faye Shaw, Dixie Snowden, Alma Ludwig, Jackie Lawler. On the back row are: Sylvia Byrd, Marian Cotney, Jane Cain, Frances Blalock, and Audrey Lugar.

CowBelles hold membership tea

The new president of the Shelby County CowBelles can't hide her enthusiasm for the job she has taken on.

Although admitting she has a lot to learn, Alma Ludwig plunged into the swim of CowBelle activities by initiating the organization's first membership tea.

Welcoming guests to her home in Cahaba River Estates Thursday, Ludwig said she hoped members would get to know each other better and that the affair would stimulate more interest in the organization.

In addition to supporting the Cattlemen's Association, which Ludwig points out is the main aim of her group, she noted that the CowBelles will also be promoting activities for 4-H'ers and Scouts.

Plans are now in the works for a Father's Day Cookout June 15 at which time a Father of the Year will be chosen.

And the event will include a bazaar, auction and a square dance group as part of the entertainment.

Alene Foster, President of the Tuscaloosa CowBelles organization was a guest at the tea. And a program, which included slides of old county homes, was presented by Miriam Fowler, past president of the Shelby County Historical Society.

Committee chairmen told of plans they were making for the year and encouraged members to sign up and work on the committees in which they were most interested.

The Arts and Crafts committee is headed by Marion Cotney and Judy Blankenship. Jane Cain is handling beef promotion and the sale of cookbooks and Jackie Lawler is hospitality chairman.

Janet Braden and Frances Blalock were put in charge of compiling a scrapbook and Sylvia Byrd was given the responsibility of engaging square dancers and getting steaks for the June cookout.

The group also has a telephone committee and Audrey Lugar is chairman of that group.

Jehovah's Witnesses attend regional meet

Around 1,000 Jehovah's Witnesses gathered in Bessemer March 22 and 23 to attend their bi-yearly regional meeting. Ten congregations from the Calera-Talladega area were represented.

On Sunday afternoon, D.F. Wallace, spoke on the subject, "To Whom Does the Obedience of the People Belong?"

James Kidd, from the Wilsonville area, a local elder for the Calera Congregation, said, "This address was very meaningful. It brought out that obedience to God is essential for one to gain everlasting life."

The Calera congregation held a Memorial of Christ's death on Monday, March 31, at the Kingdom Hall on Second Avenue.

Kidd commented, "There are never any collections taken at our services, and we warmly welcome all our neighbors and friends."

Falcons drop 'Bama

UM pitcher Brad Edlefson makes an easy play to first on the Falcon's way to rolling over the Crimson Tide 5-3 Wednesday afternoon in Montevallo. The game marked the first time the Falcons ever played Alabama on their own field. For this story and other county sports events, see the B Section of the Reporter. (Photo by Moore)

UM fights for bill

Representative Curtis Smith has raised the ire of many officials at the University of Montevallo.

The reason is his stand on the bills currently pending before the House of Representatives on funding education.

Smith favors the AEA backed bill which would provide a 10 percent raise for teachers.

He represents Montevallo and the adjoining area, as well as Chilton County in the state House.

The University argues that the AEA bill would take $600,000 from UM's budget, as well as taking money away from all higher education in the state. UM officials want a compromise bill which would give a 7 percent raise to teachers.

Smith told the Reporter Monday he is committed to the AEA bill, but thinks there may be some compromise bill by Thursday of this week. He said that if the AEA bill passes, he will introduce an amendment to return $600,000 to UM.

Leash law unanimously approved at Pelham city council meeting

The Pelham City Council unanimously passed a leash law Monday night to become effective June 1 of this year.

The leash law last came up for consideration by the Council March 3, at which time it was tabled until certain points in the proposed law could be softened.

As it now stands, a dog outside its owner's house must be confined by a leash, fence or other means unless: 1) the dog is under the supervision of its owner or another responsible person and remains in its own yard, or 2) the dog is being used for hunting on land where permission to hunt has been granted.

Councilman Roy Jowers introduced the motion and it was seconded by Joe Littlefield.

Mayor Burk Dunaway explained that the June 1 effective date would allow people time to make necessary arrangements for their canine pets.

In other action, Dunaway proclaimed April as Cancer Crusade Month.

A Pelham resident at the meeting asked if the police department would patrol Oak Mountain State Park entrance road, noting that speeders were a problem there, especially in the mornings.

Sgt. Bruce Matson reported that Pelham police issued a total of 289 citations in the month of March and worked 32 accidents.

Furthermore, the PPD investigated eight cases of criminal mischief, one theft of services, five dog complaints, 14 cases of first, second and third degree theft, three cases of telephone harassment, three burglaries of residences and six burglaries of businesses.

The department investigated one homicide concerning a five month old fetus, a story covered in the April 3 edition of the Reporter.

Fire Chief William Bryars reported that his department answered a total of 45 alarms in March, broken down into 16 fire calls and 29 rescue runs, as well as making 16 engine assists for neighboring fire departments.

Approximately 94 man hours were spent at fires and 19 man hours were spent on rescues, Bryars said. Two hundred sixty-nine man hours were spent in 24 class sessions, and 16 fire inspections were conducted, he added.

Pelham dog track waits on court

The dog track in Pelham is on hold, waiting for a court decision in the Macon County dog track case.

Senator Doug Cook told the Reporter in the state capitol Thursday that he and Representative J.T. "Jabo" Waggoner will not introduce the bill into either house until the fate of the Macon County track is decided.

Cook said the Macon County case may make the Pelham dog track a moot question. He an-icipates that it will be at least the next session of the legislature before anything is done about the Pelham track.

Cook added that he is not strongly in favor of the bill, but he believes the people of Pelham should have the right to vote on it. "(Waggoner) and I are the only conduits the mayor and council of Pelham have to the legislature," he remarked, noting that they had asked that the bill be introduced.

Former Congressman to run for Senate

Armistead Selden, who represented Shelby County in the United States Congress for 16 years, has declared his candidacy for the United States Senate.

A native of Greensboro, Selden represented Alabama's old 5th congressional District (which included Shelby County) for eight terms in the U.S. House of Representatives from 1952 to 1968.

He was a member of the Democratic party, but he has changed to the Republican party and will run against the incumbent Senator Donald Stewart.

After he left Congress, Selden served as a Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense and later was the U.S. Ambassador to New Zealand, serving under three presidents, from 1974 to 1979.

In making his announcement, Selden criticized the Carter Administration's continuing blunders in economic, domestic, and foreign policy areas.

"In good conscience I cannot support an administration that has so mismanaged our nation's affairs that 20% inflation is cruelly squeezing working Alabamians as well as our senior citizens and others living on a fixed income," Selden said.

"I cannot support an administration under whose policies our country's ability to defend its vital interests has been weakened."

"More than ever, Alabama and our country need experienced leadership in our nation's capital."

"In his brief period in Washington, our short-term Senator has shown lack of understanding regarding the interests of the people of Alabama beginning with several of his earliest votes on the floor of the Senate."

Selden said he would wage a vigorous campaign throughout every part of Alabama.

Alabaster fills council post

The last empty seat at the Alabaster Council table was filled Monday night.

Roger Wheeler, who has been serving as chairman of the Personnel Board, was appointed to replace Charlotte Burke, who recently became Mayor.

After Wheeler's name was submitted by Councilman Gene Glasgow, Councilwoman Mayo Taylor put up the name of James Marcus, a leader in the black community.

However, the black Councilwoman was the only one to vote for Marcus.

When it was announced that two new employees had been hired for the city, Marcus asked if they were black.

"We were told that blacks would be considered for any vacancies," he declared.

However, neither of the men are black. Pat Roberson began his duties with the police department Tuesday, but the fireman whose application was approved, informed the city he cannot accept the position.

It was learned after the meeting that there were no black applicants for either job.

No action was taken on realtor Harold Walker's request that the city condemn land owned by the Columbiana Housing Authority through which he ran sewer lines.

The Authority is suing Walker for going across their land without permission. But when Councilman Dan Gillis asked if there was any good reason for the lines not to remain in place, Walker explained the dispute was due to a personality conflict between him and Housing Authority Director Kay Clark.

In an effort to resolve the situation, Councilman Glasgow agreed to go with Walker and discuss the matter with the Housing Authority Director.

It was brought out that the sewer lines which the realtor had put in to serve 20 new units at Ridgeview Apartments, would also serve the black community's park.

Marcus had pointed out earlier in the meeting that improvements were needed on the land which black residents had bought and deeded to the city for a park.

In other matters relating to the city's sewer system, the panel agreed that a line be run to Hillwood Circle which would serve two additional houses.

Noting that the cost of the extension would be $800, Glasgow said the city would make $1,000 by the move.

A special meeting was announced for Tuesday night so the Council could award a contract for putting in sewer lines on the east side of Hwy. 31.

Federal grant money which amounts to $100,000 will be used to fund the project.

Town gets new look

county cities meeting with people and discussing problems. (Reporter photo)

Moore gives legislative up-date

by Marcia M. Sears
Only two bills affecting Shelby County have passed the House of Representatives, according to Sonny Moore.

The representative from Sterrett told the Reporter in the state capital Thursday that the bill increasing travel allowances for the coroner and the bill allowing the pistol permit to be increased from $5 to $10 have passed the House and are in the Senate.

The bill to split the offices of Shelby County Probate Judge and Chairman of the County Commission was introduced early Thursday morning in the House, Moore said, although he was not one of the co-sponsors.

Moore said that several other advertised bills have not yet been introduced, because the county legislative delegation is not wholly in agreement on them. Among those are the bill establishing a prima facie law in littering; another is decals on mobile homes with the revenue bill that accompanies it; and the bill to sell table wines in grocery stores of the county.

Moore predicts that the statewide bill allowing the sale of table wines in wet counties will pass, which will make Shelby County's law unnecessary.

The bill which would have allowed the purging of the voter registration list in Shelby County has been carried over for 20 legislative days.

Also carried over is a bill to establish a county license inspector, Moore said.

Hanging art

Calera High School seniors Lisa Gottier and Teri Baccus are preparing to hang a papier mache mask that was part of an art show at the school this week. Other art work included wire sculpture, weaving, wood cuts and paintings.

quarrying would no longer be exempt from the authority of the County Planning Commission. If the new act is passed, anyone who wanted to establish a mine or quarry would have to have it approved by the Planning Commission.

Much of the new bill is said to have originated with the current Planning Commission. The Indian Springs Civic Club, which has been actively seeking zoning in Beat 12, approves of it. Bill Hill, the club's president told the Reporter Tuesday morning that he added the section about establishing local beat boards.

Hill said it will have no direct effect on Saturday's election. The new act could not become law for several weeks, even if it makes it through the legislature this session.

But those who oppose any form of zoning see the new proposal as another attempt to take away individual choices.

University officials believe it would be unlikely that an amendment of this type could pass.

Smith said that the 10 percent raise in the AEA bill would be given to all teachers up through college personnel. The cut in higher education would be in operations and maintenance, he said.

He expressed the hope that the legislature could come up with something that will be satisfactory to all.

Plants for sale

Centrala Garden Club members Judy Smitherman, Connie Adams and Diane McKinnon add plants to the "Plant Place" for Saturday's Trade Day in Montevallo.

In Vincent

New sanctuary opens

Everything was in place when the new sanctuary of Calvary Baptist Church in Vincent was dedicated Sunday.

And that might be considered a minor miracle since the cross, which was to be the focal point in the auditorium, failed to arrive.

But where there's a will there's a way. And in this case, the way was an Auburn University senior skilled in woodworking.

Glenn Crocker, with the help of Building Committee Chairman Alph Lowe and J. C. Gates, began work on a wooden cross on Friday.

At 9:30 Saturday night, the three men had the cross in place and the lighting behind it adjusted.

Dr. George Bagley, Executive Secretary for the Alabama Baptist Convention, delivered the morning's message and referred to the building as a "dream come true."

A brief history of the church was given by Judge James H.

Sharbutt which included listing the three former pastors, all of whom were present.

Rev. Fred Keller, who pastored the church when it was organized in 1960, read the scripture.

His successor, Rev. Bob Ford led the Litany of Dedication and Rev. Charles Card gave the invocation.

Governor reports on Basic Skills Teams

By Fob James

Last October, I met at Craig Air Force Base in Selma with the members of the War on Illiteracy Basic Skills Teams. I was very impressed at that time with the excitement and the enthusiasm of the 26 individuals chosen to participate in this project.

On Thursday of last week I met again with these people after their first six months in the field. After hearing their reports I am convinced that these dedicated men and women are making great strides in improving basic education in Alabama.

Several things are apparent after the first half-year of this new concept. First of all, is that there are thousands of dedicated, extremely capable and hard working teachers all over Alabama. This is something I have known all along and it was only reinforced by the report of the Basic Skills Teams.

Also, it is evident that teachers are eager and willing to learn new techniques and skills that can be imparted by the members of the Basic Skills Teams. These teams do not go into any school district or school unless first invited, and they have far more invitations than they can handle between now and August.

Some said at the beginning of this project that teachers and principals would feel threatened by the Skills Teams and resent their presence. The team members told me that just the opposite is true. In fact, in one case the team members were greeted with corsages and a welcoming ceremony.

The main thing that came across to me is that teachers and principals who hold the future of our children in their hands want to know that we at the state level are genuinely interested in them. We are committed to helping them in any way we possibly can and we intend to continue that policy.

I think it might be helpful to tell you some of the history behind the Basic Skills Teams, why we developed this concept and what our goals are.

We felt that if we were really serious about waging a War on Illiteracy in Alabama then we should have an army, some front line people who were considered experts in their fields and who had the ability to teach those skills to others.

In any profession, much of the learning takes place after one leaves school. You learn from those who have preceded you, those who have experience and who have developed techniques that can only be learned on the job. I have spent enough time around teachers in the past year or two to know that their favorite topic of conversation is how to teach better.

To take advantage of this attitude among our state's teachers we formed the Basic Skills Teams consisting of specialists in school management, reading, arithmetic and language arts, which in my day we just called English.

These people are not, as some have said, just another layer of bureaucracy. They are composed of local people considered the best teachers and principals in the area. They live and work in the areas they serve and are in constant communication with local teachers and principals to help them in any way they can.

The mail we get in Montgomery is overwhelmingly in favor of this approach and shows that improvement in basic skills are being made every day. There are many problems and we do not intend to ignore them, either. But with these teams out in the field reporting back to Montgomery on a regular basis, problems can be solved before they get out of hand.

I was most concerned with the report that a reading class of more than 40 students is common in Alabama. Reading is one of the most difficult skills for a human being to master and even a layman such as I can understand that one reading teacher cannot teach 40 students effectively.

With the Basic Skills Teams in the field and the outstanding dedication of Alabama's teachers, these problems and others can be solved.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

March had shown out all the way, from the first day through the 31st. Like a little girl in her first store-bought dress, walking in the Easter parade. But March wasn't pretty, like the little girl. April would likely be, later on. Unless she borrowed too many days from March.

Today was the first day of April. March had gone out like a lion, and had left enough of her contrariness behind to spoil April's first day.

Sid Bird and I found it out, all the way up the river to Peckerwood creek. Peckerwood is a delightful place to be on a pretty day with a warm wind blowing; or on a cool day with a stiff wind blowing, if the wind is out of the east.

But today it was out of the northwest. And Peckerwood runs northwest to southeast. And when that northwest wind gets in second gear behind the trailers at Okimo and hits high in the middle of the river, by the time it gets to Peckerwood it's as rough as a bumblebee on a bald head.

And I ought to know, having almost enough hairs on top of my head to count.

We had three things against us, to start with: One, Sid's motor had a bad cold and coughed all the way, running like an old auto hitting on one. Two, the water was the color of old leather, and white-capping in places, mostly the places we wanted to fish. Three, the wind was blowing 92 miles an hour in the river and 192 miles an hour where we were trying to fish.

But we fished anyhow. On the bank sometimes, where the wind had blown our bait. And in a dozen little bushes, also where the wind had blown our bait. And twice in another boat, passing, where by hook landed in a guy's pocket, and another time when Sid's hook lodged behind a little lady's ear.

Sometimes we'd aim for a tree top and hit another tree top ten feet away, and get hung and try to get out, and paddle the boat against the wind to that second top. Once, while we were paddling, my cork went under and we speeded up, pulling harder against the wind. When we got there I had a three inch crappie on my hook.

That's when we left Peckerwood. We found a slough up the river that started out facing the wind but turned left, like a dog's hind leg, where the wind got at us in little spurts, but not hard enough to bother our fishing.

And we caught a dozen crappie, mostly big black 'uns, in a long weed bed with logs in it, ten inches deep.

We had used a jar of vaseline, keeping our lips moist. And Sid said, making a little funny noise in his throat: "Do you mind if we give it up and try again another day?"

I didn't say a word, I just started winding up my line. It wouldn't have suited me any better if he had said:

"They called from Texas last night and said uncle Jed died. He left a cool million, with nobody to claim it but me and you and Alice and Inez."

'Zoning controls you' is claim of opponent

Letter to the Editor:

Do you know what you are letting yourself in for, if you get zoning? Do you know why it is costing 15%-20% more for a house than it should? Federal rules and regulations, a type of zoning, cause interminable delays and add costs to building along with local zoning laws.

The bureaucracies are ruining this nation and now the pro-zoners want to establish a local bureaucracy in Beat 12. Let's see what it could do to you.

First, a vote for zoning would endorse Act 816. Suppose an owner of land wanted to build a convenience store or an apartment building and he is blocked from doing so. The owner of the land bought it for the purpose of making a profit, the same as you bought your home because you felt it would be more profitable to own than to rent. If this owner can't build he will seek another alternative.

Most of the land in Shelby County has limestone, coal or other minerals or minable rock under it. Act 816 provides: "these limitations cannot limit or impair in any manner the use of land for mining, quarrying or otherwise extracting coal, limestone or other minerals located therein, or for processing or distribution of such minerals."

Under the Act, there is no way you could block such action. So you have a Quarry where you might have had something else much less objectionable. What would you do if the land were yours and you could not use it otherwise?

Zoning doesn't just control the other fellow, it also controls you. When you build, your house will have to satisfy the regulators, not necessarily you! Alternations will be limited, et cetera, et cetera. You will have lost control of your own property.

If you should inadvertently build in a manner that does not comply, you can be required to tear down what you have built, and start over. This happens often where zoning exists. An innocent violation can cost you dearly in the way of fines, too. Further, these permits for this and that, do not come free!

One of the most beautiful and prosperous cities in the nation has no zoning, Houston, Texas. The people there have turned down zoning proposals, time after time. If this city of 1,369,000 can get along without zoning, do you really need it? Consider what can happen under Act 816, with zoning! A man of wisdom once said, "when in doubt, say no" Personally I doubt!

Reader opposes zoning bill

Letter to the Editor:

I would like to voice my opinion on the twenty year old question of zoning in Shelby County. If my memory is right I think it started in or about 1960. It was voted down then by the people and repeatedly since, as not best for Shelby County.

I think it could only make crooks out of normally honest people and only add to the corruption in our county government.

If zoning is so good, why not write a law where it would cover the whole county not beat by beat. In the majority of the counties in Alabama who have zoning, it is done on a county wide basis not by beat.

The people of the county should be given the right to elect the planning commission members, not have them appointed by the powers that are in Columbiana. We have far too many of these appointed people on our county payrolls doing nothing but drawing large salaries of our tax dollars already.

I have lived on Valleydale Road most of my life. My parents, grandparents and great grandparents lived there. So you see I am not one of those families here today and gone tomorrow. I care about what happens to Shelby County, because I want it to be a place where my grandchildren and great grandchildren can be proud of and respect.

I think it is about time our county officials and the people of Shelby County ask ourselves this question, "What can I as a citizen do for Shelby County?"

Not what can Shelby County do for me as an individual?"

So I urge each and everyone read the bill being advertised. It is no better than Act 816 which is in court and has been since 1974, because it is thought to be unconstitutional. Let's not waste any more tax dollars we don't have for the benefit of a few people in Beat 12 who move here and want to make it like the place they moved from. If that is what they wanted why did they move to Shelby County?

The People of Shelby County have the welfare of 33,000 voters to consider not the benefit of 25 who sign a petition calling for an election in Beat 12.

This is all of Shelby County tax dollars being spent, not just Beat 12. I urge each of you to call Mr. Bill Hill, District Attorney of Shelby County, Mr. Sonny Moore, Mr. Jabo Waggoner, Mr. Curtis Smith, Mr. Lister Proctor, and Mr. Doug Cook. Ask them to put a stop to this wasteful spending.

If they don't put a stop to it, let them know about it at the polls.

Sincerely,
Mary Daniel

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I'm here to tell you that a wedding in the park is just fine. I didn't come unraveled until the next day.

And when I say unraveled, I mean it literally.

Just about ready to leave for a church dedication I was to cover, I noticed that the hem of my dress was coming undone.

I tried to do a hurry up stitch job, but a seamstress I'm not.

So I decided to employ my never fail scotch tape method of holding a hem in place.

But of all times for my tape to disappear, why did it have to hide from me Easter morning?

Fortunately I had to pass by the office on my way to the assignment, so I stopped by and taped myself together.

I don't think it was too noticeable and I even received a few compliments on how well I looked.

I'll have to admit though, I did come apart a few times the day before when my daughter was married.

When I went to this place to have my hair done and my face made up, they told me the make up lady was on vacation.

My mouth must have fallen open pretty wide because the lady in charge hurriedly assured me she'd get me an appointment at a nearby shop.

She did and it all turned out pretty well. But at this place a man did the paint job.

He was a fine fellow and all that. But somehow, I just don't like men trying shoes on my feet or putting paint on my face.

When I got home I discovered I'd left my sweater at the second establishment I'd visited. However I couldn't call because the card with the name of the shop written on it and my glasses were in my purse and I couldn't find my purse.

I did know where my new dress was though, and I managed to get into it and to arrive at the wedding on time.

The sun was shining, just a mild breeze was blowing and it was only a tiny bit chilly.

Even though there wasn't any music playing in that pastoral setting in the park, we did have some sound effects at the wedding.

As the couple solemnly said their vows, a rooster crowed off in the distance.

Somehow, it made the affair just a little more memorable. Not everyone can say they had a rooster crow at their wedding.

Under The Courthouse Dome

The Shelby County Law Enforcement Personnel Board has decided that an employee in the jail be reclassified and given an increase in pay.

At a special called meeting last week, the panel listened again to the reasons given by Faye Porter at previous sessions, on why her status should be changed.

Larry Dillard, who was recently appointed to the Board by Sheriff Buddy Glasgow, heard Porter's account for the first time.

The decision to classify Porter as a corrections officer instead of operator was made after the panel went into executive session. And it was also ruled that her time would be continuous.

It had been Porter's contention that since she was performing the same duties after coming back to work as she was when she left, her classification should be the same.

When she was laid off in August, 1979, Porter told the panel, she was classified as matron. But when funds became available to rehire her, she was given the lower rank of operator.

Since personnel in the Sheriff's Department now hold the same job titles as State Troopers, the matron's position has been changed to corrections officer.

Porter explained that she returned to work in November when the Sheriff came up with funds for her salary which had been designated for another purpose.

Pelham Chamber being organized

A group of businessmen and city officials have taken definite steps toward the formation of a Chamber of Commerce in Pelham.

At an informal meeting Friday at a Pelham restaurant, the chamber's steering committee task force heard suggestions on directions to take from Alabama State Chamber of Commerce representative George Simmons and Prattville Chamber Executive Director Ralph Henderson, Jr.

Simmons noted the importance of rising above individual differences to give total community interests top priority. Because the needs and goals of each community are different, each chamber is unique in the character of its thrust and direction, he said.

Good, sound, key objectives are important to kicking off a new chamber, Simmons pointed out, but cautioned the group not to try and work in too many directions at one time.

Henderson furnished copies of the Prattville Chamber's by-laws, dues schedules, and application forms, as well as information on the structure of its committees and board of directors for the Pelham group to use as guidelines.

Both visiting speakers noted the importance of local government involvement in making a chamber successful, and said it was encouraging to see city officials on the Pelham steering committee.

Representing the City of Pelham were Mayor Burk Dunaway and Councilmen Ray Hamilton and John Tanner.

Tanner, along with Ken Williams, a Pelham insurance agent, have thus far coordinated the move to establish a chamber in Shelby County's youngest but largest municipality.

Others attending the meeting were Michael Byars, Bob Cleveland, Tom Kimbrough, Joe Miller, Ed Neal, Robbie Owens and a representative from the Shelby County Reporter.

Tanner, Dunaway, and Miller were appointed to a committee to work on corporate papers and by-laws.

Hamilton, Neal, and Owens were appointed to establish a budget framework and dues schedule.

Williams, Byars, Cleveland, Howard, and Kimbrough were appointed to do public relations work and make membership contracts.

Kimbrough presented a color pamphlet on the City of Pelham which he had just had published.

The next meeting of the steering committee task force was set for 5:30, Tuesday, April 22 at City Hall.

A major network "development deal" between NBC Television and Wendy Holcombe has been announced by Holcombe's manager, Top Billing President, Tandy Rice. obligations, Holcombe, along with her band, will fill 150 personal appearances as well as taping regular appearances on the nationally syndicated TV show, "Nashville on the Road."

"This is an incredible career door-opener, for a very talented young lady," continued Rice. "I'm not aware of this kind of opportunity being offered to anyone else in Nashville before."

Holcombe, a 16-year-old high school junior from Alabaster, has become one of Country Music's most in-demand artists due to her mastery of several instruments. Between school

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

Is Any Human Being Living Today Capable of Healing Miraculously

In continuing the study of miraculous divine healing, one should contrast the alleged miracles claimed to be performed today with the bonafide miracles performed in the first century. Many of the so-called miracles of today deal with "illnesses" which one cannot see, offer no easily identified cure, which is complete and instantaneous, and include none of the miraculous cures spoken of in the New Testament. Some of the miraculous cures of the New Testament are as follows.

First, the laws were healed. (Acts 3) And, the lameness was not psychologically induced. The lame man at the Gate Beautiful, of the Temple, had been lame from birth, over forty years. The healing was immediate and complete. The man who had never walked was leaping, running, and praising God. None could doubt the miracle. Not a man on earth can do this today!

Second, the dead were raised. In Acts 9, Dorcas was raised from the dead by Peter. In Acts 20, Paul raised Eutychus from the dead. Thousands of dollars are being spent to freeze bodies in hope that eventually science can so advance as to bring them back from the dead. But, such is futile. None on earth can raise the dead!

I humbly, but truthfully, issue a challenge. If some "faith healer" will meet me at a cemetery and raise a person from the dead, by the time he gets this one up I will have the rest of the dead in the cemetery up walking around.

Third, deadly vipers could not harm God's servants in the first century. The Apostle Paul was bitten by a snake in Acts 28:5; he simply shook the poisonous viper into the fire and suffered no harm, not even swelling. I have known some snake-handling preachers to lose their lives from poisonous snake bites. Only those having had protection from anti-venom can keep from swelling and perhaps death upon being bitten by a cobra or a coral snake.

Fourth, deadly poison could be drunk by God's servants without harm. (March 16:17-18) Where is the person today who could drink a glass of deadly poison prepared by another, and suffer no harm?

Fifth, God's servants in the first century could speak languages which they had never studied. These languages were able to be understood by others, as one the day of Pentecost when the Apostles spoke in languages of some fifteen different nationalities and dialects, though they had never studied them, being Galileans. (Acts 2:1-14) No person on earth can do this today!

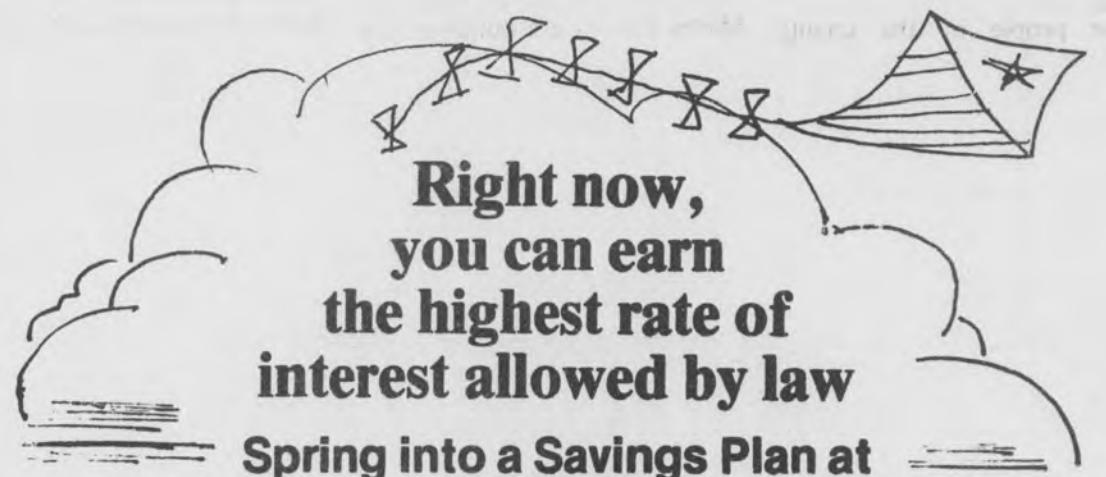

--More to follow.

Montevallo Elementary transformed into art gallery

The halls of Montevallo Elementary School resembled an art gallery last week.

Student art work was displayed on every wall and mobiles were suspended from the ceiling.

After the work was judged by UM Art Department Chairman, Dr. Frank McCoy, parents were invited to have supper at the school and view the pictures and mobiles.

Even though the art show was the school's first, MES teacher Mildred Rancher, who was chairman of the event, said that some art work is always on display in the school throughout the year.

Rancher reported that every student had participated in the show and that fourth graders and students in the special education class had made the mobiles of birds and butterflies.

Prize winning entries in the show were done by: Brady Lucas, 2nd grade, 1st; Renee Robertson, 2nd grade, 2nd; Cindy Robbins, 4th grade, 3rd; Tanya Dewberry, 3rd grade, 4th and Gina McGiboney, 3rd grade, 5th.

Area's elected officials honored by UM

Retired Circuit Judge James H. Sharbutt of Vincent received the University of Montevallo's Outstanding Area Public Official Award last weekend during UM's annual appreciation dinner for area elected officials.

Judge Sharbutt, who recently retired after serving as judge of the 18th Judicial Circuit, also served as a lawyer, mayor of Vincent and as Shelby County district attorney prior to becoming judge.

The citation noted that Judge Sharbutt "was such a respected jurist that he was never reversed by a higher court in any criminal case over which he presided as judge."

The retired judge, a 1950 graduate of the University of Alabama Law School, is also widely known as a humorist by the name of "Hadalol Lawyer," according to the citation. He is married to the former Virginia Stallworth, a Montevallo graduate.

Last year, Rep. Walter Owens of Centerville received UM's first annual Outstanding Area Public Official Award.

Sharbutt received a plaque with an accompanying citation.

Several other area elected officials were presented framed prints of a recent painting of the UM falcon.

Receiving the framed prints were: Janice Proctor, for her husband, State Sen. Lister Hill Proctor of Sylacauga; Rep. Curtis Smith of Clanton; Sen. Paschal P. Vacca of Tarrant City; Sen. John Teague of Childersburg; Rep. Owens; Re. J.T. "Jabo" Waggoner of Vestavia; Rep. John Amari of Birmingham, a UM alumnus; Rep. Sonny Moore of Sterrett; Rep. Wallace Shoemaker of Childersburg; Rep. Fred Horn of Birmingham, a UM alumnus; Montevallo Mayor Ralph Sears; and Shelby County Commissioner Tommy Snowden.

Rep. Smith announced during the banquet that he was donating a copy of the Code of Alabama to the UM College of Business.

A special plaque went to Sen. Vacca from the UM Student Government Association for his contributions to establish and maintain a student loan fund.

Also honored during the banquet was Columbiana lawyer and former legislator Karl C. Harrison. Harrison introduced the bill to allow men students to attend Alabama College (Montevallo) and also introduced legislation that created the nation's first educational television network.

Other public officials recognized included members of the Montevallo City Council, Shelby County Commission, mayors of Shelby County municipalities, Shelby County School Board, and other officials.

Projects take prizes

The two grand prize winners in Thompson Middle School's Social Studies Fair were Kristi Speer and Yvette Landry. Other first place winners were: Renee Glover, Kendall Davenport, Amy Beck, Cindy Seales, Colleen Hopwood, Lindy Henry, Dee Dee Horton, Kelly Davenport, Mark Traweck, Jim Wilfong, Michael Nix and Shane Mills.

Council gives to Thompson schools

Thompson Elementary School and Thompson Middle School were each given $1,000 by the Alabaster City Council Monday night.

Representatives of the two schools had appeared at a previous meeting to request financial help, but the matter had been tabled so the panel could determine if the funds were available in the budget.

Title I Reading teacher Ducky Prestridge from Thompson Elementary told the Council the school wanted to buy a laminating machine which would cost $695.

The money for the Middle School will be used to buy library books in order to retain accreditation.

Athletic Booster Club president Lawrence Barnett also asked for financial help at Monday's meeting. He reported that Boosters still had $6,299 to pay off on a note and that restrooms underneath bleachers in the football stadium needed to be repaired or relocated.

Councilman Dan Gillis said he thought it would be wiser if the city made a donation to the restroom work. But since no figure on the cost was available, the matter was tabled.

In other action, the panel approved a resolution to purchase an NCIC-ACIC machine. Now an application must be made to the state's Criminal Justice Information Center.

Rick Thornell, the Center's representative for this area, told the panel that the machine could be leased for $223 a month with a $245 charge for installation.

Police Commissioner Wayne Lucas noted that Police Chief C. E. Carter felt there was a real need for the machine.

When it's in operation, the city's police department will have access to files regarding criminal activity which are housed in Montgomery.

Thornell said that FBI information would also be available and described the machine as "the greatest assistance to law enforcement since the two way radio."

After studying bids submitted by several companies for a base station radio for the fire department, the panel awarded the contract to Chapman Communications.

Their low bid was $3,850.79 for a GE radio.

It was reported that a contract had been drawn up for giving fire protection to families in the AFD's coverage area.

The panel agreed that the city attorney should look it over before voting on it.

Equal Rights group holds third meeting

The third meeting of Alabaster's Citizens for Equal Rights was held at the home of Dr. Frank Abernathy on Saturday, April 5. About 80 attended.

Keynote speaker was Gusti Yearout, attorney and newly announced candidate for the U.S. Senate, running against incumbent Donald Stewart.

Yearout addressed the group on his view of the major issues, citing a need for more conservative government, reduced federal spending, and strengthening of the military. The candidate stated that we are presently number two militarily because of a lack of troop strength.

Also speaking was Joe Stovall of Memphis, Tennessee, who told of his unpleasant encounters with the federal government while working for a large corporation, and as a small independent businessman.

At the request of Alabaster Police Sergeant Larry Rollan, the group decided to petition the L&N Railroad, requesting that the side track which currently runs through the middle of Alabaster's business district be relocated to a more isolated place. School buses pass over this track four times daily, generating concern over children's safety.

A second petition by Dr. Abernathy was endorsed, asking Congressman Richard Shelby to help remove the strings attached to federal education aid.

Members felt that federal regulations encroached on local control, were wasteful, and promoted social policies the group did not agree with.

The organization planned to present this petition to Representative Shelby on April 11, when he will be at the Alabaster City Hall for a town meeting.

Calera Mayor proclaims 'clean up'

Calera Mayor George Roy has proclaimed April 12-19 as "Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Week" for the city.

Working with the city to make the downtown area a more attractive place, the Calera Chamber of Commerce is putting out planters and garbage containers.

On Monday, samples of the two containers were displayed along with the type of shrub that could be used in the planter.

UM horticulturist Sherill White is selecting the plants which will go in the containers that were constructed by Alvin McLaughly of Montevallo.

Chamber of Commerce member Doug LeSeur is chairman of the project which will provide six planters and four garbage containers on the city's main street.

Emphasizing that the city and chamber were co-sponsors of the endeavor, Carl Prichard noted that the plans tied in with renovating the downtown area.

He also mentioned that landscaping work was already underway on the nearby high school grounds.

Forest award given

Frank Ellis, Jr., has won the Alabama Forestry Commission "Treasure" Forest Award.

This award recognizes forestland owners who manage their forestland to provide timber, recreation and aesthetics while protecting the forest environment.

Mr. Ellis is managing two pine plantations for future timber yield. He manages a lake for fishing and a hardwood bottom along a creek for wildlife food and cover.

Shelby County forester, David Stone, nominated the Joiner Town property for the award. Wildlife specialist, Chester Billie, inspected the property.

The Alabama Forest Resource Planning Commission reviewed the nomination and made the award.

The April 3 award ceremony was attended by district personnel and county supervisors from the Birmingham district of the Patriotic music will be featured in a presentation by the University of Montevallo Chorale, Monday, April 14, at UM.

By Columbiana Council

Recycling center told to stop, clean up act

The owner of a metal recycling business in Columbiana was told by the City Council Thursday that he will be unable to do any more burning until he builds an incinerator.

But Benny Davis, who owns the business on Hwy. 25, won't be able to start on the project until the council is satisfied the burner meets specifications.

When he appeared before City Fathers to request the permit, Davis was informed he would have to wait until building inspector James Palmer approved the plans.

Because of its proximity to three churches, Davis was also asked to do something about approving the appearance of his grounds where scrap metal is piled.

At a previous Council meeting, it was brought out that residents living near the business and motorists driving by had complained of the smoke.

The smelter Davis plans to build will cost $7,000, he says.

Acting on the recommendation of Assistant Police Chief Myron Bradley, Councilman Harold McCord asked that another policeman be hired.

The police force has been without the full complement of officers for a month, the Police Commissioner pointed out. Bradley has had to work as much as 80 hours a week to keep up with the work load.

However, because the maintenance costs for police cars has been running so high, it was decided to look into that matter before making the decision to add another man to the force.

The matter was brought to the panel's attention by Finance Chairman Paul Smith who noted that $6,000 had been spent for parts and repairs over a six month period.

Except for that expense, Smith noted the budget was in pretty good shape. He reported that

CPD officer gets two day suspension

A Columbiana police officer received a two day suspension this week for "conduct unbecoming an officer."

John Ashmore was off work Sunday and Monday but no details were given on the reason for the suspension.

The police department has been operating with only four men since patrolman Wayne Holcombe joined the Alabaster force.

But with vacation time coming up, the City Council is considering hiring another man.

The name of Frank Formby, a Columbiana resident who now works for the Leeds Police Department was put before the panel at last week's meeting.

However, the matter was tabled until the panel could nail down the reason for unusually high expenses in the police department budget.

$273,000 had come in from business licenses and property taxes.

McCord told the panel that Helena had donated an old ambulance and a station wagon to the city after learning of plans for an emergency rescue unit.

Noting that the station wagon is in good condition, McCord said that it will probably be the vehicle equipped for emergency use.

A used van recently purchased for that purpose will be sold, he said.

Family tree specialists

Mr. and Mrs. J. Graden Robinson work with the records they are compiling on family trees while on mission work in the county.

Family tree roots run deep

A Shelby County homemakers carousel will feature a demonstration on how to trace your family tree.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Graden Robinson, of Utah, will hold the demonstration with assistance from Trixie Copeland of Pelham. They will be available to help individuals determine where to search for ancestors.

The Robinsons, presently living in Chelsea, are on mission for the Mormon Church.

He explained that, as Mormons, they have a special reason for tracing their own ancestry. Mormons teach that living family members may be baptised in behalf of their deceased ancestors. The deceased then, must accept or reject this baptism, they believe, to determine their own destiny in the hereafter.

However, before a deceased person can be baptised by proxy, living relatives must seek them out in genealogical records and establish their lines of kinship.

The Robinsons will share their own family charts with visitors to the Shelby County Homemakers Extension Club demonstration. It will be held April 19 at Pelham Plaza.

Library Week excuses fines

During Library Week, April 14-19, overdue books may be returned to the libraries of Shelby County without a fine.

Pelham Librarian Mary Carver says, "Look in all the unlikely places, and see if those missing books won't show up. If you are unable to come to the library during the hours it is open, just drop the books in the bookdrop in the hall outside the door."

Hours of operation at the Pelham library are: Tuesday, 10-12, 2-9; Wednesday, 10-12, 2-5; Thursday, 10-12, 2-9; Saturday, 10-12.

Potato eyes

The Kendricks show how to cut potatoes for spring planting.

Planting potatoes early robs bugs later

K-Springs gardener, Oren Kendrick, says that Irish potatoes should have been planted in early March, but the ground has been too wet.

He adds, however, that potatoes will still make if planted this month.

One of the main reasons for early planting, he says, is to prevent bugs from troubling the vines and stunting the potatoes. Potato bugs thrive better in warm weather.

Planting this late, gardeners will probably have to spray the vines for bugs. Kendrick uses "Sevin Dust" to spray potatoes, as well as other vegetable plants.

When planting potatoes, Kendrick adds basic slag to the soil along with ample fertilizer. He has found that basic slag makes potatoes smoother.

He explains that basic slag is not the gray rock we usually think of as slag. It is a soot-black substance which can be purchased for the garden.

When cutting sprouted potatoes for planting, Kendrick cuts up all of the potato along with the eye. He says this gives more body from which the sprout can grow.

He drops the pieces of sprouted potato about 18 inches apart and covers with six inches of soil. He puts potato rows about 5 to 5½ feet apart to allow room for working with the tractor. Someone gardening with hand tools only, could put rows much closer together, he says.

Kendrick, "with a little help" from wife, Donnie, grows vegetables on ground that has been farmed by her family for several generations.

Their "Rock of Ages Farm" is a part of what was once known as "the old Gilbert Place."

Donnie Mae Kendrick is the daughter of Ellery Jasper Gilbert, who farmed the land as did his father, Simpson, before him.

The Kendricks grow, freeze, and can an abundance of vegetables each year to share with family and friends.

They use some of their Irish potatoes fresh from the ground for boiling "new." Others, they store in their basement to use later for boiling, frying or baking.

Before storing, they advise, rinse the dirt off and spread them out in the air to dry. Then store in a cool, dry place up off the floor, preferably on a raised wire screen.

Pelham science buffs capture top honors

It sounds like a dissertation for a doctorate in astronomy: The effects of the planet Jupiter on Earth.

Instead, it's a science project by Pelham High School Junior Lisa Dobbs. And if it sounds impressive, it is. The project won first place in the astronomy division of the school's science fair last week.

First place winner in the life sciences division went to David Morely, tenth grade, who turned in a project on tanning animal hides.

In the earth science division, junior Phillip Joiner placed first with his working model of a land dam.

Ninth grader Jimmy Little's model solar house which also demonstrated how insulation conserves energy, won first place in the physical science division.

Anna Bailey, a tenth grader, won first place in the medicine division with her report on the digestive system of a horse and its diseases, and actually displayed horse intestines she had obtained during her research on the subject at Auburn University.

Most of these same science projects, along with many others, will be on exhibit again at the school's curriculum fair April 17 and 18.

The first place winners were picked by a panel of judges from more than 400 projects at the school.

Mt. Era sings

The regular second Sunday afternoon singing will be held at the Mt. Era United Methodist Church on April 13 at 1:30 p.m. The Church is located on Hwy. 26. Everyone is invited.

Rebels squash Raiders in five-inning game

The Coosa Valley Rebels capitalized on 18 Raider errors to demolish Shelby Academy 18-5 Saturday afternoon. The two hour game lasted only five innings.

Having won by forfeit over Talladega Academy Friday, the win gave the Rebs a 2-0 record. As might be expected, Coosa Coach Ricky Naugher was quite pleased with his diamond club.

Said Naugher, "Overall, for the first game, I liked it. We hit good in the fourth and fifth. And I think we ran the bases real good."

SA Coach Harry Rawlinson was not so pleased with his team. The 0-2 Raiders had to pay the price for their error-riddled game by staying afterwards for an unscheduled practice session.

"I think we made a lot of mental mistakes," Rawlinson commented. "Everybody has their day and this was ours. I just hope we don't have any more like this."

Eight thrown away balls by the home team Raiders in the first two innings (not counting other errors) gave the Rebs six of their first eight runs. Nearly every time Shelby Academy tried to throw out a runner, the ball took off like it had wings instead of stitches.

Mental errors such as trapping a runner between first and second while another runner scored also hurt the Raiders.

Coosa Valley, likewise, had problems on defense in the early goings, experiencing what Naugher referred to as "first game jitters."

After two innings and five errors, however, the Rebs settled down and only committed one more blunder for the rest of the game.

After allowing three runs in the first and two in the second, CVA got stingy and Shelby failed to cross home plate again.

Winning pitcher Mike Norred struck out six batters and walked five in four innings of work. Relief pitcher Eric Davis struck out two Raiders in the fifth.

In two innings and one out, SA's Terry Crabb walked seven Rebels and struck out five. The two earned runs charges against Crabb were the only earned runs the Rebels scored.

Crabb was relieved by Greg Young. Billy Eiland pitched the final inning for Shelby.

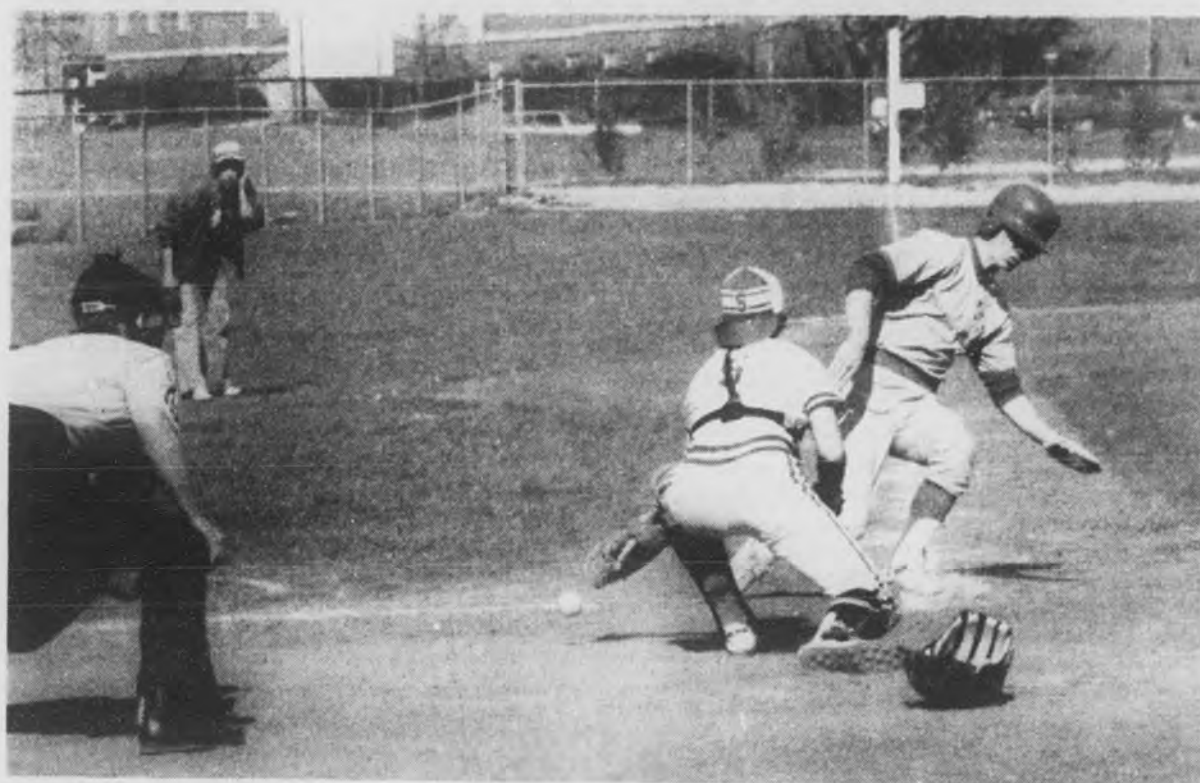

Leading the Rebel offense was Eric Davis, with a double, two singles and four runs. Randy Waldrop slapped two singles, stole four bases and scored three times.

Mike Norred got on hit, scored twice and stole four bases. Mike Wheeler, Tim Spates and Troy Beavers each got one hit and scored twice for CVA.

Billy Eiland led the Raider's offense with a double and a single, and Terry Crabb hit a double.

Keith Knowles, Scott Attaway and Alan Howard each hit two singles.

The game was played before a handful of spectators at Shelby Academy's home field at the University of Montevallo.

Rebel Mark Luker is safe at home, as evidenced by the baseball which just flopped out of Raider Cat-

"Play ball!"

For 970 boys and girls across Shelby County, those famous words mean Dixie Youth Baseball. And it won't be long at all before those words ring out in the spring air.

Now in its 25th season, Dixie Youth offers boys from ages five to twelve and girls (Dixie Softball) six to fifteen, the opportunity to develop sportsmanship qualities while learning the skills of the great American game of baseball.

Covering the Southland from Texas to Virginia, 118,110 players from ten states played in DY programs in 1979.

The organization is expected to grant its 1000th franchise this year, and predicts that 150,000 players will be involved.

In 1979, 24,420 players in Alabama signed up to hit, catch, steal and slide for 1,628 teams.

Three leagues have been granted franchises in Shelby

County, namely Shelby County DY (Alabaster), Cahaba Valley DY (Pelham, Helena) and Central Shelby County DY (Chelsea, Wilsonville, Columbiana and Calera.)

In Alabaster, 70 girls are signed up for softball, and league officials are hoping for enough additional signees to make up eight teams.

Two hundred and thirty-six boys signed up to play on 20 teams in Alabaster. The T-ball division will have four teams, the farm league will have five teams, the minors will have six and the majors, five.

Alabaster opens its season this Saturday, with flag raising ceremonies starting at 9 a.m. Teams and coaches will be introduced at that time.

Cahaba Valley League opens its season this Saturday with parades in both Helena and Pelham, starting at 8 a.m.

A total of 434 girls and boys have signed up for baseball and softball in the league.

In Pelham, the opening ceremonies will begin after the parade about 9:30 at the ballfield. Among the invited guests will be Baseball Hall of Famer Harry "The Hat" Walker, now a coach at UAB, as well as Glen Marcus, former THS basketball great now of the UAB Blazers.

Celebrities in the parade will include Snoopy, Lee The Puck, Sparky the Dog, Beau-Re-Gard, "T" Rooster and others.

In Helena, TV Sportscaster of the Year Scott Palmer of Helena, will be on hand at Joe Tucker Park after the parade to introduce the players and coaches.

Central Shelby County will hold a jamboree in Wilsonville Saturday, April 19 beginning at noon. All the teams will play abbreviated games.

Three hundred players are involved in that league, comprised of six major and minor teams, and four farm and T-ball teams.

Openings are still available for girls' softball in Columbiana.

Schedules are expected to be drawn up this week for farm, T and softball teams, and the season will probably start May 3.

The Central Shelby major league will start April 22 and the minors will start April 28.

The key to the success of Dixie Youth Baseball in Shelby County and the rest of the south lies in the dedication of all the mothers and fathers who do everything from coaching to working concessions.

The best way to get an idea of what DY means to the parents is to sit in the stands and listen to how they yell and root for Johnny and Susie.

Besides giving a lot of time to the program, the parents also give a lot of emotions.

If the parents get involved in DY and have fun at it, so do their children. In fact, even the official rule book spells out the importance of the players having fun.

One of the rules reads in part: "First and of primary importance, this is a 'FUN' program. It should be realized by those adults associated with Dixie Youth Baseball that it is designed for the enjoyment of youngsters and is not meant to be a hobby for adults. Furthermore, it is a game where participation is more important than perfection. We do not claim to be a baseball factory trying to perfect future big league stars. We do claim that our goal is to see that all play the greatest national past time under the best adult leadership. The late beloved Danny Jones, first commissioner of Dixie Youth Baseball said, 'It is my opinion that we should carefully screen our managers and coaches. Even though they are volunteers we should not accept just anybody to coach. We as adults, can expect from our youngsters just what we are able to give them by our example.'"

Yes it's spring time. And from now on into summer, one of the most exciting things nearly 1000 Shelby County youngsters will hear will be the words, "Play ball!"

Troubles

The Raiders were their own worst enemy against CVA last Saturday, committing 18 errors. Raider Terry Crabb just put out this Rebel runner, but the throw to first was wild, allowing the batter to advance to second.

THS wins big

Thompson exploded a big bubble last Saturday at Buck Creek Field. Led by Steve Smitherman's no-hitter the Warriors slaughtered Fultondale 15-1.

Fultondale, picked by many as the top 3-A baseball team in the state, was the subject of both a TV sports feature and a Birmingham newspaper write-up last week. Then THS came along and apparently did what nobody was supposed to do.

"We did everything right," commented Warrior Coach Billy Woodham.

Besides pitching a no-hitter, Smitherman walked only two batters, while striking out six men in the four and a half inning game.

Fultondale scored their only run in the first inning. THS scored four runs in the first, eight in the second, three in the third and one in the fourth.

Smitherman also led the charge from the batter's box, slapping a homer, double and single on the way to four RBI's. Bret Davenport and Brad Cocke went three for three with the bat, too.

Joe Glass and David Cofer both hit doubles.

The game upped the Warriors' record to 3-1.

BIR opens night races

Birmingham International Raceway will open its night time racing series this Friday night with the annual Friday Hassler Memorial program. Hassler died in a crash in Daytona International Speedway in 1972 after setting a record winning streak at BIR for 27 wins in a single season.

The 9 feature program will be composed of triple features for the modified Sportsman Division, and twin features in the other four classes. From Texas, Freddy Fryer will make his first return to BIR in five years, and Mike Alexander from Franklin, Tenn., will attempt to establish himself as a regular at BIR.

Billy McGinnis from Marietta, Ga., and local favorites Red Farmer, Doug Reid, Jasper Miles, Jerry Goodwin, Johnny Day and others will be there trying to claim their first 1980 victory. Gates open at 6, time trials start at 7 and the races start at 8.

day to rest in seventh place, the UM golfers came back with a 298 the second day for a final 608. Finishing ahead of Montevallo were Jacksonville State University at 595, David Lipscomb College at 599, Shorter College at 602, and George Wallace Community College of Hanceville at 604.

Norm Tums shot a 77-70 - 147 for the Falcons to earn All-Tournament honors.

Other Montevallo scores include 152 by Larry Adams, 156 by Chris Myers and Bob Korensky, 158 by Les Holcombe, and 163 by Jerry Grant.

UM coach Dr. Leon Davis was encouraged by the improvement shown by his team in only their second tournament of the spring season.

"We played fairly well the first day, and real well the second day," Dr. Davis observed. "If we can continue to improve like we've been doing, we have a real good shot at doing well in the conference and district tournaments."

The Falcons will participate in the Point Mallard intercollegiate Tournament April 10-11 in Decatur, and the Alabama Intercollegiate Tournament at Rolling Hills in Montgomery, April 16-18 in their next outings. The last two days of the AIT will also count as the Southern States Conference for SSC schools.

County coaches 'Salute the Stars'

The Shelby County Coaches Association held its 12th Annual All-County Banquet last Wednesday night at the University of Montevallo.

Among the 115 people in attendance were coaches, school representatives, spouses and most of the 57 athletes that the coaches had elected to all-county teams. The theme of the banquet was "A Salute to the Stars."

For the first time ever, the association recognized girls sports. Womens' Coach of the Year Lynn Rushing of THS, presented 22 all-county certificates and patches to the girls volleyball and basketball players.

THS Football Coach of the Year Larry Simmons handed out certificates to the all-county football team, saying if he had a bunch like that to coach, he might improve his 9-1 record from last year.

MHS Basketball Coach of the Year Kurt Pnasek presented all-county certificates and patches to 14 young men who made up this year's roundball dream-team.

MHS Coach Richard Gilliam, president of the county coaches association, was master of ceremonies. Briarwood Coach Gary Fleming gave the innovation and MHS Coach Bob Sherer gave the benediction.

Guest speaker for the occasion was six-time State Heavyweight Powerlifting Champion and director of King's Ranch, Tom Owen, who noted that the real trophies in life were those people whose lives one has the opportunity to touch in a positive fashion.

Award winners for all-county volleyball were: E.G. Tammie Muterspaw, Cathie Simpkins, Briarwood; April Hammonds, Cindy Rich, Chelsea; Priscilla Goodwin, Emi Araki (MVP), Indian Springs;

Fine athletes share common bond

Normally, when Shelby County teams face off against each other it's from opposing sides. Rivalries run high and the desire to beat the other school is fierce.

Last Wednesday night, however, the best of the county teams faced off under a totally different set of circumstances. The only rivalry was over who could grab the butter first.

This reporter attended his first Shelby County Coaches Association All-County Banquet that night, held in Old Main Dining Hall on the neutral campus of the University of Montevallo.

During the courses of dinner and the course of the evening, a number of impressions struck me.

First off, I thought it great to see that women's sports are coming of age in the area, and that recognition was being given to the coaches and players responsible for this trend.

Stuffing roast beef in my mouth and bothering Calera Coach Mark Lovett to pass the sugar again, I thought: here are most of the finest athletes in Shelby County. These young men and women have duked it out time and time again, sworn over a pigskin they were going to knock each other's block off.

Yet now they're sitting here, eating together, having fellowship. After all the blows, they can still share this bond of friendship, of common interest.

And maybe if one of them has slammed a volleyball down another's throat, it just makes the bond all the stronger. Certainly all the more unique.

These plotting coaches, too, I thought. Isn't it great that even though they work on a day-to-day basis planning ways to beat each other, they can sit here, and at least for a while, be just friends.

If some of the coaches have personal differences, they all have the common goal of building winners.

They all have this bond in common, and a banquet such as this, feeds that bond, making not only their individual sports program stronger, but making sports throughout the county stronger.

Speaking of strength, I thought too about what kind of strong man Tom Owen, the speaker must be. Doubtlessly he can do more than just bend iron bars around his neck. The man is made of a different stuff than the cream puff I devoured for desert.

The All-County Banquet, I understand, started twelve years ago with a picnic at Indian Springs School, back in the days of former Thompson High Coach Dan Martin and Fred Cameron of ISS.

Even though I understand the banquet had slipped some in previous years, Wednesday night certainly showed that it was making a strong, maybe even better comeback.

The banquet was about athletics, about fellowship. And about strength. It was putting aside differences, emphasizing instead, a common bond.

At the bottom line it makes for better sports throughout the county. I hope the banquet continues to improve. It will mark a good sign.

If you can't beat them--and even if you can--join them. At least once a year.

FOR BETTER HUNTING AND FISHING

BY EARL FRANKLIN KENNAMER

I'm not a racetrack bettor, but you know what it means when a horse pays 10 to one to win? Odds are such -- and I guess the computer is now a must in figuring odds than depending upon that old guess-and-by-gosh technique a century ago -- that for every dollar you put on this horse's nose, you win $10.

Such odds figure highly in turkey hunting. Odds are definitely against you, the hunter. Hunting turkeys in strange territory, for instance, puts you at a disadvantage. You don't know where a gobbler has assembled his harem. You don't know best listening posts for hearing that beautiful rolling gobble from a tom's tree-top perch at daybreak.

Nothing equals this big bird's call that vibrates the air like a ship's fog horn -- not even the convey call of flushed bobwhites, the eerie honk of a Canadian goose or the ghostly muted quacks of mallards flying over at first light on a drizzly morning.

Chances of your bagging a cagy old turkey tom that's been on the scene the past three or four seasons are slim. That seasoned old rogue, with a beard that would put Khoemini's to shame, may have been called up, missed by shot loads fired from guns of nervous tenderfoot hunters so many times he refuses to come to a lovesick hen. By nature she must go to him, anyway. And no hunter can change a million-year-old ritual overnight!

Many springs ago (now I sound like Hiawatha) I worked feverishly against the odds. The previous morning was my first time in this particular area. A big tom had answered my wheedling, "Kee! Kee! Kee!" He knew where I was and I could see him clearly, about 60 yards away -- but he refused to come closer. Finally, he got disgusted and wandered away to find his hens. I drove the 60 miles or so back to my home.

The next morning I returned well before daylight, determined to bring him to pot. A mile before I reached the spot where I had left my old copper-toned quarry the day before, I passed a young hunter walking along with a shotgun under his arm and a rifle slung across his shoulder. At that time the rifle was a legal firearm for turkeys. I helped lobby against the rifle because a rifle takes all sport out of turkey hunting. It is also dangerous -- no fool with a rifle knows for sure whether or not there is a shotgun hunter close to the gobbler he's trying to bushwhack a hundred yards away.

At any rate I knew I possibly had competition this morning. I reached my point of destiny speedily and sneaked about 10 yards closer to the point where I hoped the old tom would be again today. Luck was with me. He gobbled, flew down at daybreak and began his usual come-hither dancing, dragging his wings, "poofing" and spreading his big tail fan and shaking the forest with his rattling call.

I yelped softly. He answered my seductive kee's with lusty double gobbles and then glared in my direction as if to say, "You come to me, honey. I'm not going to you!"

Instinctively I sensed it was now or never. I slammed his mid-neck area with one blast of two ounces of No. 4 shot propelled by 5 1/2 drams of powder equivalent.

I hit him solid. he bounced and flopped about as I reloaded my full-choked double and approached to deliver the coup-de-grace should he rise and race away. My tom had scimitar-curved spurs with needle sharp tips and a 11-inch beard -- a veteran.

As I hoisted the 19 pound treasure over my shoulder, the young hunter I had passed emerged from the shadows. "Can I see your turkey, sir?" he asked.

I dropped the bird and the young fellow instantly examined the turkey's feet. The right toe of the left foot was bent into a right angle. This meant the turkey had a distinctive footprint which would identify his presence in any area.

The young hunter was a bit sad. "You've just killed the turkey a half dozen of us have been stalking the past two seasons!" That turkey had led a charmed life, been missed many times by bullet's, but with his birdy cunning he had eluded death until this morning. However, I had offset the odds (1) by gambling he would be in the same spot I had left him the day before, (2) by getting closer to him for a positive killing shot, (3) by dropping him with a heavier-than-normal charge of larger shot which overcomes air resistance better and travels a bit farther than my usual load of No. 5's or 6's. And of course, (4) I had beaten a hunting competitor. Luck was also a theme throughout. What if I had left my home 15 minutes later? Suppose my shot patterns had been punched full of holes?

Odds favoring any hunter's success are lower when there are a great number of nimrods in the same area. Even two turkey hunters in a small area after the same tom can often cause confusion and failure to both hunters.

I prefer my chances to be more even -- interference from clumsy blunderers or greedy game hogs -- a good crop of competing gobblers in a vicinity and a couple of fried pies in my pocket to keep my growling stomach from giving me away.

That's turkey hunting heaven!

Big beard

James Cecil White of Calera bagged his second turkey in a week. This one weighed 20 pounds and had a 10 1/2" beard.

Big Bird

Ross Davis killed a 16 pound gobbler last week near Shelby. The turkey had an 8 1/2" beard.

Many springs ago (now I sound like Hiawatha) I worked feverishly against the odds. The previous morning was my first time in this particular area. A big tom had answered my wheedling, "Kee! Kee! Kee!" He knew where I was and I could see him clearly, about 60 yards away -- but he refused to come closer. Finally, he got disgusted and wandered away to find his hens. I drove the 60 miles or so back to my home.

The next morning I returned well before daylight, determined to bring him to pot. A mile before I reached the spot where I had left my old copper-toned quarry the day before, I passed a young hunter walking along with a shotgun under his arm and a rifle slung across his shoulder. At that time the rifle was a legal firearm for turkeys. I helped lobby against the rifle because a rifle takes all sport out of turkey hunting. It is also dangerous -- no fool with a rifle knows for sure whether or not there is a shotgun hunter close to the gobbler he's trying to bushwhack a hundred yards away.

At any rate I knew I possibly had competition this morning. I reached my point of destiny speedily and sneaked about 10 yards closer to the point where I hoped the old tom would be again today. Luck was with me. He gobbled, flew down at daybreak and began his usual come-hither dancing, dragging his wings, "poofing" and spreading his big tail fan and shaking the forest with his rattling call.

I yelled softly. He answered my seductive kee's with lusty double gobbles and then glared in my direction as if to say, "You come to me, honey. I'm not going to you!"

Instinctively I sensed it was now or never. I slammed his mid-neck area with one blast of two ounces of No. 4 shot propelled by 5 1/2 drams of powder equivalent.

I hit him solid. he bounced and flopped about as I reloaded my full-choked double and approached to deliver the coup-de-grace should he rise and race away. My tom had scimitar-curved spurs with needle sharp tips and a 11-inch beard -- a veteran.

As I hoisted the 19 pound treasure over my shoulder, the young hunter I had passed emerged from the shadows. "Can I see your turkey, sir?" he asked.

I dropped the bird and the young fellow instantly examined the turkey's feet. The right toe of the left foot was bent into a right angle. This meant the turkey had a distinctive footprint which would identify his presence in any area.

The young hunter was a bit sad. "You've just killed the turkey a half dozen of us have been stalking the past two seasons!" That turkey had led a charmed life, been missed many times by bullet's, but with his birdy cunning he had eluded death until this morning. However, I had offset the odds (1) by gambling he would be in the same spot I had left him the day before, (2) by getting closer to him for a positive killing shot, (3) by dropping him with a heavier-than-normal charge of larger shot which overcomes air resistance better and travels a bit farther than my usual load of No. 5's or 6's. And of course, (4) I had beaten a hunting competitor. Luck was also a theme throughout. What if I had left my home 15 minutes later? Suppose my shot patterns had been punched full of holes?

Odds favoring any hunter's success are lower when there are a great number of nimrods in the same area. Even two turkey hunters in a small area after the same tom can often cause confusion and failure to both hunters.

I prefer my chances to be more even -- interference from clumsy blunderers or greedy game hogs -- a good crop of competing gobblers in a vicinity and a couple of fried pies in my pocket to keep my growling stomach from giving me away.

That's turkey hunting heaven!

Big beard

James Cecil White of Calera bagged his second turkey in a week. This one weighed 20 pounds and had a 10 1/2" beard.

Big Bird

Ross Davis killed a 16 pound gobbler last week near Shelby. The turkey had an 8 1/2" beard.

Maplesville draws cyclists

Motorcycle racers from thirty states will compete in Maplesville this weekend for a trip to France.

Riders raking up the required number of points will be eligible to run in the International Six Day Trails to be held in southern France in September.

The two-day qualifier race, sponsored by Perry Mt. Motorcycle Club, is open to the public free of charge. It will be held four miles east of Maplesville on Highway 22.

Races on both Saturday and Sunday, April 12 and 13, will begin at 7 a.m.

Concessions will be available.

Wins medal

Richard Norwood, left, wears his medal for taking national honors in wrestling. With him is Dr. Jack Hawkins, president of Alabama Institute for Deaf and Blind.

UM wallops 'Bama

The bright spot in a wishy-washy week of baseball for the UM Falcons was their 5-3 conquest over the University of Alabama. The Wednesday game marked the first time the Tide had traveled to Falcon Field.

The Falcons, however, split three double headers last week, leaving them in a 14-14 limbo, and leaving UM Coach Bob Riesener puzzled over the lack of momentum.

"I thought we were about ready to really get cranked up, especially after the Alabama win," mused Riesener. "We played well, and it had to be exciting to beat a ballclub like that at home. I think our biggest problem is immaturity and a lack of leadership at the right time from some people we were counting on. Plus, our pitching recently has not been good at all."

Over the past two weeks, the team ERA has jumped a full run from 2.90 to 3.90. Team batting has also suffered during the span, slipping from .301 to .285. While the defensive average has improved slightly from .926 to .930, Riesener is still concerned with the pivotal second base spot, where none of several candidates has really taken charge.

With a 3-5 record in SSC play, and a 13-14 record against non-NCAA Division I schools that will be the criteria for selecting NAIA district 27 playoff teams, the Falcons need to get a winning streak going soon. Time is running out, and as Riesener noted, "We don't have any easy ones left on the schedule."

Blind youth takes gold medal

Richard Norwood of Harpersville is one of the nine blind athletes who returned from the national meeting of the United States Association for Blind Athletes with the best record of any state represented at the competition.

Norwood is a student at the Alabama School for the Blind in Talladega.

Six boys and three girls, accompanied by physical education instructors Judy Williams and T.R. Bice were among the more than 400 students from 43 states participating in the meet which was held on the campus of Western Illinois University in McComb, Illinois.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie E. Norwood, Richard took part in wrestling in the 167 lb. classification. He recently won first place and also got the "most pins" in the Alabama 3-A wrestling tournament.

For his national championship efforts he brought home a gold medal. He and his team-mates gathered in four gold medals in wrestling, one gold medal in track and field, a silver medal and a bronze medal in wrestling and three of those students who did not win medals placed high in track and field events.

Coach of the wrestling team is Ron Garrett who said, "We are proud of the Alabama School for the Blind students and the outstanding display of athletic ability. This was the best showing of any state and certainly the finest win by any group since I've been associated with the program."

The winners will now likely be invited to the tryouts for the U.S. team which will compete in the International Olympics for Disabled Athletes in Holland this summer.

Cut power bill; have an audit

Alabama Power Company is urging Shelby County homeowners to have free energy audits of their homes.

The audit will show ways in which the homeowner might be able to conserve energy.

Several such audits have already been conducted by the company they have turned up instances of poor insulation, and the need for weather stripping and caulking in several homes.

The Power Company sends auditors to any home on request to see if there are ways in which the home can be more energy efficient. If so, the bills for home heating and air conditioning can be reduced.

According to the company, lights, television and small appliances make up only a small portion of the total energy use. About 75% of energy is used for heating, cooling, water heating and refrigeration.

The audit will show if there are ways in which these major users of electricity can be reduced, and will give helpful information on conservation of all energy use in the home.

Those who live in the area served by the Alabaster office should call 663-4020; by the Montevallo office: 665-1221; by the Childersburg office, call collect 378-5560.

TIP OF THE WEEK

If rabbits in the garden are a problem, powder your plants with the cheapest talcum powder you can find. It also repels flea beetles. When rain washes it off, put more on.

You can save a day at planting time, plus the fuel for two or three trips over your fields, when you let 1/2 us put on your fertilizer and herbicide at the same time. Call now for Thermogas/Hopcaid liquid fertilizer service.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of our brother, Lige Harris, who passed away 1 year ago, April 9, 1979.

We knew a real fine person who found the nicest ways of doing things for others to help brighten up their days, he wasn't great or famous. But he was an expert at the art of making people happy, for he had a loving heart. He was nice to sit and talk with and always fun to be around a dearer friend and confidant never could be found. Although some memories have grown a little dim, ever since we could remember we always remember loving him.

Love you always,
Your sisters,
Eunice Tomlin and Lucille Ozley Gates

IN MEMORY

In Memory of Roy L. Kirby
On His Birthday April 7
It was so hard to see you go,
But God knows best, We all know.
He is up in Heaven, With no pain,
And we pray to be with him again.

Andy by us all he was dearly loved,
And he had a lot of Friends.
Now he is at rest, and has no pain,
In Good's home that has no end.

He is really not Dead,
He has just gone away.
And he wants us to meet him,
Some Sweet Glorious Day.

He was good and he was Strong,
and in his heart, he did no wrong,
So he is not dead, he is just away,
Darling, we will meet you, some sweet day.

Love wife Frances Kirby

Look out mosquitoes - Spray is on the way

by Shelba Nivens

The county is beginning an all-county spraying program to kill mosquitoes, according to Robert Wilson, mosquito control officer. He told the Reporter that the spray truck should be ready for work by the weekend.

He said he plans to cover the entire county on an "eight-day turnaround," noting that federal laws prohibit spraying more often than every eight days in any given area.

Some spraying has already been done south of Saginaw, at Green Valley Estates south of Alabaster, and at Longview.

Wilson cautioned that children should not be allowed to follow the truck because some people are allergic to the chemical it will be spraying. Children with known allergies should be kept inside for around ten minutes after the truck has passed, he said. After that time, it should be safe for them to play outdoors again.

Beekkeepers are cautioned to alert the control officer as to the location of beehives. The chemical is toxic to bees on the wing, he said. But it will not hurt bees in the hives. Therefore, if workers know where bees are located, they can take necessary precautions. Spraying will either be done after dark when bees are inside hives, or the sprayer will be turned off when in the vicinity of the bees.

The mosquito control program was set up by the County Commission last year after heavy floods created a temporary mosquito problem.

Chemicals have already been applied in drainage ditches in about 100 different areas this spring, Wilson said. Areas covered include ditches south of Helena, around Pelham, all around Alabaster and some at Vincent. He is waiting for delivery of a special chemical to do water holes around Columbiana, he said.

He is using altosid brickettes, a new controlled method, he says is in use throughout the United States. It does not kill mosquito larvae, but retards their growth so they do not become full grown.

He has been visiting county schools, telling students and faculty how to get rid of urban mosquitos.

Those with particular complaints may contact Wilson at the mosquito control program office in the Health Department building.

Cities in the county are being contacted about spraying within city limits.

Beat 12 zoning passes

by Marcia M. Sears

An overwhelming majority of 81 percent voted in favor of zoning for the Cahaba Valley last Saturday.

The registered voters of Beat 12 cast 1,487 votes in favor of the proposal and only 350 against it.

It was the fifth time an election had been held on the issue in Beat 12, and in all previous elections zoning had been turned down.

The election was not without controversy, however, as charges flew there was illegal politicking activity in favor of zoning at the four polling places.

Sheriff Buddy Glasgow was called upon to remove persons who called themselves "poll watchers" from the polling places, when poll officials found that these persons did not have the proper credentials.

Other complaints flooded into the sheriff's office concerning campaign signs too close to the polling places, and other political activity. The complaints were registered chiefly by poll workers.

The renewed interest in zoning in Beat 12 came about when two developers announced their intention of building industrial parks there.

Hundreds of Cahaba Valley residents who had purchased new homes in the area since the last zoning election six years ago, were surprised to hear there was no zoning plan in the area. They rallied to the cause of protecting their residential investments. Committees were formed to contact residents and a general campaign was carried out, led as in the past, by the Indian Springs Civic Club.

It is not certain that the pro-zoning vote will stop the Spradco development, which had the approval of the Shelby County

Third floor goes up

Construction work on the $13 million expansion project at Shelby Memorial Hospital continues to go smoothly. Despite unusually heavy rains in March, the project is reported to be almost right on schedule.

A spokesman for E.C. Coston, general contractor for the project told the Reporter last Thursday that work on the dining and emergency room areas is going according to plan, while work on the new third story bed area is a "hair" behind.

Construction crews have been drilling and pouring foundation caissons during the past two weeks for the dining area at the south end of SMH and the emergency room at the rear of the building.

The major portion of the steel erection for third floor which will house 39 additional hospital beds, was completed April 4, the spokesman said.

Since then, workers have been laying sheet metal decking for the roof and within two weeks they will begin pouring concrete over the decking.

The spokesman said that work on the exterior walls is also scheduled to start within two weeks.

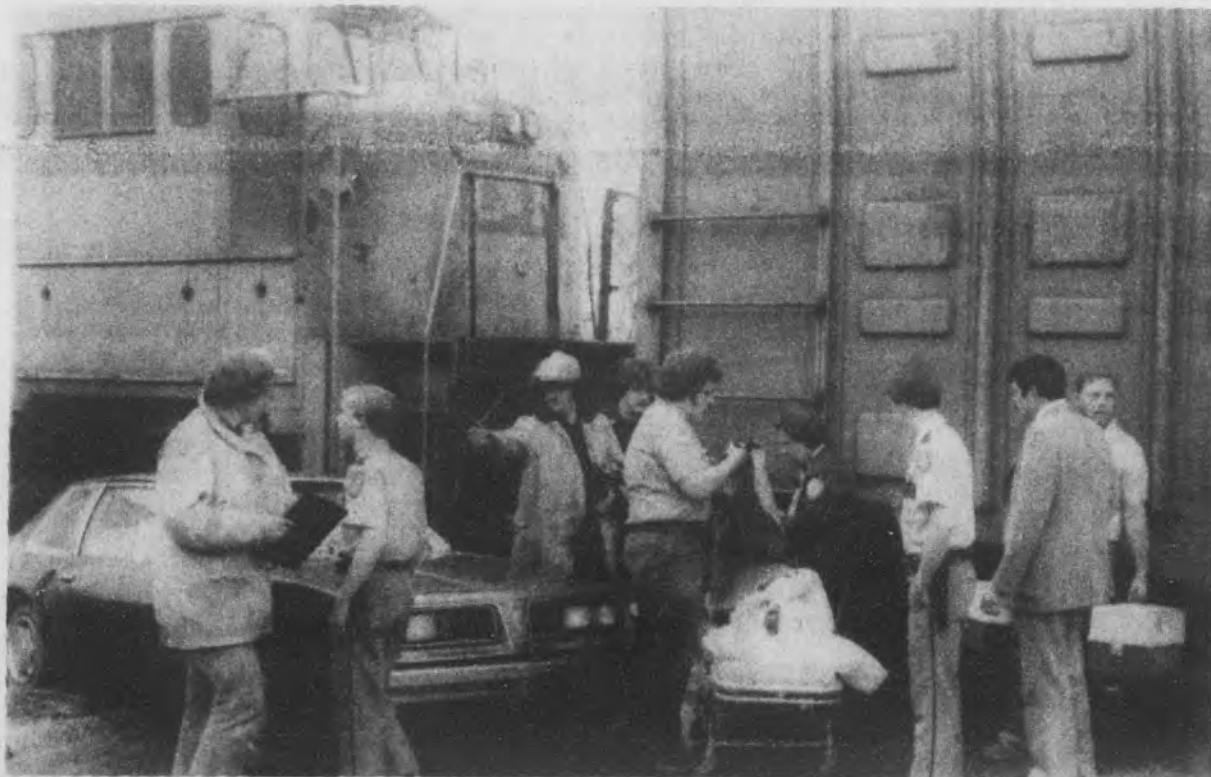

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the project were held in late

December and construction was started the first of February.

The expansion project also calls for the remodeling of the hospital's other bed areas, but the spokesman noted that his phase of the work would probably not begin until the third floor addition is complete.

Presently, several crews totaling 30 men are working on the project, but as work progresses more workers will be on hand.

Designed by the Alabaster architectural firm of Dampier-Harris, the project is expected to be finished by August of next year, the spokesman said.

Shelco money crunch leads to controversy

People from Wilton and Pea Ridge urged the Shelby County Commission Monday to help Shelco Unit One continue providing emergency medical services.

Shelco had asked the Commission for $1,300 per month, and had been turned down on the basis of the county's financial crisis.

Sarah Head of Wilton, who had attended a February meeting, said she understood the Commission would give aid to Shelco if the one cent sales tax passed.

She said she and her sisters, and several others in the Wilton area supported the tax for the main purpose of continuing Shelco's emergency services.

Mike Parker of Pea Ridge said he had also campaigned for the sales tax to continue Shelco's services to that area and he presented the commission with a list of 200 names who wanted the commission to help Shelco.

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden said the county still does not know what its income will be for the year because of all the delays in preparing the property tax reappraisal. He expressed regret that the sales tax will not yield as much as he had been told.

He emphasized that despite recent reports, "The commission does know what's going on." On the issue of taxes he said, "We have bent over backwards to cooperate with the tax assessor." Snowden said the commission has no control over the tax assessor's office or the state revenue department which together are responsible for completing the tax list. "I don't know where the problems are," he continued.

When the Shelco backers pushed harder for funds, Commissioner Harold Davenport said the law requires the commission to operate within its income, and borrowing may again be necessary this year.

Miss Head replied, "If you're in the red, why not go deeper in the red. They can't send you to jail but one time. If we're not interested in living human beings, by Jingo, we won't have much of a county, will we?"

Miss Head also said she had not found anyone who did not have a good word about Shelco, and she had heard people say Shelco had saved lives within their own families.

Doug Ballard, Jr., who heads the service, again pointed out that all the unit members serve without pay and have paid for their own expensive training over the years.

Objections that Shelco does not serve the entire county were Train hits teacher's car

Wreck injures teacher

A Thompson Elementary School teacher was injured Friday afternoon when her car was hit by an L&N freight train at the crossing on Hwy. 119 and 31.

Although she reportedly suffered a concussion, Jane Masci was said to be in good condition Monday at South Highland Hospital.

Her second grade son Thomas was also in the car when the southbound train struck the rear end at 3:13 p.m., but he escaped unhurt.

Waiting behind other cars for a traffic light to change, the back portion of the teacher's 1977 Pontiac was on the tracks.

Even though the train was traveling slowly, the engineer reported that he was unable to stop in time and expected the occupants of the car to jump.

The impact spun the car into a signal box.

Alabaster police say this is about the fourth accident at the crossing this year.

Heart of Dixie Show planned for next week

The annual "Heart of the Heart of Dixie Horse Show" is scheduled for Saturday, April 26.

Sponsored by the Shelby County High School Athletic Club, the Columbiana show is one of the largest in this part of the state.

Horses and competitors are once again expected from several Southeastern states.

Activities will begin at 10:30 a.m. with 52 different classes scheduled throughout the day. Following a barbecue supper break from 5:30 to 6:30, the evening classes, which always attract a wide following, will begin. Show chairman this year is John E. Jones of Columbiana. Ringmaster will be O.D. Smith, and the announcer will be Leonard Crotts of Laurens, S.C.

Judging the walking horses will be Jerry R. Summers of Pulaski, Tenn. Bill Watts of Fairburn, Ga. will judge the western entries. Arabian horses and gaited horses will be judged by John C. Matty of Fairburn, Ga.

Over $4,000 will be distributed in prize money in addition to trophies and ribbons.

Animal plight told

by Reporter Staff

Shelby County Commissioners are studying a plan to hire an animal control officer.

Jack Williams of Pelham has volunteered to serve as such an officer for a salary of $1 per year. Williams currently serves the City of Pelham in that and other capacities.

Appearing before the Commissioners Monday were Donald Goodman and Anne Speakman of the Birmingham Humane Society, who outlined some of the problems they hear about in regard to animal treatment in Shelby County.

Mrs. Speakman says she gets about 12 calls a month from Shelby County residents requesting that the Humane Society investigate cases of animal neglect or abuse.

They would like to see Shelby County develop its own program, because the Birmingham Humane Society cannot handle the work, they emphasized.

If an animal control officer were appointed, he would operate in the non-incorporated sections of the county, since cities have varying laws governing animals. He would be deputized in order to make arrests when necessary.

Commissioners were receptive to the idea of such an officer, but because of the financial crunch, wanted to investigate whether such an official would be eligible for county employee fringe benefits and whether the county would be liable for lawsuits.

The issue recently came to the forefront when a horse was found by Williams in a hayloft in Pelham. He asked for help from the Birmingham Humane Society in removing the horse from the barn. Discussions of other emergencies dealing with animals followed, and the group decided to ask the Commission to set up the office of animal control inspector and give him the legal right to enforce state laws on the care of animals.

Montevallo seeks historic zoning

A number of buildings on Montevallo's Main Street may soon be listed on the Alabama Register of Historic Places.

A group of citizens owning property between Shelby and Middle Streets on Main Street appeared before Montevallo's city council Monday night, asking for the blessings of the town fathers in getting their respective properties designated as historic buildings.

After viewing a film on the Planning Commission in February. A lawsuit challenging the legal status of the Planning Commission will be heard in court in 30-45 days, according to Homer Dobbs, who represents the developers of the proposed industrial park.

A proposed legislative act is also being planned which, if approved, would make some changes in the structure of the present county planning commission.

At the four polling places in Beat 12, the official vote, with the 'yes' vote listed first, was: New Hope church: 617 to 214. Quality Furniture: 68 to 25. Bryan church: 506 to 89. Inverness: 231 to 21. Absentee: 11 to 1. All boxes favored the zoning. A total of 1,837 votes were cast.

subject and discussing the advantages of such designations, council members unanimously agreed to support the property owners in their endeavor.

Among the advantages of having property listed on the state's historic register are tax breaks and preservation of older buildings, according to Sam Roberts and Mike Mahan, spokesmen for the group.

Henry McQueen, representing a men's softball team, then requested that the council waive a carnival license fee for a traveling carnival. The softball team will be the local sponsoring organization for the carnival that is tentatively scheduled for Montevallo in early May.

Council members voted to waive the license fee. Proceeds from the event will go to the Montevallo Band Boosters, the city's Park and Recreation Department and the sponsoring softball team.

Doug Ballard, Jr., Chief of Shelco Rescue Unit One reported to council members that Shelco One will only respond to calls from within the Montevallo and Wilton city limits and from within the Shelco Fire District.

In other business, council members authorized the payments of bills accruing to the city's various departments and authorized proclamations declaring the month of April as Cancer Crusade Month and designating May 2 as Alabama Supreme Court Day in Montevallo. On that day, the Alabama Supreme Court will hold its sessions on the University of Montevallo campus.

NSCFD hires manager

The North Shelby County Fire District Board of Directors has hired a Pelham public accountant as its business manager.

The board hired Jim King of Helena at its recent meeting to supervise and refine the office management of the fire district. His duties will include collection of fire dues and the handling of payroll and health plans for the district's seven paid firefighters.

According to NSCFD Board Chairman Steve Wright, King is "very familiar in the district and familiar with this type of (accounting) work. We feel he'll do an excellent job for the people of the district."

King told the Reporter, "I want to evaluate where they (NSCFD) are, and where they're going. I want to further develop the positive things they have going. They're providing a tremendous service."

A native of Shelby County, King said he would be beginning his new duties Monday, April 21.

In other developments in the fire district, Wright reported that steps are continuing on the suits being filed against the Birmingham Water Works Board on behalf of the NSCFD and some eleven other fire districts which use Birmingham water.

The lawsuits are being filed by Birmingham attorney William W. Conwell of the firm Foster and Conwell.

They are coming in the wake of a recent announcement by the BWWB that both fire plug rentals and residential water rates would be going up.

The rental rates will effect 110 of NSCFD's 160 fire hydrants. When put into effect October 1, the yearly rental on a hydrant will jump 460 percent from $54 to $250.

New residential rates were due to increases in North Shelby this month by about 40 percent.

Government at crossroads

Changing times mean change in spending

By Fob James

Governments at all levels are at a crossroads. For years, it was felt by those in government—federal, state and local—that the tax dollar was no one's dollar and could be spent as such. The people in their wisdom, have served notice that this way of thinking must be changed.

It has always been easy to raise taxes to solve a problem. But it has been demonstrated that raising taxes often tends to perpetuate waste and inefficiency by taking away the incentive to save, manage and spend wisely. It is for this reason that I stated in February that I wanted to get our house in order before we pass any new taxes.

As Governor of Alabama, I am the chief executive officer of the state. I have administrative control of the agencies that make up the Executive Department. It is in these departments that I can, by executive decision, implement cost-saving measures independent of any board, commission or the Legislature.

I would like to give a progress report on the first 15 months of my administration with regard to cutting costs in the Executive Department.

To date more than $60 million has been saved the taxpayers of Alabama by efficiency measures in the Executive Branch. This is money that heretofore was spent wastefully with no benefit accruing to the taxpayer public. That has not stopped.

Although this column is not the place to itemize every savings, I will mention a few of the more substantial items. We saved more than $11 million last year by putting stricter guidelines on purchasing. We saved $6.3 million in our Performance Accounts through Dec. 31, 1979 and have added another $4 million since then.

Another $16 million was saved by reducing unnecessary state personnel through retirement, attrition and lateral transfers. And one thing I am very proud of is that we paid the 7 percent employee pay raise for this year with savings within the departments.

That meant that we did not have to use $8 million additional dollars for the pay raise and, thus, we saved the taxpayers the money and rewarded state employees with the fruits of their efforts to reduce waste. To me, that is the best kind of raise we could give.

Right now, we are looking at some $45 million in legitimate needs in state government for the present fiscal year. We need some $28 million for Medicaid, about $9 million for the Board of Corrections, $6 million for the Department of Mental Health as well as other areas.

We have identified all but about $14 million of that need if things can be worked out. It is my firm belief that we should, as the small businessman, farmer and housewife have to do, cut back where we can before we begin thinking about new capital.

On another subject, I would like to commend the good people of Macon County for the resounding victory over the dog track proposal last week. I spent last Sunday afternoon in Macon County working against the proposal and if I was any help in defeating the measure, I am proud to have been of some assistance.

The basic goodness of the people of Macon County triumphed last week and I pledge to do everything I can to help them grow and prosper in the future.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

This story is for all fishermen 25 and under who might think their luck is awful since April has borrowed eight straight days from March.

But a fisherman's life is full of trouble, the same today as it was 20 years ago when this story first hit the editor's desk.

And today, the same as then, a fellow will stumble up on it in the strangest places. Like L.H. King who didn't have a brother in the world but who ran upon a peck of trouble at a lake just off highway 90.

Two ladies from Bessemer had come down to fish. A fat lady tied in the middle with a belt and a skinny blond who looked like she'd been in the reducing room all week.

They were sitting on the bank in two folding chairs with their poles on the ground in front of them. They had a heavy rock on each pole. To hold 'em down, I suppose, or maybe to help out if a bass got the bait and started off toward a bunch of lilies on the far bank.

"Having any luck?" L.H. asked them, stopping his car under a tall oak.

The skinny blond looked up and managed a smile. "Of a sort," she said. She pointed toward the car. "You got anything for that?"

L.H. looked at the flat tire. "I've got a lug wrench," he said, "but it won't fit."

He waited a minute, still looking at the tire. "How far you live from here?"

"We live in Bessemer," the fat lady said. "My Husband runs the You-Fix-It on eighth avenue."

"I'm going to Bessemer," L.H. said. "I'll stop by and tell him about your trouble."

A blue jay came out of a pine thicket and lit in a scrub oak and picked himself and took a long look around and flew away. Maybe he didn't like what he saw and decided things were better in the thicket.

"Have you caught anything at all?" L.H. asked.

"Not a nibble. Not a stinking nibble, and we've been here two hours."

L.H. drove off, taking one last look at the two ladies and the poles laying on the ground and the right front tire as flat as a mashed biscuit.

The next day he was telling me about it.

"You know," he said, "they were having so much trouble I didn't have the heart to tell 'em the lake wasn't stocked."

Scrambled Eggs

"So-long," called my colleague as I climbed the ladder up the side of the locomotive.

"Drop us a postcard from wherever you wind up," he added with a chuckle.

Fortunately for me, the train didn't move until I'd climbed down on the other side.

In case anyone is wondering why I was climbing around on the engine of a train, let me explain that it was in the line of duty.

I'd been driving along thinking about the traffic ticket I'd received earlier in the day, when I noticed that people were gathered around a train stopped at a crossing I was approaching.

Suspecting there was an accident on the other side of the tracks, I pulled off the road, grabbed my camera and ran to where the group was peering between freight cars.

Since the only way to reach the other side was to either crawl under the train or climb over the locomotive, the latter route seemed preferable.

Fortunately, the driver of the vehicle the train had hit wasn't seriously injured. But since a train hitting a car isn't an everyday occurrence, I stood in the rain and snapped away.

Then as things were winding down, my colleague from the newspaper came puffing up with his new camera.

Seeing that most of the action was over, and not wanting to ruin his investment, he decided not to linger. And I felt as though I was soggy enough for one day, but wondered how to get back to my car.

Looking around, I noticed that the train crew wasn't anywhere in sight and I suspected that they might be preparing to get underway.

However, I decided to chance another trip over the engine anyway. And I think I scurried a little faster when my friend called out his departing message.

But all's well that ends well, as they say. And I was safely in my car and driving down the road before the train started up.

And let me add, that I drove slowly - very slowly. You see, my traffic ticket earlier in the day had been for speeding.

Of course, being late for an appointment was no excuse. But as fate would have it, the cars ahead of me had been creeping along for endless miles.

Then, just as I had an opportunity to pass and had stepped on the gas, who should loom into sight but an ever watchful guardian of the speed limit?

The dear fellow even noticed that my driver's license had expired. It's great to know our men in blue are on the ball, isn't it?

Oh well, I guess it's better to be stopped by a cop than hit by a train. Don't you agree?

Shelby County Commissioners reversed themselves Monday and ordered advertising stopped on a proposed legislative bill.

They had thought the bill would make it legal to blade private driveways with county equipment. But on re-reading the proposal they decided the new bill, which passed the legal standards of the attorney general and the governor, would not help the people who need it.

Commissioner Jake Morris said the bill was too complicated on the use of personnel and equipment and would require too much paper work computing costs.

In addition, the Commissioners said they had had complaints from private contractors about the bill, saying it would take work away from their companies.

Commissioners concluded they could not live with the bill, and withdrew it.

A Birmingham man wanted by Shelby County and Pelham authorities for three area burglaries was arrested in Ensley the evening of April 8.

Thomas Joseph Jackson, 24, a black male, was arrested on six outstanding Birmingham warrants by the Birmingham Fugitive Detail. The same man has been allegedly connected through fingerprints and a few recovered stolen articles to three Shelby County burglaries which occurred last February.

Besides Shelby County, Pelham and Birmingham, Jackson also had warrants sworn against him by Jefferson County, Hoover and Vestavia authorities.

Pelham authorities claim that approximately $30,000 worth of goods were lifted in the three local burglaries.

Jackson, who listed his address as 1627 - 13th Street S., is now being held in the Jefferson County Jail on nine different warrants. His bond is set at $104,000.

the computer, so we need more work on it to offset costs," Snowden told the commissioners. He said the machine could easily handle the extra work without harming the county's work load.

Engineer James Ray was advised to tell the two or three families who live near the old truss bridge over Kelly Creek in the northeast part of the county that the bridge may be closed. Ray had said it is posted now for a 4,000 pound load limit. He fears however, that if a heavy truck goes over it, the bridge may become too weakened to support even an auto or pickup. "It's the worst of the three truss bridges in the county," Ray said. About 75 vehicles per day use it, he added, but they could use alternate routes.

Shelby introduces bills

Congressman Richard Shelby, who represents Shelby County in the U.S. House of Representatives, has introduced several bills to help in Alabama's Medicaid crisis.

His bills would:

- allow states to negotiate for purchases of medical services
- give states the right to end a recipient's Medicaid eligibility in instances of demonstrated abuse of the system
- allow families to contribute to the costs of medical care and to participate in a voluntary "relative responsibility" plan for recipients in nursing homes
- give states the choice of requiring patient copayment for all Medicaid services

"Obviously," Shelby concluded, "some of these measures are far reaching and will require serious scrutiny by Congress. I intend to push for consideration of these bills—along with others I plan to have ready for introduction later—by the Commerce Health Subcommittee soon after the Easter Recess."

"If we are to trim federal spending and also assure continued care for our needy and aged then we must be willing to give the states a greater say in the program's administration."

Prisoner suit updated against local officials

Two suits that were filed last year by prisoners in the Shelby County jail are receiving attention again.

Cahaba Heights attorney Henry Lagman informed Shelby County Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden Tuesday, of charges that had been brought against him, the Commission and Sheriff Buddy Glasgow.

Appointed by the U. S. District court in February to represent the prisoners, Lagman filed an amended complaint in that court Monday.

Reportedly, the suits filed in June and October have essentially the same charges and Lagman supposedly is trying to consolidate them.

The charges concern overcrowded conditions, inadequate medical and dental care, poor diet, discrimination by trustees, not enough space for recreation, denial of access to law books and lack of a rehabilitation program.

The first case was filed in June by Walter Strickland, who has since been released, and Allen Burr.

The Sheriff was the only defendant in that case.

However, in October, Burr filed charges against the Sheriff, the Commission Chairman and members of the Commission. This time, Burr used his first name, Charles, in bringing the suit.

According to the wording of the suits, the charges were filed in behalf of all prisoners at the jail.

Strickland has completed a five year sentence for burglary and grand larceny and Burr was sentenced in September to a ten year term for armed robbery.

Insurance ran out Sunday on buildings at the Shelby County airport, but the County Commission put a binder on the buildings while taking bids on new insurance. According to Bob Tucker, Civil Defense Director, the present value of the buildings, after depreciation, is $263,000. The cost to rebuild them at today's prices would be $340,000, he said.

Perry County is asking Shelby County to preprint their motor vehicle forms through the computer. Last year Shelby County's computer ran off Bibb County's forms for 10 cents per copy, and according to Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden, lost money on it. The county will charge Perry County 13 cents this year.

Harris (r), after they spoke to several classes on their experience with drugs and crime. (Photo by Seaman)

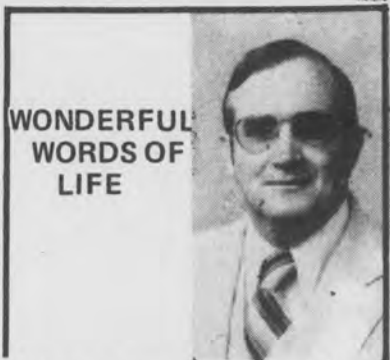

Inmates speak out against drugs

"Don't go the way we went. It isn't worth it!"

That was the advice a 23 year old inmate from the Shelby County jail gave to students at Shelby County High School.

James Lawley and a fellow prisoner, Cleveland Bishop, spoke to students Wednesday on their experience with drugs and how it led to their committing crimes.

The two prisoners were brought to the school by Shelby County Sheriff's Department Chief Investigator Reed Smith and Sgt. Tom Barnes to talk to 9th grade students.

Is Any Human Being Living Today Capable of Healing Meraculously?

One can know from a study of God's Word that the means of receiving power to perform miracles has ceased. Thus, the ability to perform miracles today does not exist among men.

In receiving the baptismal measure of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost, the apostles were not only to perform miracles but also to lay hands on others, whereby the recipients were also able to perform miracles. (Acts 2:1-4.) The recipient of the miraculous gifts bestowed by the apostles, on the other hand, was unable to pass the gift on to others. For example, the evangelist Philip received miraculous gifts from the apostles. (Acts 6:6.) However, when Philip preached in Samaria—where he confirmed the word with miracles—he was unable to pass the gift on to others. (Acts 8:5-13.) "Simon saw that through the laying on the apostles' hands the Holy Spirit was given." (Acts 8:18.) It was then—not when Philip was working miracles—that Simon desired to buy the ability to pass the ability to perform miracles on to others. Note that he observed that the apostles were the ones who could bestow the miraculous gifts. Peter immediately informed Simon that he could not be given the ability to bestow the miraculous. (Acts 8:21.) See also Acts 19:1-7.

The apostles had capability which no one else had in the first century. Paul stated, "Truly the signs of an apostle were wrought among you in all patience, by signs and wonders and mighty works." (11 Corinthians 12:12.) It is obvious that these "signs" were not the ability to perform miracles, those on whom the apostles laid hands could work miracles. The only thing the "signs of an apostle" could be was the ability to pass the miraculous gifts on to others. This only the apostles could do.

Since only the apostles could confer the miraculous gifts, since the last apostle died nearly two thousand years ago, and since the last person on whom miraculous gifts were conferred died nearly two thousand years ago, not one person can perform miracles today. More to follow!

History teacher Juanita Lighsey had initiated the idea since her class had been studying about drug abuse and juvenile crime.

However, other classes took advantage of the opportunity to hear first hand accounts of what can result from experimenting with drugs, and the two men spoke to a full auditorium.

Because it took $130 a week to support his drug habit, Bishop told students that he would commit burglaries to get the money.

"That's an experience you don't want to go through," he declared - "especially jail."

He reminded students that after serving time in prison, a person cannot own or get anything in their name. "And a prison record will follow you for the rest of your life," he said.

The Chief Investigator told students that anyone convicted of marijuana possession could be sentenced to a year in jail and fined $5,000.

For the second offense, he related that the penalty is from 2-15 years in prison with the maximum fine $25,000.

Lawley, who is serving a 17½ year sentence for armed robbery, told of breaking into a drug store to get narcotics.

He urged the audience to "take care of your mind and your bodies. My body is ruined," he remarked, "from shooting myself."

Agreeing with his friend, Bishop, who has to do four years for grand larceny and BRCS, emphasized that, "Drugs will destroy your body and take away your common sense."

He reported that 80-90% of those committing crimes had been on dope.

"The main thing I want to leave with you," he told students, "is keep your head together and stay in school."

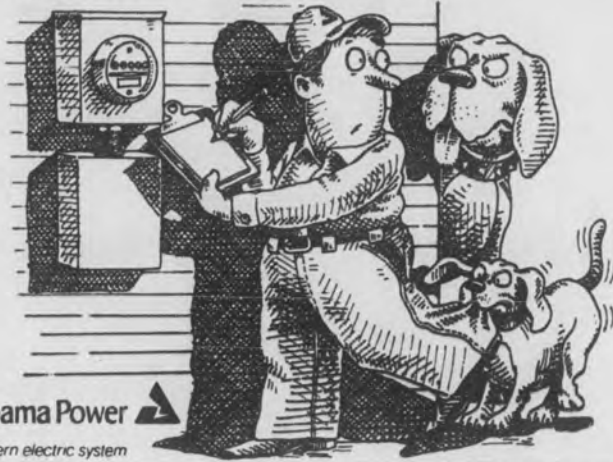

Sgt. Barnes informed students that withdrawal from certain types of drugs could cause death, and the Chief Investigator underlined that remark by adding "death is forever!"

DID YOU KNOW?

We read 98% of our customers' meters each month.

That means only about 2% ever get estimated. And that only happens because of factors beyond the company's control, such as locked gates and doors, and inclement weather. When it is impossible to read a meter, the company will estimate the meter reading. And any difference between the estimated usage and the actual usage is corrected when the meter is read the next month. We always try to avoid estimating anyone's reading for two months in a row. But in any case, no customer ever ends up paying for more, or less, electricity than is actually used.

Volunteers build 'magic playground'

by Melville Harlin

Had you driven by the Elvin Hill Elementary School last Friday afternoon you would have seen at the back a barren area strewn with what appeared to be junk: old tires, railroad ties, utility poles, lengths of lumber, chain, pipe, and a dozen or so steel rods. Surely a junk yard!

And on the next day had you passed the school in late afternoon you would have been startled. For on the same area on which only the evening before had appeared to be a junk yard had sprung a playground complete with a variety of climbing toys, a spiral staircase, a tire teepee, swings, a tire jungle, a balancing beam and poles, a wooden horse, a tire walk with table and benches. And had you looked closely you would have seen that the "junk" you had seen the evening before had magically become a playground. A magic playground? Had some guardian angel waved a wand over the barren spot and hence had mushroomed in a single day a complete playground? Well, hardly. It all began back in the winter when friends of the school sought to install a playground for which no funds were available. Several groups invited Dr. Thomas W. Jambor, professor in the School of Education, UAB, to show color slides illustrating his Creative Environment Playground which he had created from ties, tires, poles and lumber for his own children.

The Vignette Club decided to sponsor a playground for the school. Janice Falkner and Katie Robertson headed a committee to sponsor a creative playground, and the work got underway. Jambor had created Creative Environment, Inc., and for a modest fee blueprints were available. The materials required: 30 utility poles (a number contributed by the Power Co., the remainder purchased by the Vignette Club), 147 railroad ties (contributed by a railroad in the county), passenger and tractor tires (all contributed), $400 for chain which was donated by a local hardware company, weather resistant lumber, also contributed by a lumber company, and bolts, nuts, and screws (contributed by a local bolt and screw company.)

First graders visit city hall

120 first graders from Montevallo Elementary School toured Montevallo's city hall last week. In the city library, City Clerk Don Hughes, right, briefed the youngsters on municipal government and answered questions about the city. They also met with Mayor Ralph Sears in his office at city hall.

Dad's day

About 400 fathers of Valley School youngsters got together for breakfast last Friday morning at 7:15 at the school. Enjoying a last minute talk before going off to their work for the day were from left: Charles Cowan, Bob Patterson, Al Knight, and his daughter Shannon. Next Friday is grandparents' day and Principal Norma Rogers says grandparents are coming from out of state to share the day with their grandchildren. (Reporter photo)

Sports event raises funds

County youngsters will be participating in athletic events aimed at raising over $1 million for muscular dystrophy.

The ERA Real Estate/Bob Griese Sportstacular will take place at Thompson High School athletic field Saturday, May 17. It will run from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Participants will accumulate points worth pledges to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. All those finishing with high scores and those raising the most money for MDA will receive prizes and awards.

According to Sue Ann Myers, coordinator for the event, a ERA Real Estate representative will soon be visiting the county schools to register boys and girls for the "Sportstacular."

After registering, participating young people will receive pledge cards. They must have sponsors sign the cards before competition begins. After the competition, cards must be returned to sponsors with certified pledge sheets showing how many points were accumulated and how much money is owed.

Young people will be competing with others in their age bracket. Competition includes 50 and 100-yard dash, crab and sack races and long jump. Young people will also compete in soccer, kick, softball and frisbee throws, sit-ups and chin-ups.

The Sportstacular has the endorsement of the President's Council on Physical Fitness.

Bob Griese of the Miami Dolphins is national MDA sports chairman. He will help publicize the event.

Local ERA Real Estate representatives are Dick Scott of Scott Long ERA Realty and Tom Cory, ERA Realty.

Young people, wishing more information on the Shelby County Sportstacular, may contact the co-ordinator at 988-5300 or 988-0741.

Coping in the 80's

Reporter Feature

Increasing gas prices lead to thinking small

by Shelba Nivens

Linda Brasher commutes daily between her home in Chelsea and her job in Montevallo. She recalls that in early 1978, she paid around 64 cents per gallon for gasoline. Today, she pays about twice that amount.

This is the story we are hearing from people all across the county.

And salaries on most jobs have not risen a matching 100% in two years.

How are Shelby Countians coping with the rising cost of gasoline?

Linda says that she and sister Denise Bradley share transportation to work in a Volkswagen. The VW gets around ten more miles per gallon of gas than does her family automobile. This amounts to quite a savings. Then, for additional savings, she and her sister drive alternating weeks.

Apparently, a lot of other people are also starting to drive smaller cars.

According to Preston Hughes, sales manager for a Columbiana car dealer, his sales show that people have changed from big cars to little cars. "I would say 75% of the people are thinking small car only," he said.

He added, "Of course, a certain percentage of people can't consider small cars, due to such things as family-size. But, when there is more than one car in a family, they go small."

Jim Sumpter says that small car sales have also increased over larger car sales at the Pelham company where he is sales manager.

"Dealers are trying to keep up with what the public wants and are ordering more small cars to try and meet the demand," he said.

Montevallo automobile dealer, George Williford, has also found that a large percentage of the population is looking for small cars.

"But they are not thinking of safety and comfort," he adds.

He pointed out that when most people hear that a car will get from 25-28 miles per gallon of gas, they go for that. But has found that some of the larger, more comfortable automobiles will get from 21-23 miles per gallon.

He added that there is really not a lot of difference in the price of large and small automobiles, either.

"The production in small cars has not kept up with the demand, and dealers will give larger discounts on large cars than on smaller ones," he said.

He summed up, "The main thing I see that the gasoline price has done, is affect people's thinking."

Charles Tidmore says he believes the rising cost of gasoline has also affected people's awareness for the need of conservation.

As a gasoline distributor, Tidmore has noticed that people are not using as much gas as they were before the price began such a steady increase.

Some gas station owners say they have experienced no decrease in their sales. Others say their sales have dropped.

In what ways, other than driving economy cars, are people cutting down on gasoline consumption?

We have been asking this question of people across the county hoping to discover some new and effective answers for our readers.

It appears that a big percentage of Shelby County families own more than one automobile. And they feel it would be almost impossible to get by with only one.

Some people say they have found no way at all to conserve gasoline. Others have shared with us some things they are doing in an attempt to conserve.

During the next few weeks, we hope to share with Reporter readers some of the stories of these Shelby Countians and their attempts to cope with our gas situation.

Social studies winners

Winners in Columbiana Middle School's Social Studies Fair were: Neal Williams, Steve Bean, Brandon Blankenship, Ann Smith, Kenneth

Jones, Vickie Parson, Christy Ellis, Charlon McCombs, and Camille McLeroy.

From raccoon hats to solar homes CMS shows variety of projects

One prize winning entry in Columbiana Middle School's Social Studies Fair was a model of a solar home.

But another project that was awarded a blue ribbon was a reminder of pioneer days.

Sixth grader Christy Ellis made a raccoon hat from a skin she had tanned. And eighth grader Neal Williams created a three level model of a solar home.

Kenneth Jones took first prize in the seventh grade for his geography project which was based on the products produced in the state.

Nearly 300 CMS students entered projects in this year's fair which means that they will get extra points in their social studies classes.

The winners of the first three places in each grade took their projects to the county event in Calera Saturday.

A City in Space was one that was entered in that competition. It was done by CMS eighth grader Brandon Blankenship and won second place in the local event.

A clay bust of Cleopatra was awarded the third place ribbon in the CMS fair. It was sculpted by eighth grader Steve Bean.

Vickie Parson won second place in the seventh grade division. Her entry showed the evolution of homes from the days of the cave man to the present.

A project in geology entitled "Rock Around the World," won the third place award in the seventh grade for Ann Smith.

Connecting the rings from a section of a tree trunk to historic events was the idea of eighth grader Charlon McCombs. It won a second place ribbon.

Camille McLeroy's project entitled "Pages in American History," was given a third place award.

Fourth place winners were: Karen Johnson, 8th; Robbie Hunt, 7th; Bentley Farr, 6th.

Honorable mentions went to: Kenny Carter, 8th; Ramsey Bentley, 7th; Johnny Bullard, 6th.

Census goes to homes

J.D. "Buck" Faulkner of Columbiana is heading up the Census operation in Shelby County.

As Field Operations Assistant, Faulkner will be responsible for collecting census figures throughout Shelby County.

Working with him are eight crew leaders: Barbara Thompson, Sheila Hilleke, Patricia Formby, Loretta Mitchell, Sandra Doyle, Coral Bryant, Susan Bagley and Billie Wildman.

Each crew leader is assigned a district, and will have as many as 13 enumerators working under her.

According to Bob Thomas, Field Operations Supervisor from the Birmingham Census Office, enumerators will start visiting Shelby County homes this week in cases where the mail-in forms were not returned.

Thomas said the staff had been hired on the basis of an expected 80 percent mail-in return of census forms, but that in Jefferson County, only 70 percent had returned their forms. He expects that more workers will have to be hired as a result of this. He did not have figures on the percentage of Shelby County's returns when the Reporter talked with him Tuesday.

Shelby Memorial undergoes accreditation study

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH) conducted a survey of Shelby Memorial Hospital last Wednesday and Thursday.

Although the results of the survey on the hospital's status will not be made known by the commission for two to three months, the surveyors gave hospital officials a preliminary review of their findings.

According to SMH Administrator Roland Bradford, the review presented no surprises in the way of negative recommendations, and he expects the commission to return a good grade.

Said Bradford, "Based on prior experience, I feel pretty confident that we have a good chance for a two year accreditation. We're very pleased. It went real well."

Bradford said that all the changes recommended by the JCAH were minor and that some of them were even corrected overnight. Among the changes already carried out were the purchase of garbage cans that meet requirements, and the adjusting of room doors which opened too easily.

On the positive side of SMH's preliminary report card, Bradford noted that the hospital was "ahead of the game" in its quality assurance program (quality of patient care).

He explained that the JCAH had recently upgraded its national quality standards and did not expect SMH to meet the new requirements. The hospital administration requested it be surveyed on the new criteria, however, and apparently it passed.

The JCAH is based in Chicago, IL. Two of the surveyors at SMH were from Pittsburgh, PA, one from Florida.

A fourth member of the commission was to have surveyed the hospital's lab, but that person was unable to make the tour because of illness. Bradford said the lab survey would be made in several weeks.

Red Cross seeks building

The Shelby County Red Cross has always operated out of a private home. Now it seeks a chapter house to provide additional services.

At the Board meeting on April 10, Col. and Mrs. Charles Westbrook of Jasper explained how the Walker County Red Cross obtained a chapter house. The Walker County Commission donated the land and a house that had to be moved. The City of Jasper provided funds. Building supply houses and volunteers in the building trades completely renovated the structure.

The Shelby County Red Cross Chapter house would include an office, a large room for training in CPR, safety and other Red Cross activities; a room for storage of disaster relief items, CPR and other materials; and an activity room where quilts and pillows and other disaster relief items can be made.

The Shelby County Red Cross provides a number of services through use of volunteers. These include: bloodmobile, industrial safety training, aquatic safety training, health training, assistance to military families, disaster relief and international relations.

Shelby County Red Cross Chairman Bill Keller of Montevallo appointed the following chapter house committee: Col. J. Claude Smith (Ret.) of Westover, Conrad Fowler, Jr., of Columbiana, Dr. Bill Wallace of Montevallo, and Roy Jowers of Pelham. Anyone having suggestions on the chapter house should contact Col. Smith at 678-6994.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

Stiff breeze blows up a red tornado, Thompson Warriors down Pelham 8-3

The wind blew hard all seven innings long on top of the hill at Pelham Field last Wednesday afternoon. Though the wind caused some problems, it was the red tornado that touched down during the first, fourth and seventh innings that did all the damage.

The Thompson Warriors scored three runs in the first, one in the fourth and four in the seventh to knock the wind out of the Pelham Panthers 8-3. The 1 p.m. game was played in front of a bipartisan crowd heavily tilted by PHS students.

With David Cofer pulling in the curves from behind the plate, Warrior John Durrett sent eight sullen Panther batters back to the dugout on strick outs, while allowing six hits. Durrett went the whole distance to start his record out on a 1-0 right foot.

Durrett also proved effective from the batter's box with a single and a seventh inning, two point homer, which scraped over the top of the left fielder's glove and fell over the fence.

Thompson started the game with three runs off four hits and three errors, giving the impression they had a romp on their minds.

But Pelham answered back in the bottom of the first, scoring three runs on three hits before third baseman Steve Boothe put an end to the spree with a doubleplay. Two of the runs came off a single by designated hitter Tripp Woods, who pitched the last three innings for Pelham.

Jim Batton started pitching for Pelham and struck out seven batters in four innings before a pain in his arm retired him for the afternoon. Woods struck out three batters in three innings.

Despite threats in the fourth and fifth innings, Durrett and Thompson's defense kept a cap on any further Panthers scoring.

The Warriors broke the tie in the fourth inning when right fielder Pete Lint dashed home from third after Pelham made a wild throw.

The red tornado saved its most powerful punch for the final inning. The Warriors batted around to buffer their lead with four runs off our hits and one error. Thompson clinched the game as Pelham's last three batters fell to the sticky gloves of Durrett, left fielder Bret Davenport and first baseman Steve Smitherman.

"I thought my boys played real good today," commented THS Coach Billy Woodham as the last of the red tornado packed it off for Alabaster. "We were especially up for this game--you know how these two teams get at it."

Woodham said he was pleased with his team's consistent and aggressive defense, but noted that the batting was not quite yet up to the level he wanted it.

On the other side of the field PHS Coach David Shiflett expressed some different feelings as he addressed the Panthers.

Said he, "We didn't keep after them. We let up. Now we've got our backs to the wall and we'll have to see what we can do."

Thompson's eight runs came off ten hits and five errors. Three of those hits were doubles by Smitherman, Allen Adelburg and Cofer. Smitherman and Adelburg were both credited with one RBI.

The Panthers' three runs came off five hits and three errors.

Right fielder Brett Bell led the batting for Pelham with two singles.

The win upped Thompson's record to 5-1 while Pelham fell to 2-3 on the year.

Run sponsored by UM club to fight MD

A race against muscular dystrophy will be held in Montevallo's Orr Park on Saturday, April 26.

The second annual Falcon Run is sponsored by the University of Montevallo Circle K Club. A two-mile "fun run" will begin at 9 a.m. The 6.2 mile race will begin at 10.

Entry fees will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Interested persons may call 665-5330 or 665-4679.

Double play

Thompson third baseman Steve Boothe swooped up this grounder, stepped on the bag to pick off the Pelham runner forced to third, then flipped the ball to first for a double play. The two clutch outs ended the Panthers' three run spree they had going in the first inning.

Beating the play

Panther catcher Bill Battlow (19) makes it first as Thompson's Steve Smitherman hits a knee to scoop a low throw. Though Battlow managed to beat this play, most of Pelham's players were not so lucky, as the red tornado which blew up from Alabaster showed they had pretty sticky gloves.

Baseball continues despite rain

Despite a war with the rain forecaster, Shelby County baseball is well underway—that is when it's not well under water.

As Confucius allegedly once said: "Spring monsoons make for good, long slides into honorable home place."

As of press time Monday, Thompson and Montevallo were the county's top teams, sporting 3-1 and 2-0 records, respectively. (For more info on the Warriors, see related story.)

Coached by Richard Gilliam, the Bulldogs knocked off Chelsea April 9 by a score of 4-1 behind the pitching of Bret Jones. David Melson pitched Friday against Calera, leading the Dogs to a wild 6-3 win.

Calera led the Dogs going into the final inning, 2-1, with Randy Barefield doing a good job from the mound.

Now 1-2 on the season, Coach Danny Alverson's Eagles picked up their solo win against Thorsby with a 13-11 victory. Curtis Barefield was credited with the win and Barry Turnbloom was credited with the save. Calera's other loss was handed to them on

UM golfers finish sixth

A sixth-place finish in the Point Mallard Intercollegiate Tournament April 10-11 in Decatur had University of Montevallo golf coach Dr. Leon Davis with a "middle-of-the-road" attitude about his team.

"We didn't play real well, but we didn't play too bad, either," he remarked casually, "Larry Adams, of course, played well."

The junior from Crestview, Fla., turned in a 73-75 - 148, finishing third and earning All-Tournament honors.

Dr. Davis knows the team must show improvement, however, in its next couple of matches, because they are important ones. Just ahead is the Alabama Intercollegiate Tournament.

How the Falcons fare there could give a good indication of how they will do in the NAIA District 27 Tournament, set for April 24-25 at Oak Mountain State Park.

the banquet was appropriately titled "Our Winning Season."

Addressing the near-packed hall of people, Head Coach Larry Simmons noted that it was one of the largest crowds he'd ever seen for such an occasion, and attributed the turnout to the caliber of the athletes at THS. A reported 197 pork chop dinners were served and a total of about 250 people were on hand for the presentations.

After the invocation by senior cheerleader Kim Nall and a welcome by Simmons, Coach Lynn Rushing made the award presentations to the state champion volleyball team and girls basketball team which made it to the state quarter finals.

Freda Williams introduced and made presentations to the varsity and B team cheerleaders.

Coach Billy Woodham recognized his promising 15-6 B team basketball squad, and Coach Eddie Williams made award presentations to the 15-11 varsity roundballers.

Simmons made the football presentations to his 9-1 gridiron men.

A group of graduating seniors who had nothing to fear in the way of retaliation, presented the coaching staff with gag awards. Coach Steve Lee received a curly toupee, Ellie Glasscox received toy walkie-talkies, and Williams was given a bag of "Colombian Gold" for his pipe.

Coach Donnie Kennedy was given a giant plastic golf club and ball, Woodham was given a tooth brush and tooth paste and Simmons got a set of Afro-hairdo combs to help keep up his appearance.

The senior athletes also presented the coaching staff with an AM-FM clock radio for the office so they wouldn't be late for practice.

Senior honorees at the banquet were:

- Volleyball: Toots Cooley and Michele Lewis, who were also honored along with Jennifer Peeples for girls basketball.

- Football: Mark Rice, Tommy Birkenfeld, Randy Hawkins, Mark Gamble, David Cofer, Pete Lint, Steve Cutler, Andrew Tannichill, Bret Davenport, Steve Smitherman, Bret Hopwood, Mark Gambill, Gary Hall, Steve Savage, Alan Adelberg and Jimmy Cocke.

- Cheerleaders: Shannon Hinds, Suzanne Luker, Kim Nall, Freddie Tezak, Laurie McCune, Lisa Lee and Denise Harrison.

- Basketball: Harry Harris, Haver Carter and Alvin Thomas were each named captains. Eric Marcus received the "I like to practice" award. (Basketball honorees were unavailable for pictures.)

Spunky leader

Two broken arms didn't keep Cub Scout Den Leader Daisy Conwell from attending meetings. Here she and Assistant Leader Barbara Vance meet with the boys in Montevallo's Orr Park to make kites. Pictured are: Paul McAnally, David Lewis, Daniel Potter, Stephen Burke, Scott Haynie, and Jason and Clare Vance.

Broken arms don't stop her

A roller skating expedition put a severe crimp in the lifestyle of a Cub Scout den leader. Daisy Conwell of Montevallo was enjoying the activity along with the boys a few weeks back until she lost her balance. Trying to keep from taking a bad spill, the leader struggled to sit down but wound up breaking both arms.

A cast was put on one arm for a week and a cast on the other arm was kept on for three weeks. But the afternoon of the fall, Conwell didn't want to alarm the boys by letting them know she was hurt, so she regained her feet and kept on skating. For the past few weeks, her 8 year old son David and friends have been helping her with housework, bathing, eating and even dialing the telephone. Even though she hasn't been able to use her arms, the leader has missed only one den meeting. Conwell is the leader of den 2, Cub Scout Pack 559. Her assistant, Barbara Vance, described her as "a good sport".

Chelsea 'rules world'

by Shelba Nivens A group of Chelsea High School students recently spent two weeks controlling the world's resources. This "control" was actually a simulation with the help of a computer borrowed from Auburn University. But, through their experiment, Gary Shelby's physics class gained many new insights into our energy problem. A student explained, "All our known resources have been programmed into the computer, plus some we expect to find." He continued, "gas, oil and coal feed into either electrical or chemical energy. Hydroelectric and nuclear feed into electrical energy. New technology, which will build up as the years go by, also feeds into the electrical energy pool." Knobs on the computer are used to control the rate at which each resource is being used. One person can control all resources with these knobs. Small control boards can also be plugged into the computer. Physics students used these lab control boards to work together at controlling our resources.

Each student was assigned a particular resource. It was then his responsibility to use that resource as effectively as possible. He needed to conserve while continuing to run things under his control, such as transportation, industry, households and agriculture. Lights on the computer indicate the condition of each resource and the environment. This helped the student in considering how his actions affected other resources and the environment. It wasn't uncommon to hear a student say anxiously to a classmate, "Hey, you're killing us with nuclear waste." The person controlling agriculture was responsible for keeping enough food for the population. Air-quality and population growth also had to be considered. A calendar on the computer adds up the years as our world's resources continue to hold out. As new technology is developed other sources of energy can be conserved. But, as the years click off, resources diminish. When severe shortages of resources, such as food and chemical or electrical energy occur, the calendar ceases. When the calendar stopped, students worked together, trying to decide what could be done to add a few more years. "But, after a while, it just won't go any farther because of shortages," commented one student. "And you can't do anything about it." The students were able to keep the calendar running for over 700 years. However, nuclear waste and air-quality were at destructive levels, and all resources were going toward food production. Industry, transportation, commercial and households were completely shut down. By being practical and conservative, we can keep all of these going for just over 400 years, they concluded. Nuclear waste and air-quality could also be kept at safe levels for this period. They learned that, at the present rate of use, natural gas will last less than 50 years. Oil will last less than 100 years.

A spokesman for the class summed it up this way: "If we really want to last very long, we have to conserve so our great, great grandchildren will have enough energy to function." The computer was programmed by Dr. W.D. Perry and Dr. Marlin Simon of Auburn. The program is financed by a grant from the National Science Foundation. Dr. Perry and Dr. Simon reprogram the machine as needed to keep it current on the energy situation. Shelby attended an energy workshop at Auburn where he became familiar with the computer program. He says he feels very fortunate to have acquired use of the computer for his students at Chelsea. He says his students received lessons in things other than resources while operating the computer. Among them were world and national politics and sociology. The students learned that they could get more years out of our resources when they all worked together, he says.

Mrs. Cobb shares secrets
Azaleas are traffic stoppers on quiet Columbiana street

"People are always stopping in front of my house to take pictures," says Clara Cobb of Columbiana. And anyone who has passed by it lately can understand why. The brilliant array of azaleas in her yard on East College Street is really a photographer's dream. Coming upon it unsuspecting, one might feel that he has suddenly stepped onto Mobile's famous Azalea Trail. Actually, says Mrs. Cobb, it was while visiting the Mobile gardens that she and her husband decided to grow azaleas of their own. Around 1954 they brought azalea bushes from Mobile to set out in their own front yard. Then, they added others from more local nurseries. The plants growing along the edge of her yard, are those original bushes, she says. The ones along the front of the house were put out around 1973 after a tree blew down and crushed the ones originally planted there. We asked Mrs. Cobb to share with us her secret for growing such beautiful azaleas. "First, you have to realize that azaleas are shallow-growing plants," she told us. "They should be set out no deeper than they were already growing." When Mr. and Mrs. Cobb planted, they put leaf mold in the holes with the plants. They did not fertilize them then, but waited awhile. And they water the plants often. Watering is very important, she cautioned. She added that people often wonder why their bushes die after they are set out in the spring, and it is usually because they are not watered often enough. She believes that November and December are best for setting out azaleas, but that they will do well after being set out this time of year-- if they are watered often. She uses camelia/azalea fertilizer around her plants after the blooms drop off. And she sprays to kill bugs, two or three times during the summer. Mrs. Cobb mulches the plants during the summer, usually with pine needles. She also likes peat moss for mulching because it holds the moisture and makes the soil more pulverized. According to Mrs. Cobb, it takes little effort to raise azaleas. Anyone viewing the beautiful red blossoms in her yard, can see how well that "little effort" pays off.

Early county settler

Confederate soldier lives on in memory

"He was fighting in a battle down there on the river, and got his finger shot off."

"I remember sitting in his lap and braiding his beard."

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt (Pappy) Johnson, of Sterrett, were recalling her grandfather, who fought in the Civil War. The soldier was Lawrence Brasher, who lived on Bear Creek Road and married Polly Bearden.

"Grandfather Wilder was out plowing and the Yankees came by and took one of his horses," Mrs. Johnson recalls hearing. "He lived about where the Osborne place is."

Geneva and Pappy Johnson live two doors west of Mt. Signal Baptist Church on old Hwy. 280. This was also the homeplace of her parents, Susie (Brasher) and Wilburn Wilder.

Mr. Johnson recalls his own grandfather, Pole Johnson, who was in the Navy during the Civil War.

He heard stories about a fierce battle in which Grandpa Johnson fought, he says, but he came home from the war without injuries.

Pole Johnson's family had come from North Carolina to settle "Johnson's Bottoms" near Sterrett. They later moved to Mt. Era. Mardis Johnson, father of Roosevelt, made his home near Florence Church near Sterrett.

Pole Johnson died around 1908 and is buried at Rocky Ridge.

Lawrence Brasher died in 1912 at the age of 92. He is buried in old Quinn Graveyard at Chelsea.

The families have placed markers at the graves of both Civil War soldiers.

Montevallo names department heads

Two acting department chairmen at the University of Montevallo, have been appointed permanent department chairmen.

Dr. Angela Hernandez, acting chairman of Montevallo's Mathematics and Physics Department since last summer, is an 18-year member of the UM faculty. A native of Puerto Padre, Cuba, Dr. Hernandez received her bachelor's degree and her Ph.D in mathematics in Havana.

She taught at the Institute of Vibora and the French Dominican School in Havana before coming to the United States.

A member of several professional and honorary organizations, Dr. Hernandez is also local chapter adviser to Alpha Gamma Delta social sorority and Lambda Sigma Pi local senior women's honor society.

Dr. Norman McMillan has been a member of the UM faculty since 1971. He received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Alabama and his Ph.D degree at the University of Michigan. He has completed additional studies at Princeton University and at the University of Toronto through a U.S. State Department grant.

Also a member of several professional and honorary organizations, McMillan is vice president of the Alabama College English Teachers Association and is on the board of directors of the Alabama Council of Teachers of English.

The new English Department head has also written and published several short stories, essays and a review.

A native of Greensboro, McMillan was graduated from Tuscaloosa County High School in Northport.

ISS musicians go on tour

The Indian Springs Glee Club and Women's Chorus will be on spring tour April 20 through 23. They are under the direction of John Guthmiller and will be accompanied by Indian Springs senior, Mark Allen.

Concerts are scheduled in the First Presbyterian Church in Sheffield, and in Ohio and Kentucky.

The groups' repertoire includes both sacred and secular choral literature. Featured on this year's tour is a complete performance of Antonio Vivaldi's Gloria, sung by the combined choirs. The Gloria will be performed with members of the Alabama Symphony Orchestra, at the Canterbury Methodist Church, Mountain Brook, on Sunday, April 27 at 7:30 p.m.

The Indian Springs Glee Club, a 45-voice all-male ensemble, has toured widely and performed for both divisional and national conventions of the Music Educators National Conference and the American Choral Directors Association. Last summer they completed a three-week concert tour of Poland and the Soviet Union.

The Women's Chorus is new to Indian Springs. In only their second year, the Women's Chorus includes more than half of all girls who attend ISS. This marks their first spring tour.

Vandiver tot found when seeking Mama

Two-year-old Jamie Parker was accustomed to having "Mama" nearby. So, one day when she wasn't, he decided to go looking for her.

Jamie was to spend the night with his great grandmother, Gladys Brasher, in Vandiver on Saturday before Easter. But, he kept crying for his mother, said Mrs. Brasher. So, she called her daughter, the child's grandmother, who lives in Sterrett, to come and pick him up.

Then, at 7 on Easter morning, says the Vandiver lady, she received a call from her daughter. Jamie was missing. He had unlocked the front door and disappeared while the family was sleeping.

Jamie's grandfather hunted for him, but to no avail, he finally called the police for help.

In the meantime, Jamie was making his way back toward his own house. His grandparents lived off the main road, but tiny Jamie managed to get to the highway (25) and turned in the right direction to go home. He had walked about a mile along the highway, when a woman spotted him and carried him into a nearby house.

The police were called and soon the little boy with blistered feet was back with anxious, grateful relatives.

"Thank God, He took care of Jamie," said the great grandmother. "And thank the nice, kind people who made a happy ending to this story. May God bless you all."

JAMIE PARKER

The Shelby County Historical Society has ordered grave markers for all known Civil War soldiers buried in Shelby County in unmarked graves.

According to Ken Penhale, president of the Society, the tombstones should be arriving shortly.

If a marker has not been ordered for the grave of your Civil War ancestor, you can still order one, he says. Interested persons may write the Shelby County Historical Society at P.O. Box 286, Helena. As much statistical information as possible should be given with your request.

Many Shelby County families have Civil War stories about ancestors, such as the Brasher and Johnson family tales. Names and dates inscribed on stones at gravesites should make these stories even more vivid.

We know that you are with God
Where there is no pain

Miraculous spill

An asphalt truck turned over and buried two cars as it attempted to turn onto Hwy. 119 at the intersection of U.S. 31 Tuesday morning. A Pelham policeman at the scene commented that it was miraculous no one was seriously injured. The driver of the truck told authorities at the scene that his brakes gave out. (Photo by Moore)

Hot asphalt spill covers cars

by Reporter Staff

A large trailer truck crushed two cars and buried them under its load of asphalt when it flipped over Tuesday morning. No apparent serious injuries were incurred in the accident which happened at the intersection of Cahaba Valley Road and Highway 31 about 7:50 a.m.

Before authorities could clear the wreckage and spilled asphalt, a second accident occurred nearby when a car hit the rear of another car. A Pelham police officer at the scene said the second wreck apparently resulted from a bypasser "rubber-necking," or looking to see the first wreck.

Pelham firefighters Brian Cleveland and Bill Kline were the first officials on the scene and helped the "sandwiched" occupants in one of the buried cars escape through the window.

Those two victims, Ted and Janet Hipp of Cahaba Valley were taken to Shelby Memorial Hospital, treated and released.

The occupant of the first buried vehicle, Marion L. Gwaltney, also of Cahaba Valley, slid to the passenger's side of his car when he saw the truck starting to flip as it turned onto Hwy. 119, according to witnesses. The driver's side of Gwaltney's car was crushed nearly flat.

A Blazer waiting for the light on Hwy. 119 behind the first two cars, also saw the truck starting to flip, quickly backed up to get out of the way, and ran into a fourth car behind him.

The cab of the truck fell on the front of the Blazer, driven by John Michael Capps of Cahaba Valley. In trying to escape the accident, Capps backed into a car driven by Janet Walker of Leeds.

The driver of the asphalt truck, John Allen Meredith, 24, of Pelham, would make no comments to the Reporter, nor would

Palmer Hall reopens with new pipe organ

The University of Montevallo's Palmer Hall, a cultural center for central Alabama for the past 50 years, will get a new lease on life next month.

Saturday, May 3, is the date of the re-dedication of the building, which was originally dedicated in April 1930. The re-dedication follows an extensive renovation project that included the installation of a new Holtkamp pipe organ.

Participating in the re-dedication program will be two descendants of Dr. Thomas Waverly Palmer, the third president of the institution and the man for whom the building is named. A grandson of Dr. Palmer, the Rev. Richard B. Palmer of Colorado Springs, Colo., will deliver the prayer of dedication. Miss Lulu Palmer of Montgomery, a daughter of Dr. Palmer, will participate in the response with Dr. John Stewart, dean of the College of Fine Arts.

The Alabama Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Amerigo Marino, will provide special music for the rededication observance. Selections will be Beethoven's Overture in C Major, Opus 124 ("Consecration of the House") and Brahms' Symphony No. 4, E Minor, Opus 98.

Others participating in the program will be Dr. James F. Vickrey, Jr., president of the University of Montevallo, and Neal Shirley of Birmingham, representing the board of trustees. The dedicatory program will begin at 7:45 p.m. and is open to the public.

When Palmer was completed in 1930, it was acclaimed as one of the finest concert and lecture facilities in the Southeast. The auditorium was acoustically outstanding in a time when microphones and sound systems were unknown.

The Skinner pipe organ, dedicated along with the building, was also considered one of the finest instruments of its kind in the Southeast. The organ was used after World War II to produce a musical series, "Music from Montevallo," for the Voice

Shelby School

Children play on the grounds at Shelby School, where four buildings are in use on the campus. The main building at right has four outside doors for five classrooms. Children can clear the building in seconds during a fire drill. (Photo by Marcia Sears)

How fire-safe are the schools?

How safe are Shelby County's school children from the dangers of fire in the public schools?

The Shelby County Reporter conducted an investigation into the fire safety programs and the preparedness level at each of the schools in mid-April. We visited most of the schools, talked with principals, with the county superintendent, with city fire marshals and with school children.

The series was inspired partly by the county civil defense director's report to the county commission in which he stated that some schools did not seem to be prepared for disaster drills, and partly by reports to us that panic bars on exit doors at some schools were broken.

Our investigation showed that school principals are mindful of fire safety, that fire drills are conducted at most schools regularly and that exit doors are not chained closed during school hours.

Gathering information for the three-part series were David Moore, Shelba Nivens, Bert Seaman and Marcia Sears.

Part I

As Helena Fire Chief Lonnie Thompson puts it, "No one is ever truly prepared for a fire. But by following a good fire safety program, a potentially life taking situation can be reduced to little more than a bad scare."

Regulations on fire safety in the schools are drawn and enforced by the state and county board of education. When a county school is located within a city of Shelby County, that city's fire marshal can also enforce fire regulations at the school.

The responsibility for day-to-day fire safety in a school is chiefly in the hands of the principal, however.

Shelby School

Shelby School, one of the oldest, and one of the few wood frame school buildings still used in the county, has two fire extinguishers on the premises. One of the extinguishers is located near the office, the other in the cafeteria, a separate, concrete block building.

The school, however, has only six classrooms, and principal Robert Brasher reports that the school can be evacuated within seconds. Brasher says the school holds regular monthly fire drills, as prescribed by law.

Five of the classes exit through four upstairs doors. A classroom downstairs exits through a single door, and a teaching trailer at the school is equipped with two exits.

Hill Elementary

On the other end of the spectrum from Shelby School is one year old Elvin Hill Elementary, the newest school building in the county.

An inspection of the school facilities last fall by a state fire marshal revealed that the school was safe of any fire hazards, a spokesman at EHE said.

Lewis Johnson, school maintenance technician, states that he makes periodic checks of the fire extinguishers in the building.

Teacher Peg Hill notes that the school holds fire drills and that in February the third grade class viewed a fire prevention film.

Columbiana Volunteer Fire Chief Bob Barrett said he tries to meet with schools in the city once a year, but has not yet done so this year. Barrett told the Reporter, he would plan to line up a meeting in the near future to discuss fire safety with school officials.

After an unofficial tour of EHE, Barrett noted that the building is almost fire-proof in its construction.

Several county fire officials, however, point out that books, papers, and wooden-top desks are not fire proof.

Vincent Middle

At Vincent Middle School, principal Stan Elliott has set a fire drill goal of evacuating the 350 students from the building in 30 seconds. At last week's fire drill evacuation took a little over a minute, he reports.

("The state recommends that a school be evacuated within 1.5 minutes of the alarm.")

The VMS building has four exits, and none of the doors are chained or locked during the day.

Only one small fire extinguisher is located in the school's main hallway, but Elliott explains that teachers have other extinguishers in the classrooms, out of the way of students.

Alabaster buys car, PA system, hears audit

by Bert Seaman

Opening the city's purse strings, the Alabaster City Council Monday night, doled out a little over $3½ thousand.

And the three Council members present also agreed to hire another person to work in the clerk's office.

Nearly $2,000 of the money spent was to buy a backup rescue vehicle for the city's fire department. And according to Fire Chief John Cochran, the move will save the city $8,000.

Cochran reported that he had planned to ask for $10,000 next year to purchase a new vehicle.

However, the station wagon with the price tag of $1,960 was too good an offer to pass up, he noted. And he added the car can be at the disposal of Fire Marshal Phillip Walker who is also a trained medic.

The $1,500 that was donated to Thompson High School had already been set aside in the budget but not specifically designated.

A letter from THS Principal Allen Fulton was read to the panel which asked for the money to be put in the school's general fund.

It was reported that Athletic Booster Club President Lawrence Barnett had agreed to wait until the next budget planning session to ask for funds to renovate rest rooms under the football stadium.

At the previous Council meeting, Barnett had asked the city for financial help for either the restroom project or to pay off the remainder of the debt the club had incurred in building visitors' bleachers in the stadium.

Bringing up the matter of extra help in the clerk's office, which had also been mentioned at the previous meeting, Mayor Charlotte Burke asked Councilman Dan Gillis for a report.

Gillis and Councilman Gene Glasgow had been asked to study the budget to see if money were available to hire an extra person.

Saying that the budget was in good shape, Gillis recommended that another person be employed fulltime.

Both Councilwoman Mayo Taylor and a black resident in the audience wanted to know if blacks could apply for the position.

Announcing that an ad would be placed in the newspaper for applicants, the Mayor said the city was an Equal Opportunity Employer of anyone who met the qualifications.

It will be up to the Personnel Board, she noted, to classify the employee and set the pay scale.

The panel agreed to spend $215.70 on a public address system for the Council chamber and they also voted to open bids on a backhoe April 25.

A copy of the city's audit for 1979 was presented to each member of the panel, with Jim Slay from the accounting firm of Till, Eddleman and Hester pointing out pertinent information.

He reported that total revenue for the year amounted to $807,532.39. This included a $85,000 transfer from other funds.

Expenditures came to $758,196.21 with $5,000 of that amount being transferred to another fund for partial payment of a new fire engine.

The city's fixed assets at the end of September were $629,671.53.

Former Alabaster Mayors Kurt Payne and W. J. Mathis attended the meeting along with other area residents to support Mrs. Mathis' request for the city's help in a clean-up campaign.

And several residents complained about drainage problems. Gillis admitted that construction of I-65 had created major problems in the eastern section of the city.

He advised affected residents to contact their congressmen about the problem. But both he and the Mayor said they would investigate the matter.

In other business, the panel agreed that the city library would be kept open two additional hours on Tuesday.

Columbiana horse show rated 'AA'

This Saturday is the big day for Columbiana's Athletic Boosters Club.

The 17th annual Heart of the Heart of Dixie Horse Show is scheduled to begin at 10:30 with proceeds going to the general operation of the athletic program at Shelby County High School.

Fifty-two different classes are scheduled for horses and riders of every size and type. They will be competing for over $4,000 in prizes. The show is "AA" rated by the Alabama Horseman's Association.

A barbecue supper will be served in the school cafeteria beginning at 5:30.

John E. Jones of Columbiana is chairman of the show this year. Judges and the announcer are all from out of state.

Library group honors Harrison

Mildred B. Harrison of Columbiana became the third person to be honored with the Public Service Award of the Alabama Library Association.

She received the award at ceremonies on April 17 at the association's annual banquet.

The award was given for achievement in the development of library service in Alabama, for work on the planning of the building which now houses the Alabama Public Library Service and for planning and promoting library building activity in Shelby County and elsewhere in the State.

Governor Albert Brewer appointed her to the Executive Board of the Alabama Public Library Service and while serving as Chairman of the Board and also as Chairman of the Building Committee, the new State Library was erected. The association noted, "Her unusual foresight in the purchase of the 5 1/2 acre site the State Library Building is situated on allowed for the expansion and addition of the Division of the Regional Library for the Blind and the Physically Handicapped."

She also headed a statewide campaign to solicit private funds for the "Alabama Room" in the new Alabama Public Library Service Building and assisted in the selection and purchase of the fine furnishings.

During Mrs. Harrison's tenure on the Alabama Public Library Service Board, great progress was made in the establishment of regional libraries in the state and the Northeast Regional Library and the Cheaha Region were formed.

She has been for many years the Chairman of the Shelby County Library Board and was instrumental in securing funds for the new library building.

The only earlier recipients of the Public Service Award are Congressman Carl Elliott and Senator Lister Hill.

Board denies deputies double Guard pay

by Bert Seaman

The gravy train that deputies attending National Guard summer camp might have ridden was sidetracked Wednesday night by the Personnel Board.

Raising the question about three employees involved, Chief Deputy James Jones asked if the men would be allowed the 21 days training period, plus their regular deputies' salary and also get their vacation time.

After hashing the matter over, the panel agreed to accept Mickey Johnson's amendment to rule 6.19. The change makes the county only responsible for the difference between the military base pay and the salary the deputy would have received on the job during that period.

The amended rule also gives the Guardsman only 15 days for training since it was pointed out that a two week period was usually all that was required.

It was noted, however, that military leave would not be considered as vacation time.

Commission Chairman Teddy Brasher brought up the situation involving Deputy J. B. Carter wanting the time he spent on the payroll of the Highway Department to be counted as continuous time with the Sheriff's Department.

It was mentioned that Carter felt that since he guarded prisoners doing road work and reported to the Sheriff, that his duties were those of a deputy.

The panel decided that Carter should submit a written request to them on the matter before they made a ruling.

At the present time, Jones related, two other men are performing the same duties that Carter had for the Highway Department. So whatever decision is reached in his case might also affect them.

Calling attention to the need for designating the period of time an employee could be absent from the department and still have continuous time, Larry Dillard urged that a policy be formulated.

And he also suggested that the panel go over the rules and update them where necessary.

In a discussion on overtime, Dillard advised Personnel Board Secretary Brenda Parsons and the Chief Deputy to keep a close check on the hours that employees marked down.

It was brought out that every employee did not have 40 hours for the Christmas and New Year's holidays and that the time would have to be computed on an individual basis.

And the matter of court time was also brought to the panel's attention with Jones pointing out that there was no money in the budget to compensate deputies who were called to testify.

Saying he didn't want deputies to hesitate to make a case because of the situation, Dillard suggested the Chief Deputy and Sheriff present a recommendation on how the matter should be handled to the Board.

The Chief Deputy told the panel that he was concerned about pride and the production of work in the department.

"We're getting more money and have better working conditions now," he declared, "but what's happened to loyalty?"

Venue change denied, accused slayer holds press conference

After a change of venue motion for his murder trial was denied Wednesday, Steve Smith told media representatives that he did not commit the crime.

But he wouldn't reveal the identity of the killer, Smith said, "because I have a family out there."

Since Circuit Judge Harold Walden denied the defense motion for the case to be tried in another county, the 23 year old Shelby Countian will stand trial in Columbiana May 19 for the Nov. 18 murder of Larry Osborne.

Parents of the victim were present in the courtroom Wednesday, just as they have been at every other hearing for their son's accused killer.

"I feel sorry for Larry's parents," Smith said. He added, "I didn't have any intention of his getting killed and I didn't kill Larry."

In an effort to have their client's trial moved, defense lawyers Fred Pickard and Cecil Matthews tried to show that newspaper and TV coverage of the case would prevent Smith from getting a fair trial here.

Twenty seven subpoenas were issued to newspapers and radio and TV stations. However, only six witnesses took the stand Wednesday.

When their change of venue motion was denied, Pickard withdrew his request for psychiatric examination of the defendant and also asked that not guilty by reason of insanity be removed from the plea.

As it now stands, the plea simply reads, "Not guilty."

A story about the case in the Feb. 28 edition of the Reporter which gave the plea as guilty and guilty by reason of insanity, was incorrect.

The request for a psychiatric examination was withdrawn, Pickard said, because psychologist Doug Erwin from the Shelby-Chilton Mental Health Center had talked with Smith and found him to be sane.

Answering a question about whether the accused would reveal the name of the alleged killer during the trial, Pickard said it hadn't been decided whether Smith would testify.

He has no indication, the defense attorney said, that his client knows the whereabouts of the more than $8,000 that was missing from the safe of the Western Supermarket in Mountain Brook the day Osborne was killed.

Smith has been in the Shelby County jail since his arrest on Nov. 20. He is under a $50,000 bond.

Law or rescue...which gets priority?

The contrasts of life in Shelby County have always been wide, and events of the past week have shown anew how wide they are.

Some of the county's cities and communities have the money to hire fulltime firemen trained to give emergency medical service. As it happens, these are the areas which also are close to hospitals - Pelham, Alabaster, north Shelby Fire District.

But most of the towns and the vast unincorporated areas of the county do not have the money or the physicians to provide such coverage in the thinly populated areas. They are dependent on volunteers who give untold hours and money to save lives.

The County Commission, charged with providing roads and law enforcement to the county, does not have the power to tax when its citizens want more services - which include everything from landfills to libraries to emergency medical services.

It is further complicated because the legislature had dictated many expenditures that the Commission would have preferred not to make. And the court ordered tax reappraisal upheaval has made it impossible for the Commission to get its financial house in order.

Now the financial crunch that is facing all levels of government is critical here. A valuable volunteer service, Shelco Unit One, which has existed for years on private contributions of time and money may be forced out of business. One proponent for Shelco argued recently that in the rural areas, people might prefer to have less police protection than to lose Shelco's emergency medical service. Shelco needs $15,000 per year from the county to continue. That is less than the salary and fringe benefits of one sheriff's deputy. The saving of lives is the business of both. Which is the more valuable to the greatest number of people?

Should such a trade off be made? There are many factors to be considered, but it deserves careful consideration.

Fob: 'Less talk, more action'

By Fob James

We are approaching the last few days of this legislative session and still there are many questions that remain unanswered and many problems that remain unsolved. It's time for a lot less talk and a lot more action.

You've heard much discussion about new revenue proposals. I think that everyone agrees that there are genuine needs in state government that can only be met by additional revenue, but we must be very careful how we deal with this problem.

Government has a way of trying to spend its way out of trouble instead of working its way out of its problems. If we allow that approach in Alabama, we are only hurting the taxpayer.

Everyday I am made aware of layoffs and cutbacks all over this state as a result of the present economic downturn. Farmers, housewives and working men and women everywhere are sacrificing every day to make ends meet. Why then should government enrich the bureaucracy while the very people who pay the government, the working men and women of Alabama, have to sacrifice to pay their bills?

I have proposed to the Legislature a package that would allow us to work our way out of these problems with a minimum of additional revenue from the people of Alabama, something I feel is important in these difficult times.

In a letter last week to every single Senate and House member I spelled out in specifics my proposals. I proposed the removal of Social Security taxes as an exemption on state income tax returns, a move that will bring in $40 million but which would cost $10 million less than that since state income tax is deductible on federal returns. In effect, the federal government would pay 25 percent of this tax.

I also have lent my passive support to the various "sin" taxes that have either passed the House or which have been proposed. I feel it is more appropriate to tax these items than to tax meat, eggs, milk and bread with a sales tax.

These measures, if passed by the legislature along with basic reform on the part of the government bureaucracy, would give us about $90 million. This is a lean increase that will allow us to manage our way out of our problems. Unfortunately, it is evident that some legislators do not want reform or do not want to cut the bureaucracy at all.

I have said I will veto any sales tax increase because I feel it puts too much of the tax burden on the working people of Alabama and also because it simply would bring in more money than we need. A one-cent sales tax would annually bring in about $125 million, more than $30 million over our needs. In times like these, I don't think the taxpayers in Alabama should have to pay one penny more than state government genuinely needs to provide essential services.

Last year we saved more than $50 million in state government and improved services on a broad front at the same time. There is plenty of room for more improvement but it seems that some legislators are against these kinds of meaningful savings. If we throw more money than we need at our problems, the incentive for efficiency will be gone and we will have perpetuated our wasteful bureaucracies. I will not let that happen.

We are in the eleventh hour of the legislative session and we still have not passed the routine state budgets. It would be a slap in the face of the taxpayer if we had to come back into an expensive special session to pass the routine business that should be taken care of in a regular session.

There has been progress, however. I would like to commend and thank the House of Representatives for its work thus far. It passed a highway tax measure some weeks ago and last week it passed several of the "sin" tax measures as well as the General Fund budget virtually as I proposed it. I sincerely hope that the Senate can have as productive a week this week.

'Superior teachers should be paid more'

Letter to the Editor:

The literature denotes that elementary and secondary teachers have existed so long on crumbs from the nation's economic menu that they hardly know how to sit up to the table and order a full meal.

Personally, I feel that elementary and secondary teachers are the most professional, sagacious, parental and motivational people in the world. Elementary and secondary teachers must cultivate the soil, plant the seed, and watch it grow. Moreover, elementary and secondary teachers have the most significant jobs in our culture but must battle constantly year after year for cost of living raises. It is very pathetic, incorrigible, and unworthy in manner for a teacher to beg year after year for a salary increase when the service a teacher renders is indispensable and unmeasurable.

Nevertheless, more attention should be placed on salary commensurate with responsibility regardless of where responsibility is executed at the elementary or secondary levels. The time has come when superior teachers should be paid more for their ability, sagaciousness, initiative, esprit de corps, and other leadership and professional qualities so essential to successful teaching.

However, changes may require modifications in the image that the public hold about elementary and secondary teachers. In addition, changes may require modifications in the self-image that elementary and secondary school teachers hold. Only if the teachers refuse to diet can they ever expect to sit at the eating table and enjoy the entire meal.

Under The Courthouse Dome

Doug Ballard, Jr., has resigned as a Shelby County representative to the Birmingham Regional Emergency Medical Service System.

Noting that the Shelby County Commission had appointed him to the post seven years ago, he said at that time he felt the county was truly interested in developing better emergency services. He no longer feels that is the case.

His resignation stemmed from the refusal of the County Commission to grant $1,300 per month for the operation of Shelco Unit One, which operates emergency medical services in the southwest area of the county.

He said in his letter of resignation, "It is extremely disappointing to find the governing body....does not appreciate the efforts of EMS personnel to the extent of aiding with financial assistance. Thousands of hours and dollars are spent by the EMS providers in our county each year out of their own pockets with no other re-payment than to know you have saved a life or aided a friend."

He said that Shelco personnel have been contributing about $22,000 per year for the past four years out of their own pockets to keep Shelco operating.

The unit has been widely praised by the sheriff and police personnel, county physicians, the County Commission and scores of persons it has aided in emergencies through the years. But, Ballard noted, "Praises do not pay bills."

Shelco will continue offering services but on a vastly reduced basis.

Just what is our foreign policy?

Letter to the Editor

Does anyone know what constitutes American foreign policy? It lies somewhere between the Carter Administration's hard-line policy on the Moscow Olympics and its policy of conciliation to the Ayatollah in Iran. In these past six months, one has had to question if there is anyone guiding our "Ship of State". The takeover of the American Embassy in Iran, the mistaken "yes" vote on the Palestinian question at the United Nations and the U.S. reactions to the Russian invasion of Afghanistan, civil war in Central America, Soviet troops in Cuba, etc., are all indications that American foreign policy is without direction.

The Carter policy of "talking softly and carrying a wet noodle" has suggested the U.S. to be a "toothless tiger" to our allies and the rest of the world. Current foreign policy has allowed third rate national to challenge the U.S. on many issues. The Carter Administration is unable to convince our allies to support the boycott of the Moscow Olympics or its Iranian sanctions. The much belauded Israeli-Egyptian peace agreement is on the verge of collapse and President Carter seems unable to hold it all together. Gone are the days of American prestige abroad.

All this suggests that either the Presidency has become too much for anyone person or the present administration is lacking in competent advisors, or both. The Carter Administration has not demonstrated the leadership required to retain the United States as the director of the Free World Nations. Our position of apparent weakness gives strength to our enemies and confusion to the rest of the world.

It is time to say "no" to policies of appeasement and vacillation, to seek the alternatives of strong government, and elect officials with positive leadership abilities. All this must be accomplished before it becomes too late to reverse the damage being done by the Carter Administration.

Sincerely,
David Bradley

Writer dislikes metrics

Letter to the Editor:

Somebody please help our congressmen understand we do not want the metric system.

Why is our government shoving the metric system down our throats? Don't our leaders pay attention to the general accounting office, the Federal Highway Administration, the U.S. Agriculture Department and other authorities, who point out that more than three-fourths of us don't want the metrics, and finally doesn't our government know that under the current law America conversion to metrics will be strictly voluntary.

Even though we have been told

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbia, member of the FDIC.

There's a way to do anything. Years ago a nice old lady, Mrs. John Johnson, fixed it so there'd never be any doubt about it, not now or then or however long the world stands.

For my part, I tried for two summers to out-wrestle James Longshore. I did it in the first week in September, 1922, after he fell off a wheat thrasher and broke one leg and two arms.

I thought, from the first week in September until the second week in December, I was ahead of Marcus Polk. We were both tip-toeing through the tulips with a new girl in the fourth grade. He bought her a box of store-bought chocolates and I figured there was no way to stay ahead. Until she told me, when he was out of the room, that she only liked caramels.

But to get back to Mrs. Johnson. The first time I remember seeing her she was standing in front of the congregation at a tent meeting on the public school grounds, looking with her eyes and reaching with her arms, a nice old lady who was making more noise than a banty rooster two minutes after daybreak.

It was the next summer, about the middle of July, that we spied an apple tree in Mrs. Johnson's side yard. And even though she had a picket fence between the walk and the apple tree, we knew, better'n we knew our names, that some of those apples would end up in our stomachs before the summer was over. But they didn't. This lady knew more ways to guard an apple tree than there are stars in the sky.

But the day she convinced everybody there definitely was a way to do anything was on a Saturday in the month of October about ten o'clock in the morning.

If there was one thing Mrs. Johnson didn't like it was mites. They kept her chickens scratching when they ought to be laying, she'd say. And, too, they'd get on her when she was gathering the eggs. And if there was anything that would throw a body into a tizzy quicker than mites crawling on 'em, she hadn't heard of it.

So she set the nests afire and the nests set the chicken house afire and the chicken house set the back porch afire and the flames were fixing to leave the back porch and settle on the kitchen when Mrs. Johnson spied it.

She did three things. First, she did the same song and dance she did at the tent meeting on the public school grounds. Second, she started to draw a bucket of water and decided against it. And third, she yelled for everybody in town to come at once, loud enough for everybody in town to hear.

Well, we got it out. Fifty-six years ago, come this October, we got the nice old lady's fire out.

What did she prove? I was back up there today, taking a look around. And though I looked the place over from A to Z, I didn't see a mite. So she must o' got rid of 'em-- in her fashion.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

When it comes to beauty contests, I just can't win.

Obviously, I'm not referring to myself as a contestant. That would have been ridiculous even when I was the right age.

What I'm talking about is the school beauty contests that I cover occasionally.

And lately, the occasion seems to be occurring rather frequently. These events are just great - that is if you have someone competing in them.

But for someone who is just there to get a picture at the end, they seem awfully long.

Deciding I'd play it smart at the last one I was to cover, I didn't arrive till near the time I thought the judges would be ready to make their decision.

But did I ever get fooled! This event must have proceeded in record time because when I arrived, the place was deserted.

I really couldn't believe my eyes and would have been sure I had the date wrong except that I had talked with a lady at the school earlier in the day and confirmed that it was that night.

And she had been so nice about offering assistance in getting the names of the winners and holding them in place until I had their pictures.

I'm telling you, the folks who sponsor these contests are really so helpful.

The week-end before, I'd arrived at an event in a downpour and gotten inside before I realized I'd left my flash in the car.

So this kind man insisted on getting it for me. And I explained where my camera bag was and in which compartment he'd find the piece of equipment I needed.

A few minutes after I'd settled down at the front of the auditorium to watch the show, I noticed that someone coming down the aisle was carrying some sort of cumbersome looking object.

And suddenly I realized it was the kind man with my entire bag in which I carry everything but the kitchen sink.

Feeling somewhat embarrassed as he deposited his burden at my feet, I asked if he'd had any problem locating my car.

"Oh no," he replied. "It was the only one in the parking lot with the lights on inside."

Can you believe it? Now don't everyone shout "yes" at the same time.

Some other helpful people came to my assistance at the conclusion of the event after the emcee had taken off with the names of the winners.

After the usual trauma of catching the winners and getting their picture, I had let these younger set beauties leave with their mamas.

Some of the sponsors tried pooling their knowledge of the contestants in an attempt to name the winners.

Even after the auditorium emptied, they still kept at it. But it was no use. All of the winners could not be remembered, so I departed with the assurance I would be notified of the results.

Well that experience was responsible for my late arrival plan the next weekend which didn't work out.

At the next event, maybe I'll try to arrive somewhere in the middle.

Anyone know what time that might be?

Pelham tables request

The Pelham Council tabled a request Monday for an on-premises liquor license because two councilmen were absent.

The license request was made on behalf of the Constantine family of Birmingham who own several restaurants and lounges there. If the request is passed, the family plans to open Mr. C's, a restaurant/lounge, in the Pelham Mart.

The council also set a May 19 date for a public hearing on rezoning four pieces of property in the Pelham area.

Two parcels of land owned by Gregory Lee and Patricia Horn at the intersection of Hwys. 261 and 75 will be considered for a zoning change from A-1 to B-2.

Another parcel on the northwest corner of the same intersection, owned by Ben Chenault, will be considered for a change from A-1 to B-1.

A parcel owned by Victor Scott on the south side of Hwy. 52 East, is up for a zoning change from A-1 to M-1.

Two parcels totalling some 40 acres on both sides of Hwy. 33 near Hwy. 52, and owned by Charles Sillery, will be considered for a change from A-1 to M-1, and A-1 to R-3.

The brief meeting lasted less than 30 minutes. Councilmen Roy Jowers and Willard Payne were absent. It was explained that Payne had a death in his family.

Accident

a spokesman for his employer, Central Alabama Paving, who was on the scene.

PPD officer Bob Patterson, who worked the wreck along with County Deputies, said Meredith told him his brakes wouldn't work. Patterson told the Reporter that tire marks coming off Hwy. 31 onto 119 were caused by the truck sliding.

Patterson said the truck was going about 30 mph.

The wreckage was finally cleared from the intersection at 10:21 a.m.

The second related accident occurred on Hwy. 31 when the car driven by Susan Montalbano, Alabaster, hit Debbie Tanner, Pelham, in the rear of her Oldsmobile as the two cars passed the first wreck.

Both victims were treated on the scene by Pelham paramedics. Tanner, the wife of Pelham Councilman John Tanner, was taken to Brookwood Medical Center for observation.

Subdivision plans heard at meeting

by Marcia M. Sears

Shelby County's Planning Commission approved five non-controversial projects at its Monday night meeting and sent another back for more work.

The meeting's calm was in sharp contrast to meetings earlier this year when angry Beat 12 residents complained about industrial parks in the Cahaba Valley.

Several people turned out for the preliminary hearing on Eagle Farms, a subdivision being developed by Emmett Cloud three miles south of Chelsea near the intersection of County roads 69 and 39. The proposed 15 lots vary between 3.1 and 10 acres. No objections were received from nearby residents, and the Planning Commission approved the plat.

Another project drawing several people was Jason Estates, located just off Smokey Road and Highway 119 South. Developer Charles Berry was asked to make another proposal regarding the entrance to the area. A problem occurs because the road is public by years of use, but is not wide enough to meet present day county requirements.

Preliminary plans for the 9th and 10th additions to Riverchase Country Club were heard and approved by the Commission.

Another project approved was adding two lots to the Old Virginia subdivision, which is located off Highway 119 North, about a mile southwest of Highway 280.

The last case before the Planning Commission involved the proposed Chelsea South Estates along County Highway 49. Seven large lots were in the plan and it was given preliminary approval.

Palmer Hall

of America radio program.

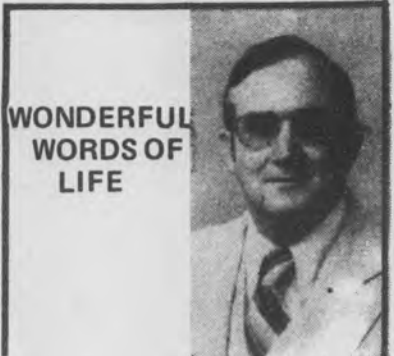

Among the noted personalities who have lectured in the auditorium are author Douglas Southall Freeman, actor Basil Rathbone, actress Cornelia Otis Skinner and news correspondents William L. Sherer and Eric Sevareid.

Palmer Hall also served as the administration building for the college for many years.

In the renovation and restoration the original concept of the auditorium has been preserved, along with most of the aspects of its original "look." A one color scheme features the red so prevalent in European concert halls.

During Dr. Palmer's administration many major campus landmarks were constructed. They included the Tower, Flowerhill (the president's home), Wills Hall (the first library) and the first of the spiral slide fire escapes on Main Hall, the first dormitory. All are listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

Dr. Vickrey announced, in connection with the re-dedication plans, the receipt of $500 from an anonymous benefactor for the establishment of a Thomas W. Palmer Memorial Fund. Contributions may be made through the University of Montevallo Foundation.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

Can Any Person Perform Miracles Today?

The Apostle Paul gives clear answers to the above question in Ephesians 4:7-16. The answer is "No!"

Please observe the time that the gifts-miraculous gifts-were given. Christ enabled some of his servants to perform miracles beginning after His ascension into heaven. (v.8.) These miracles enabled them to function as apostles, as prophets, as evangelists, as pastors, and as teachers. (v.11.) This was necessary, for the Gospel was not revealed in full, as we have it in the New Testament today.

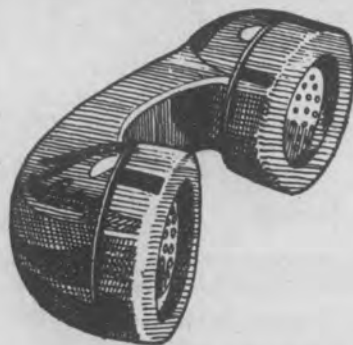

Please observe the purpose for the miraculous gifts. They were to equip the saints to serve, to build up the body of Christ - the church. (v.12.)

Please observe the period of duration for the miracles. They were to last "until" certain things happen. The word "until" denotes a cessation of the miraculous. The Bible states that Joseph "kept her (Mary) a virgin until she gave birth to a Son." After the birth of Christ, Joseph had sexual relations with Mary - this is what "until" means. The miraculous gifts lasted until the perfect law of liberty was revealed, until the church was full-grown, until the complete New Testament had been written. (vs. 13-15.) See also James 1:25. By the time the last Apostle died, all of the truth had been revealed and the church was full-grown.

Some religionists would still have the Church of Christ wearing diapers. However, when the church was reaching maturity, the miracles were passing away. An analogy exists in building a house. When the house is completed, the scaffolding is no longer needed. The church is no longer in its infancy, thus there is no longer need for miracles, which revealed the truth and confirmed the word of God. Let us not keep the church in diapers!

Dear reader, to become a Christian, one must hear the gospel (Romans 10:17), believe (Hebrews 11:6), repent (Luke 13:3), confess (Matthew 10:32, 33), and be baptized in water (Acts 2:38; Acts 20:47, 48; Acts 22:16.)

Vincent students perform at PTA

Around 800 persons attended a P.T.A. program at Vincent Elementary School on April 14. "There was standing-room only in the gym," said Principal, Calvin Smith. "And this wasn't including the students who were waiting to perform. They waited in classrooms."

According to Smith, the program included about 85% of the school's 550 students. Participants performed on the parallel bar and trampoline and did other exercise routines they have been working on in physical education classes.

Some P.E. students were unable to attend the program or perform for various reasons, said Smith.

P.E. teachers at Vincent Elementary are Patricia Corbett and Henry Smith.

Ready for show

Members of the Harpersville MYF group will be putting on puppet shows at Settlers' Day. Shown with some of the characters are: Kay Foster, David Cooper, Valerie McCarthy, Kathy Sharp and Robbie Sharp.

Settlers' Day nears

The Vincent High School campus won't be as quiet as it is most weekends when May 3 rolls around.

On that Saturday morning, artists and craftsmen will have booths set up on the front lawn, bands and puppets will provide entertainment, and the auditorium will serve as a movie theatre.

The location is new, but the event is one that area residents look forward to every year. It's Vincent Study Club's Settlers' Day.

Activities will include ball

Vandiver works to get ballfield

Members of the Vandiver Fire Department and community center are working together toward a community softball field.

"We are trying to find volunteers with earth-moving equipment to help us," said Pat Brasher, a spokesman for the group. "We bought the property last year adjoining the community center property."

According to Brasher, the group is also working on an outdoor barbecue pavilion and stage for the park behind the school.

She pointed out the need of the community for some type of recreation for its citizens, especially the youth. "When they have exercise classes, or play tennis, or such, they have to go as far away as Leeds," she said.

Montevallo firemen win forest festival award

The Montevallo Volunteer Fire Department won first prize in the Alabama Forest Festival last weekend in Montgomery.

The category in which Montevallo won was the "Tanker Truck" class.

The tanker was loaned to the Montevallo department five years ago by the Alabama Forestry Commission and it is used to fight forest fires as well as fires wherever there is not an adequate water supply.

The tanker was driven to Montgomery by Joe McGaughey and Charlie Baugh. Other firemen making the trip were Kenny Blackburn, Kevin Shannahan Billy Hughes, Allen Blackman and Rusty Morris.

The top prize was based on the equipment and care that Montevallo has added to the truck since the Forestry Commission loaned the used vehicle to the city. A pump and generator for lights were added, and the truck is kept painted and maintained in good condition.

In other competition at the festival Montevallo firemen scored well in the categories of bucket brigade, flammable liquids and hose laying.

Helena must repay LEPA

The City of Helena is caught up in a financial bind because of its former sponsorship of the Youth Aid Bureau and Work Release Program.

The Alabama Law Enforcement Planning Agency has given the city 30 days to repay a sum of over $1,200 for expenses of the Youth Aid Bureau and the county Work Release program.

Helena Mayor Charles Penhale went to Eufaula earlier this month and asked the LEPA board to forgive the sum, but the board members are standing by the audit of the records and insisting on repayment.

The Youth Aid Bureau was funded by a new grant early this year, and former sheriff C.P. "Red" Walker was removed as its director. Helena had earlier given up sponsorship, but did not turn over to the new YAB all the office equipment, autos and other items that had formerly been used by YAB.

School fire safety in the same compound as the middle school, can evacuate its 330 students in less than a minute, reports principal Braxton Baker. Seven fire drills are scheduled throughout this school year.

Baker notes that broken panic bars on some of the doors require that they be chained at night. But the doors are opened every day from before 8 a.m. to at least 5:30 p.m., he says.

Thompson High

According to Alabaster Fire Marshal Phillip Walker, chained exit doors have been a reoccurring problem at schools throughout the state. Recently, he notes, locked doors have caused problems at Thompson High School. Chained doors during school hours is in violation of both city and state fire codes, he adds.

The problem came to light last year, Walker says, when he discovered several doors were being chained closed during the day because the panic hardware on them was broken. Without the chains, the doors would blow open.

After meeting with THS principal Allen Fulton last week and listing all the faulty doors the problem there is apparently resolved. Walker says he was promised that the broken locks would be replaced, at once.

County Superintendent Charles Knowles says that work will begin this summer on replacing all broken panic bars at county schools. The cost will run between $70,000-$80,000, which is why the project has been delayed thus far, he notes.

Fire drills are carried out at THS on a monthly basis, Walker says, adding that missing exit signs over some of the doors have been recently replaced.

Thompson Elementary

At his last inspection of Thompson Elementary, Walker says he found one of the exits blocked and several covers missing from electrical outlets. He praised THS principal Henderson Walker for trying to comply with the fire codes.

Some combustible materials stored in a closet near electrical panels were also taken care of, Walker adds.

Riverchase

According to Riverchase Fire Chief Spruce McRee, Dr. Bobby Anderson, principal of Riverchase Middle School, the second newest school in the county, leads an active fire safety program there.

Says McRee, "Riverchase Middle School is very conscious of fire safety precautions. If they ever have any problems, they can always call for help." He adds

How to refurbish outdoor furniture

If your outdoor furniture hibernates in the cellar during the winter, it probably requires some refurbishing before it can face the bright light of spring.

Here are a few tips that can help you make light of the job:

- Wood furniture or trim will have to be wiped with a slightly damp cloth before you can see its true condition.

If it shows any white water rings, try applying mayonnaise and rubbing it in. Let it stand for an hour and then wipe with a clean cloth.

Dark rings on wood sometimes disappear with an application of baby oil.

- Check chairs and lounges for missing, broken or loose slats and cross-weaves. Make all necessary repairs for the sake of both appearance and safety: you don't want anyone to fall through a hole.

Turn your attention to metal surfaces. Check for rust spots, and remove any you find with steel wool.

The bare surface should then be coated with a rust preventative from the hardware store; if the finish is wrought iron, it can be repainted with rust-inhibiting paint.

By keeping the furniture clean and dry, you will discourage further rusty spots from cropping up. Hinges and other movable parts should be given a squirt of oil to keep them moving easily.

Homestyles today reflect needs of modern times

It is no simple task to "keep the home fires burning" these days. In recent years, rising energy costs and spiraling inflation have prompted homeowners and apartment dwellers alike to establish homestyles which are increasingly economical.

An economical household, however, need not mean that comfort and decoration be sacrificed. It simply means that planning must be thorough and decisions carefully made.

Today's consumers are setting up house on a more permanent basis than their peers of a decade ago. Decorating items, such as carpets, tiles, wallcoverings, and furniture, are being selected for their durability, while items such as shelves, mirrors and other accessories are being selected for their versatility.

Planned efficiency

A wise investment can be a money-maker in the long run. The resale value of a piano or whirlpool bath, for example, increases with time, and gives the owner considerable pleasure as well.

Made wisely, changes in home decoration can increase the energy efficiency of a house or apartment. Ceilings, carpets, and draperies act as insulators against both heat and cold while at the same time adding to the decor of a room.

Energy efficiency should not be restricted to the use of fossil fuels, however. Economizing on the expenditure of human energy for household chores is equally important in our modern society.

Sign of the times

Homestyles have changed since the days when grandmother spent hours putting up jams or studying pillowcases with feathers. Today, nearly half of the working force in the U.S. is comprised of women, many of whom are working mothers.

As a result, the modern woman finds herself confronted with two demanding roles; that of career person, and that of homemaker.

Simplify housework

Cutting down on the time-consuming task of housekeeping is therefore of primary importance to today's busy homemaker.

There are a number of modern appliances that will do just that: microwave ovens, slow-cooking pots and space-saving organizers to name just a few.

Stain-resistant fabrics, tiles and countertops are also time savers when it comes to cleaning.

In addition, furniture should be arranged to allow maximum freedom of movement, so that maneuvering with a vacuum or dust mop becomes quick and easy.

Consider the possibilities

Decorating a home today takes more variables into account than ever before. Today's fast pace lends itself to a homestyle that is efficient as well as comfortable, practical as well as imaginative.

Considering the variety of space or energy never has to mean an economy of imaginative household products on the market today, economics of time, decoration!

Modern faucets

save money

Faucets and showerheads should be an integral part of your bathroom decorating plan.

They not only add beauty and convenience to the bath, but can also save significant amounts of water, energy--and money--if you select a faucet with built-in water-saving flow control.

Water-saving showerheads, for example, can reduce water flow from 6 or 8 gallons per minute to 3 GPM while still providing drenching, thoroughly satisfying showers. Approximately 60 percent of the savings will be hot water.

Water-conserving faucets limit flow to a rate that is ample without being wasteful. And water-saving toilets flush with significantly less water than conventional toilets.

These three products alone could save an average family of four as much as 36,500 gallons of water a year, plus many dollars in energy savings.

There are faucets with antique styling to bring a touch of nostalgia to your decorating scheme. Modernistic faucets with avant garde elegance. Faucets with gemstone onyx handles or exotic wooden handles. Single control faucets with "washerless" cartridges for dependable service. And many more.

They offer water-saving flow control at no additional charge, and cost no more to install than conventional faucets.

Homeownership remains popular

Homeownership is still one of America's favored pastimes. Despite the rising cost of housing, young married couples continue to buy homes, reports the Commerce Department.

A study of household and family characteristics shows homeownership among husband and wife households, where the husband is under 35, rose to 57 percent in 1976 from 50 percent in 1970.

Create a miniclimature to save money and energy

Homeowners who want to save money on their utility bills can take a few tips from their grandparents.

Before technology delivered us from the discomforts of our climate, people used natural methods for cooling their houses in the summer and conserving the heat they had in the cold months. The natural ways are still available to us and they are surprisingly inexpensive and easy to do.

With energy in short supply and rising in cost, everyone has to be concerned with conservation.

Until government and industry come up with a solution to the problem of scarce fossil fuels, the American Association of Nurserymen points out three smart things homeowners can do to use their energy supplies wisely around the house.

First, make the heating and cooling systems work more efficiently and use them conservatively. Second, use other energy sources such as sun and wind.

Third, take steps to reduce energy needs in the home by controlling the effects of climate on the house itself. Trees and other plantings can help do all these things.

These are the methods our grandparents used. They opened their windows on hot days and let cool breezes run through the house. These breezes were nicely channeled by thick hedges planted in the right places outside.

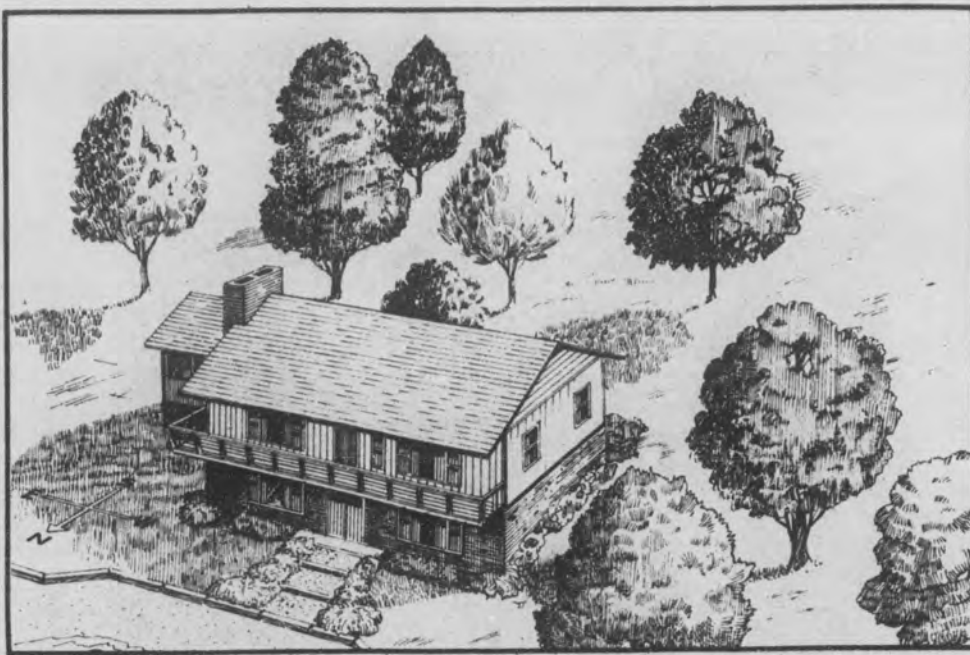

The big leafy shade trees were located where they rained shade on the house to keep it cool and comfortable during the summer.

In effect, they created their own "miniclimature" in and around their houses. Regardless of the weather outside, those old houses managed to remain comfortable all year around without expensive, fuel-consuming air conditioners and sophisticated heating units.

Even in modern houses homeowners can create their own energy-saving miniclimature which will not only help save money and energy, but which enhances the value of the property.

Proper landscaping with trees, bushes, shrubs, evergreens and other plantings requires just good common sense and a little professional advice from a local garden center or nurseryman.

Shade trees, for example,

SHADE TREES CAN BE most efficient climate controllers. For best effect, the American Association of Nurserymen says they should be placed on the east and south sides of a building. In summer their leafy canopies provide cooling shade; in winter they drop their leaves to let the sun's warmth shine through. Because they have such cooling effect, they also help save money for air conditioning in hot months.

are among nature's most efficient climate controllers. In the summer, their big leafy umbrellas provide a cooling shade in or around a house.

They also give off cooling vapor through transpiration.

In winter, they drop their leaves and allow the warming effects of the sun to come through.

Smart planting and energy-saving measures can help every modern day homeowner create his own energy-saving "miniclimature." That means the furnace and the air conditioner don't have to work so hard and that means a lot to the family budget.

Solve moisture problem before painting house

If you've decided to paint the exterior of your home this spring, the first step you take should not be up the ladder. Instead, start by giving your home a thorough inspection to spot common problems such as peeling, blistering and cracking. If you take the time to solve these problems first, you may double the life of the paint job.

Nearly all house paint failures are due to moisture. This can take the form of vapor trying to escape from the inside of the house to the outside, or moisture in the form of rain, sleet or snow, trying to penetrate from the outside to the inside. When a paint coating gets in the way, it will peel, blister or crack. By eliminating moisture seepage, you lessen the chances of paint failure.

THE EUROPEAN LOOK in kitchen styling is becoming increasingly popular in the United States. It features a sleek smooth look especially in the cabinets.

Stretch your home

With housing costs going up and supplies of available homes going down, many people are deciding against moving to bigger quarters and, instead, are making the best of what they have.

If you're part of this stay-put set, take a careful look around and you're likely to find some space that can be put to productive use.

Don't dismiss any nook or cranny as too small to be worthwhile, or a basement or attic as too disreputable to be salvaged.

Here are some ideas that can start you on the road to refurbished living space:

- Shift to shelves. Install some inexpensive shelves in small areas, such as a corner between two windows, and you'll be able to shift some of the magazines, curios and such that tend to clutter tables.

By putting some attractive storage boxes on the shelves, you'll add a convenient spot for family records and correspondence.

• Take an objective look at your basement. Clutter may be hiding the perfect spot to build a home recreation room, workshop or even a guest room. Throw away any items that are merely taking up space.

• Capitalize on your closets. If your clothes closet has one basic pole, the space is underutilized.

Just on the inside of the door, by attaching a pegboard at the top, you can find space for hanging belts, hats and bags.

Give your shoes a home in a shoe bag tacked to the bottom half of the closet door.

When arranging clothes in the closet, place shorter items such as blouses and skirts on one side. That will leave space for storage bins beneath them.

Choosing paint colors to showcase fabrics

This year, home furnishings are more imaginative and exciting than we've seen in recent memory.

Found abundantly on upholstered pieces and in drapery fabrics, they're the perfect focal point around which to plan a new decorating scheme.

Designers have created materials that stir the senses and excite the mind: finely drawn florals in sumptuous color combinations; opulent Oriental shades in exotic florals, many elegantly outline-quilted; dramatic abstracts and geometrics in vibrant, uplifting colors; and lush velvets and corduroys, often in two-color patterns.

To create the right setting for these scene-stealing designs, wall paint colors should be carefully selected so that they enhance rather than compete with the patterns.

Here are a few suggestions from the National Paint and Coatings Association:

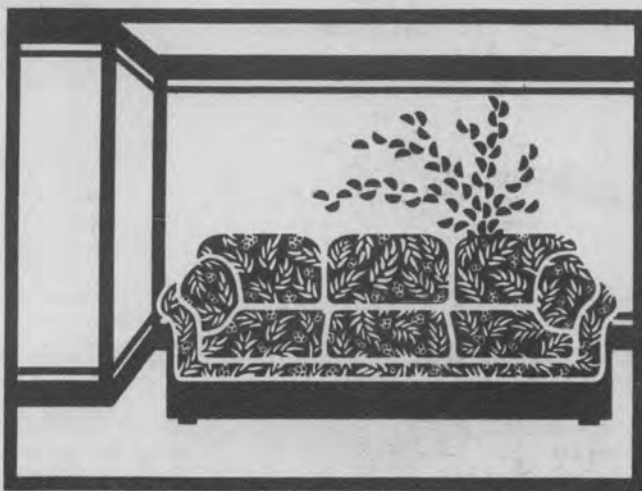

- With a print that has two rather dominant colors, use a very pale version of one of the colors for walls and ceiling, and a darker shade of the other for woodwork;

• Vibrantly colored plushy fabrics can be displayed beautifully against walls treated to deep-toned, neutral textured paint;

• Heighten the stimulating effect of an abstract or geometric pattern by continuing it onto the wall with a color-cued super-graphic;

• For an Oriental-inspired design, set off the jewel-like colors by painting an accent wall deep turquoise, emerald or ruby enamel.

CREATIVE PAINT STYLING enhances new designer prints.

Follow checklist when buying upholstered furniture

Since looks can be the most deceiving when shopping for upholstered furniture, the best way to tackle such a major investment is to come to the store armed with knowledge.

Know the four underlying construction details that indicate good quality and look for them in each piece you consider.

First telltale signs are the joining of seams and positioning of cushions. If the pattern is matched all over and there are no dangling threads, test one has been passed.

Frame construction is another good indicator. Look for well-seasoned hardwood frames built sturdily with doweled joints and screwed and glued corner blocks.

Quick frame tests include scanning the finish of exposed wood parts and lifting the piece. Heaviness denotes good quality hardwood.

Rub your hand over the surface where the wood frame stops to make sure there are no sharp edges that can work through the fabric. Any frame movement means hold on to your money--the joints are loose.

Today, most upholstery fabrics are entirely or partially made of synthetic fabrics and will stretch with use. Therefore the third test point to look for is the inside of the cushion.

Better quality cushions are filled with down rather than with synthetics because feathers and down are loose within an envelope or partition, and they allow the cushions to spring back and to conform to the shape of the upholstery fabric as it stretches.

Down-filled cushions can expand to fill the extra space. Synthetic fillers, on the other hand, are inflexible and the piece will develop wrinkles and an unfilled look as the outer cushion fabric stretches.

By checking the bedding law label you can find out if your chosen piece is down-filled. This simply means that it is filled with a blend of down and feathers in varying proportions.

Down-filled cushions are recognizable in two basic designs. One is an all-down cushion made with partitions and dividers to keep the down from shifting.

In the second type, the combination cushion, a down envelope surrounds central cores of soft springs, polyester or polyform filled with coiled springs.

Construction of seat springs revealed under the cushions by the width of the deck, is fourth and final checkpoint. If you are unsure about them ask the salesperson.

Eight-way hand-tied coil springs are the best but also good are six-way drop-in preformed units and wire springs or webbing in slim-line decks.

Fear of making a mistake in the selection of major upholstered pieces prevents many shoppers from experiencing the fun that furniture shopping is supposed to be.

If you have any doubts, just ask the salesperson about the four undercover checkpoints. Consider the needs of your household--such as children and pets--when choosing fabric.

You can expect to be living with furniture made of fine wood, down and good fabric for the next 10 to 20 years. So now that you know what to look for, have fun and shop with confidence.

Help Yourself Save Money Help America Save Energy

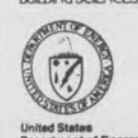

Check the Big Ten Checklist to Save More Energy in Your Home

Home Energy Checklist

You are probably using more electricity, gas, and oil than necessary. By using the Big Ten Checklist, you can identify ways of reducing energy use and costs, and help the nation conserve energy. The first six items include actions which you can undertake with little or no expense. Other measures involving expenditures also may result in long-term savings of money and energy.

- ☐ 1 Weather-stripping/caulking -- look for air cracks around doors, windows, and other openings, such as around pipes and ducts. Seal them by caulking or weather-stripping. Heat and air conditioning escape through cracks.
- ☐ 2 Thermostat -- set at 65 degrees in winter and at least 5 degrees lower when sleeping or away. (Higher heating temperatures are recommended for homes with sick, elderly, or infants.) Set at 78 degrees in summer. Consider a clock thermostat.
- ☐ 3 Water heaters -- this is a major energy user in the home. Try a lower thermostat setting. Consider an insulation wrap. Install water flow restrictors in showers and faucets. They cut hot water use without affecting family comfort. When replacing water heater, choose an energy-efficient model.
- ☐ 4 Heating/cooling system -- clean or replace filters as needed. Close vents in unused rooms. Insulate ducts and pipes in unheated spaces. Consider devices which can increase the efficiency of your existing system. When replacing, choose an energy-efficient model.
- ☐ 5 Sunlight -- keep direct sunlight out in summer; let it in during winter. Drapes, shutters, awnings, shade trees, glass with reflective film, and solar screens help.
- ☐ 6 Appliances/lighting -- fully load dryers and clothes and dish washers. Turn off unnecessary lights. If replacing, buy energy-efficient appliances and lighting.
- ☐ 7 Attic insulation -- check to see if your attic has the recommended level of insulation, including the attic door.
- ☐ 8 Floors and foundation walls -- check for adequate insulation under floors, around basement, crawl space, and foundation walls.
- ☐ 9 Windows and doors -- consider storm windows, doors, or double-paned glass to keep in heat and air conditioning.
- ☐ 10 Exterior walls -- consider adding insulation, particularly when remodeling or re-siding your house.

After completing this checklist, you may want to call your utility, state energy office, or Agricultural Extension Service to obtain general advice on doing the job safely and correctly. For information about energy-efficient products, contact building material retailers, contractors, fuel dealers, manufacturers, or distributors. Shop for best prices and values.

* You may qualify for federal income tax credits of 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent on the items marked above. You may also qualify for tax credits up to $2,200 for approved solar devices.

These recommendations are presented as a service of the National Institute of Building Sciences and the United States Department of Energy to encourage you to save energy and money.

Cubs hold first rain gutter regatta

A fickle breeze caused some upsets in a regatta Saturday. And one craft was momentarily driven backwards by a sudden gust of wind.

But most of the driving force for the boats was provided by the captains themselves as they huffed and puffed their entries to the finish line.

The event was Cub Pack 5's for debt balance

The Athletic Booster Club at Thompson High School is sponsoring a singing in the school auditorium May 9.

Admission will be $2 for adults and $1 for children.

First Rain gutter Regatta. And it was held on the grounds of the Christ United Methodist Church.

After receiving a kit with a balsa wood hull, sail, rudder and center board, the boys put their boats together, making whatever Shoppers are being greeted with a new look at 21 independently-owned drug stores in Columbiana and Birmingham. The "new look" is the bright red and white signs which designate each of these stores as members of Associated Druggists -- a national advertising, marketing and buying program.

"Associated Druggists member stores combine the best of both worlds," stated Jack Mullins, Walker Drug Co., co-sponsors of the program. "First, shoppers get the same friendly, personal service they've always received at their neighborhood drug store. And, because Associated Druggists stores buy products in large quantities at lower prices, they pass their savings on to their customers. Many items actually sell at lower prices than some chains," Mullins pointed out.

"Many people think you just can't have quality, name-brand products and a bargain, too," Mullins continued. "But area druggists are saying, 'Yes, you can' -- and they're proving it," he added.

In addition to the new signs, Associated Druggists member stores have launched a comprehensive advertising campaign to inform local residents about the association. Television commercials and newspaper ads describe the advantages of the co-op plan and feature "Savers Bag" specials. Included in the Savers Bag are specific price-item bargains.

After testing here, the success of the program will be evaluated for use by member drug stores in other cities. Associated Druggists is the largest voluntary group of individual drug stores with nearly 2,000 members nationwide.

Serving the Columbiana-Shelby County area is Davis Drug Co.

Brierfield group jams

Practicing for their appearance at Brierfield Park's Bluegrass Festival are members of the Brierfield Station band. They are: Elson Hood, Rick Bradley, Wayne Matthews and Mark Horton.

To Brierfield Park

Bluegrass on the way

"I'm going back to Brierfield, right back from where I came." A Bluegrass group who call themselves Brierfield Station begin their theme song with those words.

And on May 2, 3, 4, fans of the musicians, who have been together for nearly a year, can hear this group and others perform at the Annual Brierfield Bluegrass Festival.

The three day event is being held in Brierfield Ironworks Park seven miles southwest of Montevallo on Hwy. 25.

Country Boy Eddie and his band will get the festival underway Friday at 7 p.m. And Brierfield Station, along with several other new groups including Bluegrass Only from Childersburg, will be playing.

Other Bluegrass groups expected at the Festival are: Three on a String, Southbound Glory, Foster Family String Band, Hickory Ridge and Early Times.

Glen Tolbert and Herb Troiman, who perform together, will also be on hand to entertain audiences Saturday and Sunday.

Members of the Brierfield Station band include two county band directors, a graduate student at the University of Montevallo and a senior at Thompson High School.

THS band director Elson Hood plays rhythm guitar, Calera High's head musician, Wayne Matthews, is lead guitar, and the bass fiddle is plucked by Thompson bandsman Rick Bradley.

Mark Horton, who is working on his Master's degree in music at Montevallo, plays banjo for the group, which performs a wide range of contemporary and traditional music.

Musicians will start picking and strumming in the park Saturday at 10 a.m. and continue into the evening.

Sunday's session will begin at the same time and conclude at 5 p.m.

Park Director Marty Everse reports that food and drink will be available as well as primitive camping accommodations.

The scenic wooded area where the park is located is the site of the historic Bibb Furnace which produced iron for the Confederacy during the Civil War.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

Schools meet gas crisis with cost-saving ideas

William Carter is in charge of transportation for Shelby County's school system.

He talked with us recently about the cost of keeping our school buses running.

"They told us at the mid-winter conference that every time gas goes up 10 cents, it costs the state a million dollars more for school transportation."

He says that only a part of local school transportation costs are actually funded by the state. Some of it has to be funded at the local level.

On April 3, his records show that the county paid $1.01 per gallon for gasoline. He has been told, he says, that by 1981 it will probably be paying $2.00.

Four buses were added in the county this school term. This results in the total of 101 buses now running. However, there are 130 or 135 routes, he adds, because some of the buses run double routes.

How is the Shelby County System coping?

"We have talked with the drivers about their driving habits. We asked them to try and be more conservative, to start slow and decelerate gradually."

"We have tried to locate our drivers on the end of the route to park buses overnight and avoid trips back to schools to park," he added.

He does not foresee a problem of gas shortage for the remainder of this school year. Last year there were some tight months, he said, but the supply doesn't seem to be running real short this year.

Gas guzzler

Carl King pumps gas into a school bus at Chelsea High School. County school buses travel around 3,700 miles per day and get 4 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The first sermon Dr. Hobson delivered to the congregation was on Easter Sunday.

A native of Birmingham, Dr. Hobson has been preaching since the age of 18 when he was licensed by the Center Point Baptist Church.

He spent four years in the Navy during the Viet Nam war and taking up his studies at Samford University after his discharge, he graduated in 1973.

After eight innings

'Dogs down Chelsea 10-9 in 'freaky' game

Montevallo and Chelsea pulled out all the stops last Thursday at Falcon Field for a wild, eight inning baseball game to decide who is champion of their 2-A sub-area.

When the dust finally settled, the Bulldogs were on top 10-9, thanks to a long slam to center-field by Jeff Hall which knocked in Richie Owen's tie breaking run.

Attesting to the wildness of the game was the comment by field umpire Mike Barashes that "every rule in the book has applied today." Furthermore, both teams rallied for clutch comebacks and the score was tied and retied in the sixth and seventh innings.

A one run double by Owen and a two run double by Mark Riesener put the Dogs out front 5-1 in the bottom of the fifth.

The sunny afternoon was looking dark for the Hornets. But in the top of the sixth, Montevallo's starting pitcher Bret Jones threw a streak of balls that gave five batters a free ride and walked in two runs.

MHS Coach Richard Gilliam put David Melsoni on the mound. But before he could get out of trouble Chelsea's Larry Cork stole home and Brian Stanley scored on a single. Suddenly the Hornets were alive and the score was tied at five all.

When the Dogs came to bat Horner Keith McCullers proved his worth on second base, snagging three would-be hits to temporarily retire Montevallo's hopes of regaining the lead. The Dogs left one on that inning.

Chelsea took it to Montevallo in the seventh, starting out with singles by Paul Kendrick and Doug O'Shields. Several steals and wild throws later, both players had crossed home plate.

Kelley Copper was safe on first via another wild-Dog throw. He scored on a single by Mark Howard, and shortly thereafter Howard scored on yet another bad throw.

led 9-5 going into the bottom of the seventh, but it was too soon to count Montevallo out of the game.

Jones got on with a single and Owen knocked him in with a double. Hall got to first with a single and then Riesener singled, scoring Owen and Hall.

By now the Dogs had collected seven hits off Chelsea pitcher Paul Kendrick, and coach Bobby Statum said that was enough. Enter Kent O'Shields to the mound, who inherited no outs, one man on and a slim 9-8 lead.

O'Shields struck out two men, but not before Scott Studdard also got on base with a single.

Then one of the freaky things in the game happened. On what at first appeared to be a passed ball at home plate, Riesener and Studdard both scored. But the plate umpire ruled that catcher Doug O'Shields' mitt had hit Dog Carey Thompson's bat on the play.

Thompson went to first, the runners returned and the game continued.

Gilliam later said that he had a sinking feeling MHS wasn't going to pull it out at this point.

But before Chelsea could get the third out on the Bulldogs, Wade Bice knocked in the tying run, and the game went into an extra inning.

The Hornets came to bat hot and heavy, and got the bases loaded. But Melsoni threw two strike outs and another batter popped out to retire the sides.

Owen then scored the winning run for MHS on the long hit by Hall.

"Definitely a freaky game," said Studdard afterwards. "I wouldn't call it real well played, but both teams battled it out. And that's what it's all about."

"I'm proud of my boys. They gave a hundred percent. We're going to be good by the end of the year," he said of his then 1-3 Hornets.

Said Gilliam, "It wasn't anywhere near one of our best played ballgames, but it was one of the most exciting games I've ever been involved with in any sport."

Melsoni, pitched six strike outs and allowed two hits for MHS, upping his record to 2-0. Jones struck out nine and gave up two hits. The Dogs committed six errors.

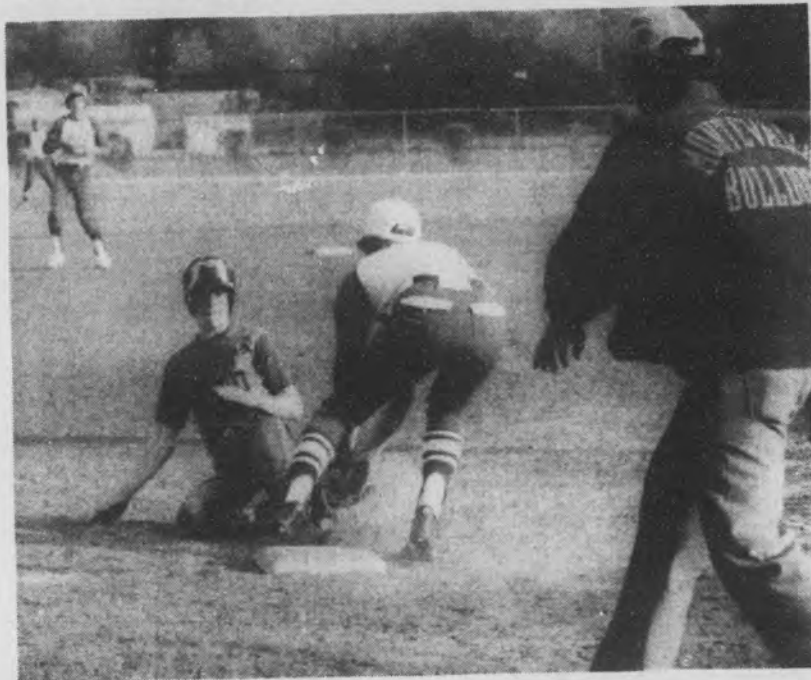

For Chelsea, O'Shields struck out one and allowed three hits, while Kendrick killed three and allowed seven hits. The Hornets were charged with four errors.

Kendrick proved to be the visitor's big bat, going 1-2 with a double.

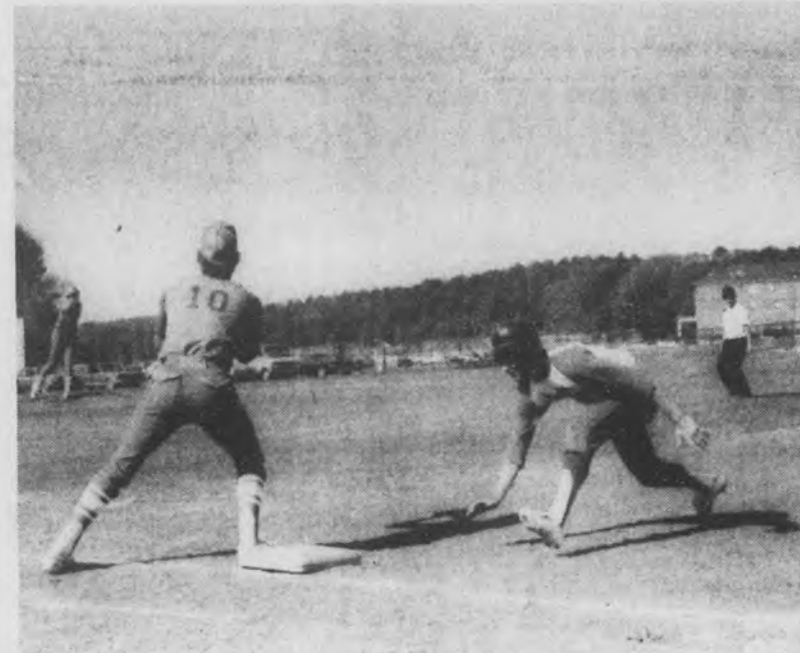

For the 3-0 Bulldogs, Owen went 3-5 with a double and two rbi's. Thompson was 2-3 with one double, Studdard was 2-4 with a triple.

Riesener went 2-2 with two walks and 3 rbi's.

What's the call?

According to the referee, Bulldog Richie Owen was safe on this peg to third baseman J.R. Elliott. MHS Coach Richard Gilliam, running over to the play, would probably agree, but Chelsea Coach Bobby Statum, who ran on to the field moments later, definitely didn't.

Itching to go

Chelsea's Keith McCullers was itching to steal second, but MHS pitcher Bret Jones and first bagger Scott Lightfoot kept him honest-temporarily. Before the end of the game Chelsea had stolen 12 bases from the Bulldogs.

SCHS football coach takes Vanderbilt job

Shelby County High School Head Coach Mark Bradley has accepted a position on the coaching staff of Vanderbilt University. His announcement Monday of the new job put to rest speculation that he would be moving to the Nashville school.

Bradley will be working with SEC team's offensive line, under Head Coach George MacIntyre. Also recently added to the coaching staff there is Red Parker, one of the originators of the famed triple option.

"The opportunity to work for George MacIntyre is a great one," Bradley told the Reporter. "He's committed to the same things I am, and the life he leads certainly commands my trust and loyalty."

"There's a tremendous atmosphere in the program at Vandy and I'm grateful for the chance to be part of it," he added.

A graduate of Samford University with a Master's in driver education from UM, Bradley has been involved in high school football coaching for the past eleven years. The teams he has worked with at (Berry High School, Mountain Brook High School, in Huntsville and Shelby County) have amassed an overall record of 76-30-3.

Bradley's new position is effective June 1, and he will move to Nashville with his wife, Dale, daughter Beth, 10, and son Rusty, 6.

"I would like to say that God has blessed us richly during our stay in Columbiana," Bradley commented. "Many things in life are transient, but the friendships we have made here will last a lifetime."

Considering their 1-10 record, it would appear Bradley will have his work cut out for him at Vanderbilt. But, he pointed out, the school had a good recruiting season nationwide and has committed itself to building its football team.

Bradley called the move a "tremendous step forward" in his career.

Thompson Rebounders start drive

The newly organized Thompson Rebound Club has started a membership drive this week. The main purpose of the club is to drum up support for the Warriors' basketball tradition.

Chairman of the group is Leslie Harrison. Mrs. Ora Marcus is vice chairman and Mrs. Carol Silvani is secretary/treasurer.

The initial interest of those already involved has THS basketball mentor Eddie Williams looking forward to an active club and a lot of additional support.

The next meeting of Thompson Rebound Club will be held tonight (Thursday, April 24) at 8 p.m. in the school gym. Coach Williams invites everyone interested in Thompson basketball to attend.

Baseball wrap up

Teams see big action

The weatherman gave a bright smile of approval to Shelby County baseball teams last week. And the Thompson Warriors, with one exception, gave coach Billy Woodham a bright smile last week, too, as they continued their proclaimed march toward a state championship.

The red tornado picked off B.B. Comer 9-5 last Monday on the road. Winning pitcher Mike Russell allowed only four hits and first baseman Allen Adelburg got two rbi's off a triple and double.

Thursday at home, it took the Warriors only five innings to demolish Pell City by a score of 14-0. Bret Davenport started the rout with a first inning grand slam homer.

In the third, Thompson's big bats quit playing baseball and went in for a game of home run derby.

Steve Smitherman started the inning with a homer, followed immediately by David Cofer (3-3 on the game) and John Durrett who each knocked one out of the park. Not to be outdone, Mark Gamble waited until two Warriors got on base before slugging his homer, also in the third.

Smitherman picked up his sixth win against Pell City with 11 strikeouts and only two hits.

Smitherman struck out 10 batters Saturday night on the road against Childersburg, as THS temporarily knocked the Tigers out of first place, and claimed it for themselves with the 7-1 win. The game was scoreless until the fifth, and Thompson picked up five runs in the seventh.

But THS's solo claim to the number one slot was short lived as they fell at home that same night to Sylacauga. Woodham said the 12-7 loss "looked like a circus."

Now 8-2 on the season, Thompson was back in a tie with Childersburg as of Monday. But come this Monday, the Warriors will find out just how strong the red tornado really is as they tangle with Tigers again to see who's going to be tops in the area 3-A action. That game will be played at 7 p.m. at Buck Field.

The Shelby County Wildcats had a little more trouble with Childersburg than THS, losing to them 4-1 on April 14. Wednesday against B.B. Comer, however, Coach Bill Reid's Cats had a night as pitcher Joe Tidmore led them to a 3-0 victory.

Thursday SCHS fell 13-0 in a nightmare against Clanton. And Friday, despite a grand slam by Dan Head in the second, the Wildcats lost a see-saw battle with Pell City, 10-7. Though 3-6 on the season, Coach Reid says he's optimistic and things are looking up in Columbiana.

Regrettably, Pelham coaches David Shiflett and Tony Taylor were unable to be reached for the outcomes of the Panthers' games against Childersburg and B.B. Comer. The Panthers played Pell City at home Monday.

In 2-A action, the Calera Eagles, led by pitcher Tim Loftin, picked up a 9-1 win over Indian Springs on April 14. Last Wednesday, however, Coach Danny Alverson's team fell 4-0 to Jemison. Despite the loss, Alverson noted it was his team's best game of the season, as they recorded a big "0" in the errors column.

Calera made amends for the loss Thursday, downing Fayetteville 3-2 behind the pitching of Curtis Barefield. Now 3-3 on the season, the Eagles are 3-1 in their sub-area.

Harold Garrett's Vincent

Yellow Jackets lost a close 14-13 decision April 14 to TCTS, thanks to three untimely homers by the opposition. The only bright spot in the cold day was Rodney Driggers going 5-5 with his bat.

Friday at home, however, things warmed up nicely for the Jackets. Led by Barry Ball's 14 strikeouts from the mound and his two homers and three rbi's, Vincent beat Winterboro 6-5. Mark Brasher went 2-3 at bat, and Driggers scored three runs.

Now 2-3 on the season, VHS played TCTS a grudge match Monday after presstime to decide who would play Montevallo this Friday and Sturday in the sub-area playoffs.

After their close loss to Montevallo on Thursday, Chelsea took on TCTS Friday without any more success. According to Coach Bobby Statum, the tigers "wore the ball out" in the 12-6 game, and the Hornets left a lot of men on bases.

Although TCTS did beat the Hornets, they couldn't do anything in fourth inning about the three run homer Keith Garrett slammed over the fence.

Chelsea's two losses last week dropped them to 4-1 on the year. In academy circles, the Shelby Raiders recorded their first win of the year, splitting a doubleheader against Bessemer.

After losing the first game 5-0, SA came back and won the second round 4-3. Pitcher Greg Young was credited with the win, and Billy Eiland got the Raiders rolling with a second inning double that knocked in a run.

Significantly, the Raiders committed only three errors in the second Bessemer game. Errors are the main reason their record is now 1-5. But the win impressed coach Harry Rawlinson, who said, "I think we have made a remarkable improvement. Hopefully we've got it together."

Rick Naugher's CVA Rebels hit a three game slump last week which whittled their record down to 3-3.

Coosa Valley lost two games to Minor Christian, 7-4 on Tuesday and 5-2 on Thursday. Friday Bessemer handed them a 3-0 loss.

Naugher noted that the Rebs just haven't been hitting well lately, and that they've been leaving a lot of runners on bases.

Boosters hold contest

Montevallo Athletic Boosters are sponsoring a Little Miss Montevallo contest Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the High School auditorium.

Forty two young hopefuls from 5 years of age through the fifth grade have entered the annual event. Winners and two runner ups will be selected from each of the three age divisions. Entertainment during the contest will be provided by the MHS Pep Band.

Coosa Valley lost two games to Minor Christian, 7-4 on Tuesday and 5-2 on Thursday. Friday Bessemer handed them a 3-0 loss. Naugher noted that the Rebs just haven't been hitting well lately, and that they've been leaving a lot of runners on bases.

Top rebels

Among the top honorees at the CVA All Sports Banquet last Saturday, were girls' basketball captain Beth Thompson, girls' basketball MVP Missy Barnett, boys' basketball captain Curtis Smith, basketball MVP James Lynn, football captain Mark Luker, co-captain Randy Waldrop, outstanding back Sherman Strickland, 100% award and outstanding defensive player Jim Haney, most improved Ken Holston, and outstanding lineman and football MVP Mike Wheeler. (Photo by Jerry Gardner)

Softball booms

Area softball is not only alive and well, but apparently booming to boot.

Director Ott Knight reports that an estimated 2,500 people attended the 38 game Montevallo Park and Recreation Invitational Tournament which kicked off the men's slow pitch softball season last Saturday in Montevallo.

Shakey's of Birmingham defeated Buddy's Bar-b-que 23-5 in the finals to capture the tournament championship.

According to Knight, Buddy's, who placed second overall, also played the wildest game of the tourney, winning an 11 inning battle with Captain D's, 8-7.

S&W Remodeling of Birmingham placed third in the event and also walked away with the team trophy for sportsmanship. Huffman Assembly placed fourth in the tourney.

Locally, Captain D's and Brasher Roofing placed in the top 10 of the 20 teams invited to the annual season opener.

The home run trophy went to Martin Yarbrough of Center Point, who whacked seven balls out of the park. The most hits' trophy was claimed by Jerry McElroy, who put in a week's week in one day, recording 21 hits.

The all-day tourney was played on four different fields.

Knight said the excellent turnout has him fired up about the softball season, and the program looks like it might operate in the black this year.

Short notes on sports

Buxahatchee Country Club golfers Myra Falkner, Georgene Watson and "Pete" Cowart, competed in the Marion Invitational Tournament April 15.

There were 55 entries in the event.

Residents of Southwind Subdivision in Alabaster held their annual Redneck Jamboree Saturday with races and other competitive events.

Rent-a-racer track to open in Pelham

Walter Mittys of the world, rejoice!

Take heart, all you would-be Jackie Stewarts, Mario Andrettis and Richard Pettys, your Fantasy Island is on the way to Shelby County!

If all goes according to schedule, Action Track Grand Prix Racing, a rent-a-racer recreation center, will open July 15 at the intersection of Hwy. 31 and Valledale Road in Pelham.

Allen Willey, owner of a Birmingham car dealership, who is heading the business venture, says the track will work this way: For $1.25 per lap, the operator will slap a racing helmet on your head and put you behind the wheel of a Lola mini-racer. The object is to whip the car around the 25 curves of the half-mile track just as fast as you possibly can without wiping out.

Lap speeds will be tallied by a $30,000 computerized timing system and flashed on a large electronic time board. Computations are given to within 1,000th of a second and the racer gets a read-out sheet with his or her time on it.

This, explains Willey, gets the 'ol' ego' involved with the race. Not only do racers have the track record and their personal records to shoot at, but competition develops between friends and leagues as well.

California craze

At last count, some 35 rent-a-racer tracks were in operation in the country. As might be expected, the craze started in California.

The first, and possibly most successful operation, has been Malibu Grand Prix Racing, with nine tracks on the west coast. Attesting to the success of the mini-racers, is the fact that Malibu Grand Prix was recently acquired by Warner Communications, the same people who bring you movies, records and Bugs Bunny. Willey explains that when the Malibu people turned down his request for a franchise, he figured they must be in on something good. So along with nine limited partners, he is investing $700,000 in cars and a track of his own.

Fourteen Lola T506's, at $8400 each, have already been purchased for the track.

Willey points out that Lola Cars, Ltd., out of Huntingdon, England, is the world's largest producer of race cars, and has built such famous racers as last year's Indy 500 winner.

The T506 and similar mini-racers were dubbed by Road & Track magazine as Formula 710 cars because their wheelbases are 7-10's that of a standard Formula 1 Grand Prix racer. The magazine also calls the mini-Lola the 'most classy' of the 710 cars.

Two-cycle Rotax

The Lola T506 is powered by a 440 c.c. two-cycle Rotax (an Austrian snowmobile manufacturer) engine, detuned to 28 h.p. to meet safety and noise standards. (A system of three mufflers will keep noise levels below that of trucks on the highway, Willey says.)

The powerplant is coupled by a centrifugal clutch to a variable-ratio, belt driven automatic transmission. Although 28 horses may not sound like a lot of power, the transmission sees to it that you have plenty of torque at lower speeds. Furthermore, with a tubular framing covered by a sleek, fiberglass racing shell, the cars weigh only 650 pounds.

Willey says the cars top end at about 72 mph, but points out that the racer who averages 35 mph around the half-mile of twisting concrete will clock a good, competitive time. And sitting only a few inches off the ground, 35 mph will seem like a whole different animal than if you were on the freeway.

Although the roll bar tops out at only 39 inches, and the car sports an overall length of only 122 inches, the little Lola offers plenty of room for Walter Mittys over six feet to stretch out behind its wheel.

Slicing curves

The trick to turning in good lap times is to slice through the curves without braking, allowing the wide racing slicks and the transmission to scrub off speed, according to Willey who has raced several such tracks.

He notes that with its ridiculously low center of gravity and its oversized tires, the lousung Lola is virtually impossible to flip over. And, according to Road & Track, the fully independent rear suspension and double A-arm, independent front end makes the Lola T506 a better handler than all the other Formula 710 cars.

"The fascination," says Willey, "is that it doesn't look like a toy. It's an honest to goodness race car."

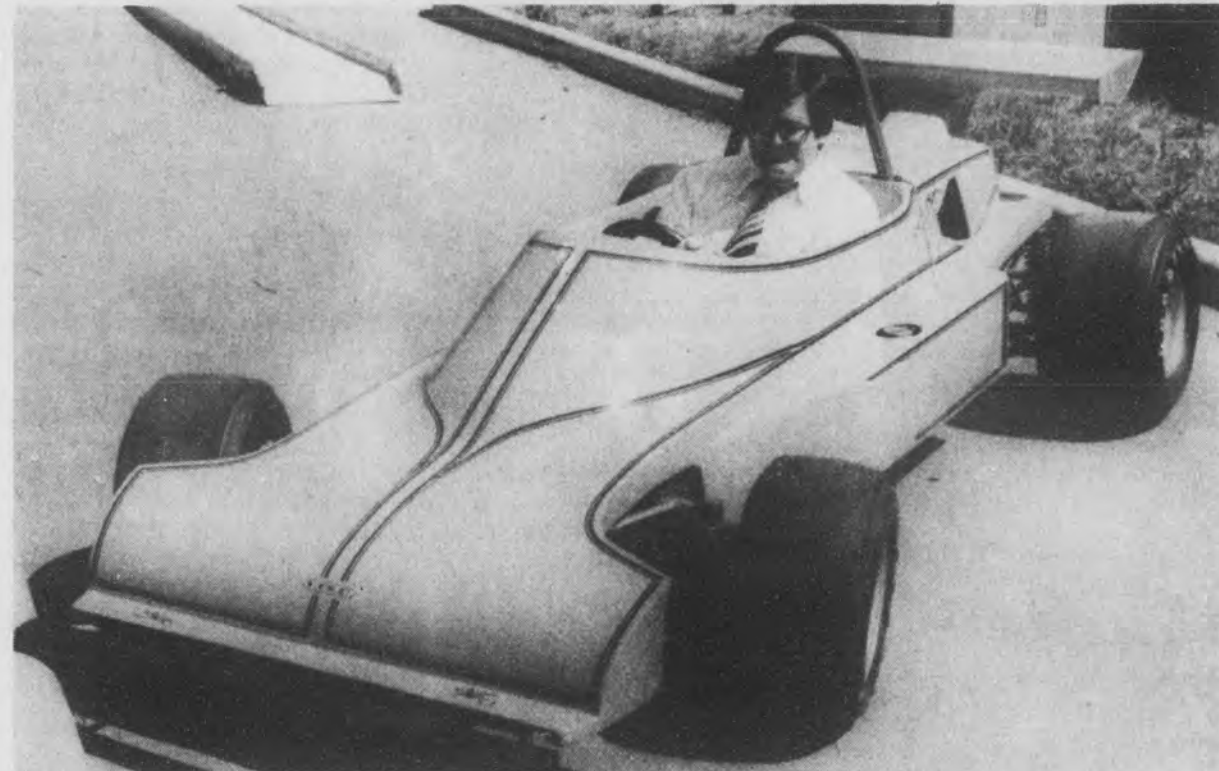

"I was impressed because it's a good, clean, fun type thing. And there's not too many places you can go to get your kicks for a $1.25. I guarantee it's a kick in the fanny. Four laps will wear you out."

Willey, a former resident of Chandalar South, says he chose the intersection at Hwy. 31 and Valledale because of the visibility of the site and growth of the area.

Action Track Grand Prix Racing will be situated on 6.2 acres behind Tobacco World. Besides the track, garage and parking facilities, the complex will also offer go cart racing and a 61 machine game room.

A contract for the work was recently signed by Brice Construction and clearing is expected to begin this week, Willey says.

Gentlemen, start your engines!

One of the biggest safety features on the Lola T506 mini-racer is its oversized tires, 10 inches wide on the front and 12 inches wide on the rear. Owner Allen Willey pointed out that by the time

Action Track opens this summer, the sleek cars will be covered with sponsor decals, adding another element of realism to the would-be Mario Andretti. (Photos by Moore)

Business end

The business end of the Lola has been quieted down by a system of three mufflers. At the speeds these cars will obtain on the track, the air foil is more for looks than traction.

Sharp eye, sharp arrow

The three top teams in the Creek Archery Club, Howard Hill Bowhunters club shoot last Sunday in Vincent were: Ray Wood, Donald Gray, Pam Wood and Debbie Gray (first place with a 459),

Women win game

The SEPCO/MMI women's softball team walked away with first place honors last Saturday in a tournament at LaFayette. The event marked the first time women had ever played tournament ball.

The team did a fine job representing Shelby County as it picked up five wins in six games, including two defeats (8-3 and 3-1) over last year's district champs, the Alexander City Rookies.

The team is coached by Danny Deshazo, Pete Atkisson and Rusty Kendrick.

Winning effort

Special education students Sandra Ward and Kathy Beasley from Montevallo Elementary School were 2nd and 3rd place winners in the 50 yard dash at the District Special Olympics.

Special Olympics draws 500 entries

Every county that was supposed to compete in the District Special Olympics showed up at the event in Montevallo Friday.

And this was the first time that all five counties have had representatives at the olympics, reported District Coordinator Miriam Collins.

She said that approximately 500 special education students took part in the competition which was postponed from April 8 because of rain.

Counties participating were: Chilton, Shelby, Bibb, St. Clair and Coosa.

Track and field events got underway around 10 a.m. following opening ceremonies which included a parade of all the athletes.

Because the county held their own olympics this year, Shelby County Coordinator James Lawshe reported that the number of local youngsters competing in the district event was cut almost in half.

Contestants from 15 Shelby County Schools entered the ten events. The athletes were from: the three Montevallo schools, the three Columbiana schools and the SPMH Center, Thompson Elementary and Middle Schools.

Calera Elementary and High School, Chelsea, Vincent Elementary, Riverchase and Pelham.

Winners will go to the state olympics at Ft. McClellan May 24.

Secretaries take office

The new officers for the Shelby County Legal Secretaries Association were installed April 15. They are: (l-r) Margaret Nivens, president; Nancy Smith, vice-president; Joan McMillan, treasurer; Dorothy Cannady, NALS rep; and Mary Harris, governor. Not pictured is secretary, Faye Porter.

Secretaries

install officers

A Talladega judge and the President of the Alabama Association of Legal Secretaries installed new officers for the county's Legal Secretaries Association April 15.

Mrs. Ruth Garrett and Judge William C. Sullivan conducted the installation program following a buffet supper at the Community Services Building in Columbiana.

Sullivan, who is the presiding judge of the 29th Judicial Circuit, also gave a humorous talk during the evening's event.

Newly elected officers are: Margaret Nivens, president; Nancy Smith, vice-president; Faye Porter, secretary; Joan McMillan, treasurer; Dorothy Cannady, NALS rep and Mary Harris, governor.

The buffet supper featured home baked foods including bread and strawberry crepes. It was catered by Mrs. Clyde Perkins of Sylacauga.

From new Calera home

Vietnamese enter mainstream

by Bert Seaman

Although they were born half way around the world, a group of refugees from Viet Nam now call Calera their home.

And to help them understand the English language and learn skills to find higher paying jobs, four of the young people have been taking night classes at the Shelby County Area Vocational Center.

Three of the students are from the same family. Twenty six year old Quan Vuong and her 22 year old sister Ai took typing. Their 17 year old brother Yen studied welding.

Typing instructor Vickie Tolbert also had 22 year old Duong Vuong in her class.

Because she had studied typing and had attended a university in Viet Nam, Quan made faster progress than the other two in her class, Tolbert remarked.

Welding instructor Otha Denard said that Yen was quick to catch on to what he taught him in welding.

The Calera family who sponsored Yen and the others in Shelby County, say he has told them he wants to go to college and study electrical engineering.

The enterprising young man is now employed at Brown Moulding in Montevallo where he operates a drill.

His older sisters both work for Dewberry Engraving and his 16 year old sister attends Calera High School.

Another member of the group at CHS is Duong's 14 year old brother Dat.

The parents of all of the young people are still in Viet Nam and Duong helps in supporting his brother with the money he earns at Linefast in Montevallo.

Ten of the Vietnamese group, which includes Quan, her two sister, four brothers, a sister-in-law, a niece and a nephew, live together in a house near the Shelby County Airport.

Three of the family are employed at Acton Cabinet Shop in Helena.

Before coming to the United States, the refugees were in Malaysia.

Job skills

Yen Thieu Vuong added to his job skills by learning welding at the SCAVC.

Looking ahead

Four Vietnamese students received certificates last week for completing their 12 week courses at the SC Area Vocational Center. Studying typing were: Quan Vuong (seated), her sister Ai and Duong Vuong.

Tomato grower shares his garden secrets for 'a half basket a day' from 4 plants

by Shelba Nivens

"We would get at least a half basket of tomatoes a day from four plants. Sometimes we would even get a whole basketfull."

Oakley Vincent, of Columbiana, was talking about tomato plants he grew last year. He set out plants the same way this year, and showed us how he did it.

He grows the plants inside three-foot "rounds" made of concrete wire, four plants to a round.

"If you are going to use this kind of deal," he explained, "You need to dig up the ground real deep." Then, fertilizer and lime should be thoroughly mixed with the loose soil.

Vincent says commercial fertilizer can be used, but he prefers to use manure. He buys lime loose, rather than by the sack, because the loose is less expensive. In each round, he uses about one gallon lime and two gallons fertilizer. He also likes rotten sawdust.

The Columbiana gardener

makes deep holes for his plants and covers them with soil to the bottom branches. If the plants are real tall, he said, a gardener might want to break off the lower branches. He advised, "Leave just the tops sticking out."

Tomato plants have been out in the Vincent garden for a couple of weeks or more. Last week, when temperatures dropped to the 30's, Vincent covered his plants at night to protect them from the cold. He used the bottom portion of plastic milk jugs, weighted down with rocks.

"Better boy" and "whopper" are the varieties preferred by Vincent. He grows them inside a wire standing five feet tall. "Then, they usually grow over the top," he said.

Tomatoes in the round

Oakley Vincent sets out 4 tomato plants inside each wire, 3 feet in diameter.

First timers

Four Montevallo Elementary School students won honorable mentions in the County Social Studies Fair. They are: Lisa Lawley, Eric Rochester (seated), and William Potts and David Grimes.

Library gets big push at Vincent school

A new library is the biggest ongoing project at Vincent Middle School, according to principal, Stan Elliott.

The library has new tables and chairs. And a man in the community is volunteering his labor to build a large bookcase, he said.

Elliott added that parents are volunteering to help as library aids, or in whatever way they can be used. Although the school does not have a librarian at present, he said, a teacher is always available so students can use the library.

The library has around 1000 books, most of them brand-new, but quite a few more are needed for accreditation, said Elliott.

A candle sale earlier in the year, helped raise money for library equipment. Elliott also credited the school's Beta Club with library fund raising.

Handicapped hold bazaar

A variety of handcrafted items will be for sale at Pelham Mall May 3 when Shelby County's School for the Handicapped hold their bazaar.

Macrame, crocheted items and potted plants will be a few of things PTO members will be selling to raise funds for the school.

The event will get underway at 10 a.m. and continue until 5 p.m.

Here's where to get immunizations

All students entering the public schools for the coming term must present a certificate of immunization.

There are four types of certificates that are acceptable, and can be issued by the student's doctor or by the Shelby County Health Department.

Immunizations must be made against diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, polio, measles, mumps and rubella.

Immunizations can be obtained any Thursday at the health department in Columbiana from 8 to 11:30 and from 1 to 4 p.m. They are also available Friday mornings at Alabaster City Hall and Friday afternoons at Montevallo City Hall. On the first and third Tuesday afternoons, the clinic is open at Pelham City Hall from 1:30 to 3:30; and on the first and third Thursday afternoons at the Harpersville Medical Center from 1 to 3:30.

"This will only be on a small scale," he said. "We are painting and fixing up a station wagon and plan to equip it with a respirator."

He pointed out that members of the fire department have not had training necessary for administering extensive first-aid. "This is so we can render first-aid to people having trouble to fill the gap from the time they have a problem until the ambulance gets there," he said.

City equips vehicle

Columbiana Volunteer Fire Department is readying a vehicle with first-aid equipment, according to Chief Bob Barrett.

Columbiana

PTO to meet

The Parent-Teacher Organization of all three Columbiana schools will meet Tuesday, April 29. The meeting will convene in the high school auditorium at 7 p.m.

Nomination and installation of officers for 1980-81 will follow end of the year business.

High school students will present the program.

Women robbers bask on beach

The two Birmingham women accused of robbing the Cahaba Valley Branch of the First National Bank of Columbiana Wednesday, came up with an unusual getaway scheme.

They drove to the beach area at Oak Mountain State Park and went out on the pier to sunbathe.

Donna Carol Hagan, 35, and Rosemary Gale Taylor, 29, were arrested approximately 45 minutes after the robbery and taken by FBI agents to the Jefferson County jail. Bond was set at $10,000.

The robbery took place at the drive-in window at approximately 2:50 p.m.

According to reports, one of the women passed the teller a note which said the bank would be blown up unless money was handed over.

Apparently no specific amount was mentioned and authorities will not reveal how much they were given.

Personnel from the Shelby County Sheriff's Department, the Alabaster Police Department and FBI agents were involved in the search for the suspects.

Finding a car matching the description of the getaway vehicle, the two FBI agents who found the late model silver Monte Carlo, radioed agents at the bank to come to the beach area.

Three Alabaster policemen spotted the car minutes after the FBI agents.

As they were examining the car, one of them reported, two women who had been sunbathing on the pier, walked up and asked the reason for their car being inspected.

Joe Ross, FBI special agent in charge of the case, said that the money taken from the bank was found in the car's trunk.

Chief Deputy James Jones and other personnel from the Shelby County Sheriff's Department were on the scene when the arrests were made.

This is believed to be the first time that a bank has been robbed through the drive-in window.

But the branch bank, located at the intersection of Hwy. 119 and Hwy. 280, has been robbed on other occasions.

Local bills reported

Apparently not many bills affecting Shelby County will pass the legislature during this session.

The Legislature was still in session late Tuesday when Shelby County Representative Sonny Moore told the Reporter that the bill proposing the annexation of Riverchase by the City of Hoover had not been introduced.

He said he doubted there would be time enough left in this session for it to pass if it were not introduced before the Tuesday

58 unit apartment comes to Montevallo

Montevallo will have a new 58 apartment complex before year is over.

Construction on the project is scheduled to begin next month. Units are expected to be ready for occupancy sometime in November.

The complex, to be located in blocks south of State Highway 25 between Gardner and Melton Streets, will contain twenty-two bedroom apartments and eighteen one bedroom units.

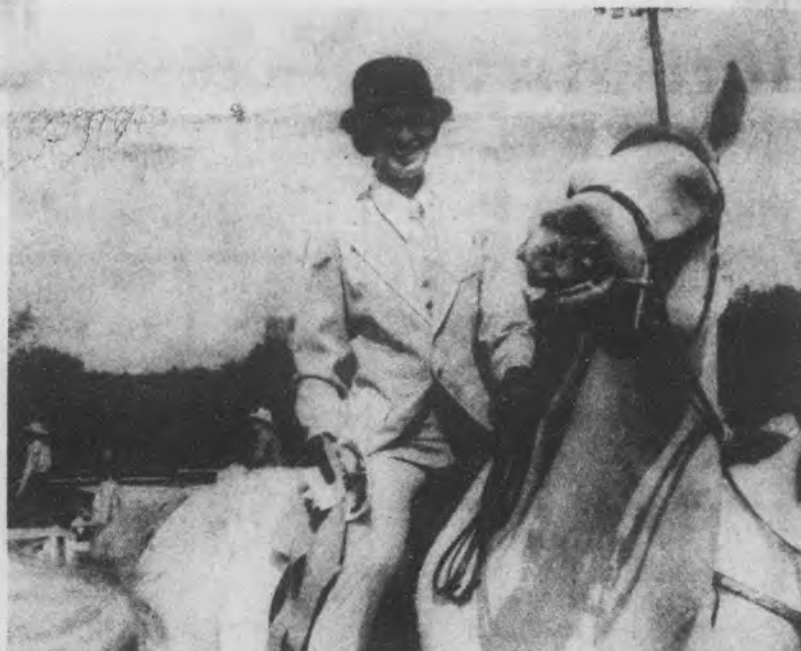

Construction will be two story brick veneer. The complex will be energy efficient including double windows, storm doors, insulation, central heat and air conditioning. When ready for occupancy the complex will have a resident manager and a resident maintenance person.

The $1.4 million complex is being developed by the Morrow Realty Company of Tuscaloosa with financing from the Farmers Home Administration.

The two story complex, to be located adjacent to the South Central Bell Warehouse area, will have rental assistance available to qualified renters. The assistance will be through the Farmers Home Administration.

The complex will consist of six building clusters, paved streets and parking areas, a recreation center, basketball courts and a park-play area.

Commission settles tax assessor feud

by Marcia M. Sears

In the interest of "working in harmony" the Shelby County Commission voted Monday to finish the payments on a copying machine in the Tax Assessor's office.

The machine was purchased to make copies of maps and aerial photos for the public on request. The tax assessor charges $2 for each map and $5 for aerial photos. The money goes toward supplies and the cost of the machine.

The money has been turned in to the County Commission and receipted. However, a discrepancy arose last week when receipts were compared. Bobbie Reynolds, tax assessor, said she had receipts for $2,700 from the Commission office, and wanted to pay the final payment on the machine. Commission records did not agree with Mrs. Reynolds' however, and the conflict led to a serious misunderstanding.

Commissioner Harold Davenport asked Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden to write Mrs. Reynolds "and tell her that her people not spend their time in the Commission office aggravating the staff. Our staff doesn't go to other offices and fool with them."

For his part, Reynolds' assistant, Jim Sumner told the Reporter he had merely asked to see the records, but the Commission staff told him they were too busy to get out the file.

The balance on the copier, called a "blue line printer" was $1,627. Snowden recommended that the Commission pay the final amount and place receipts from the machine directly in the general fund rather than in a set-aside fund. He said the state auditors had said receipts should be turned over to the Commission weekly rather than quarterly as they had in the past.

Commissioner Jimmy "Jake" Morris said the two offices must work in harmony and backed the request to pay off the machine.

Army schedules Bishop Creek flood hearing

by David Moore

The Army Corps of Engineers will conduct a public hearing on Bishop Creek flood control Thursday, May 1, at Pelham City Hall.

According to Wayne Saucer, Study Manager, the 7 p.m. meeting is designed to give the ACE a consensus of local opinions on the various alternatives available for the reduction of flood damage on Bishop Creek in Pelham.

Saucer said he would explain details of the plans under consideration and answer questions at the meeting. Public feedback will enable ACE to eliminate plans that lack local support, he added.

Speaking to the Reporter from the Mobile District office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Saucer pointed out that no definite course of action has yet been decided on, but some of the alternatives to be discussed are as follows:

1) Modifications to the Bishop Creek channel, such as widening and straightening it;

2) Floodway approaches, such as embankment excavations to enlarge flood plain capacities;

3) Non-structural alternatives, such as building flood walls around flood plain structures, or relocating families and houses.

Preliminaries to the study began in December, 1978 and include a survey of first floor elevations in houses in the Bishop Creek 500 year flood plain, as well as the gathering of hydraulic statistics, Saucer explained. These preliminaries are nearly completed, he said, and will be used to weigh project costs against benefits of flood damage prevention.

Since the Pelham flood plain of Bishop Creek was declared a disaster area after two floods last spring, the federal government will spend up to $3 million for its share of the chosen plan or plans.

If a structural plan is decided upon, the City of Pelham will be required to procure any needed land easements or rights of way, and pay for maintenance.

If a non-structural plan is decided upon, Pelham will be required to pick up 20 percent of the cost, plus anything over $3 million.

Saucer said that in the wake of public interest after Bishop Creek floods last March and April, his office has placed the project high on their priority list.

He noted that any plan which might be accepted will not offer "that great of protection," but it would considerably lower the cost of all flood damage.

The study manager said the area of Bishop Creek under study flows between Hwys. 31 and 105.

Unsafe Kelly Creek bridge closed

A bridge that has served its time was closed by the County Commission Monday.

The structure which is "probably 80 to 100 years old" according to Commissioner J. Alpha Lowe of Vincent was called "extremely unsafe."

The bridge is high over Kelly Creek on County Highway 57 is the far northeastern section of the county. When it was built it served a growing community and a mill where corn and wheat were ground.

In recent years, however, the number of vehicles crossing the bridge never came to more than 75 per day.

County Highway Director James Ray said there is no way to repair or reinforce the bridge,

"because there's so much rust there's nothing to work with." He said it would cost from $750,000 to $1 million to replace it. The county road system has so many other priorities, it could never afford it, he added.

The bridge closing will mean a three-mile detour to some of the three or four families who regularly used the road.

Fatal crash

Violet M. Spates was killed in Vincent Monday morning when her car crashed into another on Highway 231. The driver of the second vehicle reportedly suffered minor injuries. For story, see page 5. (Photo by Fred Guarino.)

Montevallo plans street improvement

A proposed street repair and resurfacing program for this summer is in the final planning stages for Montevallo's streets and roadways.

Councilman Herb Milstead, chairman of the city's streets committee, led a discussion of the proposed program during Monday night's city council meeting.

The two top priority projects for the summer months include applying a final surface on the new roadways in Montevallo's Evansville area and repairs and resurfacing of the western end of Island Street.

Other plans, according to Milstead, include resurfacing Valley Street between Middle and Shelby streets; resurfacing Middle Street between Valley and Main Streets; resurfacing Boundary Street between Oak and Main Streets and repairs to the roadways in the Montevallo Cemetery. Repairs to isolated potholes are also on this summer's agenda. The resurfacing of the roads in the cemetery are planned for the summer of 1981, if sufficient funds are available, according to Milstead.

Montevallo City Clerk Don Hughes, told council members that additional trees have been ordered for planting in the city's cemetery. Hughes also told council members that a new telemetering unit for the city's gas distribution system has been installed and the new unit will soon be put in operation. Installation of the unit began more than a year ago.

Mayor Ralph Sears read a letter directed to the council from Tax mailing set for mid-May

May 15 is the new date set for mailing out final property tax notices for the calendar year 1979.

Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds told the Reporter Tuesday that after allowing time for double-checking and computer work, several thousand tax notices should be in the mail by mid-May.

These are the pieces of property where errors were made during the property tax reappraisal program. Under normal circumstances, they should have been in the mail last September, with final payment of taxes due on December 31, 1979. Taxes on most of the property in the county were paid by that date.

However, errors, especially in mapping, caused thousands of pieces of property to be incorrectly assessed.

The tax assessor has thought the notices would be ready for mailing at several earlier dates this year, but errors continued to be found.

The result of their delays has been that the County Commission, the School Board and the Hospital Board have not been able to predict their income for the year. This has led to severe budget problems, especially in the Commission's general fund.

BREMSS rep named

Phillip Walker was appointed the county's representative to the Birmingham Regional Emergency Medical Services System by the County Commission Monday.

Walker will replace Doug Ballard, Jr., who resigned last week after serving for several years.

Walker is a Paramedic Level 3 and a lieutenant with the Alabaster Fire Department. He is already a member of BREMSS.

The nomination was made by Commissioner Harold Davenport.

He is the son of former Sheriff and Mrs. C.P. "Red" Walker.

Bid opening hits sour notes

by Reporter Staff

Nobody seemed very happy with the bids that were opened by the County Commission Monday.

Insurance men protested the methods used by the Commission staff in notifying them of bids.

Gasoline dealers said they need 10 days to submit a bid, but were notified only last Thursday.

An asphalt bidder from Birmingham said he didn't get his bid invitation until Saturday, although Commission Clerk Mildred Ray said it was mailed on Wednesday.

No bids came in for bridge timber, so no one knew whether the invitations to bid had arrived at their destinations or not.

Bids for a vehicle for the tax assessor's office did not specify "automobile" so one dealer (the low bidder) bid on a pickup truck. All those bids were thrown out for new specifications and new bids, since Commissioners thought Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds wanted a car rather than a truck. Her specification however, had listed only a wheelbase figure.

The insurance hassle was settled when George Bentley, for Rux Carter Insurance, suggested the county not take his bid which was $11 lower than that submitted by MMI for coverage of airport buildings. Bentley said that since MMI had the other county insurance it would be to the county's advantage to have all of it with one company.

But Bentley and Jim Garner of the Insurance Store in Alabaster said they did not normally get invitations to bid on the county's general health and life insurance policies.

Commission staff member Connie Morris said she mails bids to a list she has compiled from the names of people who have asked to be on the bid list. She said the Carter firm was on the list, but noticed that the Insurance Store was not.

Chairman Tommy Snowden said he wanted to treat everyone equally and noted that the county does not have to take bids on insurance anyway.

A bid for a mobile office at the county Attention Home was let to Design Specifications International in the amount of $4,996.

Chevron received the bid for gasoline and diesel fuel, although Bill Seales said the company could not guarantee the bids and the amount was subject to change without notice.

Joe Tidmore, representing Standard Oil, said he could not bid because his company could not guarantee delivery.

On one bidding, however, the county came out better than expected. An old piece of machinery owned by the highway department was sold for $1,750 to Tarrant Tractor Company of Birmingham. Three other bids received were not as high. Department Chairman James Ray said he was pleased and surprised that the bid was so high.

Musicians entertain at Settlers' Day

Visitors who come to Vincent's Settlers' Day Saturday will get an earful of music.

In addition to the Arts and Crafts show, guests will be treated to musical entertainment provided by such groups as Terry Green and the Harmony Masters Quartet and the mens' chorus from Coosa Valley Baptist Church.

Perry Dates' string band from Pell City is also expected to perform and the bands from Vincent High School and Coosa Valley Academy have agreed to play during the annual observance.

Two puppet shows will be on the grounds and movies will be shown inside the high school.

The event is being held on the lawn in front of the high school this year, and wares will be moved inside in case of rain.

Pat Wood is chairman of this year's event which will get underway at 10 a.m. and continue until 5 p.m.

AFD hires fireman

The Alabaster Fire Department's sixth fulltime paid fire fighter started work Monday.

AFD Chief John Cochran said that Eddie Harris of Alabaster is scheduled to start his minimum standards schooling May 5.

After the minimum standards school, Harris will be required to start his paramedic training.

Legislature

He predicts that a bill providing for a license inspector for Shelby County will probably pass, as well as a bill to raise the cost of a pistol permit from $5 to $10. Both are in the Senate, he said.

He believes that a bill wanted by the County Commission, the so called "prima facie" bill would pass on Thursday. This bill would make it possible for local law enforcement officers to use as evidence in court litter they find on the county's roadsides when the litter is matched with an individual.

Moore also has a bill regarding ad valorem tax on house trailers up for consideration in the House of Representatives.

Boosters pull together

Even though a violent storm brought the Heart of the Heart of Dixie Horse Show to an abrupt conclusion Saturday night, SCHS Athletic Boosters called the show one of their most successful.

Picking a winner

A Pleasure Driving class came near the end of the afternoon show. A total of 48 classes were held before a sudden storm called a halt to the Heart of the Heart of Dixie Horse Show.

Judge sentences two county men to prison terms

Three men were sentenced in Circuit Court Friday, but one received a five year probation. Over the objection of the District Attorney, Judge Harold Walden put Roosevelt Collins on probation after sentencing him to five years for attempting to pass a forged prescription. The prescription had been for Talwin, a heroin substitute. Philip Martin was sentenced to five years for child abuse and Charles Knight was given two years in prison for buying, receiving and concealing stolen property.

Small fry
These young riders showed their ponies with Western tack in the Saddle Ponies 50 inches and under class.

In terms of money, Booster Club President Joe Tidmore said Monday, that proceeds were 25% ahead of most other years. And show secretary Freda Kelly reported that entries totaled nearly 400. There would have been around 450 entries, she noted, if they storm hadn't forced the show to stop with five classes still to go. "We really appreciate everyone's efforts and the spirit of cooperation that was shown," Tidmore told the Reporter. Even though there has been some dissension at SCHS in recent months, Tidmore pointed out that everyone had worked together on the show for the good of the school. "John Jones did a fine job as this year's show chairman," the Booster Club president remarked. This year's show, which is the 17th one the group has sponsored, began at 10:30 a.m. with 4-H and halter classes, and concluded around 9:45 p.m. Tidmore also related that sales of barbecue dinners were ahead of last year's totals.

Men hospitalized after shootout

An argument at a Chelsea service station Friday evening led to a shooting in which two men were wounded. Junior McManus, owner of the Shell Service Station, was shot by the son of a Chelsea couple who reportedly went to the business to pay a bill. After being hit, McManus fired back, wounding the boy's father who was sitting in the car. The service station owner was taken to Brookwood Hospital and was still listed in serious condition Monday. Treated at University Hospital, the other victim was released the following day.

Supreme Court convenes at UM

The Alabama Supreme Court will be in session at the University of Montevallo Friday, May 2. One case involves search and seizure. The other challenges an Alabama Senate resolution that raised legislators' per diem pay and expense allowances. The court session is part of its effort to convene in different sites around the state. It is open to the public in Montevallo's Palmer Hall. Testimony in the suit challenging the legislators' per diem and expense allowance increase will be heard from 10 to 11:15 a.m. Testimony in the second suit will be heard from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. In the second suit, the high court will review the decision of the Court of Criminal Appeals to reverse a robbery conviction and to order a new trial. The case involved a detective's search of the accused's toolbox. The appeals court found that William Allen Reid and another individual held up a store in northern Jefferson County. Officers found a bottle of pills in Reid's toolbox, after opening the toolbox without a search warrant. The central issue the court must consider is whether the detective's search of the toolbox, which was in Reid's pickup truck, was a legal search.

There are a lot of bright ideas you can use to deal with a power outage.

First, check to see if your neighbors' lights are off. Next, check fuses or breakers in your fuse box or breaker panel. If they're okay, call Alabama Power. Give us your name, address, and how long power has been off. This helps us determine the extent of the outage and speeds repair. Also remember to keep refrigerator and freezer doors closed so that inside air will remain cold as long as possible.

Cannot accept such poor performance

The failure of America's mission to rescue the hostages in Iran last week has raised serious questions throughout the world, and certainly here in Shelby County.

Although most of us would support the President's decision to try a rescue attempt, all of us are appalled at the inept way in which it was carried out.

The failure of the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba many years ago was attributed partly to the CIA's trying to carry out a military mission without sufficient experience in military maneuvers.

But this Iranian mission was apparently in the hands of our military from the beginning. All of us can understand an accident of mechanical failure, but the failure of three helicopters is hard to comprehend. Even worse is the way in which the mission hurriedly fled the scene, leaving our dead behind as well as other helicopters and the plans for the rescue.

Americans are tolerant beyond belief at times, but this has tested us to the utmost. We simply cannot accept such poor standards of performance. Congress should conduct a deep and immediate investigation into all facets that led to this debacle and swiftly take steps, whatever the cost, to assure that we will not be as unprepared in any future times of crisis.

The world recognizes strength as a peace-keeping force. We must maintain and increase our position of strength in the eyes of the world.

Governor remains optimistic

by Fob James

There has been quite a bit of talk about a special session to deal with the budgets, but I am still optimistic that the Legislature will pass both budgets before the regular session ends on May 19.

The House of Representatives has passed a General Fund budget which is virtually as I proposed it several months ago. The Senate has passed an education budget, but it is an unrealistic document that puts education in proration from the first day of the fiscal year.

There simply is not going to be enough revenue to fund the Senate's inflated budget for education.

Two weeks ago I proposed a revised education budget which takes into account the present economic climate and which defines priorities which are necessary in times of decreased revenue. In short, now that it is certain that revenue projections will drop, we must put the emphasis where it is needed in education, and that is on grades K-12.

For a year-and-a-half now I have pointed to the duplication in post-secondary education which daily wastes tax dollars that are desperately needed elsewhere. I have asked the colleges and universities to make reforms voluntarily but I have been disappointed in their actions thus far.

My new education budget puts emphasis on grades K-12 and also holds a $20 million appropriation to be dispensed based on need to universities and colleges which have shown a commitment to reform and a desire for quality over quantity.

I might add that mine is the only education budget that is not a proration budget, all House and Senate versions being based on unrealistic revenue projections.

The budget passed last week by the Senate was based on a revenue projection of $1.37 billion, far more than any analysts presently feel will be available to the Special Education Trust fund for the coming year. That means that when the fiscal year begins we will be in proration should this budget win approval. The same goes for the House versions.

I hope that the two houses of the Legislature and the Administration can get together this week and come up with a budget that will be sound, in balance and which will also provide a mechanism by which reform in post-secondary education can be implemented in the coming year.

The critical issue before the Legislature and the Administration can get together this week and come up with a budget that will be sound, in balance and which will also provide a mechanism by which reform in post-secondary education can be implemented in the coming year.

Under The Courthouse Dome

The County Commission voted Monday to move its regular meetings into the County library building.

The relative peace in the library will be quite a change for the Commission meetings which are normally interrupted by staff workers and the public who have to walk through the meeting room to conduct regular business.

Commissioners have talked about making the move for several months, but hesitated to do so because records are close at hand in the office and it is convenient.

The meetings will be held in the large meeting room of the library on the right front of the building.

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden said several minor repairs must be made at the county jail to comply with an inspector's report. All the work can be done by county maintenance men, but Snowden warned the Commission the work "will run up the sheriff's budget".

County Highway Department Chairman James Ray told the Commission the cost of gold pins which the county has given to employees at five year intervals for continued service, now cost $35 each. Because of the cost, the Commission voted to do away with the awarding of the pins and give certificates instead. Sixteen men are eligible soon for service awards, Ray said. He added that when he started giving the pins, they cost only $6 each.

Commissioner Harold Davenport suggested the county stop spraying mosquitoes within the cities of the county because the one machine the county has cannot possibly serve them and the unincorporated areas too. He noted that the spray must be used when the insects are 'on the wing' or it will not kill them. That means there are only six hours a day to spray, he said. Davenport asked that representatives from the state and county health departments come to the next meeting to discuss the matter.

Guards at the three county landfills are not collecting all the fees they should, according to reports at the Commission meeting Monday. One commissioner said he had driven into the Helena landfill without challenge and noticed that the person in charge let several other vehicles into the landfill without leaving her office to check on them. He suggested that the matter be brought to the attention of the solid waste supervisor.

The Commission gave permission for Oak Mountain Baptist Church to establish a cemetery near the church. The action came Monday following health department approval of the site.

County Civil Defense Director Bill Tucker reported to the Commission that the county has 10 fire and rescue units in operation. He requested the commission to give $500 each to the Chelsea, Vandiver, Lay Lake, Harpersville and Cahaba Valley units.

He reported that the Forestry Service has given trucks this year to the Pea Ridge and Indian Ford Rescue Units, and "I think, to Dunnivant."

Commissioner Harold Davenport suggested that the county try to pay the tuition for people in these units to get Emergency Medical Training. No action was taken on the latter.

DA wants new act applied

The first case in which an attempt was made to apply the Habitual Criminal Act in sentencing a man convicted of more than three felonies came up in

Circuit Court Friday. However, Judge Harold Walden continued the sentencing until May 9 for further hearing. Cecil Matthews, defense attorney for Jimmy Swain, argued that the act didn't apply since prior felony convictions were before the implementation of the Habitual Criminal Act.

However, District Attorney William R. Hill Jr. contended that the act meant "any and all felonies," whether they were committed before or after the act went into effect.

He cited the cases of Spencer vs Texas and Rummel vs Estelle to prove his point. The U. S. Supreme Court upheld the Habitual Criminal Act of other states in both cases.

Hill pointed out that in the Spencer vs Texas case, the act was found to be constitutional in that it did not violate ex post facto or double jeopardy.

Swain is now facing sentencing on two burglary convictions and would receive a stiffer sentence if the Habitual Criminal Act were to be invoked.

Alabama's Habitual Criminal Act is based on the Texas statute, and as part of the state's new Criminal Code, went into effect in January.

Under the act, any person who has previously been convicted of a felony is punished more severely than a person with no prison record.

And sentencing becomes progressively more severe, with the third felony conviction punishable by 15 years to life for a minor (Class C) felony; life for medium (Class B), and life without parole for the most serious (Class A).

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

I hadn't seen her in two months. The day I went over there, in the middle of February, there was an inch of snow on the ground and a cold wind blowing and icicles on the high bank between her house and my house.

The spring that wore violets in her hair today was covered with a thin sheet of ice where snowflakes had collected. And the little stream that trickled off down a grassy ditch was a giant finger of ice that reached all the way down the hill.

When I got there she was sitting under the sycamore tree. She had her sweater unbuttoned all the way down and her toboggan hung around her neck, with just the ribbon keeping it from falling off.

"The man said it was gonna get warmer," she said, "and he was right."

Across the yard, toward the barn, her cow, Betsy, was standing as still as a rock. She might have been a picture, painted, except for the flies buzzing around her back, that she slapped at with her bushy tail. And by her side, hunching with his stubby nose, a young calf was getting his dinner.

"Betsy's added to her family since you were here," she said. "She got almighty prissy and stayed that way for days, jumping the fence every morning and tearing off goodness knows where, with her head as high as the sky and her throat overflowing with racket. I guess she'd still be on the prowl if old man Smith hadn't come and got her and took her to his place for a few days. It wasn't long after that before Mike came along."

Betsy made a little grunting sound and walked off. She stopped in front of the barn and looked back and then went on, out of sight behind the henhouse. A rooster came out of the henhouse and found the spot where Betsy had stopped. He began scratching, making a calling noise his throat. The hens tumbled out of the henhouse and crowded around, all of them scratching at once.

"I got a letter from sister Kate last week," she said. "It seems Tom has got the feeling and has changed his ways."

"I'm glad," I said. "I hope it'll last but I don't know."

The chickens had gone back inside the henhouse. The ground, where they had scratched, looked like it had been fresh plowed.

You don't sound too sure," I said.

"I'm not." "He's still hunting another dollar. Day and night, like there was just one left in all the world."

"The love of money--" "Yep," she interrupted, that's what I mean."

A little wind picked up, chasing the leaves around. She buttoned up her sweater.

"If he keeps worshipping money like he always has," she said, "he can sit on that church bench until he wears the seat out of his pants, and when he dies he won't go as high as halfway up a half grown cedar tree."

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I never seem to have much luck in choosing the right check-out lane at a supermarket.

Even if I get in the line with the fewest people, they always seem to be the ones with problems.

This past weekend for example, there were only two people in the line I chose. Even so, I stood there so long I almost became mesmerized by the Jolly Green Giant cut-out that swung gently to and fro just inside the doorway.

Fortunately, I was in no great hurry, so I wasn't as frustrated as I have been on other occasions.

Shifting from one foot to another, I studied the Green Giant and the great big cut-out cans that surrounded him.

I don't no why they appealed to me - but I really thought they were neat!

It's the same thing with the replicas of the old cans that were once used as containers for coffee, sugar, pins and so on.

I'm always tempted to buy every one I see, but then I wonder what I'd use them for.

Earlier that day, I had come across a can that resembled the container that Dr. Lyons toothpowder used to come in.

What memories that brought back. But I left the can in the store since I knew it would just be one more thing to add to the clutter in an already overcluttered home.

When a loud clearing of the throat abruptly returned my thoughts to what I was about, I realized it was finally my turn to check out.

Since my family is dwindling again, my buggy didn't contain many groceries. But it was still full.

What had proved irresistible were the plants. Since my daughter married and moved off with her plants, there was a shortage of green leafy things in the household.

And with so many appealing varieties to choose from, I just went wild.

The checking out process dragged - I guess because the cashier and the bag boy were both so tired.

Between yawns they compared how much sleep they'd had in the last 48 hours.

Well, I'll tell you one good thing about my trip to the store. I recognized everyone who spoke to me, and that's a record.

The day before, a man standing next to me at an event I was covering, said he was hoping I'd come out soon.

I drew a blank at first as to who he was and where "out" could be. But luckily his identity came to me before I said something to get egg on my face.

Of course, on the way to that place, which is a new camp, old Scrambled Eggs will probably get lost.

Wreck injury kills man

An Alabaster man died Monday from injuries he suffered in a two car wreck Sunday night on Highway 31.

Eddie Lee Shanks, 54, of Alabaster, died at University Hospital.

According to Alabaster Police

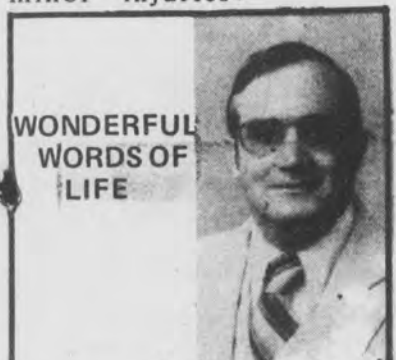

Vincent crash claims life

A head-on collision in Vincent has claimed the life of a 47-year-old Harpersville woman and injured a Gadsden man.

Violet Morrell Spates of Route 1, Harpersville, died Monday morning from injuries she suffered when the vehicle she was driving collided with a car driven by Larry Thomas Campbell of Gadsden on Highway 231.

According to Vincent Police Chief George Humphries, the Spates vehicle, which was traveling north, was in the southbound lane of Highway 231 in front of Duck's Bait Shop when the accident occurred.

Humphries reported however, that Campbell, the driver of the other vehicle, only suffered minor injuries.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

Hindered Prayers

When Peter wrote the sojourners of the dispersion in Asia Minor, these Christians were undergoing great persecution and suffering. To them, prayer was a very precious privilege and was a vital source of strength. Peter encouraged them so to conduct their lives that their "prayers be not hindered." (1 Peter 3:7.)

First, one's prayers can be hindered by a lack of faith. We are commanded to pray "in faith, nothing doubting." (James 1:6) One, God is almighty and is able to answer any prayer which is consistent with His nature and will. Two, God is omnibenevolent; that is he is all-loving and all-merciful. He will freely give us all we need. (Romans 8:32). We must believe that He rewards the faithful. (Hebrews 11:6). However, He may determine that we would be better off without our wants and thus say "No." Or, He may say "Maybe at some later time." We should not lose faith in God if He does not immediately fulfill our petitions.

Second, one's prayers can be hindered by a lack of knowledge. The apostles asked Christ, "Lord, teach us to pray." (Luke 11:1) Paul stated that we frequently "know not how to pray" as we should. (Romans 8:26) Thus, there must be a correct way to pray. One who does not know of God's willingness to answer prayer will not pray, does not ask for blessings. (James 4:2; Philippians 4:6) A person, because of ignorance, may not approach God according to His will, and thus not have his prayers answered. God requires that our prayers be uttered in accordance to God's commands. (1 John 5:24) An example of praying in ignorance is to request that God heal someone miraculously, inasmuch as the miraculous has ceased. (1 Corinthians 13:8-13; Ephesians 4:8-16) Another example is one's praying for God to save a person who refuses to obey the gospel plan of salvation. More to follow!

You will receive a warm welcome at the Columbiana Church of Christ, Highway 25 ByPass, a friendly church in a friendly community.

Columbiana postpones fire truck bidding

The opening of bids on a new fire truck for the city of Columbiana has been postponed from April 28 until the next Council meeting May 1.

When Councilman Harold McCord reported on the financing arrangement most fire equipment companies provided, the panel decided to take some extra time to see if they could get a better interest rate.

Telling the council that the interest charge on a $65,000 engine would be 10%, McCord said that payments would extend over a seven year period.

After the initial down payment of $13,000, McCord said a sum of $12,629 would be due the first year.

The Fire Commissioner noted that payments would decrease each year with the final one being in the neighborhood of $8,000.

Under the original plan of purchasing a new engine, the council would have acquired the truck and chassis separately.

The amount set aside in the budget for the first installment under that arrangement, Councilman Paul Smith related, is $4,350.

If the panel accepts a bid on a stock truck, McCord said that it could be delivered within 30 days.

Describing the engine he would like the fire department to have, McCord said that it has a 1,000 gallon per minute midship pump, a 750 gallon tank, and a cab-over-engine.

When he was asked if the old truck would be sold, the Fire Commissioner said that it needed to be kept in service in order for the city to get a better fire insurance rating.

At the present time, Columbiana has an 8 rating.

Even though city fathers weren't enthusiastic about granting a roadblock permit, they agreed to let members of the Pentacostal Lighthouse Church in Harpersville collect money May 3.

The church's assistant pastor, Daniel Moates, and his wife, appeared before the council to make the request.

Collectors will be standing at the intersection of Hwy. 70 and 25 to ask for donations which will be used to build a new church.

When a member of the council recalled that an ordinance requirement for roadblocks called for the group to either be located in the city or have a chapter there, Moates pointed out that he is a resident of Columbiana.

Instructing the couple that requirements for holding a roadblock would have to be observed, the Mayor explained that it would have to be conducted between 8 a.m.-4 p.m., that collectors must be over 15, and that those on either end should wear bright colored vests the city would provide.

Several letters were read to the panel by City Clerk Mary Largin. A request in one was for a bicycle rack in the downtown area where bikes could be parked and locked.

Susan Tidmore wrote in behalf of her sixth grade class pointing out that young people would be riding to town more frequently during the summer.

It was agreed that Street Superintendent James Palmer should recommend a suitable place and the panel indicated that a rack would be installed.

A letter and plaque commended city officials for assisting with FFA and Girl Scout events.

Robert Kelley, District Soil Conservation Director, thanked the city for all the help given with a recent land judging contest.

And a plaque which the Cahaba Girl Scout Council had presented to the Mayor earlier in the day, was passed around for the panel to examine.

It expressed appreciation for facilities the city provided when an event for Brownies was held here.

Republican meeting set

The Shelby County Republican Executive Committee will meet on Thursday, May 8, at the Community Services Building in Columbiana at 7:30 p.m.

This meeting is the first of many to be conducted countywide in order to reach all Republicans in Shelby County.

Topics will include the upcoming elections, voter registration, and poll worker recruitment. All interested Republicans and citizens are invited to attend, according to R.D. Dewey, chairman.

How fire-safe are the schools?

How safe are Shelby County's school children from the dangers of fire in the public schools?

The Shelby County Reporter conducted an investigation into the fire safety programs and the preparedness level at each of the schools in mid-April. We visited most of the schools, talked with principals, with the county superintendent, with city fire marshals and with school children.

The series was inspired partly by the county civil defense director's report to the county commission in which he stated that some schools did not seem to be prepared for disaster drills, and partly by reports to us that panic bars on exit doors at some schools were broken.

Our investigation showed that school principals are mindful of fire safety, that fire drills are conducted at most schools regularly and that exit doors are not chained closed during school hours.

Gathering information for the three-part series were David Moore, Shelba Nivens, Bert Seaman and Marcia Sears.

Part II

The fire drill is designed as a learning experience for both student and staff.

But as Helena principal Billy Bramblett points out, "It doesn't do any good to get the students out of a building if they're going to get run over by a fire truck."

Bearing this in mind, Bramblett sought the advice of Helena Fire Chief Lonnie Thompson not only in evacuating the school, but also where students should go once they're out, so they would not be in the way of arriving emergency vehicles.

Helena Elementary

Bramblett says that since Helena Elementary was built in 1927, he probably has to be more fire conscious than most other county schools. For this reason he has had the fire chief monitor several drills and inspect the building more than once for potential fire hazards.

The principal says that evacuation of the school at its monthly fire drills is carried out in just over one minute.

Thompson notes that Helena Elementary is well equipped with well placed fire extinguishers and manual fire alarm boxes.

Montevallo High School

Like Thompson High, Montevallo High School has also had problems recently with broken panic bars which led to the chaining of doors. The problem came to light during an inspection of the school by the Montevallo Volunteer Fire Department.

The broken panic bar in question was located on a gymnasium door. The hardware has since been replaced and MHS now meets the city's fire code requirements.

Thompson Middle

A check of panic bars at Thompson Middle School revealed that they were in working order and none of those doors are locked during school hours.

The building's fire extinguishers are up to specifications and fire drills are held monthly.

The 723 students at TMS can evacuate the school in less than two minutes, says a school spokesman. Once outside, the teachers call roll to ensure everyone is accounted for.

Columbiana Middle

Two fire drills per month are held at Columbiana Middle School, according to principal Ouida Bentley.

Once outside, teachers call roll. Meantime, Bentley and the school maintenance technician check the building to make sure everyone is out.

No doors are barred during classes and evening functions at CMS, and all the exit lights over the doors are working.

After the school's fire inspection by state and county officials last October (see next week's installment), five additional fire extinguishers were added.

Wilsonville Elementary

After a similar inspection at Wilsonville Elementary, that school had to replace several water type fire extinguishers with newer chemical models. One of the few county schools with more than one floor, Wilsonville has an upstairs library. A labeled fire escape for the library exits through a window just outside the door in the hall. The steps down from the window appear quite sturdy, but are made of wood.

Wilsonville principal Rose Mary Liveoak says they try to hold fire drills monthly. The 160 students can usually evacuate the building in two minutes.

Although Wilsonville Volunteer Fire Chief Charles Dillard says he has not visited the school this term, Liveoak notes that the department is familiar with their set-up and prepared for an emergency.

Calera Elementary

Calera Elementary principal B.T. Knox put coach David Spivey in charge of that school's fire safety.

Spivey says that all doors are kept unlocked during school hours, and that approximately five fire extinguishers are located throughout the building.

Fire drills, he says, are held on the first Monday of the month. The school practices the drills with "smoke" and "no smoke" areas. The students have been instructed to hold hands during the drills and bend down when passing through areas designated as "smoke."

According to Calera Fire Chief

James Miles, the school's fire extinguishers were up-dated several years ago, and since that time all doors have been kept unlocked during classes.

Says Miles, "They cooperate when I tell them something's not right. From my point of view, they're in pretty good shape. We've been stressing fire safety in Calera for the past four years."

Pelham High

Pelham Fire Marshal Rick Miller reports Pelham High School to be in good shape safety-wise. Miller notes that he tries to drop by the schools in his area every three months for an inspection.

PHS principal Dr. Ed Belue says it takes from two to three minutes to evacuate the school. He adds that the Pelham Fire Department said that time is not bad considering an enrollment of 750 students and a staff of 50.

Fire drills are scheduled at least once a month by assistant principal Ken Tatum.

Student handbooks given out at the beginning of each year include instructions on fire drill procedures, Belue notes.

He says too, that the ninth grade classes this year studied fire safety in conjunction with civil defense tornado drills.

PHS is equipped with manual fire alarms on each section of the building, and fire sensors activate fire doors to seal off areas in the case of emergencies.

Next week: Chelsea, Vincent Elementary, Valley, Montevallo Middle, SCHS, and Calera High.

Fire escape

Sturdy wooden steps lead to a window in the hall outside the 2nd floor library at Wilsonville Elementary School. Similar steps lead from the window to an outside landing.

Featured works will hang in the lobby and the artway adjacent to the lobby. One painting from each collection will be donated to the hospital.

The work of Clara Terry Smith, a Shelby County native living in Birmingham, will be exhibited April 14 through May 14. Her subjects include seascapes, landscapes and still life. She works in both oil and water colors.

Mrs. Smith's work has been displayed at several locations in the Birmingham area.

Mini garden thrives

The McDonalds' garden for beauty, food and relaxation. "If it weren't for gardening, I'd climb the walls," she says. Instead, she climbs steps built from rocks hauled into their yard by the Pelham couple. (Photo by Shelba Nivens)

Vegetables, flowers fill yard

by Shelba Nivens

Vegetable plants and fruit vines are part of the landscape scheme in the yard of L.B. and Berniece McDonald. The couple lives at Deer Springs Estates in Pelham on a lot just under an acre.

"But, you'll be surprised at what you can grow in a small space," said Mrs. McDonald.

Well over 300 varieties of flowers and shrubs grow in the McDonald yard. They also have lettuce, okra, tomatoes, beans and mustard greens, and are in the process of planting more.

Grape, scuppernon and muscadine vines grow on a 25 x 11 ft. arbor, shading a patio with a hanging porch swing. Mrs. McDonald said she laid the blocks for the patio herself.

The McDonalds' yard is on a sloping hill. They laid masonry blocks around the whole lot, except across the driveway, to keep the yard from washing. Rock gardens and steps also help with this problem and add to the beauty of the landscape. An arched bridge spans a small stream.

Peppers, tomatoes, egg plants and sage grow in old, oak whiskey barrels, cut in half and placed on each side of stone steps. "We had only two eggplants last year and they grew all we could eat," said Mr. McDonald.

Other vegetables are grown in a bed built of masonry blocks and filled with soil and compost fertilizer. "I don't like to use cross ties to build beds," said Mrs. McDonald, "because wood attracts snakes."

She is, however, planning to use wooden planks to build beds outside their fence, one on each side of the gate. In these 2 x 8 ft. beds, she will plant squash and cucumber. "The vines can grow on the fence," she explained. "This will help keep the worms away from them."

Some of the plants in the yard came from one tiny sprig, nurtured by the McDonalds. They have shared many cuttings and bulbs with others.

Some of the plants were brought in from the woods. A wild Grancey greybeard is ready to bloom. A wild hydrangea grows by the bridge. "When it's in bloom, it smells like an expensive bath powder," commented Mrs. McDonald.

They have wild honeysuckle growing on the fence because they enjoy the plants perfume. They cultivated huckleberry bushes and wild woodvine because they make good food for the birds.

Mrs. McDonald has observed that hummingbirds like red flowers, like the woodvine, and dryacantha. They have these tiny birds living in their yard all year, she said, except perhaps the one coldest month.

The yard filled with the songs of birds, nature's perfume and an array of colorful blossoms often attracts people, who ask to walk through "the garden."

"One man recently told us he bets we have $40,000 worth of plants growing here," laughed Mrs. McDonald.

The couple moved to Shelby County from Hoover in the fall of 1973. She'd had several operations and was always sickly, Mrs. McDonald said. But she has had no serious illnesses since they moved.

She added, "Working outside is really good therapy."

Trade Day event takes center stage in Calera Saturday

Calera Band Boosters are making plans for their fourth annual Trade Day to be the biggest yet.

They have a long list of exhibitors lined up to sell a vast number of handmade items. Quilts, loomwork, fur novelties and handmade children's clothing are only a few of the many items they will be offering. According to a spokesman for the group, items will sell at very reasonable prices.

A flea market will feature art glass collectibles, bisque figurines, antiques, and a pool table, among other things.

Helium balloons and surprise packages will be available to delight the children. Older folks can vent their frustrations by smashing a car at the Calera Rescue Squad's exhibit.

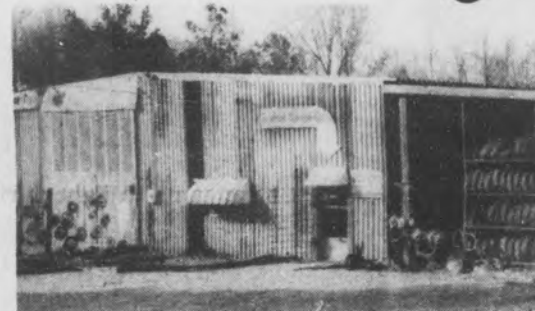

The date is Saturday, May 3. The band boosters organization is expecting a good crowd and a good time for all.

Rednecks stage gala jamboree

Music, food and competitive events were all part of Southwind's Redneck Jamboree Saturday.

And youngsters from the Alabaster neighborhood even had an opportunity to ride in one of the city's fire trucks.

Mayor Charlotte Burke dropped by during the afternoon to watch some of the games and visit with residents, and police showed onlookers equipment in one of APD's patrol cars.

One of the contests held during the event, was to choose the Best Dressed Rednecks who were presented with trophies.

This year's winners were Mike and B. J. Gannon and newcomers, Nancy and Jimmy Tennyson.

The 225 participants in the afternoon and evening of fun played basketball, horseshoes, tug of war, ring toss and other games.

And youngster took part in races which featured roller skates, skate boards, big wheels and trikes.

Prizes were given to the winners, but all the children received a grab bag gift when they arrived. Area merchants also donated door prizes and during the evening festivities, a neighborhood band entertained the adult Rednecks.

Jessica Smith, Karl Lane and Hope Calhoun are shown before they competed in the skating event in which participants navigated a course down this Southwind hill.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

Smitherman pitches perfect game

Warriors clobber Tigers 12-0

A Force 12 Red Tornado touched down briefly Monday at Buck Field in Alabaster. In four and a half innings it demolished a visiting baseball team from Childersburg.

Thompson's ace arm, Steve "Tubbs" Smitherman, pitched a book-perfect no-hitter to lead the Warriors to a 12-0 victory over the Childersburg Tigers. The win clinched Thompson's right to represent area eight in the 3-A state playoffs.

Smitherman struck out two batters every inning for a total of ten, and gave up no walks. The Tigers that managed to connect with the ball fell to the quick, errorless gloves of the Thompson defense. Childersburg did not get a man on base.

Fired by the deadly accuracy of Smitherman's pitching, the hot Warriors collected 12 runs off 13 hits, scoring three runners in the first inning, one in the second, six in the third and two in the fourth.

Rining big aluminum bats for THS were Bret Davenport with a homer and a single, John Durrett with a homer and Mark Gamble with two singles.

Furthermore, Warrior Brad Coker added four singles to his already remarkable streak of 12 straight hits.

The win marked Smitherman's ninth of the season and his second no hitter. After a popout and double, the Tigers intentionally walked the Thompson senior his last two times at bat.

With the road now open at least as far as the first round playoffs, the questions foremost in the minds of many THS fans is, "Can the Warriors win the state championship?"

"We can if we play like we did tonight," stated Thompson Coach Billy Woodham before the ballpark lights were cut off. "There's not much to it when your man (Smitherman) throws a no hitter, doesn't walk anybody and nobody gets on base. And all our boys hit real good, too."

"We played our kind of ballgame. The boys made things happen. They played super."

After the game Childersburg Coach Mike Box good naturedly told the Reporter that he knew a good whipping when he saw one, and he had certainly seen one that night.

"They've just got the superior team," Box said. "We wish them a lot of luck representing area eight in the palyoffs."

The only mar on the evening's victory came when Davenport was booted from the game in the bottom of the fourth for bowling over the Childersburg second baseman to break up a double play. In some circles his move might have been considered a good tackle, but the umpire called it flagrant interference.

Now 12-2 on the season, the Warriors are ery much alive, and still counting.

Now heading for state

Vincent grabs double win off Montevallo

The Vincent Yellow Jackets rallied to the occasion twice Tuesday, beating Montevallo in both ends of a double header, 5-1 and 7-6. The back to back wins clinched their claim to the area 7 championship and sends them to the first round of the 2-A state playoffs.

In the first game, Vincent scored all five runs in the first inning with two of them coming off a single by Bret Hanner.

MHS pitcher David Melsoni allowed only two other hits in the game.

The 'Dogs' only run came in the fifth inning off a double by Carey Thompson which scored Jeff Hall. Hall was 3-3 batting that game.

Steve Riggins pitched the distance for Vincent, striking out seven, walking four and allowing nine hits. Riggins now goes 2-0 on the season.

It was fitting and proper that the second game, which decided the area championship, went an extra inning.

Barry Ball, now 4-2 on the year, picked up the win for VHS, striking out five, allowing 11 hits, but walking no one. Bret Jones pitched for MHS, striking out nine, walking five and giving up 10 hits.

Rodney Driggers, 2-3 on the game, started things off with a solo homer in the first. But after that, MHS got three up and down on the Jackets for the next three innings, and pulled out to a 4-2 lead.

Just when it might have appeared that Montevallo was heading for the state, Vincent pulled one of their "We're far dead, yet," surprise comebacks.

Coach Harold Garrett credited his team's rally to an outstanding diving catch by centerfielder James Oden, which fired the Jackets back into the game.

The score was tied 6 all in the bottom of the eighth when Oden again came through in the clutch, slamming a double which scored

Hole in one shot at UM

Steve Dailey shot a hole in one on the University of Montevallo golf course April 24.

He was using an 8 iron on a 160 yard par 3 on the third hole.

Playing the round with him were Jack Allen, and his father, Charles Dailey.

Riggins' winning run from third. "They were two good ballgames," Garrett told the Reporter afterwards. "They have a good ball club. We were extremely lucky."

"Our kids had their backs to the wall. They had their chance to lay down. Then Oden made that catch out in centerfield and it fired our guys."

Vincent goes into the first round playoffs (against an as yet unnamed opponent) with a 7-4 record. This marks the first time since 1975 that the Jackets will see state action.

Shelby County High School officials are interviewing candidates for the position of head coach.

The coach at Sweetwater, Nolen Atkins was being considered, but he declined for personal reasons, according to school spokesmen. His wife, who is a nurse, was offered a position at Shelby Memorial Hospital. But after driving the winding highway between Columbiana and Alabaster, they decided to remain in Sweetwater, where both are employed close to their home.

Man killed on I-65 in unopened section

A Plantersville man was killed Saturday in a one vehicle accident on an unopened portion of I-65 in Pelham.

Calvin Ousley, 54, was pronounced dead on the scene by coroner Billy Thompson.

According to reports filed by PPD officer John Ellison, the southbound 1977 GMC truck driven by Ousley slammed into one of several large loads of gravel which completely blocked the unopened road. The accident occured at 5:50 p.m.

Ellison reported that the truck was traveling about 50 mph at the time of impact, and that there was no evidence that the brakes were applied before the collision.

Jeffery B. Thompson, 23, of Randolph, a passenger in the truck with Ousley, was placed in a critical care unit at Shelby Memorial Hospital for the weekend. He was moved from critical care Monday and was expected to be released Wednesday.

Calera dumps Indian Springs 16-6 during five inning game

The Calera Eagles clinched their sub-area championship Wednesday by handily defeating Indian Springs 16-6 in five innings.

Faced with a three game losing streak, Indian Springs needed a win to keep their heads above the .500 mark on their 3-3 season.

Calera went into the game with a 5-3 record, riding the crest of a 3-2 win over Fayetteville, a 6-5 win over Chelsea, and a 13-10 win over Thorsby. And they didn't go cold in the balmy sunshine Wednesday at ISS.

The Eagles got off on the right wing with a single by Jeff Stewart, which scored Ricky Winterbottom from second. (Taking advantage of young ISS catcher Davis Hunt, and his as yet undeveloped eighth-grade arm, Calera spent a lot of the afternoon stealing first and setting up scores from second.)

ISS tried to set up a score that inning, but pitcher Alex Leath got picked off attempting to steal third.

In the second inning Bill Seay singled in two runs and ended up on third base. Calera pitcher Barry Turnbloom knocked in Seay with a sacrifice bunt.

Winterbottom then slugged a solo homer over the right center fence. Fran Blanchard tripped, but ISS retired the sides before any more damage could be done.

Indian Springs got runners on again in the second, but couldn't get anyone across the plate. Turnbloom got himself out of trouble when he snagged a line drive, hit by Sam Perloff, which knocked him off both the mound and his feet.

Five to zip going into the third, Raymond King added another run with a double. Seay then knocked in King with a single. Several plays later, however, Seay was picked off at home plate in a rundown by Davis Hunt to retire the sides.

Bill Coplin and Ben Hunt singled for Indian Springs, then scored when Leath doubled into the left field bushes. Leath scored on an error to close the score to 7-3 after three innings.

After a hit by Eagle Tim Loftin in the fourth, James Blanchard scored from third on a passed ball. A single by King scored Tim "Shine" Powell.

In the fourth inning Calera picked up four more runs off hits by Fran Blanchard, Tim Loftin and Seay. James Blanchard made one of those runs when he took home on a passed ball.

ISS looked as though they might stage a comeback in the bottom of the fourth, as they loaded the pond with ducks on a single by Perloff and walks by Coplin and Dani Berman. But the only duck they were able to cash in was Perloff, who scored a long sacrifice fly by Scott Bryant.

Indian Springs coach Jim Riley put Berman on the mound in the top of the fifth, but the change in pitchers did not faze Calera in the least.

Winterbottom quickly got on with a single, then scored on a double by Fran Blanchard. Loftin then wacked a double over the left fielder's head to score Blanchard. Loftin scored on single Jeff Stewart bought with a cracked bat.

Berman struck out the next Eagle, but walked the two after him. Seay knocked in fourth RBI, then Berman walked in Calera's sixteenth and final run.

Ben Hunt started out Indian Springs' last chance with a single, but his brother David then hit into a double play by short stop Bryant and second bagger David Bice.

Not yet ready to throw in the towel, Chip Dillard and Dale McGeehon singled for ISS. After a balk by Turnbloom, Perloff knocked in the two runners. But before Indian Springs could do any further damage, Calera's left fielder "Shine" Powell nabbed a foul to end the game.

"Comments...? Shoot, that's a good baseball team," Riley said of the Eagles after the game. "I'm glad they won the sub-area if we couldn't."

Despite the loss, Riley was able to look on the bright side and point out that 4-5 is much better than his winless record of last year. He indicated that sports at Indian Springs in on the upswing and this year's baseball team should finish third in their northern division.

Picking up bats in the gathering dusk, CHS coach Danny Alverson said his Eagles hit the ball that day better than they had all year. "We played well enough to win," he added.

Turnbloom, who now has three wind and a save, went the distance against ISS, striking out one, walking three and allowing 10 hits. He was backed up by a defense that committed only two errors.

In four innings, Leath struck out five Eagles and walked just as many. He gave up 11 runs off 11 hits. Berman gave up five runs off four hits in the fifth. ISS was charged with only two errors.

For Indian Springs, designated hitter Perloff went 2-3 with two RBI's, and Alex Leath hit a double for two RBI's. Ben Hunt went 2-3.

Leading the big sticks for Calera were Seay (3-4, four RBI's), Fran Blanchard (3-5, one double and one RBI), Winterbottom (2-4, one homer and one RBI) and Raymond King (2-4, plus two walks and two RBI's).

Decision at third

In the discussion that followed this play, the field umpire's decision of safe was overruled by the hump behind the plate. Alex Leath was out at third, nabbed stealing by Calera pitcher Barry Turnbloom and third baseman Curtis Barefield.

Nabbed!

Indian Springs first baseman Ben Hunt gets caught in an Eagle trap between Calera's Curtis Barefield (14, 3B) and Bill Seay (9, 2B), who finally tagged him out during second inning action last week.

Fishermen tell differing tales

It's hard to get a straight answer from someone dead bent on fishing.

Bearing this in mind sheds a little light on the conflicting reports on fishing at Lay Lake. The best summation of the reports is that the fishing has seen bleaker days, but it's seen brighter days, too. At any rate, it should get better before getting any worse.

Crappie remains the stringer king on the lake, but the owner of one fishing camp notes that they're "strange this year." On the same day the crappie are hitting in the shallows along the shores, they're hitting in deeper water as well.

Several camp owners report that although the minnow remains the favorite crappie bait, a lot of fishermen are getting real good results with jigs.

Before the cold snap hit last Sunday, Mike Ingram at Bozo's camp said he went out and caught the limit on crappie in just two hours.

Nobody caught much of anything Sunday, but if the wind lets down and the weatherman lets the sun stay out and warms the water, the fishing ought to be picking up by Friday or Saturday.

Jerry Wooten at Okomo says if you want to fish for bass, use a lunger or the dark "motor oil" colored worms.

To make you feel a little better—or worse, as the case may be—Wooten says that ANYBODY who puts something in the water with bait on it can catch a fish.

Ingram notes that it's just about time for the bass to go to bed up the creeks out of the main channel, so the next several weeks ought to see some fat (or at least fatter) hogs.

But this brings up a point made by the Reporter's fisherman in residence, Milton "Skillet" Bird, who says that fishing on Lay Lake isn't 75 percent of what it used to be.

The reason? Well, according to Skillet, people used to catch a hundred or so fish regularly out of Lay Lake and parade them up and down Main Street (Columbiana or Shelby?). And when a bunch of those fish were fat with eggs, that left fewer to be hatched. Over the years it added up.

But, says Skillet, the fishing will always be fair on Lay, and you can still catch a good mess. (He also says that the people who caught all the big 'uns have traded in their rods, reels and poles for golf clubs.)

One camp owner expressed a concern over Alabama Power lowering the water while the fish are on bed, leaving the eggs high, dried and fried. The lake was reported down about a foot last week to make room for the weekend rains. It should be up and fairly clear, however, by this weekend.

A few words on bream: use a cane pole and worms. Fish from the banks.

A few words on catfish: they aren't doing much.

UM baseball coach picks up his 300th win

It seemed for a while as if it would never come.

For six consecutive games, University of Montevallo baseball coach Bob Riesener was stuck on 299 wins in his college coaching career. His team had gotten him No. 299 on April 21 in a 6-2 win over Tuskegee Institute in the first game of a double-header, but the Falcons then dropped six in a row and had their coach wondering when it would all end.

Finally, the Falcons came up with two runs in the last of the seventh and pinned a 4-3 defeat on Stillman College April 26 at Falcon Field in a twinbill opener.

giving Riesener his magic milestone. That, coupled with a 7-4 win in the nightcap, puts Reisener's record at 301-202 in his 11th year of coaching.

As a team, Montevallo has broken its season mark for home runs with 39, and with a .305 team batting average, is just under the record .306 of 1976. The Falcons boast a quintet of .300-plus hitters in Dunn (.383), Hendershot (.339), Bailey (.347), Guesnard (.3366), and Potter (.309), and two semi-regulars, Walker (.323) and Gant (.323), are also contributing heavily to the high mark.

The team picked up wins over Langdale 14-3, last year's district champion Lincoln Angels 9-7, and the Jacksonville State Rebels 5-1.

In the playoffs, however, the Rebels turned around and beat them back, 6-3 in extra innings, and 10-9 in heartbreaker.

Windy Partridge of Columbia earned the MVP award for defense for her sharp work at shortstop.

Judy Bentley, also of Columbia, slugged five homers and batted a .887 to capture the MVP offensive player award.

The Briarwood girls picked up 68 team points for second place.

Coached by Bobby Scott, the Briarwood Christian High School boys' track team took nine blue ribbons out of the field of 15 events, for 102 team points. Briarwood's Mike Schor and Peter Wright shared the boys MVP.

Alabaster DY action continues

In Alabaster Dixie Youth baseball last week, the T-ball Royals solidified their first place lead with a 21-11 win over the Angels and a 30-9 win over the Tigers. The Royals remain undefeated at 3-0, while the Angels, Padres and Tigers are each 1-2.

In Farm League action, Mets moved the Indians out of first with a 6-3 win and an 8-6 win over the Cubs. The Indians beat the cubs 17-3, keeping ahead of the Giants, Cubs and Pirates, in that order.

The Minor League Cubs fared a lot better than their farm brothers, winning three games last week, putting them in a solid two game lead (4-1-0) over the Mets, Indians and Cardinals (all 2-1-0). The Phillies, at 1-2-0, are in fifth over the cellar Dodgers, still win-less at 0-4-0.

The Reds still hold on to first place in the Majors, despite a 12-3 whipping by the Orioles and a 6-5 loss to the Pilots. The Reds beat the Rangers, who are one game out of first along with the Orioles and Cards, 3-2. The Pilots bring up the rear at 1-2-0.

Boy's All-County trackers

Named to the boys' All-County track team for 1980 are (from left rear) Jerome Jones (M), Jeff Keenum (SC), Ernest Glover (M), and (front) co-recipients of the MVP award, Peter Wright and Mike Schor (B'wood).

Swimmers, take note!

Recreational use of lakes, creeks and Gulf beaches of Alabama increases with each sunny day, but caution should be exercised while the water temperatures are still low, warns University of Alabama aquatic director John Foster.

"Alabama always has a loss of lives at the onset of warm weather," Foster said. "Even the best swimmers cannot survive more than two hours treading, or swimming slowly, in 50-degree water and few could swim a mile under such conditions.

Foster, said an early symptom of cold water reaction, is loss of judgement and reasoning, which can occur within two minutes.

"The decision to tread and await rescue or to swim to safety must be made quickly," he said.

Teeing off

Les Holcombe tees off on the 17th hole for the Falcons in tourney competition last Thursday. The UM junior is the son of Ken and Phyllis Holcombe of Montevallo.

At district tourney

Falcons score 17 stroke win

It was a proud moment for University of Montevallo golf coach Dr. Leon Davis and his Falcon golf team last Friday at Oak Mountain State Park in Pelham.

With a two-day score of 604, the Falcons had finished 17 strokes ahead of runner-up Jacksonville State University and won the NAIA District 27 golf title for the first time in the school's history. Montevallo will now represent District 27 in the NAIA National Tournament May 27-30, hosted by Saginaw Valley State College of University Park, Mich.

Montevallo replaces Southern Benedictine College, winner of the district in eight of the past nine seasons, as district champion. SBC closed up last spring, and even though that school is no longer around, Dr. Davis certainly did not feel like his team backed into the championship.

"I know the king (SBC) is dead, but our guys played well enough to have won it against just about anyone," the veteran coach declared. "They really played some excellent golf."

The Falcons shot a 306 on Thursday, then came back with an even better 298 on Friday. JSU finished a 621, followed by Spring Hill College at 656 and Huntingdon College a 683.

Larry Adams, a junior from Crestview, Fla., shot a one-under-par 71 the second day to lead the UM unit. He carded a two-day total of 148, tying him with teammate Chris Myers for top honors. Adams then beat Myers on the second hole of a good-natured playoff for medalist honors.

Norm Tums shot a 149 to finish one stroke behind Adams and Myers. Rounding out the UM scores were Les Holcombe with a 159, and Robert Korensky with a 167.

Dr. Davis expects his team to do well in the national tournament, if their recent showing is any indication.

"The folks at Southern Benedictine used to tell us, even when we had teams that weren't quite as good as we have now, that we could probably make the cut at the nationals," Dr. Davis recalled, "so we think we'll certainly be respectable. It's just a thrill and an honor for us to go, anyway. I'm just so proud of these guys; they've worked hard, and improved, and really earned this thing."

Several UM golfers, including Tums, Korensky, and Brad Dinkmeyer, hail from the Chicago area, so the team is hopeful of staying there in the players' homes for a day or two before going over to Michigan and getting in a couple days of practice rounds.

County baseball wrap up

The Thompson Warriors continued to be the winningest baseball team in Shelby County as they picked up three victories last week.

In his first appearance as pitcher this season, Charlie Griffin struck out eight and allowed as many hits, as Woodham's Warriors bumped off Montevallo 12-7 Monday a week ago. Steve Smitherman batted 2-4 including a solo homer, and Brad Cocke went 2-3 with a double.

Smitherman picked up his seventh win of the year Wednesday against the Shelby County Wildcats. The 11-1 game went six innings, with Smitherman striking out eight batters and allowing only two hits. David Cofer went 3-4 with a homer and two singles. Cocke went 3-3 with a double and two singles.

Friday night, when the lightning and most of the rain finally quit, Griffin picked up his second win of the season, 11-7 over Pelham. Brad Cocke hit a homer, double and single in 3 times at bat, Jimmy Cocke hit a homer and Smitherman hit two singles and a double.

But all the winning this season will not have mattered much to Coach Billy Woodham if THS didn't beat Childersburg Monday night after press time. That game decided the area championship, a must win for any team state bound. For results, see a report in the front section of this week's Reporter.

Despite their loss to Thompson, the Wildcats of Bill Reid had a good week of baseball. Monday a week ago, pitcher Dan Head picked up his first win as the Wildcats downed Sylacauga 7-3. Head struck out 11 and gave up only four hits. Allen Henke knocked two doubles for 3 RBI's, Ricky Latham went 2-2 and Joe Tidmore hit two for three.

Tuesday afternoon the sun was on SCHS's side as they led Montevallo 13-12 when the game was called in the bottom of the seventh due to darkness. At that time, MHS had runners on first and second and one out. The Wildcats had led 9-1 after three innings of rout, but the 'Dogs fought back to a 9-9 tie after five.

Thursday against Pelham, the 'Cats had a little more breathing room as they won that one 12-6. Not only did Head pick up his second win, but he also blasted a third inning grand slam home run as he went 4-5 batting. Latham hit 3-5 including a triple and double, Dana Vansant went 2-4 with three RBI's and Tidmore went 2-2. SCHS is now 6-7 on the season.

Pelham had the least luck of the 3-A schools, with other losses to Sylacauga (9-2) and Pell City (2-1). Assistant coach Tony Taylor said the Panthers have had trouble with their hitting as well as injuries. The Panthers now fall 4-7 on the year.

In 2-A circles, Montevallo beat Vincent 3-2 Friday in the first of possibly three sub-area playoffs. Bret Jones was the winning pitcher, throwing seven strike-outs and allowing five hits.

The Bulldogs won it in the sixth after Sammy Nix scored on a passed ball, and David Melsoni singled in the winning run. Vincent allowed MHS only three hits.

The two teams were scheduled to play again Saturday, but the game was cancelled until Tuesday. (The results of the sub-area playoffs were supposed to be phoned into the Reporter for inclusion on page A-15 this week.)

Vincent beat TCTS 6-4 Monday a week ago to earn the right to play MHS. Steve Riggins was winning pitcher. James Oden slammed a two run homer and Rodney scored three times including an in-park homer.

Tuesday, the Jackets beat Briarwood 13-11 behind the pitching of Johnny Brasher.

Thursday Vincent won a 6-0 decision over rival Chelsea, with Barry Ball getting the shutout. Ball struck out nine Hornets and allowed only three hits, putting coach Gary Garrett's Yellow Jackets at 5-4 as of Monday.

The loss to Vincent left Chelsea with a 1-6 record, with Coach Bobby Statum commenting that "you can't beat anybody with three hits." Statum also noted that VHS had greatly improved since his Hornets handed them a defeat at the first of the season.

Calera earned the right to play Billingsley in their sub-area playoffs by beating ISS (see related story) only to have the Friday night game called after five innings due to rain. Coach Danny Alverson said the Eagles were down 6-4 when the game was called, but was counting on them coming back to win it Monday night after press time. (Results on A-15).

Monday a week ago the Eagles edged out Chelsea 6-5, after coming from behind in the sixth with four clutch runs. Barry Turnbloom was the winning pitcher.

Tuesday, behind the pitching of Tim Loftlin, Calera fought back from a 6-9 deficit to beat Thorsby 13-10. Tim Powell collected five RBI's off two singles and a double and Curtis Barefield got 3 RBI's off a double.

In the private academy circles, the SA Raiders, who've had their share of bad breaks this season, lost one to Cahawba on a mistake by Coach Harry Rawlinson.

Rawlinson, who was naturally embarrassed, said that the Raiders had to forfeit the game with a 10-10 tie in the seventh when he made an illegal substitution. The Raiders led 10-5 after five innings, but had gotten rattled and let Cahawba tie the game before the forfeit was called. With five games left, SA is looking to salvage a .500 season out of its 1-6 standing.

Coosa Valley, who recently hit a three game slump, rallied to take a double header from Cahawba 9-0 and 4-3. Coached by Rick Naugher, the Rebs now stand at 5-3 on the season.

Players given awards at Eagle bnaquet

The Calera Eagles held their annual basketball awards banquet last Wednesday night at a Riverchase restaurant.

Mark Lovett, who coached the Eagles to their 14-12 season, told his team that the record was a deceiving. He noted that in 1-A competition, his roundballers were 10-3, and 1 and 2-A competition, they were 12-6.

"This bunch has a lot to be proud of," Lovett said, adding that the seven graduating seniors from the team of eleven were leaving behind them a winning tradition.

In recapping highlights of the season, Lovett pointed out Calera's 60-53 win over 3-A Shelby County High School and their 52-51 cliffhanger win over 3-A Pelham as being indicative of the caliber of basketball the Eagles were capable of playing.

He added too that the returning team members would certainly have their work cut out for them next year as they enter into the circle of 2-A competition.

Among those Lovett thanked for helping him during the 1979-80 basketball season were assistant Gary Griffith, time keeper Mrs. Glenda Mims, and principal Rick Cairns.

Coping in the 80's

by Shelba Nivens

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gilliam of Pelham, usually take a vacation trip out west each spring. "Last year we traveled around 4500 or 5000 miles and burned over 700 gallons of gas," he recalled, adding, "But we sure can't do it this year."

"I expect we'll just go to Eufaula and fish, if we go anywhere," his wife laughed.

Gilliam said that his son family usually takes a six or eight week vacation trip, but that the gas situation has altered their plans this year, also.

Apparently, many other Shelby Countians are thinking along the same line as the Gilliams. From one end of the county to the other, people are planning to limit vacation travel in an effort to cut down on gasoline consumption.

Many, who usually take trips, say they will just stay home this summer.

Others, like the Brantley family of PeaRidge and the Holtzmans of Deer Springs, will camp somewhere in the local area. "I doubt if we'll go any further than Tannehill or Oak Mt. State Park," remarked Mrs. Brantley. Nadine Holtzman said her family will probably camp some on a friend's private lake near Helena.

And, it's not only leisure-time driving that is being limited. People are finding ways to cut down on the number of trips they make to shop, run errands, and handle family business.

Shirley Shaw of Pleasant Valley, reported that she goes out only once a week and does all her shopping in one day. "And I've started telephoning ahead to find things," she added.

Other women, like Nellie Williams of Wilsonville, also uses the telephone to call and locate items instead of driving around looking for them.

Some have stopped driving to pay bills, too. Shaw and Holtzman said they now mail checks.

Jackie Boulware, at the Alabaster post office, said an increase in the first class mail she handles indicates that many Alabaster residents may now be doing the same thing.

Cliff Moor is a letter carrier on Pelham's city route. He told the Reporter that although there is no way of knowing what's in the envelopes he delivers, it makes sense for people to pay bills through the mail. "It takes only 15 cents to mail a check," he pointed out. "It would take that much up to run a car engine, not counting the driving or stopping and starting to go pay the bills."

Mrs. Lionel Lawson lives about a mile and a half outside Montevallo. She said, "Use to, if I needed a loaf of bread, I'd just jump in my car and run into town and get it. Why, sometimes I'd make four or five trips into town in one day." She added, however, that now she waits for the bread and combines trips. "Now, I'm more careful about miscellaneous trips and trips I don't have to make," she said.

"I don't go unless I just about have to," said Carolyn Brantley of PeaRidge. "Then, I try to make one trip to do everything." She gave as an example: "Our son takes piano lessons in Helena on Tuesday, I've started running right on over the hill to buy my groceries while he's taking his lesson."

Driving children to their various activities seems to be one of the things which causes many parents to be on the roads so often. One Columbiana mother of five pointed out that it takes less gasoline if older children drive themselves instead of having Mother running back and forth taking them and picking them up. Some mothers of younger children report that they are taking turns "Pooling" the kids in one automobile.

Paul Gilliam said he believes that if people keep working at cutting back on the amount of gasoline they use, the price will come down. "I'm looking for us to be in a gas war before the summer is over," he predicted.

Conserving energy

Top UM scholars named

Top students at the University of Montevallo were reported during UM's annual Honor's Day. Honor's Day is a tradition that dates back to 1935 at the 83-year-old state institution.

Students with cumulative grade point averages of 2.8 and above are awarded UM's Highest Honors designation each year. Students with a grade point average of 2.5 and above are recognized as Honors students.

Montevallo's Honors Day also recognized students who received awards, prizes and scholarships for outstanding performance in specific academic fields and in university-wide categories. New members of Omicron Delta Kappa national leadership honor society and Phi Kappa Phi national academic honor society are also tapped.

Burglary in Riverchase adds to wild surprises in more than one face rted burglary at a Riverchase Tuesday morning surprised several people. The woman who lives at the Riverchase Parkway residence was surprised to find two back den windows broken and one of them open when she returned from the store shortly after 10 a.m. She was even more surprised to hear the sound of one or more people running out through the basement door as she came inside.

Obviously, the woman's return home was a surprise to someone. A television set was left sitting in the middle of the den floor.

Riverchase firefighter Jon

Lord was the next person surprised because fire departments don't usually get burglary calls. But as it turned out, when the resident discovered the burglary, she immediately called the first emergency number she could find, which happened to be that of the Riverchase Fire Department.

After hanging up her telephone, the resident ran outside and flagged down the first car that passed by. It happened to be occupied by two treasury department agents who were also surprised to find themselves involved in a residential burglary.

The agents determined that the prowler or prowlers had already left the premises, apparently high-tailing it through the nearby woods.

Lord arrived on the scene as well as Pelham police officer Virgil Rice. Rice notified the Sheriff's department who radioed deputy Louie Cosby. At the time, Cosby was with Sheriff Buddy Glasgow. The two men were giving a burglary prevention talk to a group of women at a nearby church.

Several undisclosed articles were reported stolen from the house. No arrest had been made as of press time Tuesday afternoon.

Music filled the air

Everyone seemed to have a rollicking good time at the annual Brierfield Bluegrass Festival which was held in the Brierfield Ironworks Park this weekend. Here two members of the Southbound Glory group and one of the Foster Family String Band do a little buck dancing while another group performs. And a young visitor from Selma left his family to see if he could join in the fun. (Photo by Seaman)

County wants new water study

Shelby County Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden recommended at the last commission meeting that a study of the water systems of the county be made.

He said he thought it would be a good idea to plan for the future water needs of the county. Commissioners agreed and voted to spend $11,687 in county funds if a grant is approved by the Farmers Home Administration. The total cost of the study is to be $35,063 with the FHA making up the difference.

Snowden recommended the firm of Harry Hendon and Associates for the work.

A study in 1969 by Kenneth D. Byrd, Inc., of Birmingham showed that the Coosa River was the logical place for Shelby County to get its water supply in the future. The report said, "The Coosa is a true blessing to Shelby County and should definitely be utilized with all possible haste."

It recommended a major water pumping station located near Wilsonville to serve the entire county. It also recommended a county water board be established.

The Byrd study cost $15,000 with the county paying $6,000 and the FHA paying the remainder. The study was required at the time by the FHA before any loans could be made to independent water authorities in the county.

Several years later another study was made by the Charles Tucker firm on the subject of tying together all the water systems of the county, in the event one or another of the systems failed.

The conclusion of that study was that it would cost three-quarters of a million dollars to tie together just the systems in the eastern section of the county. Geography was said to make it too difficult to tie the western part of the county in with the eastern.

Cahaba Jaycees plan special circus

Five thousand Shelby County school children can go to the circus free, thanks to the Cahaba Valley Jaycees.

Bill Barnett, president of the civic club, presented School Superintendent Charles Knowles with 5,000 tickets to the 'Children's World of Circus' performance which will be held on Wednesday, May 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the Boutwell Auditorium in Birmingham.

The Jaycees are sponsoring the circus as a fund raising event for King's Ranch at Chelsea. Their goal is to raise $2,500 for the ranch.

Barnett said the circus is especially designed for children, with many clowns, magic shows and animals featured along with other entertaining events.

Children may get their free tickets through their schools.

For other tickets and information, contact Barnett at 663-9603.

Request withdrawn for Pelham lounge

A liquor license request for a lounge in the Shelby Mart was withdrawn Monday night at the Pelham Council meeting.

The request was first made at the April 21 council meeting on behalf of the Constantine family of Birmingham, but tabled because two of the five council members were absent at the time. Since that time, opposition to the opening of Mr. C's in the Pelham shopping center apparently caused the family to reconsider and withdraw its request for the license.

Mayor Burk Dunaway announced at the meeting that the Board of Registrars would hold a voter registration May 21 from 4-8 p.m. at the city hall. The registration will be open to voters outside the Pelham City limits.

Dunaway proclaimed the week of May 10-16 as city clerk week.

The council also approved the changing of its meeting time from 6:30 p.m. back to the original 7 p.m. The council meets on the first and third Monday of each month.

Pelham Fire Chief Bill Bryars reported that his department answered 63 calls during April, broken down into 25 fire alarms and 38 rescue runs. Approximately 149 man-hours were spent on the runs, as well as another 232 man-hours which were spent on drills and training.

Members of the fire department have been teaching a CPR class at Pelham High School's community classes since April 19. From April 21-25, officers from the PFD attended a fire ground tactics school.

Pelham Police Chief D.O. Watson reported that his department issued 330 citations and worked 41 accidents, including one fatality. One conviction was made on a felony and possession of a pistol, and investigations were made on 15 acts of criminal mischief, one criminal tampering, one illegal use of credit cards, four drug cases, three third degree assaults, five cases of harassment, three official dog complaints, one indecent exposure, 17 thefts in the first and second degrees, six thefts in the third degree, three burglaries of residences, three burglaries of businesses and one theft of a motor vehicle.

Alabaster seeks new industries

The Alabaster Chamber of Commerce asked for the city's help Monday, in getting the word out on what the city has to offer businesses and industry.

John Ferree, CC president, outlined the type of brochure the organization wanted to put out, and advertising executive Tom Kimbrough went into more detail on what he could produce.

The cost of the project, Kimbrough told council members, would be approximately $8,500.

Ferree asked the city to foot half the bill, and the balance, he said, would come from the chamber and other businesses.

Although favorably impressed with the idea, the panel agreed that the budget needed to be studied before they could give an answer.

Several area residents attended Monday night's council meeting to get more information about the proposed fire contract for those living outside the city limits.

Jerry Yates of Woodland Hills said he thought the proposed figure of $100 per year for residences was too high.

It was stressed that the contract had not been approved nor had any definite figure been set. But Councilman Dan Gillis reminded Yates that if they chose not to accept the contract, their insurance rates would increase.

There has been talk in some areas, Yates reported, of asking to be annexed into the city. But he noted there was divided opinion on the matter.

When concern was expressed that residents living outside the city would have second priority if there was a fire in the city, Gillis said that the fire contract fee would allow more firemen to be hired.

He related that this move would enable the fire department to give better service to those living in the city and to residents of the district Alabaster FD serves.

Pointing out that the low bidder on a backhoe didn't meet all the specifications, Gillis recom-

Columbiana hears complaints

"I am opposed to the use of unmarked patrol cars--especially when driven by plainclothes police officers."

Larry Ray and a number of other Columbiana residents were in attendance at Thursday night's Columbiana city council meeting to oppose the use of a plainclothes policeman.

Both Ray and another resident, Larry Horton, told the council that they had advised their wives not to stop for the unmarked car.

"I personally would not like for my wife to be stopped by a man in torn, faded blue jeans and a cowboy hat and nothing but a blue light on the dash of his car. I told my wife not to, especially after what happened in Birmingham," Ray explained, referring to the "blue light rapist" who pulled unsuspecting women over last year in Birmingham.

Mayor Bob Bolton countered the complaint saying, "At times, there's a definite reason and a purpose for him (the plainclothesman) to be in plainclothes while on duty. We did it for a purpose which I can't reveal now. Give me three weeks and I can give you the reason. There's more going on than meets the eye," Bolton said.

Residents also complained that the officer in question had been seen patrolling outside the city limits. One woman said she had seen him "load the car with school kids."

Ray and the residents had a second complaint.

"We are also opposed to the private use of city-owned vehicles. I'm talking about these people who are hauling off trash for their daddy or taking their kids to school," Ray stressed.

Mayor Bolton asked Ray which department he was speaking of. Ray said he had seen it within all the departments.

"I'd prefer to see our city vehicles parked in the building we

Five county schools await new roofs

One school building in the county has a new roof, and Tuesday, the Board of Education awarded a contract to replace the roof on another school.

A bid of $22,515 won the contract for Son & Contractors for the roofing work at Shelby County High School.

Although seven schools in the county need to have roof work done, five of them will have to wait until next year due to a lack of funds.

The leaking Thompson Middle School roof was the first to be replaced and that project was just recently completed.

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles noted that repair work on some of the other schools could begin this year if enough revenue was generated from the one cent sales tax and the Board's share of property taxes still outstanding.

Playground gift

Calera given playground plot

J. Arthur Jones gave a plot of land to the City of Calera Tuesday night for use as a school playground. The land is across the street from Calera Elementary School, on the north. It has been used as a playground for many years.

Jones said, "I don't need it. My family doesn't need it. I've always been interested in youngsters. If there's a playground for them it gives them something to do that they want to do. Then maybe they won't get into other things."

He stipulated that the land be used by the school. If ever the school is moved, the land will revert to the City of Calera rather than to the school board.

A few years ago Jones gave another tract of land nearby for the school to use.

A longtime resident of north Shelby County, Jones was for many years chairman of the county Republican Party. His late wife was widely known throughout the county for her work with the Social Security Administration. She conducted a weekly radio program on radio station WBYE in Calera for many years.

Newsman cited for UM honor

University of Montevallo Spring Commencement speaker James E. Jacobson, editor of the Birmingham News, will receive the President's Award for Exemplary Citizenship during UM's outdoor graduation ceremony Saturday, May 10.

The award will recognize Jacobson's dedication to a responsible, free press and to his support of student publications and student journalism.

Editor of the News since Dec. 1, 1978, Jacobson was promoted from managing editor. He joined the state's largest newspaper as an editorial writer in 1959.

Jacobson is a two-time past president of the Alabama Chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, past president of the University of Alabama School of Communication Alumni Association and is chairman of the UA Media Planning Board, which coordinates the university's student publications.

He has received a number of honors including the Alabama Press Association's Journalist of the Year award and the UA Journalism Department's Distinguished Alumnus award.

Past recipients of the UM citizenship award were A.G. Gaston of Birmingham and Wales Wallace of Columbiana.

Approximately 312 undergraduate and graduate degrees will be awarded during UM's spring commencement exercises, which begin at 3 p.m. on the lawn in front of the president's residence, Flowerhill.

UM seniors will also hear State Rep. John Amari of Birmingham, a UM alumnus, during a luncheon in their honor sponsored by the UM Alumni Association. Another UM graduate, musician and composer Helen Boykin of Montgomery, will receive the President's Award for Outstanding Performance in the Fine Arts during the luncheon.

The Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award, a national award to one or two top graduating seniors, will also be presented during the ceremony.

In case of rain, the ceremony will be moved to Palmer Hall.

have for that purpose--especially with gas and insurance prices as high as they are," Ray said.

The council then went into a closed session for approximately one hour.

When the meeting opened again, Mayor Bolton read a proclamation from Governor Fob James proclaiming May 10-16 as Municipal City Clerks Week.

He also announced that the city of Columbiana will receive the Accounting Award at the State League of Municipalities Convention in Birmingham later this month. He credited City Clerk Mary Largin for the honor.

Harold McCord presented a final bid to the council for a new fire truck. Of three bids sent out, only one was returned. The truck will be financed by the Harry Harless Co. for seven years at a price of $63,924.

Also discussed at the May 1 meeting was a street sign discrepancy and the erosion problem at the Columbiana Middle School's basketball courts.

Re-dedication

Lula Palmer of Montgomery, daughter of the University of Montevallo's third president, Thomas Waverly Palmer, and the Rev. Richard B. Palmer of Colorado Springs, Colo., were two of the Palmer family, who attended the rededication of Palmer Hall at the UM campus Saturday night. The auditorium and office building was rededicated 50 years after it was first dedicated to Dr. Palmer.

should be received in July, Knowles said. It went into effect May 1.

Pointing out that the tax would bring in considerably less money than expected, Knowles set the amount at approximately $630,000 as the Board's share.

Another contract awarded at last week's meeting was for a metal building to be erected at the Area Vocational School. It will house a vocational skills center for handicapped students.

The low bid of $41,162 came from Cado Construction Company.

At the present time, the teacher of the course only serves students in Montevallo and at Thompson by driving to those two locations.

With a centrally located building, Knowles explained, eligible students from every school could take advantage of the training.

The expense of putting up the building was justified, Knowles said, because the program might be eliminated otherwise and a teacher unit lost.

Another $6,208 spent at the meeting went for replacing front doors at Vincent High School.

Cado Construction Company will also widen the entryway which at the present time doesn't meet state standards for handicapped students.

Other money was spent to purchase 39 lawnmowers, and 17 floor cleaning machines.

Clean up week set for Alabaster

Mayor Charlotte Burke read a proclamation at Monday night's Alabaster Council meeting designating May 11-17 as Clean-up Week in the city.

Mrs. W. J. Mathis, who is heading the group working on the project, thanked the city for its help.

"We want everyone to be proud of their city," Mrs. Mathis declared. She added that an attractive city would encourage shoppers and also impress prospective businesses to locate here.

The city will help in the clean-up campaign by having sanitation workers pick up trash and junk of any kind on their work days during clean up week.

Editorial comment

Who needs another water study?

There is a time to study a problem, and a time to act on it.

This was illustrated in Shelby County this week in regard to the new study of the county's water resources.

In 1969 a complete study of the county's water supplies and sewer installations was made. The sum of $15,000 was spent, recommendations were made, a few people discussed it, then it was filed away. No one even remembered it when discussions came up recently to conduct a similar study. The go-ahead was given to spending over $35,000 this time.

For what? If no one pays any attention to these studies why go to the trouble and expense? One reason is that federal funds have been available for studying all kinds of things in our lives. The reasoning follows: If the feds are paying most of it, why not go along?

The fact that the feds get their money from us and our future seems like a poor sport's argument. Get it before California gets it...etc.

Most of the studies that have been conducted in the county in recent years - and there have been dozens of them - owe their origin to an engineering firm or a federal agency that specializes in getting grants for favorite projects.

The Birmingham Regional Planning Commission has studied this county to death. Much of the information they and others turn up is so obvious to those of us who live here, that we wonder why Washington types think it is worth putting in a volume, published at X number of dollars, and distributed to offices where it will clutter the files for 30 years until the historical society finally takes it over.

When it comes to cutting costs, it seems to us that a good place to start would be in the repetitious "study" department. When money is available to carry through a big project - that is the time to make a careful plan. It is a pipe dream to think this county can carry out a thorough large scale water and sewer project with our present budget and with the economy slowing down.

Dust off the old studies, get a few well meaning people around a table, see what money is available and go with it. Why do we need to spend $35,000 only to be told the solutions to the water problems are too expensive to carry through? M.M.S.

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Two oxen with flies buzzing around their heads and an old dray loaded with fat pine while Buddy Davis sat on a high seat and ate a dime's worth of cheese and a hand full of crackers.

Apples to bob in a tub of ice cold water and home-made candy almost too good to be true, and the trip up and down Main afterward, turning over a buggy here and messing up a window there.

An old phonograph and a package of needles, and a tune that slipped away in a few months and came back 60 years later, because an old valentine passed away in a far off town.

Long breeches and pimples and a bottle of olive oil, and a boy slicking his hair down.

A dark street and a cold wind blowing, and a boy and a lantern, and a shoe-shine stand down town in the barber shop.

A paling fence and a dog inside, and a boy trying not to run, but running anyhow, past the public school and halfway up McMillan hill.

A new girl in school, no prettier than the other girls, but getting dozens of little notes, until the new wore off.

A job cutting grass for ten cents an hour and, after two hours, trying to decide if he should buy two eskimo pies or save his money for the shoot-em-up Saturday afternoon.

A hand-cranked victrola halfway down the side aisle in the old picture show, and a song that kept him humming for two weeks.

Boiled peanuts in Aunt Jenny's kitchen, and Uncle Hardy's watermelons on the hill outside, and fried chicken later on and homemade ice cream.

That first letter, Mr. Charlie Niven handed him through the post office window, after she had gone home from a two week's visit one summer, with a little verse at the end about forget-me-nots.

A rough board fence around the ball field on the east side of the high school building, and a little seat 50 feet behind the catcher where a boy sat who would chase down the foul balls.

The road from town to Cates' pasture and the road from town to Ben King's pasture and the road from town to Longshore's pasture, and always at the end, whichever way we went, the wash-hole.

Governor wants budget now

by Fob James

By the time you read this column, there will be one legislative day remaining in the 1980 Regular Session of the Legislature. And as the end of the session approaches, the House and the Senate are beginning to look at revenue proposals more seriously than they have in the past weeks.

Last week some members of the Senate proposed a one-cent sales tax increase as the solution to our funding problems. I have said that I would veto such a tax and I want to explain why I feel this is the worst possible tax for the people of Alabama.

First of all, a sales tax is the most regressive tax there is and it would put an additional burden on the working people of Alabama, who already carry an unfair share of the tax burden. For this reason alone this tax is wrong.

Secondly, we already have a 4 percent sales tax and to add another one cent that exempts food and drugs while the existing four-cent tax does not would create a situation that would be difficult if not impossible to implement and administer.

There is still time to make this legislative session a success and avoid a special session. I am hopeful this will be the case.

Under The Courthouse Dome

It appears that the proposal to create a new county official is doomed in this legislative session.

The bill which would have given the people of Shelby County an opportunity to vote on dividing the offices of probate judge and county commission chairman was amended into oblivion, Probate Judge Tommy Snowden says.

He said Senator Doug Cook had changed the wording so much that Snowden feels it would be unconstitutional even if passed.

Two bills relating to state trooper pay are causing consternation in the courthouse. Last week Snowden reported to the commission that a new bill raising the pay of state troopers would not apply to Shelby County deputies' pay because counties that base their deputies' pay on the trooper pay scale were exempted in a special session.

However, this week Snowden has learned that the proposed bill was amended, dropping that section. Shelby and Baldwin Counties are the only counties that would be affected.

The pay proposed for troopers with 15 years of service is to be not less than 80 per cent of the salary of district judges. Other troopers would be raised in salary scale to equal other law enforcement agencies of the state. It would cost the state over $2½ million to implement the act.

Over 6,000 persons in Shelby County will suffer if Congress does not continue the food stamp program.

According to Susan Treadwell, Director of Shelby County's Department of Pensions and Security 6,495 persons received a total of $237,763 in food stamps in the county during the month of March.

The program nationwide is running out of funds, largely because the program grew tremendously during the past 16 months when the government removed the requirement to pay for stamps.

The month before the purchase requirement was removed, in Shelby County there were 2,523 individuals who received $74,320 in free stamps.

Statewide, the value of free stamps (monthly) jumped from $9.1 million in December, 1978 to $21.8 million in March of 1980.

"Our information indicates that Congress must appropriate an additional $2.5 billion for the program nationwide to keep it operating smoothly through September 30," Miss Treadwell said. "If the money is not appropriated by May 15, states must take action either to reduce, cancel or delay benefits in June."

"We certainly hope that Congress appropriates the money so that Alabamians can continue to receive food stamps without interruption or reduction," the county director said.

Shelby County voters will have to re-identify themselves at some time in the future. A bill to update the voter registration list has passed both houses of the legislature and is awaiting the governor's signature.

The bill was requested by the board of registrars who noted there are probably hundreds of names on the voter list of persons who have moved out of the county or who are deceased.

The bill provides several ways for voters to re-identify themselves, without having to go through a formal re-registration.

The procedure was approved by the U.S. Department of Justice and has been used in other Alabama counties.

The board of registrars will meet at the Pelham City Hall on Wednesday, May 21 from 4 to 8 p.m.

Any resident of Shelby County may register to vote at this time, according to Doris Turner, chairman of the registrars.

Registrars also are in session Mondays through Fridays in Room 208 of the courthouse from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at which time any one can register. Social Security numbers are required.

Shelco's services 'crucial'

Open letter to:
Hon. Thomas A. Snowden, Jr.
Chairman, Shelby County Commission

It is our understanding, from the news, that the door has not been closed for a final decision on certain funding of Shelco Unit One.

The services they are rendering are so vitally crucial and important to the county that the matter surely needs reconsideration.

When a crisis occurs the consuming thought is to get help quickly. Consider the elderly lady found lying unconscious on the floor, breathing deeply and harshly, pulse pounding, and cold to the touch. A panicked relative dials "operator" and immediately a rescue unit and ambulance are on the way.

There was the man in cardiac arrest. If help is not available in a very few minutes, brain damage from lack of oxygen occurs. Shelco can reach almost every family it serves in time if they are called quickly.

There was a lady in her early sixties. She was having difficulty breathing, rapid heart beat, pain in her left arm. Almost instantly there were two rescue units and an ambulance there. Contact was made with the hospital. Before she was placed in the ambulance she had been given an electrocardiogram, blood pressure reading and medication, and fluids were started, all on doctor's orders. She survived a very bad heart attack.

Hundreds of others in Shelby County could write of similar experiences. Accidents, chokings, strokes, and heart attacks will happen, and usually catch one unprepared. They bring fear, panic, pain, heartache, and sometimes sorrow. For several years citizens in this area have had the security and comfort of knowing that help was only minutes away, due to the untiring efforts of Shelco Unit One and people like Doug Ballard, Jr. One has to go through the trauma of only one such emergency crisis to fully grasp the value of their help.

It takes money to operate these vehicles that run so frequently over the county. There is no way to justify expecting these volunteer trained medical technicians to continue to operate out of their personal funds.

It is only fair to say at this point that every family in the area of Shelco service should be willing to contribute on a regular basis to help maintain this service. It is also fair to say they can answer by saying they voted in an additional sales tax expecting this assistance to Shelco from the revenues derived.

It is to be hoped that the Commission will carefully reconsider this matter, perhaps taking a closer scrutiny of other programs that may not merit the high priority of Shelco Unit One.

Yours very truly,
Jack Albright

Get out the crowd at planning meet

Letter to the Editor:

When reading last week's legal notices I found one that was very interesting. This notice was to change Act 816, Article XXVI, Section 4. This section says that only $25.00 can be charged for a hearing on a zoning change.

Now the Planning Commission is trying to change this to where they can charge what they want or what the actual charges are to cover this procedure. Who is to say what the actual charges consist of and the property owner should have to pay. Another pig in the poke.

First, I would like to know how a law can be changed that is in court already being challenged whether it is constitutional or not?

Second, why is it being changed by a public hearing not by an Act of the Legislature? There has been a bill already advertised to appeal Act 816 at the present time. This seems to me that someone or some group is trying to pull a fast one on the people of Shelby County.

This does concern all the people of Shelby County, not just the people of Beat 12.

It concerns all of Shelby County because regardless of where you live in Shelby County, a property owner has to have the approval of the planning commission if a plot of land is divided more than two or three ways.

I know in 1974, when we tried to divide my father's estate we found that in order to divide it 4 ways we would have to have the planning commissions approval plus put in paved streets and gutters or pay a large fine. With prices what they are today the average family cannot afford streets and gutters.

So wake up fellow citizens of Shelby County, attend this meeting of the planning commission May 19, at 7 p.m. Civil Defense Building in Columbiana. If you don't protect your right who will?

I hope to see a large crowd at this meeting.

'Open meetings law' passes Senate 32-0

Legislation that will strengthen the state's "open meetings law" was passed on May 1 by Alabama Senate and sent to the House.

The Senate-passed bill, which was approved by a vote of 32-0, provides "more precise language on what types of public boards and agencies are covered by the law and conditions that must be met in order to conduct a public and secret meeting," according to Bill O'Connor, executive director of the Alabama Press Association.

"The provisions in the proposed act that passed the Seante will serve to further guarantee that the people of Alabama have access to meetings where public business is being transacted," O'Connor said. "The members of the senate are to be commended for passing this important legislation."

Covered under the bill is any state or local governing body that exercises legislative, policy-making, quasi-judicial, administrative, regulatory functions or is supported by or has the power to expend public funds.

The bill allows governing bodies to meet in secret only when discussing the "character or good name of a woman or man," a provision contained in the current law. However, the following requirements must be met when holding closed meetings:

- The meeting must first be convened in public;
- A quorum must be present and a majority must vote in favor of holding a closed meeting;
- The board must state the reason for the closed meeting;
- Minutes shall be kept in all closed meetings;
- All voting must be conducted in public.

WONDERFUL
LIFE

Hindered Prayers

Since prayer is a vital part of a Christian's life, one must not so conduct himself that his prayers be hindered. (1 Peter 3:7) We continue the ways in which one can hinder his prayers.

Third, one's prayers can be hindered by a lack of purity. Man's sins separate one from God; thus, God will not hear one who lives an impure life. (Isaiah 59:2) Christ stated that we must abide in Him and abide in His word in order to have our petitions answered. (John 15:7) "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." (James 5:16) The prayers of the immoral and disobedient are abominable in the Lord's sight. (Proverbs 28:9) Many people pray long and loud on Sunday who live like the Devil through the week. Their prayers are an abomination, for the Lord answers those who have penitent hearts and contrite spirits. (Psalms 34:18) Those children of God who "walk in the Light" and are "transformed" in life are heard by God. (Romans 12:2; 1 John 1:7)

Fourth, one's prayers can be hindered by a lack of humility. The child of God whose prayers are answered acknowledge God as the Creator, the Almighty. (Genesis 1:1, 17:1) He acknowledges his own sinfulness (Romans 3:9, 10) and God's holiness. (Psalm 99:9) God refused to hear the prayer of the proud, self-righteous Pharisee. (Luke 18:9ff) The humble can approach God's throne of grace "with boldness." (Hebrews 4:16)

Dear Reader, do you enjoy the privilege of prayer? To become a Christian, you must hear (Romans 10:17), believe (Hebrews 11:6), repent (Luke 13:3), confess (Romans 10:9, 10), and be baptized for remission of sins. (Acts 2:38; 22:16) Curtis A. Cates, Evangelist

Burton told the group gathered at his home in Shelby Sunday.

And members of the Shelby County Historical Society knew their program speaker was serious about what he said.

At the present time, Burton and his family are living in a hotel while their historic home in Shelby is being restored.

Since there is no furniture in the house, the crowd who attended Sunday's meeting met on the lawn.

Burton, who teaches a course at UAB on the History of Antiques from 1700-1900, said he planned to furnish the dwelling built in the 1840's, with antiques the family had collected over the years.

He had determined that the home had been built around 1846, Burton told his audience, as a company home for the Shelby Iron Works.

Old photographs displayed at the meeting showed the dwelling adjacent to the company commissary which has long since disappeared from the Shelby scene.

The home had been occupied by employees of other companies which followed the Shelby Iron Works, Burton reported, until 1957 when Mrs. Deesie Smith and her family moved in.

The Smiths are the only family to have owned the home before the Burtons bought it. And Mrs. Smith with other family members was present to recall how the home looked during their occupancy.

Pointing at the dead trunk of a huge oak tree in the backyard, Mrs. Smith exclaimed, "It was so beautiful when we moved here!" The tree is thought to be nearly 200 years old.

Bricks in the house are handmade, Burton said, and he noted the porch on the dwelling was added 40 years after it was built.

Every room in the home has a fireplace, and the new owner related that they have all been restored and will be used.

After Burton's talk, a number of the group walked down the old dirt road bordering the home, to an old cemetery found hidden in the woods.

An exploration of the grounds around the home, Burton said, turned up pieces of pure ore, miner's picks and other types of metal.

"These things are important," he noted, "because they tell us something about the society that went before us."

In addition to teaching at UAB, Burton is also an antiques appraiser. There is only one other in the state.

In fire safety

County schools get good report card

How safe are Shelby County's school children from the dangers of fire in the public schools?

The Shelby County Reporter conducted an investigation into the fire safety programs and the preparedness level at each of the schools in mid-April. We visited most of the schools, talked with principals, with the county superintendent, with city fire marshals and with school children.

The series was inspired partly by the county civil defense director's report to the county commission in which he stated that some schools did not seem to be prepared for disaster drills, and partly by reports to us that panic bars on exit doors at some schools were broken.

Our investigation showed that school principals are mindful of fire safety, that fire drills are conducted at most schools regularly and that exit doors are not chained closed during school hours.

Gathering information for the three-part series were David Moore, Shelba Nivens, Bert Seaman and Marcia Sears.

Part III Conclusion

Valley Elementary

Valley Elementary became the first and only Shelby County school to include the "Learn not to Burn" program in its curriculum. Although still in the developing stage, all grades are now being taught one unit of the safety program per year in science class.

Valley principal, Dr. Norma Rogers, reported she received a letter earlier in the year from State Fire Marshall Sam B. Sloan, complimenting the school on its orderly fire and tornado drills. The school can be evacuated in two minutes.

During fire drills at Valley, some of the exits are blocked to simulate possibilities which might occur during a real fire. Pelham Fire Marshal Rick Miller noted that this better prepares students to react intelligently in the case of an actual emergency.

At Miller's request, Dr. Rogers recently removed some furniture which had been arranged in the entrance of the school, because it blocked one of the doors and might have caused a bottleneck during emergency exits.

Miller told the Reporter that from a fire safety point of view, he considered Valley to be one of the safest schools in the county.

The Pelham fire marshal also commented that he felt there was a need for a county safety inspector to monitor schools that fell outside the jurisdiction of municipal fire departments.

Vincent Elementary

According to Vincent Elementary principal Calvin Smith, his 550 students can evacuate that school in about 45 seconds. The school has had monthly fire drills, he said, except for October when he was sick.

Smith added that the school has two or three fire safety programs underway that incorporate films which are shown to the students.

Normally Vincent Volunteer Fire Chief L.M. Green or volunteer firefighter Alf Lowe visits the school once a year with the fire truck to show the students the equipment. Lowe said that although such a visit has not yet been made this year, the department would try make one soon.

No broken panic bars or chained doors were found at the school.

Montevallo Middle

At the first monthly fire drill held at Montevallo Middle School this school year, documentation showed that it took 1:45 to evacuate the building. But, Principal Frances Smitherman pointed out, at the most recent drill the evacuation time was improved to 50 seconds.

The Montevallo Volunteer Fire Department is notified of fire drills at the school and one to four firemen come to oversee each one.

After the city held an intensive fire inspection earlier in the year, several minor inconsistencies, such as burned out exit lights, were corrected at MMS. All panic bars at the school work and all doors are open during the day.

Smitherman commented that it would be ideal to install smoke detectors throughout the building, but the cost makes such a move prohibitive.

Although "some are in bad shape," all the panic bars at Shelby County High School are in working order, reported principal Don Bulger.

All the school's fire extinguishers have instructions on them. Bulger said that this summer boxes would be built around them.

The school's Civitan Club is in charge of fire safety, and has maps of the building showing all exits.

Bulger said that SCHS has missed some of its scheduled fire drills because of rain and other reasons. The school can be evacuated in two minutes, he said.

Some of the exit lights at the school are not working.

Calera High

Principal Rick Cairns told the Reporter that Calera High School holds at least one fire drill per month. But he added, he likes to throw in an extra "surprise" drill about every other month, just to keep everybody on their toes.

The school can be emptied in 25 seconds, Cairns said.

Last year some doors at CHS were chained, but in compliance with fire codes, the principal said that none of the exits are now locked or blocked.

Cairns said that Coach Max Busby heads the school's emergency procedures and visits each class once a semester for a safety talk.

Fire doors separate the building into three sections, and the smoke detectors which are located over each fire door are wired to the fire department. Fire extinguishers are located in each section of the school as well as other key locations, Cairns said.

Chelsea School

The 975 students at Chelsea School can evacuate its two buildings in 30 seconds. Principal Brad Stephens said that the school has held nine fire drills this year.

Stephens explained that he trying to devise a new drill which would be effective in the event of power failures, which often occur in Chelsea during stormy weather. He said two alarm sounds would have to be used, one for fire, the other for tornadoes.

All the panic bars at the school are in operating order and are kept unchained, except when the buildings are unoccupied.

Each public school in Shelby County, as well as the state, is inspected once a year for fire safety by the State Insurance Fund, a division of the Department of Finance.

Thomas Weston, manager of the SIF, told the Reporter from his Montgomery office that the annual inspections are unannounced and may come either in the fall or spring.

A property insurance inspector from Weston's office last fall toured the county schools the week of October 3, with Ted Lansford, Building and Grounds Supervisor for the County Board of Education. The inspection continued for about ten days, Weston said.

The SIF manager pointed out that there were no glaring fire safety hazards in the Shelby System, although minor discrepancies were noted at all the schools.

These discrepancies were common to most all Alabama schools, Weston said, and include such points as inadequate numbers of and outdated fire extinguishers, and some chained exits.

The most dangerous situation noted was a butane leak in a tank near the band room at Chelsea School. Weston said the problem was quickly corrected.

Another potential danger point which was noted was the storing of flammable material and liquids in, or too near boiler rooms.

Copies of the insurance inspection report are filed with both the county and state superintendents of education.

Had there been a glaring problem concerning fire safety in a Shelby County school, Weston said it would have been reported.

Church seeks waiver for building project

A delegation from Montevallo's First Baptist Church attended the Montevallo City Council meeting Monday night.

The delegation, led by the church's pastor, Thomas O. Mansell and the chairman of the church's building-steering committee, Lane Conville, was present to clarify a request made a week ago, and to ask council members for permission to erect a temporary modular building on church property.

The original request stated that the church is anticipating a remodeling and new construction program that will displace some 100 people who meet weekly in the facilities to be renovated. To provide a place for the displaced persons to meet, the church is requesting permission to locate a temporary mobile housing unit on the church property.

During the city council's meeting of April 28, council members declined to grant permission for the requested mobile unit. In declining the request it was noted that an ordinance has been in effect since 1958 prohibiting house trailers and mobile units in Montevallo.

During this week's meeting of the council, council members again declined to grant a variance to the ordinance. They did, however, request that the church's architect submit plans and specifications for the temporary building to the city. The plans will be turned over to the city's planning commission, fire marshal, and building inspector. The city council will then seek recommendations from them as to whether or not an exception to the ordinance should be granted.

In making his presentation to the council, Conville stated that it was not the intention of the church to ask for a blanket waiver to all codes and regulations, only the ordinance prohibiting mobile type buildings.

In other action and in keeping with state statutes, Mayor Ralph Sears stated that an election will be held in Montevallo on July 8 for purposes of electing a mayor and five council members. He went on to say that the last day to qualify for either mayor or councilman is June 3 at 5 p.m.

Council members also approved a resolution which will permit residents of flood prone areas to apply for low-cost, federally-backed flood insurance.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

You've got a friend...

Coping in the 80's

Gas crisis has bright side, too

by Shelba Nivens

At least two good things for local folks are coming out of the gasoline crisis.

It is helping keep business within the county. And it is bringing people together more often.

Several persons have reported that they are now shopping closer to home instead of driving to larger stores in Jefferson County. And whether they travel several miles or a few, many folks are traveling together. Some are even going by the truckload.

Charlene Moore of Chelsea said that one day, she, her mother-in-law, and a daughter all went grocery shopping in her pickup. "As it turned out, it took a truck," she laughed. "We hadn't bought groceries in a month and we had the whole truck full."

Shirley Shaw reported that she and friends or relatives almost always carpool to shop. She clips her coupons all week, she said, and keeps them handy. Then, if someone calls her to go somewhere, she has them ready to do her grocery shopping.

Mrs. M.M. Scoggins lives in the Vincent housing project. "Three or four people always go in together any time we go to pay bills, get groceries, to the doctor, or anything," she said. "Whenever we're going out we try to get a carload."

Ann Smith reported that since she and Sarah Crumpton began sharing a ride to their jobs in lower Jefferson County, her gas bill has been cut in half.

Mrs. Lionel Lawson of Montevallo has a cleaning service in Birmingham. Several people who work for her also live in the Montevallo area, she said, and they carpool as often as possible.

"Some people don't like the inconvenience of carpooling," said Lawson, "but people are going to have to start riding together more."

She said she feels, "The problem is not only a matter of money, but in the short, foreseeable future we will not have gas available."

"We've got to the point where we, as a nation, will have to put up with a little inconvenience. We can't have our cake and eat it, too. The public in general will just have to learn to adjust."

We have found that some people are beginning to take some drastic measures in an attempt to adjust.

A Pelham woman said she quit her job in the Green Springs area because of the gas problem. She now works on Valleydale Road.

A Chelsea couple moved to Pelham to be nearer their work. "We figure we'll save around $100 a month on gas," he said.

One man on the eastern side of the county said he "just went ahead and retired" because his gas to and from work was costing so much.

Mike Dotley, a Pelham motorcycle dealer, reported that his sales have risen slightly since gas prices began to escalate and he expects sales to rise more this spring. "People have to do something to offset it," he said, pointing out that motorcycles get 60 and 70 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

More and more people are pumping their own gasoline to save a few cents per gallon. A Columbiana service station owner reported a big increase in business at his self-service tanks over the full-service tanks.

People are also beginning to buy gasohol, reported an attendant at a Pelham station. "It's not saving all that much in dollars and cents," he said, "But people are trying it and finding that it burns good, and most come back for it again."

He pointed out, "The important thing about gasohol is, it's saving our crude oil."

Self service

More and more Shelby Countians are checking tire pressure and washing windshields on their own cars, as well as pumping their own gasoline.

to save money, says Columbiana service station owner Sonny Payne.

Instant playground

The sun shone brightly Monday when Rick Smith (l) and George Bentley (r) stopped by the playground they helped erect in one day. On that occasion, when over a hundred people from the community turned out to work on the project, the ground was a quagmire of mud. Maintenance technician Lewis Johnson is also pictured along with Elvin Hill Elementary students who seem delighted with the play equipment.

by Elvin Hill School

Playground builders plauded

Sloshing around in a quagmire of mud several weeks ago, Columbiana residents put up a playground at Elvin Hill Elementary School.

Dubbed an "instant" playground because it was completed in one day, the effort behind it took months of planning.

At a school assembly Monday, the four members of the Vignette Club who headed up the project were recognized for their contribution to the school.

Janice Falkner is Community Projects chairman for the club and Beautification co-chairman for the school; Nena Bentley is chairman of EHE volunteers; Katie Robertson was food chairman for the event and Nena Bentley is club president.

Groups which worked on the creative playground included the Junior Civitan Club, the Boy Scouts, several churches, the Shelby County High School football team, and civic clubs.

Principal Ann Head pointed out that all of the labor was donated. This included hauling cross ties, poles tires and other materials to the school.

"It was a monumental effort," she declared. Without the community involvement and donations, the playground would have cost $25,000.

However, the actual cost was less than $2,000.

Shelby pioneered telephone in 1878

Editor's note: Information for the following article was sent to us by Mr. Ehney A. Camp, Jr. of Birmingham, who is a native of Columbiana. He said that Robert Edwards, also a native of Shelby County, had called his attention to it. Shelby Nivens, writer for the Shelby County Reporter, conducted further research and wrote the article.

According to articles in several publications last November, the telephone was then celebrating its 100th birthday in Alabama.

However, records show that telephones were in operation in Shelby County 102 years ago.

"The first telephone exchange in the state was in Mobile in 1879... one of only 40 cities in the nation with a telephone exchange," reported one newspaper.

But, in January, 1878, the Shelby Sentinel reported, "The telephone, that most wonderful instrument of the age, is here in full and successful operation."

Shelby Iron Company had attached the telephone to the telegraph line, running from its office to the railroad office five miles away. "The accuracy with which it conveys sound is truly wonderful," said the early writer. "In many, the voices as well as the words of the speakers are easily recognized."

It seems that a cornet band went to the railroad office one evening and serenaded folks at Shelby Iron Works, via the telephone. It played "Little Brown Jug," "Mocking Bird," "Home Sweet Home," and numerous other pieces, said the writer of the article. The music came "soft and sweet" to the ears of listeners on the other end of the line, he said.

After the band had played, Mr. Meredith requested music from someone at "the works." A Col. Black then sang over the phone for folks back at the railroad station.

The article stated that a number of people were present with the band to witness the performance of the telephone.

"The most skeptical were convinced beyond a doubt of the ability of the most wonderful invention to convey the sound both of human voice and of musical instruments," declared the writer.

Contemplating what he had witnessed, he wrote, "...We are filled with amazement at the length and breadth, height and depth of man's inventive genius... our minds be led to the contemplation of the great creator who formed and fashioned us in his own image, who so kindly cares for us and so constantly reveals to our understanding so many of the hidden mysteries of his creation..."

Terry Johnson, of South Central Bell's public relations department, talked with the Reporter last week concerning his company's 100 years of service in the state.

When newspapers reported at South Central Bell's anniversary last fall, some of them stated that the telephone in Alabama was then 100 years old, he said.

He is aware of the old newspaper article stating that telephones were used even earlier in Shelby County. He said that he also has a copy of an article from a January 16, 1878 Birmingham publication telling about a doctor who had a telephone in his home.

People in the telephone company's state office have no knowledge of telephones in Alabama prior to 1878, Johnson said. "However," he added, "As the telephone was invented in 1876, someone from the northeast could have sneaked in and hooked one up somewhere."

He pointed out that actually, South Central Bell did have the first telephone "exchange" in the state. There were 36 customers on the telephone exchange in Mobile in 1879.

But it was over a year earlier that a Shelby Countian had witnessed the performance of a telephone near Shelby and predicted its success. "The telephone... is certainly destined at any early day to come into general use," stated the writer of the 1878 Shelby Sentinel article.

Mistake causes angry words at Helena Council meeting

A misunderstanding about who-said-what led to some angry words at the Helena Council meeting Monday night.

About 10 residents of Dearing Downs and Fox Haven presented a petition to the council protesting increases in water and gas rates.

But the council had not planned to discuss rates, and had no plans for increasing rates at the meeting, even though several residents were under the impression the matter was on the agenda.

It was pointed out that the council has no authority over the gas and water board, which sets rates. That board however, is composed of Mayor Charles Penhale, Councilman Bill Harris and one person who is not on the council Grady Wilson. This has led to some confusion on the part of the public.

One of the citizens pointed out that people who live in the older part of Helena pay 35 percent more for gas than do those in the new subdivisions.

Residents were also concerned over reports that water rates might be raised to help even out gas rates.

No action was taken.

Columbiana policeman resigns

Columbiana police officer John Ashmore handed in his resignation from the force Monday morning.

Mayor Bob Bolton reported that the letter handed to Police Chief Howell Horn cited "personal reasons" for his leaving the department.

Rick Gault, who had been working as an auxiliary policeman for two years, is now working in Ashmore's place.

The Mayor said that Gault was serving a probationary period before becoming a permanent member of the police force.

Ashmore joined the Colum-

There have been reports of friction between him and Assistant Police Chief Myron Bradley which may have led to his resignation.

'Secret to gardening is to enjoy it'

Backyard gardener

Mildred Green of Helena says it's not too hard to grow all the vegetables a family needs, if the gardener does a little work each day.

by Shelba Nivens

Mildred Green grows beans, peas, corn, okra, squash, turnip green, tomatoes and quite a few other things.

No, she doesn't plant several acres in vegetables. She grows them all on a tiny plot of ground in her back yard at Sunny Brook Estates near Helena. The garden spot is about the size of her house.

Her husband is unable to garden now due to ill health, and she can't tend a large garden alone, said Mrs. Green. So, she plants only a few seeds of each vegetable in very short rows.

"Growing them really doesn't take a lot of time," she added. "It just takes a little every day. You don't have to rush at it; just enjoy it."

Mrs. Green divides her time between gardening, several hobbies and fishing in the lake on which her home is located. She grew up on a large farm near Underwood, but has learned shortcuts to gardening on a small scale.

She scatters fertilizer over the garden spot before running the tiller, then uses a hoe to hollow out places for seeds or to make "hills" for them. She plants several vegetables, including beans and peas, in hills about one foot apart.

Every morning when she first gets up, she goes out to check on the garden, she said. She likes to see what is just popping through the ground and what will need gathering that day. Presently, she is gathering strawberries early each morning to keep the birds from beating her to them.

Said the Helena lady, "I like to do a little gardening every day after the plants get up, to keep the ground loose and the weeds out."

Mrs. Green has learned first hand, the secret county farm agent, John Jones, spoke of not too long ago.

"The secret to gardening," he said, "is to enjoy it. Do a little every day on a routine basis. You might need to cut back on the amount and do better with what you do have. It doesn't take all that much space if you take care, plan it and do it right."

Evidently, Mildred Green is doing it right. The Greens have enough vegetables from their tiny garden spot each year to fill their own freezer and to share with family and friends.

Child dies in accident

A nine year old Wilsonville girl was struck by a car while riding her bicycle Sunday evening on County Road 55.

Stephanie Sims died three hours later at Children's Hospital.

The accident occurred around 6 p.m. when a car rounded a curve and the driver reportedly didn't see the young girl in time to stop.

Shelby County Coroner Billy Thompson said the death had been ruled accidental.

Stephanie was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Sims.

Seniors respond

A new discount program for the county's senior citizens is receiving good response report its sponsors.

A spokesman for the Shelby County Program on Aging said its Alabaster office has been "swamped with calls" for discount cards.

"We are also trying to give to each caller a list of merchants participating in the program," she said.

Pelham residents want action on Bishop Creek flood control

The general consensus of the 100 residents who attended the Army Corps of Engineers Bishop Creek flood control workshop last week was: "Why aren't you doing something?"

The Thursday night workshop, or public hearing, which was held in Pelham City Hall, had been set up by the Mobile District Office of the Corps to explain the courses of action open to flood control on the problem creek, and to eliminate plans which lacked public support.

"I don't think we accomplished that much," said project manager Wayne Saucer after the meeting, explaining that he was not pleased with input he received from the meeting.

The residents living in the flood plain that attended the meeting were not pleased when Saucer stated that completion and approval of the flood control plans would not come until sometime in the fall of 1981.

Although the creek has not flooded this year, two floods last spring caused considerable damage along the creek and numerous residents had to be temporarily evacuated from their homes.

Saucer pointed out at the meeting that the $3 million ceiling set on federal funds for the project will not be able to completely solve the problem. Before any of that money comes available the cost of the benefits will have to be shown to outweigh average annual damage of flooding over a 50 year period, he said.

The manager noted that a fact sheet on the damage estimates should be available in three to four weeks.

Several residents expressed a concern that the City of Pelham would not be able to afford its 20 percent share of the cost in the event a non-structural plan was adopted, such as building flood walls around buildings in the flood plain, or relocating houses and families.

Other residents said they thought action should be taken now with the proposed $3 million from the federal government, before more flood damage occurred.

Representatives from the offices of Congressmen Richard Shelby and Donald Stewart attended the meeting. Andy Deerman from Shelby's office said the studies would insure that the $3 million was being put to the best use.

No definite conclusions were drawn from the two and a half-hour meeting other than the fact that it was quite apparent the residents along Bishop Creek want something done about flooding as soon as possible.

Adams, Steve Rye, Lori Schomberg, Wendy Adams, Jill Hooper, Renee Brasher, Ellen Lyons, Cherry Goodwin, and Jan Bradley.

Indian Springs Coach Jim Riley said that school's representatives had not yet been appointed at press time Tuesday.

During the intermission in the elimination rounds, students from eight area elementary schools, including Valley Elementary (see page B-1) will compete in a Junior Super Stars program.

By nursing homes Volunteers recognized

The men and women who live in nursing homes would have more idle hours on their hands if it weren't for the volunteers who provide both activities and companionship.

During Nursing Home Week, May 11-17, Briarcliff Nursing Home in Alabaster is recognizing the many volunteers who donate time at that facility.

One of those volunteers is Nancy Speer of Alabaster, who has been visiting the nursing home for seven years to provide musical entertainment.

"She has a special talent that she shares," related Briarcliff Nursing Home Program Assistant Marilyn Hayes.

Admitting that she loved being around elderly people, Speer said that her husband and two children often accompany her to special functions to put on a musical program.

On Tuesday, when the Shades Mountain Christian Church held their monthly Bible study and Sing-a-long for residents, Speer was on hand to play the piano.

Another volunteer, who is also a resident at the nursing home, led the singing.

LeRoy Hendrix of Chelsea said he "couldn't carry a tune in a bucket," when he started.

"But I wanted to be of service," he declared, "so I asked the Lord to give me this talent."

Before Hendrix came to live at Briarcliff, he worked as a volunteer to teach residents woodworking.

Noting that the time he devoted to that endeavor was gratifying, Hendrix related that a woman had recently told him she still had a stool he had made for her many years ago.

At Briarcliff

Briarcliff Nursing Home volunteer Nancy Speer chats with some of the residents Monday after she finished playing the piano for a weekly sing-a-long and Bible study.

Song leader

Briarcliff resident LeRoy Hendrix, who is also a volunteer at the facility, enjoys leading the singing.

PEARLY BRASHER

Mrs. Pearly Lucille Brasher died April 30 of an apparent heart attack, shortly after her car left county road 86 and overturned. She was a 67 year old resident of Calera.

The accident occurred approximately two miles west of Prospect Church. It was investigated by state troopers, Calera police and Shelby County deputies. According to their reports, right wheels of the car dropped off the paving and on to the shoulder of the road. After coming back onto the road, it abruptly veered off the left side and down a steep embankment, coming to rest on its top. Mrs. Brasher apparently escaped serious injury, crawled from the car and made her way up the embankment to the

Vincent finds road to state playoffs short

by Fred Guarino

"I thought we played pretty good except for a couple of spots but we couldn't do what we had to."

Those were the words of Vincent High School Head Coach Harold Garrett after his team lost a heartbreaking contest for the Region 4, 2A baseball title to Munford 6-4, Friday afternoon.

The contest, which was fought toe to toe and cheek to cheek on Vincent turf, pitted the Yellow Jackets, winners of the Area 7 title against the Area 8 champions for an opportunity to continue in the state playoffs.

Prior to the big game Coach Garrett told this reporter that his team might lose to Munford but they would not be outclassed. And, outclassed they were not.

The battle was tied 2-2 after the first inning, 3-3 after the third, and 4-4 after the fourth.

Munford took the lead for keeps in the top of the sixth and added the finishing touch in the top of the seventh.

However, coming to bat in the bottom of the seventh, Vincent was definitely not ready to play dead. That squad had come from behind several times during the regular season and was ready to do it again.

After two Yellow Jackets struck out, increasing tension, pitcher Steve Riggins belted the ball for a single and the Vincent team came alive. Shortstop Rodney Driggers then hit a powerful shot to left field advancing Riggins to second base and himself to first.

With two outs, Vincent had two potential tying runs on bases. However, the miracle come-from-behind finish was not meant to be as centerfielder James Oden popped a ball high in the air, which retired his side and Vincent's playoff hopes.

A play that really hurt Vincent occurred when James Oden and Mark Brasher were caught in a double pickoff in the bottom of the first inning. Had those two runners made it to their bases and their teammates brought them home, Vincent could have led 4-2 early. The Yellow Jackets had already brought two men home before the pickoff occurred.

Steve Riggins was the losing pitcher for Vincent. Going the whole way, he gave up six runs and struck three men out. Other outs on Munford were credited to a determined Vincent infield and outfield playing an alert game.

Scoring runs for VHS were Steve Riggins, Rodney Driggers, and J. Brasher.

Commenting on the season, Coach Garrett said that his team played well after the first week and a half of competition. He stated that his pitching was strong, that the team had a better than average defense and that it was hitting better than it ever had before.

He said of his squad, "I'm proud of this bunch...they hate to lose as bad as I do...they've done a lot to be proud of."

Now that competition for the state title is over for VHS, that school looks ahead to the county tournament. It very much believes it can and wants to win that event.

Caught in the act

Yellow Jackets Mark Brasher (23) and James Oden were picked off by Munford in a first inning rundown, thus losing two potential runs which might have made a difference in the playoff's 6-4 outcome. (Photo by Guarino)

Bike ride will aid research

The Wheels for Life Bike-a-Thon will be held Saturday, May 17 at 9 a.m. A one mile course will be laid out starting at Crosscreek Baptist Church in Pelham.

Riders in the bike-a-thon will enlist donations from sponsors for each mile they ride. Bikers raising $25 will receive a St. Jude t-shirt and those raising $75 will receive back packs. Other prizes will also be offered.

Proceeds from the ride will go to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis.

The ride is being sponsored by the Omega Iota chapter of ESA Sorority, and is chaired by Bill and Patricia Jollit.

Sponsor forms can be obtained from local churches and schools, and all interested persons are urged to call the Jollits (663-9608) for registration and further details.

Vincent Yellow Jackets

Though Vincent High School lost its bid for the Region 4, 2A baseball title this year it won the Area 7 championship and stands a good chance of winning county honors. All winners, the team includes: (10) Eddie Weldon, (11) Kevin McKenzie, (12) Steve Riggins, (14) Joel Richey, (15) James Oden, (16) Rodney Driggers, (17) Sidney Yowe, (18) Bret Hanner, (19) Mark Kelow, (21) Johnny Brasher, (23) Mark Brasher, (24) Jerry Dates, (26) Dwight Spradley, (27) Barry Ball and (30) Robert Maske. The coach is Harold Garrett and the team manager is Barry Foster.

Vincent and Briarwood place at state meet

The girls' track team from Vincent placed fourth in the state outdoor track meet last weekend at Troy State University. In junior high competition at the same event, the Briarwood Christian High School girls' team placed an overall third.

Vincent took third place in both the mile and 440 relays.

Vyllora Abrams came in third in the hurdles for VHS, and Teresa Thomas placed third in the two mile run. Jeffie Peterson and Patricia Brown both placed fifth in the 880 and 220, respectively.

The 2-A competition was won by Calhoun for the second year running.

"We could have done better, but we did pretty well," said Vincent Coach Debbie Jackson. Her girl trackers also won the county meet this year, as well as placing second in the Homewood Invitational, the Sectional and the indoor state meet.

Earnest Glover of Montevallo High School, took fourth place in both the one and two mile runs.

Briarwood Coach Bobby Scott commented that his junior high girls' team did pretty well for their first time to run in the state association meet. Next year he expects his varsity teams to compete in the same classification.

Leading the Briarwood effort was Janine Stover, who won first place in both the 880 and mile runs and finished third in the long jump.

Dawn Sikkenga took second place in both the 880 and the 440 runs, while Becky Johnson placed second in the 110 low hurdles and fifth in the 220.

The Briarwood relay team came in third in the 440.

Five roundballers make All-Mid-State team

Five basketball players from Shelby County schools were named to the All-Mid-State Conference Team last Wednesday. The announcement was made at the Conference coaches' banquet, held at a Riverchase restaurant.

Harry Harris of the Thompson Warriors, Arthur Johnson and Terry Carter of the Shelby County Wildcats, and David Norwood and Dexter McCrimmon of the Vincent Yellow Jackets, were chosen from among the 1979-80 county school basketball teams.

Rounding out the twelve man ALL-MSC team were Greg Bates and Steve Swain (Childersburg), Lamar Oden and Troy Morris (Sylacauga), Calvin Nix and Marty Wilson (B.B. Comer), and Pat Scott (Pell City).

The team was picked by the coaches representing the Mid-State Conference.

BIR street car jump shoots for top record

A daredevil attempt at breaking the world's distance record for an automobile jump will be an added feature Friday night at Birmingham International Raceway.

Also on the bill for the night, are eight big races, including a 25 lap feature and two heats for the modified sportsman, a feature and two heats for the limited sportsman, and features for the bomber and baby grand classes.

Tea Cake Cook will take a wild, daredevil shot at jumping 21 cars in a street automobile. Racing names slated for the night include Red Farmer, Davey Allison, Mike Farmer, Raymond Strickland, Jr., Kasper Miles, Jerry Goodwin and Benny McDaniel.

Time trials start at 7 p.m. and races begin at 8.

UM Falcons heading for post-season play

Post-season play beckons the University of Montevallo baseball team for the fifth consecutive season in both the Southern States Conference and the NAIA District 27.

Admittedly, the Falcons' 25-25 record is the least impressive mark of any of the tournament participants, but as UM coach Bob Riesener explained, "We're not that far from being a very good ballclub, and we have played well lately. If somebody takes us too lightly, we're just liable to pull some upsets."

Thompson baseball history is repeated: Clanton beats Warriors in quarter-finals History repeated itself one time too many for the Thompson Warriors, Coach Billy Woodham and their fans last week.

That THS pulled off a repeat of last year's Area 8 and Region 4 Championships, was all well and fine. It sent them into the quarter-finals of the state playoffs against Clanton, just like last year.

But just like last year, Clanton won. The game was called at 3-0 in the fifth inning due to rain.

Thompson earned the right to play Clanton Saturday with a 4-2 win over Tallassee in the regional playoffs.

Steve Smitherman picked up the win, throwing the distance with five strikeouts, four hits and two walks.

Tallassee picked up their only two runs in the first inning off three hits and two of Thompson's three errors in the game.

The Warriors came back in the third and fifth innings to tie the score.

Then in the seventh, Bret Davenport singled in David Cofer who had gotten on with a double. Steve Boothe finalized the score at 4-2, when he singled in Davenport.

"It was a big accomplishment for us," commented Woodham of Thompson's second consecutive regional championship. "The kids worked real hard to get that far. I'm proud of them. They played good ball."

Saturday against Clanton, the weatherman threw Thompson a curve and it started raining in the fourth inning. A bolt of lightning halfway through the fifth caused the umpires to call the game, with Clanton out front 3-0.

Charlie Griffin started on the mound for the Warriors, but pitched only the first inning, as Clanton scored three runs off two hits, a walk and an error.

Smitherman pitched the next three innings, striking out five batters, walking none and giving up only one hit.

Thompson got two hits in the ton and Angela Johnson as substitutes.

The eight year old team is made up of Danny Dunnaway, Mike Plaia, Cari Adcock and Pam Smith, with Brian Sparks and Jennifer Barnes substituting.

Kevin Router, Grant Kennedy, Heather Nelms and Kelley Reid will make up the nine year old team, with Carlos Gonzalez and Allison Barnes substituting.

Competition will consist of a tug-of-war and a circuit run, which includes the high jump, tire jump, wall climb and other obstacles.

The Valley team is coached by P.E. teachers Joyce Bonovitch, David Shifflet and Jennifer Fedor.

Eight elementary schools will participate in the annual event sponsored by the Metro Sertoma Club, and the Iron and Steel Credit Union. Proceeds will benefit the Sertoma Center for Communicative Disorders.

Valley Elementary goes to Super Stars

Valley Elementary School will compete against Edgewood Elementary in the 1980 Metro Super Stars competition.

If the Valley team wins the Tuesday, May 13, 6:30 p.m. event, they will go into the finals on May 20. The competition will be held at Shades Valley High School in Homewood.

The seven year old Valley participants are Sean Lindsey, Troy Turner, Jennifer Wyatt and Ginger Holley, with Jason Hor-

Raiders hold sports feast

The Shelby Academy Raiders will hold their annual sports banquet at 6:30 Friday night at the University of Montevallo.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be Tom Banks of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Duck!

Not knowing this throw is wild, 'Cat' Dan Head ducks as he runs to third base. Although Chelsea third baseman J.R. Elliott recovered the wild throw and made the out at home, a Hornet in the dugout accidentally interfered with the ball and the play was ruled dead.

UM sets roundball camp

Gene Bartow, University of Alabama in Birmingham (UAB) basketball coach and athletic director, will headline the first University of Montevallo summer basketball camp, June 8-12, for boys nine to 18.

He will be joined by successful coaches such as Herbert Green, assistant at Auburn; Stan Cook, Gadsden State Junior College; Doug Key, Chattahoochee Valley Community College; Bill Lankford, Jefferson State Junior College; Eddie Barnes, Cottonwood High School; Kurt Pnasek, Montevallo High School; Eddie

Pelham golfers go to state

Three Pelham golfers participated in the Alabama High School Athletic Association Golf Tournament last Thursday and Friday in Montgomery. The tourney was played at Rolling Hills Country Club, with UMS military school finishing first and Berry High taking second in team standings.

Larry Brudi led the Pelham effort with a 76 and 84. Jimmy Mintz shot an 84 and 82, while Dale Busby shot an 89 and 83. The Pelham golf team is coached by Tony Taylor.

UM tennis team makes tournament

Usually, it is only the top three from the state of Alabama that get invited to play in the AIAW Division II Region III Tennis Tournament. This year, however, there are going to be four.

The reason for that is a deadlock for third in the state between the University of Montevallo and Jacksonville State University, the latter of which hosted the state tournament April 24-26. Birmingham-Southern College was first and the University of Alabama in Huntsville was second.

All four will participate in the tournament this weekend at Columbus College in Columbus, Ga.

"We're very pleased to be going," said a relieved UM coach Jeanette Crew when she got the good news in the middle of last week. "We think we have a pretty competitive team, and hope to represent our school and the state well."

Wildcats down Chelsea 6-2

The Shelby County Wildcats passed the collection plate four times in the fourth inning, crediting their Thursday night scoreboard account with enough runs to cash in a 6-2 win over Chelsea. The Hornets' two runs came in the top of the seventh, but the payroll was too little too late.

Allen Henke pitched all but the last two outs for the Wildcats, striking out four, and allowing six hits and six walks. Dan Head went to the mound in the seventh to pick up the save with two quick strike-outs.

Paul Kendrick went the distance for Chelsea, striking out one, allowing six hits, but walking none. Both teams committed six errors.

Robbery led to Shelby County's first scoreboard deposit which came in inning two. Dana Vansant beat out a throw to first and stole second and third to set up the score on a single by Ronald Benton.

Chelsea threatened in the third when Mark Howard singled and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt. Bryan Stanley then slammed a double, but got picked off taking home by a peg from Benton at short stop to catcher Ricky Latham.

Latham tripled for the 'Cats in the third and scored on a sacrifice by Henke.

Vansant started things rolling for SCHS in fourth, when he beat out a fumbled grounder by the first baseman, then stole second. Bobby Greenawalt singled in Vansant, then made it to third on a passed ball at first.

With one out, Robert Sigle slammed a triple, driving in Greenawalt, then scored himself on a single by Jeff Seale. Seale was picked off at second on a fielder's choice that put Head on first, until he stole second moments later.

Kendrick tried to pick off Head from the mound with a turn around throw that got loose. Head rounded third on a wide throw that hit the Chelsea dugout. He was tagged by catcher Doug O'Shields, but the umpire ruled the ball dead and Head's run alive, since a Hornet in the dugout had touched the wide throw. That made the score 6-0.

Chelsea left two men on in the fifth and sixth innings, and SCHS got a man to third in the sixth, but no one cashed in any chips.

Chelsea made a late bid for a comeback in the seventh with singles by Howard, Stanley and Kendrick, which scored two points with the help of a Shelby County error.

With two men on and one away, 'Cat Coach Bill Reid put Head on the mound. About nine pitches later the game was over.

"We waited too late to get anything started," commented Chelsea Coach Bobby Statum, whose Hornets fell to 2-6 with the loss. He added that a few untimely errors had hurt Chelsea's efforts, but pointed out that Shelby County has "an excellent ballclub."

Said Reid of his 8-8 'Cats after the game, "We played good défenze when it counted, except for the last inning. We put something together in the fourth, too."

Reid commented that Robert Sigle "did a heck of a job" playing third base for his third time.

At bat, Sigle went 2-3 with a triple and single for two RBI's. Latham also hit a triple and single in three trips to the plate, batting in one run.

For Chelsea, Stanley went 3-3, including a double.

MHS hosts weightlifting bout

The Shelby County weightlifting championship will be held this Saturday at the Montevallo High School gym at 10 a.m. Weigh-ins will begin at 9:30.

MHS Coach Richard Gilliam said he is hoping that all the county schools will participate, but at press time, several schools had made no commitments.

The Shelby County High School Wildcats, last year's team winner, has a knack for taking the top trophies, but this year they will probably have a bit more competition, as more schools are expected to participate than in previous years.

Each participant will take his best lift out of three strains on the bench, and will receive one point for every pound over his weight that he lifts. Best team score and best individual score will receive trophies.

Past winning scores have been in the range of 98-102 points.

Let's Twist Again Like We Did Last Summer.

When temperatures hit their peak, so do your electric bills. The reason is air conditioning, the single biggest user of electricity in the average home.

But last year, Alabamians learned to save by twisting their thermostats to 78.

This summer, 78 should be an even more popular number. Because temperatures are expected to be hotter than the moderate summer of '79.

If you'd like to ease the impact on your electric bills, twist again. Turn your thermostat up to 78°. And while your air conditioning is doing a little less, you can help by doing a little more.

By using ventilated awnings, drapes and other shading devices to keep the sun's rays out. And by waiting until the cooler part of the day to use heat producing appliances like your stove and clothes dryer.

Let's face it. You may not be quite as comfortable as in summers past. But you can take comfort in the fact that you'll be saving money.

How much? More than you might think. Because even during the peak temperatures of summer, the biggest influence on your electric bill is how much you elect to use.

County baseball wrap up

Just as it did at the end of basketball season, Coosa Valley Academy now remains the only local team with an opening left to the state finals. The Rebs won both ends of two double headers to put them out front in their district.

Monday week CVA picked off Faith 6-4 and 7-3 behind the arms of Mike Norred and Eric Davis, respectively. Davis hit a solo homer in the fourth inning of the first game, and Mike Wheeler went 2-3 with two RBI's and Randy Waldrop went 2-3 with one RBI.

In the second game Davis batted 1-1 with an RBI, Troy Beavers did ditto. Fred Thompson went 1-2 with an RBI.

CVA's two wins over Talladega Academy knocked that team from its first place district standings. The Rebs won the first game 3-1 with Norred on the mound. Mike Wheeler slugged a triple and a double for one RBI, Norred went 2-3 for an RBI, and Chris Studdard knocked in the third run for the Rebs.

In the second game of the series, CVA was down 3-1 in the bottom of the third, when Beavers cleaned the loaded bases with an in-park home run. Eric Davis pitched for CVA and they went on to win it 6-3.

Studdard went 2-3 that game for one RBI, Norred hit a triple for an RBI and Waldrop hit a double to score a run.

Now 8-1 in district play, the Rebs will have to face Bessemer Tuesday, in a game which can make them or break them. Bessemer is the one team that beat Rick Naugher's Rebs this season in district play.

While Coosa Valley continued to win in the private academy circles, their counter-part SA Raiders continued to go in the opposite direction.

Shelby Academy played a double header against Faith last Tuesday, dropping both ends, 8-0 and 10-2.

Coach Harry Rawlinson said that both games were close up till the fourth innings when Faith ran off with the scoreboard.

Although plagued with inconsistencies, the coach noted that Alan Howard, Billy Eiland and Travis Harris have been playing pretty good baseball this year.

Now 1-8 on the year, SA closes out its season this week with a Tuesday game against Burney Points and a Thursday game against CVA.

Montevallo stepped over the .500 mark this week, beating Briarwood 4-3 at home.

Bret Jones picked up the win for the Bulldogs, striking out 16 batters, walking four and allowing only one hit. Mike McCray and Stephen Lindsey pitched for Briarwood.

McCray got the only hit off Jones, a single in the third which scored a run. Briarwood's other runs were unearned, coming off MHS's three errors.

Carey Thompson slugged a homer in the first inning, and he scored again in the third off a fielder's choice which David Melsoni hit into.

Bret Jones slammed a game winning homer in the fifth inning.

In other Chelsea action last week, the Hornets stuck Pelham with an 8-4 stinging loss.

Larry Cork was the winning pitcher, and Keith McCullers and Brian Stanley again proved themselves to swing big bats for Chelsea, both going 2-4 on the day.

The Calera Eagles, who thought they were going to get a chance to finish two rained out innings against Billingsley in their sub-area playoffs last Friday week, found themselves in the wet boat like the Thompson Warriors. The Alabama High School Athletic Association said the game was complete when it was called after five innings. Calera was down at the time 6-4.

In 3-A circles, SCHS picked up a 10-0, five inning win over Pelham Monday a week ago, with Dan Head on the mound. Head struck out seven Panthers, and allowed three hits, to nail down his first shutout of the season and his third win.

Ricky Latham went 3-3 with a double and two RBI's for the 'Cats. Allen Henke went 2-3 and Ronald Benton went 2-3, including a double and four RBI's.

The following night, however, SCHS lost to Childersburg after which Coach Bill Reid said, "We stunk." Dana Vasant and Bobby Greenawalt both slammed homers for the 'Cats.

After losses to Chelsea and Shelby County, Pelham picked up a win Friday over Corner, 1-0.

Tommy Roy pitched the win for the Panthers, allowing only one hit. Pelham now rests on a 5-9 record until the county tournament which begins next week.

Play at home

Perry Cunningham of the Pelham Minor League Padres is picked off on a play at home by Athletics' pitcher Alan Lindsey. Although the Padres were denied this one run, they made good on 11 others, as they shut out the Athletics last Saturday.

Country singing

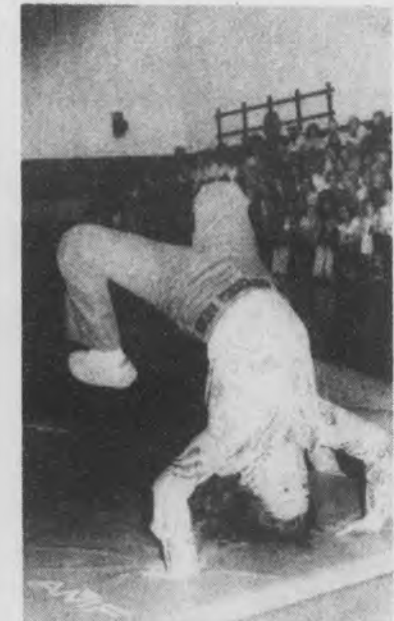

I Like Mountain Music was one of the songs Elvin Hill Elementary School students sang in their Country Roads production Friday. Each grade performed some of our country's traditional folk songs. This group also entertained parents with the tunes, On Top of Old Smokey and Zippa De-Doo-Dah.

Square dancers

The fourth and fifth grade classes at Elvin Hill showed off their tumbling and square dancing skill for visitors who attended the performance in the gym of Shelby County High School.

Tumbler

PE teacher Shirley Thornburg put her agile students through their tumbling routines during Friday's show.

Braves lead

Central Shelby

Two strong wins by the Major League Braves of the Central Shelby DY baseball program, put them in first place, half a game in front of the Cardinals.

Now 3-0 on the season, the Braves downed the Cubs 17-12 on April 29, and trounced on the Tigers 18-6 last Saturday.

The Cardinals beat the Dodgers 4-1 last Tuesday, but fell to the Pirates 8-4 on Saturday. An 11-0 shutout over the Tigers last Tuesday tied the Pirates with the Cubs for third place. The Cubs beat the Dodgers Saturday 5-2.

Standings at the week's end had the Braves in first at 3-0, the Cards in second at 3-1, the Cubs and Pirates tied at 2-2, the Dodgers at 1-2 and Chelsea in the basement at 0-4.

Loom fixer retires

Bernie Wedge, executive vice-president and manager of the Elastic Plant, presents a check to retiring loom fixer Hugh Youngblood who joined the company when it opened 20 years ago.

Elastic plant honors 20 year employee

Since he won't have the looms at the Elastic Corporation to tinker with any longer, employees thought a CB radio might keep Hugh Youngblood busy.

The gift was presented to the retiring loom fixer when management and employees honored him with a party at the plant Friday.

Youngblood has worked for the company longer than any other employee. He joined the Elastic Corp. staff when they began operations in Columbiana 20 years ago.

Presenting a $100 check to the longtime employee, Columbiana Plant Manager Bernie Wedge said, "If we had 360 Hugh Youngbloods, the company would be better off."

The corporation employees a total of 360 people in its three plants.

Wedge mentioned that Youngblood set "a fine example" for younger workers. He doesn't make a lot of noise,"

A native of Shelby County, he returned here when he retired from the service.

Besides fiddling with his new CB, Youngblood plans to spend his time working in his yard and garden.

With his wife Margaret, he also hopes to make more frequent visits to Utah to see their son Hugh and his family and to North Carolina where their daughter Dale and her family live.

The couples' youngest daughter, Jean, is also married, and lives a few miles from them.

Irish take over at Calera Elementary

If you have never seen a leprechaun, then you weren't at Calera Elementary School Friday.

There were a number of the "wee folk" there that day, scampering up and down the halls, past a thatched roof cottage, a pub and a castle.

The reason for the school resembling a scene from "Finnian's Rainbow," was the annual fair, which this year focused on Ireland.

And a rainbow with the legendary pot of gold at the end was the backdrop on the stage where students and teachers performed Irish songs and dances.

The reason for centering attention on the Emerald Isle was because social studies classes had been studying that country.

In addition to participating in Friday morning's program, students also decorated halls with life-size cut out figures and typical Irish scenes.

And each class made some item to sell in the fair which lasted all day.

First grader Shane Clark narrated the program, which parents were invited to see, and Ola Fay Gilliam provided musical accompaniment on the piano.

An Irish dance was performed by first grade teacher Juliette Shaw and kindergarten teacher, Carolyn Padgett, sang "Look to the Rainbow."

Joining the CES group in providing musical entertainment, UM student Michael Barnes strummed his guitar and sang an Irish folk song.

For their part on the program, fifth graders performed a choral reading written by teacher Charlotte Anthony.

The subject of the dialogue was the government of the country.

When it was time for lunch, students and their parents sat down to a meal which featured Irish dishes.

Debbie Horton, who coordinated the event, related that this was the school's third fair.

Wearing the green

Nancy Prichard, J. D. Mallet and Paige Horton were three of the students from Calera Elementary School who wore the green Friday when the school held an Irish Fair. Kindergarten teacher Carolyn Padgett was one of the teachers who participated in a musical program at the event.

Calera airman assigned to Lowry

Airman Norman W. Carpenter, son of Mr. and Mrs. David T. Carpenter of Route 2, Calera, has been assigned to Lowry Air Force Base, Colo., after completing Air Force basic training.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the munitions and weapons maintenance field.

Airman Carpenter is a 1979 graduate of Calera High School.

jects; Shane Mills, first place in sociology.

UM cancer drive

Janice Williams from Delta Sigma Theta presented Chi Omega representative Susan Bush with a trophy on April 29 for her sorority's leading role in the Shelby County Cancer Crusade's University of Montevallo fund drive.

Phyllis Davis, DST vice president, presented a check to crusade chairman Reid Long for $65, and Long gave the sorority a certificate of appreciation.

Cancer Crusade rolls toward goal

At the midway point of its timetable, the Shelby County Cancer Crusade has realized a quarter of its record $16,500 goal.

But, explains crusade chairman Reid Long, there has been no real push yet for contributions and pledges from industries, and donations from schools and churches are just beginning to be collected.

Long says that the 'Send a Mouse to College' program got a good response from Thompson Elementary. Several churches have already turned in some good results, he adds. Becky Draper is heading the 'Mouse' program, and Tom Hammonds is heading up the church drives.

He says Sheriff Buddy Glasgow is making plans for road block collections to be taken up by auxiliary deputies sometime in May.

Furthermore, Dick Scott has just finalized plans for the Walter Hagan Golf Tournament, which will be a joint effort of the Shelby and Jefferson County Crusades. Scott says the dates of the two-county men's tournament will be June 14, at Pine Tree Country Club in Irondale. The state finals will be held October 10, at Inverness Country Club.

The local women's golf tourney will be held June 10, also at Pine Tree, with the state finals coming August 26.

For more information on the golf tournaments, call Scott at 663-6723, or 988-5300.

Although the economy is apparently having an effect on some industrial donations, Long says he still expects good results when the push gets underway.

"We'll be working hard and furious these next two months to reach our $16,500 goal," says Long. "We're going to make it some way or the other."

Memorials or donations can be made out to the American Cancer Society and mailed to Mary Kroell, P.O. Box 23, Alabaster, 35007. Contributions are tax deductible.

Underwriter of Year chosen at Alabaster insurance meet

Since production was one of the main criteria in choosing the Outstanding Life Underwriter of the Year, Terry Hosmer was the man who fit the bill.

The Assistant Manager of Occidental Life Insurance Company sold close to $3 million worth of insurance in 1979.

Neal Bailey, the first underwriter to receive the award, presented the plaque to Hosmer during a luncheon meeting at an Alabaster restaurant.

The significance of the award to him, Bailey noted, was the fact that it came from a group of his peers.

"I won't be able to let down now," Hosmer said as he accepted the plaque. "This pushes me a little further," he added, "to be better qualified in the business."

At the present time, Hosmer is enrolled in the Charter Life Underwriter's course which might be compared to earning a PhD in the insurance business.

He has so far passed five of the ten courses which usually take from five to six years to complete.

The industrious agent also initiated a program of education in the schools concerning the whys and wherefores of life insurance.

And he has taught part 1 of the AUTC course.

The Outstanding Underwriter has been a member of the association for four years and is a past president.

During his 14 years in the business, he has won numerous achievement awards.

Hosmer and his wife Shirley live in Alabaster and have two children - a son Rusty, who is 11, and a 17 year old daughter, Lori.

Award winner

Neal Bailey (r), the first recipient of the Outstanding Underwriter award, presents the plaque to this year's winner, Terry Hosmer.

On Wednesday, Ron Kendall, of Shelby-Chilton mental health department will hold a clinic on stress management. This program, to be held from 10:30 until 11:30, is designed to help persons deal with the demands of daily living.

"You can't eliminate stress but you can decide to get out of the 'rat race,'" say its sponsors.

From 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Wednesday, the hospital nursing staff will conduct blood pressure screening.

From 3 until 4, Barbara Ashby, Social Service Director, will lead a program on learning about divorce.

"Many families face the trauma of divorce today. This lecture will deal with ways of making positive growth in this crisis situation both for those directly involved and for interested friends and family members," she says.

Thursday, at 10 a.m., "Your mental health" will be discussed. This hour-long session will be led by Jerry Jackson of Shelby-Chilton mental health department.

"What is a Pink Lady?" will be the topic to help the public learn more about the hospital auxiliary. This session will be from 1:30 until 2:30 p.m.

A program on the candy stripper will be conducted from 3:30 until 4:30 on Thursday.

Friday will feature two half-hour sessions on the pros and cons of generic drugs. These will be conducted by pharmacist Mike Helms, at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Blood pressure screening will also be held by hospital nursing staff at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

At 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Friday, free pap smears and breast exams will be given by Shelby County Health Department.

IN MEMORY

"Mother's Day"
Today is Mother's Day,
And to show you how much you mean to us, there couldn't be a better way.
Mama we can't give you any nice gifts any more,
Not like the ones you used to adore.
We can only send you our love from our hearts,
And hope that that will fill all our parts.
Special days like today are really very sad,
For us kids and especially dear old Dad.
A part of us is gone,
It's sad, we can't even talk to you on the phone.
But 'Happy Mother's Day Mother,
No one will ever fill your place, there is no other.
We had the best that God ever made,
Mama, your memory will never fade.
We Love You,
Lewis, Kathy, Wanda,
Lisa and Sheila

County tax picture retains bleak look

by Marcia M. Sears

The last of the tax bills for 1979 went through the computer last Sunday. They are now being cross-checked for errors and will be mailed next week.

But the results proved a disappointment to members of the Shelby County Commission. Although the exact amount of tax money the new bills will bring in is "impossible to predict" according to Tax Collector Fay Quick, it was apparent that no large sums were turned up. In fact, most of the errors have been in favor of the taxpayer, reducing the rosy predictions that came from the Tax Assessor's office at various times during last summer and fall.

The long drawn-out reappraisal of county property has met with dozens of delays and thousands of errors.

The majority of tax bills were mailed and paid before January 1, 1980, but in the many cases where citizens thought an error had been made at that time, they were advised to wait for their corrected tax bills. When the first abstract was run on the corrected bills about eight weeks ago on Supplement I, 1200 errors were found in the 4200 notices. Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds said this happened because of a failure in her office to cross-check with the computer's system of recording taxes due.

In Supplement II, which was completed Sunday, there are 948 tax notices.

Ken Robinson, head of the county's computer department, ran the last notices on Sunday so they would be ready for the collector's office to start work on Monday morning.

Tax Collector Fay Quick said that her office has collected a total of $6,127,829 in property taxes through April 30, and an additional $638,780.43 in automobile taxes. A heavy percentage of this goes directly to the state. The sum of $353,365.74 had to be paid off the top for the reappraisal program. Of this, $203,353.09 went to clerk hire and $150,012.65 went for the original contract payment.

However, the county general fund has received $866,326.50 as of April 30 and the road and bridge fund has received $433,864.36.

The County Commission's budget had listed $1,200,000 as the hoped-for receipts from the ad valorem tax, and it hoped for a transfer from the road and bridge fund of $610,000.

County officials do not see that the amount still to be collected will reach the budget figures. Commissioner Harold Davenport, said Monday the way it looks to him, "We might make it through July." He noted that three months of the fiscal year will still remain. The county is currently spending about $275,000 per month, he pointed out, "The sales tax won't get us through the last two months. Each one of us as Commissioners needs to think about it, get our heads together and see how we're going to get through the year."

To get through the last fiscal year, the county borrowed to its legal maximum and also borrowed against its projected revenue sharing funds for this year.

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden told the body that the legislature had raised the legal borrowing limit for counties from $100,000 to $200,000.

Commissioners agreed not to hire anyone new for any county offices as a money saving step.

Health Department changes directors

Ron Stutts was named Acting Administrator for health department services in Shelby and Chilton Counties this week. He will assume the post held by Maxine Smith, who resigned, effective May 20.

Stutts has been with the local health department for the past several years as an Environmentalist III.

Mrs. Smith was Health Services Administrator for Shelby and Chilton Counties for the past two and a half years. She resigned to accept a position with the Alabama Hospital Association.

During her tenure in Shelby County several health care programs have been added and others expanded. Among them are family and home health care; the school program, family planning, maternity clinics, the well-child clinics, and Women and infant care programs.

She has also established a graduate student nurse program at UAB, written a grant for a health wellness resource center, and worked out with Shelby Memorial Hospital plan to help patients after discharge.

In the environmental division of the health department the solid waste program has been expanded and regulations on swimming pools are being completed. That division has continued and increased its work in approving septic tank installations, and health inspections of restaurants, jails and motels.

To improve efficiency and reduce mileage costs, the environmental division was moved to the Pelham City Hall from the Columbiana office last year.

Mrs. Smith was widely praised by county officials and health care workers for her work. A tea in her honor was held in Columbiana, Monday.

Bill on Riverchase given even chance

by Marcia M. Sears

The bill to allow a vote on the annexing of Riverchase to the city of Hoover has a 50-50 chance of passing the legislature Monday.

This is what Representative J.T. "Jabo" Waggoner told the Shelby County Reporter last Thursday in the House Chamber in the state capitol.

Waggoner predicted the bill would pass the House if it came up for a vote. The only problem, he said, would be getting the bill listed high enough on the calendar so that it would be considered during the last day of the legislature. Traditionally, a flood of bills is proposed on that day and the calendar is very lengthy.

Waggoner, who has favored the bill, said, "Doug Cook and I are upset at Tommy (Snowden). He can't give us a good reason why Riverchase shouldn't be in Hoover. I might think differently if he could. It won't move the School zone lines stir parents

by Bert Seaman

A roomful of parents who would be affected by proposed zone line changes aired their views on the matter at Thursday's Board of Education meeting.

And the families who objected to moving their children from Elvin Hill Elementary to Wilsonville Elementary went away happy.

A plan drawn up by the Board of Education's central staff was aimed at sending students now attending Elvin Hill to Wilsonville Elementary to keep that school from "withering on the vine."

But after the recommendation to change the zoning line was made by Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles, no board member would make the motion.

So instead of the 30 or more students Wilsonville Elementary would have received, the actual increase in the fall will only be about a dozen.

That number will be added because they were violating existing zone lines.

The first part of the Superintendent's recommendation stated that all students in the Shelby County School system should be required to attend the school for which they are zoned.

And by a three to one vote, the Board went along with him on that count.

Knowles pointed out that 30 students out of the 725 in the Shelby County High zone area are now violating zone lines.

That means that about 15 others who are now going to Elvin Hill will have to enroll at Shelby Elementary for the fall term.

Reporting that the present enrollment at Elvin Hill is 489 with only 161 at Wilsonville and 175 at Shelby Elementary, Knowles said that the proposed plan would have reduced students at the Columbiana school to approximately 400.

By bringing the two smaller schools up to the 200 level, the Superintendent said that the delivery of educational services would be improved.

Considering the disruption of the move to students involved, Knowles recommended phasing the change by grade over a four year period.

But the failure of the Board to act leaves the students at their present schools unless the matter is brought up and acted on at another Board meeting.

Two zone lines were changed with the approval of all Board members.

At the present time, there are no families living in the area where the line is being moved east to Yellowleaf Creek.

Industry in Helena hit two times by fire

For the second time in less than two months, Alabaster and Pelham firefighters extinguished a fire at Combustion Engineers in the Helena Industrial Park.

The second fire occurred Monday, shortly after noon. Demolition workers at the scene told the Reporter they were dismantling the charred steel remains of the first fire with cutting torches, when some plastic and wooden materials in the area were inadvertently ignited.

Large flames and black smoke were showing when AFD Chief John Cochran arrived at the plant. He was quickly followed by a firefighting unit from Pelham and three backup units from Alabaster.

The blaze was restricted to the originally damaged portion of the plant and extinguished within ten minutes.

There were no injuries in the Monday fire, but at the first fire, three firefighters were hospitalized for observation due to poisonous gasses in the air. The first fire was on March 21.

Gas prices have youths digging deep in jean pockets

by Shelba Nivens

"I think it's the younger people who are being most conservative," said a mother of three Columbiana teenagers. "Why, I've heard my kids and their friends get into arguments over one gallon of gasoline."

Several Shelby County teenagers verified that such "discussions" are common among their peers.

Jack Shaw of Chelsea said, "We don't get to go as much as we use to. Usually some of us go together and all the boys pitch in and help buy the gas."

Seventeen-year-old Kevin Vincent of Columbiana told about the night he and friend, Tom Denny, were on the way to a ball game in Childersburg, but after they bought gas, had no money left for the game.

"That was back when gas stations first started showing the price of only half a gallon on their tanks," he said. "We didn't realize that and thought we had pumped $2.00 worth. It was actually $4.00. It took all the money we could scrape up between us to pay for it. We had to go back home for more money before we could go on to the ball game."

Kevin has just finished his freshman year at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa. At the beginning of the term he drove back and forth alone on week-ends, he said. But after the price of gasoline jumped up, he and Mark Cox from Wilsonville began riding together.

As another way of conserving, when they reach school they park the car and walk around campus, he said.

A Chelsea High School senior told us he had considered enrolling at Samford University next fall because it would be only a 20 or 30 minute drive from Chelsea. He could live at home and commute each day. However, after doing some figuring, he decided it would be less expensive to live on campus and pay for a room at his number one college choice.

Seemingly, local students enrolled at the University of Montevallo are also finding it less expensive to live on campus than to commute.

Joyce Haynie of UM's student housing department reported that a number of students, whose homes are in the county, live on campus.

She added that others who lived for a while in off-campus apartments have also moved back on. Most of them named high utility rates and the rising cost of food as reasons for the move. Some mentioned the gasoline situation as an additional reason, she said.

Some high school students, who previously drove cars to school, are now riding school buses.

Chelsea High student, Phyllis Shaw, wrinkled her nose in distaste as her mother said, "I let Phyllis ride the bus to school unless she has tennis practice in the afternoon."

A Pelham mother said she gives her teenage son $15.00 a week as gas allowance. "If that's gone before the week is out, it's just too bad," she said.

Scraping together gas money

Shelby County teenagers are learning to cope with the high cost of gasoline. Several often travel together in one automobile and pool their money to pay for the gas. Brothers, Kevin and Roger Vincent, of Columbiana, together with friends, Kerry Horton, Tom Denny and Mark Ledford, dig deep into pockets for enough nickels and dimes to buy a gallon.

Political meeting

Robert Armstrong (l), chats with a few members of the audience who attended the first county meeting where he spoke about plans for his upcoming race to retain the office of circuit court judge.

Campaign kicks off for Circuit Judge post

He's going to conduct his campaign in a positive manner and not run against anyone, Circuit Court Judge Robert Armstrong told supporters Friday.

His campaign organizers say they plan to hold several more meetings like that one that was held at Pelham City Hall to "tell the people in this county that he's been doing a good job."

Armstrong was serving as District Judge when Governor Fob James appointed him to replace Circuit Judge James Sharbutt when he retired early this year.

The plans are to introduce Armstrong to residents of all sections of the county and familiarize them with the format of the campaign.

"I think if you would examine my record, you would want what I stand for to continue," Armstrong told the Pelham audience.

When he was District Judge, Armstrong remarked, he had the best case disposal record in the state.

"And that wasn't because my decisions were rushed," he stressed. "They were made after careful deliberation."

His philosophy of the law, Armstrong said, is to "treat everyone fairly and equally."

Before the meeting concluded, a number of volunteers signed up to work in the campaign and some accepted chairmanships of municipalities.

Armstrong said he would welcome the opportunity to speak to clubs and civic groups.

Health officials rate county's restaurants

The following is a list of food establishment ratings within Shelby County as of May 8, 1980.

This list reflects establishments having a score of 97 or above and 89 or below.

The inspections of the establishments are conducted primarily by Jim Hollins, Jr., Environmentalist II, and Douglas W. Hayes, Environmentalist I, at the Shelby County Health Department.

Counties file asphalt suit

Shelby is one of fourteen counties in an anti-trust suit against companies involved in the sale of liquid asphalt from 1973 to 1978. Defendants are Chevron USA, Incorporated; Hunt Oil Company, Incorporated; Seminole Asphalt Refining Company, Incorporated; Vulcan Asphalt Refining Company, Incorporated and Warrior Sales and Distributors of Alabama, Incorporated.

The suit alleges that the corporations conspired to fix the price of liquid asphalts, which is used in paving and street repair projects. If the suit is successful, counties and cities involved will share in monies recovered from the five defendants.

Attorney General Charles Graddick is initiating the suit on behalf of the counties.

Drillers claim bankruptcy

Warrior Drilling and Engineering Company of Tuscaloosa, the firm that is drilling for gas or oil at Pea Ridge in Shelby County, has filed for bankruptcy.

One of its creditors, First National Bank of Birmingham, has asked that the court approve the sale of the company to Holly Corp., of Dallas, Texas, which has made a purchase proposal of $35 million.

Calera traffic discussed

by Reporter Staff

The possibility of solving Calera's traffic problems was the principal topic of discussion at this month's Calera Chamber of Commerce meeting.

Leading the discussion and answering questions was guest speaker James Braden, District Director of the Alabama State Highway Department. The luncheon meeting was held at noon, Tuesday, in the Calera Civitan Building.

It was a consensus of opinion that Calera's most dangerous intersection is the one where State Highway 25 joins U.S. Highway 31 in front of Calera High School. It was pointed out that this intersection presents a high safety risk not only because of vehicular traffic, but because of a high pedestrian factor...students and teachers going to and from Calera High School.

Another dangerous intersection is in front of the former Central State Bank building where traffic makes a sharp right or left turn.

Discussion centered on the possibility of relocating State Highway 25 between the Calera Professional Building and the old Central State Bank building. This proposal would put Highway 25 in a parallel position with the Southern Railway right-of-way between the Professional Building and the old bank building.

Those favoring this point out that it would eliminate two right angle turns that are difficult for large, truck-trailer rigs to negotiate. It would also divert Highway 25 traffic from such close proximity to Calera High School.

Braden told the chamber members that nearly all projects similar to the one envisioned for Calera, take approximately five years to complete.

In other random comments, it was pointed out that construction on I-65 in Shelby County is slightly ahead of schedule and that the Interstate may be opened for traffic into Hoover, sometime in 1980.

Doug LeSeuer told chamber members that decorative planters containing trees and bushes are now in place on Calera's Main Street. He urged property owners near the trees and bushes to water and care for them until a formal maintenance schedule can be established.

Presiding at Tuesday's meeting was Carl Pritchard. Braden was introduced by Bill Schroeder.

The organizational meeting was held Friday at Pelham City Hall.

Mayor Dunaway expressed the City Council's support of the new Chamber and stated, "It is time to have a Chamber to assist in encouraging the orderly and progressive growth of the Pelham community, and to help insure a healthy environment to provide the best goods, services, and jobs for the citizens in this community."

Mayor Dunaway added, "I see the Chamber as a means for the businessmen to take a more active and effective roll in our city government."

President Williams announced a public meeting at 7 p.m., May 28 at Pelham City Hall for persons interested in membership who need additional information.

DID YOU KNOW?
Why energy conservation makes sense for you and Alabama Power.

If our customers would reduce the amount of electricity they use during the peak demand period in the summer, it would help hold down our costs for the expensive equipment needed to meet peak demand. That would help hold down the tremendous amount of money which we have to borrow and pay back to investors. So, energy conservation can mean lower investment costs for Alabama Power as well as lower monthly bills for you.

Bid let for UM dorm

A Birmingham construction company submitted the low bid on a new student residence hall at the University of Montevallo.

Perimeter Construction Co. with a $1,532,272 bid, narrowly took the contract over six other bidders, according to Holland Floyd, executive director of the UM physical plant division.

"We were quite pleased with the bids," he said, "since all were within our estimates."

Designed by Chambliss-Killingsworth and Associates, a Montgomery architectural firm, the new residence hall will blend the traditional styles of buildings on the 83-year-old state university campus with some new twists--including kitchens in each room.

The four-floor building, which will be built around an open courtyard, will house approximately 144 students, Floyd said.

Dr. Mike Benson, director of housing at Montevallo, said the new residence hall is part of an effort to improve the quality of student housing space at Montevallo, since it should reduce the number of existing rooms that house three, and in a few cases, four students.

Construction of the new residence hall will be conducted with a low interest loan from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Excavation should begin early this summer on the one-year project, Floyd said. The residence hall will be erected on the west side of the campus adjacent to tennis courts and near other dormitories.

Renovation projects on existing residence halls are planned soon, he added.

Sullivan award winners

Winners of the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Award during UM's spring commencement were Karen Kelly of Montevallo and Dave Richardson, who was also commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force during ceremonies at the graduation. The Sullivan awards recognize top students for leadership, character and scholarship. Miss Kelly was also named a President's Scholar for having the highest grades in the UM College of Business.

The Pelham Police Department held its formal biannual firearms qualification Saturday in an abandoned chert pit on Oak Mountain in the city.

Seventeen officers and seven reservists participated in the day long exercise of handgun and shotgun target scoring. A demonstration on the penetrating powers of various guns and ammunition was performed on an old car.

Captain Allan Wade explained that the penetration demonstration was designed to show officers both what their weapons will do if fired at an automobile, and just how much protection their patrol cars will offer them in combat situations.

All target qualifications are done with the weapons the officer carries with him on duty.

Factory ammunition is used on duty, but due to its expense, reloads are often used in police weapons training. The PPD, however, used factory ammo Saturday which has a higher degree of accuracy difficulty because of its greater velocity and recoil action.

Wade said that the officers voted to use factory ammo at their last meeting, and each officer agreed to purchase his own. About 1150 rounds of handgun ammunition were shot, as well as 150 shotgun rounds.

Said Wade, "If deadly force is called for for the protection of the citizens or our officers, we want to know our people can use the tools of their trade."

Police academy pistol training calls for a 60 percent score to pass. The Pelham department, however, requires their officers to score 70 percent with a pistol in order to qualify. Shotgun qualifications require a 60 percent score.

Pelham officers and reservists are required to re-qualify every six months.

"By training and constantly updating our police department, we hope to prevent any future problems that might arise," Wade said.

The qualifications were supervised by Officer Mark Delk, a certified National Rifle Association police firearms instructor, and Officer Virgil Rice who has received special police combat training.

Wade added that to his knowledge, the Pelham force is the only department in Shelby County that has such routine formal drills.

Association for gifted plans to organize

Plans are underway to form a local chapter of ALATAG -- The Alabama Association of Talented and Gifted.

A group of Shelby County parents met May 7 with Les Helton, head of gifted education for Jefferson County, to learn more about the organization. After Helton explained ALATAG, its goals, and the way members work to achieve these goals, the group initiated procedures to form the new chapter.

A meeting for all interested persons will be held Monday, May 19 at 7:30 p.m. at Colum-biana Middle School. Officers will be elected and by-laws drafted in order to present the charter application before the next statewide ALATAG board meeting.

A spokesman for the group said, "It is hoped that uniting the efforts of those interested in insuring appropriate education for gifted and talented children in our public schools will allow a parallel improvement in the quality of education for all children."

Says grievance procedure needed

UniServ head knocks policy

by Bert Seaman

After emerging from an hour and a half executive session where problems concerning two Chelsea teachers were discussed, Shelby County Board of Education Chairman Elaine Hughes announced that no action would be taken.

But the talk behind closed doors at Thursday's Board of Education meeting touched on more than just the Chelsea teachers.

Former Vincent teacher Wayne Summers, who has been serving as UniServ Director for little more than a month, pointed out what he called "serious" personnel problems in the county.

He said that because this school system does not have a grievance procedure to follow, problems such as the one involving Chelsea fifth grade teacher Fern Little, are aggravated.

By following the Superintendent's "chain of command" process, the UniServ Director reported that instead of being solved, one problem created another.

Now, Summers maintains, there is an "inappropriate letter" in Little's personnel file which needs to be removed.

And an established evaluation procedure for teachers was something else Summers listed as being a pressing need.

On the two pages which listed personnel policies Summers would like to see implemented, he noted that teachers facing disciplinary action, non-renewal or forced resignation, often did not know the reason.

The problem concerning the other Chelsea teacher may have fallen in this category. The Board was asked to change the status of coach Mike Sims from first to second assistant.

And when the education panel was voting on the acceptance of resignations, a parent in the audience questioned the allegedly asked for resignation of Dr. Janice Hyde, the specialist in gifted education.

Her only answer was that she was out of order at that point.

The turnover rate at some schools, was mentioned by Summers as being an indictment against the present system.

One of the names on the list of resignations the Board was asked to accept was that of Richard L. Jones, Band Director at Pelham High School.

He is the third director in three years.

The board voted to accept the resignations of 14 people working as teachers, bus drivers and specialists.

Approval was also given by the panel to the consideration of non-renewal of contracts of five teachers and one person who is a bus aide and service worker at the center for exceptional children.

Reporting on a recent court decision concerning former Riverchase teacher Odessa Jackson, Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles said that it went against the Board.

After the teacher had been dismissed for incompetence, the state tenure commission had ruled the Board's action to be unjust.

Since a civil court has upheld the tenure commission decision, the next move, Knowles told Board members, will be to petition the court for a rehearing of the case.

Another matter that Summers discussed with the Board was to increase hospital-medical insurance for teacher-bus drivers.

Abiding by an Attorney General's opinion that a person filling the two jobs should receive coverage for both, the panel agreed to add an extra $247.20 to the $247.20 which is now being paid. The amount of retroactive pay the Board will be handing over comes to $3,131.20.

A vote by the panel wasn't needed since the insurance payment had been legislated by the state and was not a Board decision.

Knowles said he anticipated that the matter would be taken care of within 10-15 days.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

I wanted a record by the Mills Brothers. Maybe I would have been better off if I had wanted a pair of high top shoes. But I wanted a record by the Mills Brothers.

I saw in the paper they were having a sale at this big store. Not just a sale on records, but on a thousand other things a thousand other folks wanted.

I guess that's why I got caught in the rat race.

The guy in front of me was a little guy with a big tummy who wanted a bicycle. The sales pitch hinted it would take pounds off around the belt line and he believed it. He had been through the shoe department and the boat stalls. And now he was sidling up to the suit rack, hoping to find out if the bicycle department was anywhere near. He asked a lady who looked like a clerk ought to look if she could help him out. She didn't say a word. She just looked at him, until he sidled off again, still hunting.

When he left a lady took his spot in front of me. She jumped in, in front of another lady, and said I'm Sorry with her mouth and go-to-heck with her eyes.

"Do you know where the record bar is?" I asked her.

"Who're you wanting to hear?"

"The Mills Brothers."

She looked straight at me, without blinking an eye, and cooed: "I remember they had just such a bar in the old Peters Department Store on 51st street in the middle 30's. That was the last I heard of the Mills Brothers."

"But they're good," I said.

"Sure they are, for folks our age." She waited a minute, thinking. "But we don't buy a lot of records. Young folks do. They wouldn't know the Mills Brothers from a last winter's snow man."

Two young girls passed, heading the other way.

"If we get their new record we'll have to hurry. They're going like pie on a picnic."

I tried to get out of line and follow them. But before I could wriggle out of my line and scrouge into theirs, they had gone out of sight behind a stack of overalls.

I spied a guy with a familiar coat on. It was like a dozen other coats I'd seen on a dozen other guys. I started toward him and a fat lady got in my way. She just stood there with her eyes dreaming in a teenage dress window. I tried to get around on the right. And I tried to get around on the left. And then I said: "Reckon a guy could ever find the record department in here?"

"I wouldn't know."

"Suppose he could find a clerk, maybe to help him find the record department?"

"Now you're shooting in my range. You may find the record department, if you look long enough. But you'll never live long enough to find a clerk."

She laughed. A little laugh that bounced around in the refrigerator section.

Under The Courthouse Dome

Seventy six indictments were returned by the grand jury last week from the 95 cases that were presented.

In the report which was given Friday, 73 of the cases were listed as felonies and three as misdemeanors.

Charges were dismissed in nine cases while 10 others were continued.

Although indictments can't be listed until the defendants are notified, some of the cases on the grand jury docket were: a 1st degree assault by Ali Vatany, Rizi Jahadi and Yahia Vatany against ISS student Mike Owens; Dallas Ray Mitchell, charged with robbing the Cannon Oil Company.

Annie Joyce Moore, accused of stabbing Betty Grayson in the head with a knife; Kenny Cherry, Jeff Dean, charged with stealing a safe; Jerry Leon Hale, charged with robbery of Cannon Oil.

A vehicular homicide case which allegedly involved Hubbard Carter Taylor in the death of Eddie Lee Shanks; Daniel T. Carter and his wife Peggy, charged in the shooting of Burlon McManus Jr.

Emmett Terry Locke, charged with extorting $75 from Pamela Headly to return her dog; Lawrence Sloma, fraudulent use of a credit card.

There were 11 drug cases and two cases of sexual abuse of young girls by a middle aged male.

Jessie D. Ammons and Charles Cox were charged with escape. If indicted by the grand jury and convicted under the Alabama Habitual Offender act, the two could receive a sentence of 15 years to life.

Newly painted signs caution the public to watch out for the two stairways leading up to the courtrooms on the second floor of the courthouse.

The signs, painted at taxpayers' expense, are expected to be very helpful to those who have failed to notice the stairs since their installation in 1905. Since the courthouse does not have an elevator, it was deemed especially important to point out the stairs.

"We've been watching them all week, and they haven't done anything yet," laughed one legal secretary as she pointed to one of the four new signs.

Shelby County Board of Registrars will register new voters at Helena Community Service Building, May 27, from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Shelby County District Attorney William R. Hill Jr. is trying a first degree murder case in Tallapoosa County this week.

The appointment of Hill was made by Attorney General Charles Graddick after the victim's family made a request for the Shelby County DA.

The Shelby County DA will be prosecuting Steven Caldwell, who has been charged in the November 1979 death of Mike Henderson.

Collector lost bread and butter

Letter to the Editor:

Being taken totally by surprise on Monday my driver was informed while on his route in Harpersville by the Mayor that he did not need our service any longer. Even though he didn't see fit to notify me personally, I wish to thank the people of Harpersville for the opportunity of serving you. I have said many times how I enjoyed providing these people with a good program and how they appreciated it because it was the first professional service they had been given and something they could depend on to be run on a regular schedule.

I also wish to thank Mayor Donahoo for personally hiring me 18 months ago. This job did help my company grow with the fast growing Shelby County, even though it was not a bid job and I didn't have a contract with the city.

I regret the mayor deemed it necessary to change to a new collector because I sincerely felt we were doing a good job. I am sure the citizens of Harpersville will appreciate the leadership the Mayor is providing by getting a new less expensive collector with a month's experience in Municipal Collection. The mayor, Health Department and other bureaucrats and elected officials of this county were considering this step forward for Shelby County, Harpersville and Vincent.

I wish the new collector lots of luck in his new business.

I watch with excitement and great interest in his new method of collecting. I can see why it is a few cents cheaper.

To the best of my knowledge, he is the first to haul garbage in a moving van.

I am sincere. My business is picking up. Your garbage is my bread and butter.

Cemetery needs money

Letter to the Editor:

The Elliottsville Cemetery at Elliottsville Presbyterian Church located on Highway 119 needs help with funds.

The cemetery is deeded to itself. It is administered by four trustees for the cemetery. It is not under the guardianship of Elliottsville Church. They are two completely separate organizations with two separate bank accounts.

All monies for the upkeep of the cemetery are derived by donation alone. It now costs $140.00 to get the grass cut just one time. It needs to be cut about every two weeks from April to October and there are markers on the ground which need to be put back in their places.

If you have loved ones buried at Elliottsville and have not made a contribution to the upkeep of the cemetery, we ask that you please do so. Your donation is badly needed. Your donations can be sent to Miss Lavada Harper, Alabaster, AL 35007 or R.G. Butler, Rt. 4, Alabaster, AL 35007. Either of these will see that the money is placed where it belongs.

I am not a trustee for the cemetery but a concerned person who is aware of the problem which exists with the cemetery. My family for five generations back is buried in the cemetery and I very much want it cared for, don't you?

Picture of dead snake leaves reader rattled

Letter to the Editor:

Enclosed is a captioned photograph from the May 1, Reporter that I noted with some sadness. (The photo shows a rattlesnake that was shot at Pea Ridge.) As a trained biologist and as a person who enjoys hiking, camping, and fishing, I know that very few people are bitten by rattlesnakes and very rarely does anyone die. In fact, many more people suffer and die each year from wasp stings.

On the other hand, rattlesnakes kill and eat large numbers of rodents each year. And as we all know, rodents do millions of dollars of damage each year. Rodents also carry several diseases that are very lethal to humans. From an ecological point of view, rattlesnakes are certainly a positive factor in controlling one of man's worst enemies, rats and mice. From a safety standpoint, rattlesnakes do not represent a serious threat to humans.

Sincerely yours,

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert
Seaman

The other day, I heard about a walking tour through one of the historic districts of a nearby city.

Sounds like it would be a lot of fun. But I don't know if it would be as interesting as the driving tour I was on recently, which wended its way haphazardly through the historic section of another city.

Some family members and I planned the trip to the city, but not the tour. It was sort of an impromptu suggestion from a member of our party after we'd finished dinner.

And that was our reason for journeying to that city in the first place - to celebrate the birthdays of two family members at a quaint old restaurant.

Unfortunately, one of the birthday people couldn't make it. He claimed he didn't mind missing the treat since he eats out so much anyway.

But the way I look at things, I'd eat every meal out if I could.

And it turned out to be such an interesting evening, I'm glad I managed to wiggle out of the council meeting I was supposed to cover so I could take part in it.

The old building where we ate had once been a mercantile company. And the table where we were seated was next to the elevator where goods had been hoisted from ships on the river below.

The place just reeked with atmosphere and the food was all that could be desired too.

We even had a waitress who added to the enjoyment of the evening. As she ascended the three steps to our table, she managed to trip several times.

She made us aware of how lucky we were though. On another occasion, she told us, she had been carrying food on her tray when she had lost her footing.

All of the diners I observed were adults. But we had my little granddaughter along. And she conducted herself quite admirably through most of the evening, except for a small incident at the salad bar.

When she was told to stop hopping around, our "little darling" replied, in a voice that could be heard all over the restaurant, that she was sorry but she had to go to the bathroom!

You could have heard a pin drop as her aunt rushed her from the room while the rest of us gave our undivided attention to fixing our plates.

When we left the restaurant, our guide headed us toward the section of the city where there were some grand old homes.

We found a street which seemed to be the one he was looking for and admired the stately residences located there.

But there were others he thought we should see. And every so often he would shout "turn," just as we were crossing an intersection.

Fortunately, the driver was able to follow his instructions without being hit.

There was one particular mansion my daughter said we just "had" to see. So we searched for it up one street and down another.

When we'd see a brightly lit building, we'd head in that direction. But it usually turned out to be a hospital, nursing home, firestation or something else.

I thought we were almost there at one point when my daughter exclaimed, "Oh, I recognize those buildings. We saw them the last time we got lost here."

Anyhow, they did help her get her bearings and we soon located the historic gem she wanted us to see.

If anyone is looking for a "different" way to spend an evening, I really recommend a driving tour with a mixed up guide.

And for a little added fun, take along a tot and go to a restaurant where waitresses have a sense of humor.

School zoning changes made of the creek will be zoned for Columbiana schools and those on the east side for Vincent schools.

Another proposed zone line change that passed will allow families who now send their children to Shelby Elementary to continue doing so.

They were in the Calera zone although Shelby School is closer. So the adjustment now puts the spur road on which they live in the Shelby County High School zone.

Since October, the central staff has been working to define the zone lines that were drawn in 1969 when the county was under a federal court order to integrate schools.

Noting that the Shelby County High School zone area was the first to be studied thoroughly, Knowles said that violations of the zone lines would probably be found in other areas too.

"The Board should have stopped that a long time ago," declared Board member Jack Upchurch. However, it was pointed out that it was up to the principal at each school to determine where students should be attending classes.

Making their points

In the first student government election campaign at Columbiana Middle School, 19 students ran for office. Here backers of Ramsey Bently put on a skit to persuade students to vote for their candidate.

CMS elects government

Campaigners for one student who was running for office at Columbiana Middle School, donned dunce caps and put on a skit.

And backers of another contender for a student government office had puppets tell that student's platform.

This is the first year that students have campaigned for office at the Middle School.

Even though there were one or two unique "pitches," for the candidates, most of the campaign managers simply made a brief talk at Thursday's assembly, pointing out why their candidate should be elected.

And then the candidates themselves addressed the student body.

When the voting was completed Friday, the following students were elected to office: Kenneth Jones, president; Sheila Farmer, 1st vice-president; Mandy Vick, 2nd vp; Susan Tidmore, secretary-treasurer.

All the students who ran for office were nominated by teachers on the basis of leadership and academic ability.

Student Council sponsor Carol Hill sponsored the election.

Top family

Pelham United Methodist Church minister David Wallace (center) presented the Family of the Year plaque to one of the winning families last week. They are Mr. and Mrs. Finis McCoy, their son Richard (not pictured) and grandson Brandon.

Two families named as 'Tops' of the year

When ballots were being counted to choose the Family of the Year at the Pelham United Methodist Church, only one vote separated the two top contenders. So both families were declared winners.

And at a family night supper Wednesday, Rev. David Wallace announced that this year's outstanding families are the Finis McCoy's and the Ralph Sorrells.

The committee who worked on the annual event, stressed that the McCoy's son Richard and his five year old son Brandon were also to be included in the award.

It was noted that both families are involved in the total program of the church.

Rev. Wallace mentioned that the elder McCoy's and the Sorrells had held almost every office in the church.

On Sunday morning, the McCoy's and their son Richard sang in the chancel choir. And following his parent's example, Richard has assumed leadership in the church by taking the presidency of the Men's Fellowship and teaching in the Children's Fellowship.

It was noted that as finance chairman of the church for more than 20 years, Sorrell has had a hand in the church's growth from 20 families to 150.

Both the Sorrells have taught in the Sunday School and he continues to teach the men's class.

Mrs. Sorrell and Mrs. McCoy have been Mother of the Year nominees for the county.

One of the positions in which McCoy is now serving, is vice chairman of the Administrative Board.

The chairmen of the committee to choose the 1980 Family of the Year were Eddie and Kitty Pullen.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

Club pulls together

After having each new officer and other members of the Chandalar Garden Club take hold of a piece of rope, Dr. Norma Rogers asked, "Have you ever tried to pull dead weight?"

During the installation ceremony Wednesday, the Valley Elementary School Principal made the point that members who didn't attend meetings and help the club "go forward," were dead weight.

Asking those holding the rope to give a tug, she said that feeling the many hands on the rope "reminds us of our responsibility to work faithfully and joyfully."

Cutting the rope in pieces, she gave a length to each officer with instructions to "put it where you can see it often."

It should be a reminder, Dr. Rogers said, "of your promise to serve the club."

Officers who were installed prior to the luncheon at the

Hoover Holiday Inn were: Miriam Womack, president; Donna Welch, 1st vice-president;

Anita Latham, 2nd vp; Jan Holiday, secretary; Barbara Cooths, treasurer.

This year's spotlight shines on cucumbers

by Shelba Nivens

1980 has been declared "the Year of the Cucumber."

Why the cucumber? Well, why not?

Did you know that cucumbers are the third most popular garden vegetable in America?

They rank behind only tomatoes and beans.

Cucumber pickles take up more space on food store shelves than any other individual vegetable. And think of all the fresh cucumbers eaten, sliced, and-in salads.

Weight-watchers have long known that one large cucumber counts for only 25 calories, but contains vitamins, calcium, potassium and a little magnesium.

For these and other reasons, the National Garden Bureau dreamed up the Year of the Cucumber to give recognition to this deserving vegetable.

According to local gardeners, cucumber plants should be up by now. But, as with everything else, planting was late because of wet weather.

However, several gardeners in the Pelham area have found a way around this problem. Instead of planting seeds, they are setting out hothouse-grown plants.

Norman Wilson said his customers at a new Pelham nursery are amazed to come in and find cucumber plants, along with watermelon, cantaloupe and squash plants. Most of them have never seen these seeds sprouted inside for transplanting, he said. But, many are trying them.

B.F. Hatchett of Columbiana planted cucumber seeds outside after the ground dried out a bit, he said. His plants are now beginning to come up.

To plant, Hatchett digs large holes, 12 to 18 inches round and 12 to 18 inches deep. Before dropping in the cucumber seeds, he puts in a mixture of rich soil and either manure or commercial fertilizer. And he sometimes adds leaves, he said.

Most Shelby County

gardeners, with plenty of gardening space, let the vines ramble. But those with less space may like to restrain the vines in horseshoe-shaped wire cages or baskets. Or they may train them to run up a trellis or fence.

Up to 6 cucumber plants can be grown in an 18 inch diameter cage. This many plants would sprawl over 15 square feet of space if grown in a row at 6 inch spacing and allowed to ramble, reported NGB.

Seven-gallon capacity containers, such as baskets, half barrels and tubs, can support three to five cucumber vines. Containers should be set on 3 ft. high stands. This allows vines room to trail freely.

Plant seeds 2 inches from the rim and 9 to 12 inches apart.

Dwarf cucumbers can be planted in hanging baskets. Large containers may hold too much moisture for their restricted root system.

The Herman Whitfields of Helena usually plant cucumbers in garden rows. But one year, said Mrs. Whitfield, they planted some next to vine tomatoes growing up a trellis. The cucumber vines also climbed the trellis and did very well.

In preparation for the Year of the Cucumber, the National Garden Bureau researched the background of cucumbers.

The findings of researchers point to northern India about 3000 B.C. as the place and time of the cucumber's beginning. Records indicate that it went from India to the Middle East, then to the Far East by 5 A.D., and to England by the 1450s. All the explorers of the New World listed cucumbers as growing in areas they touched.

And did you know that the cucumber is mentioned at least twice in the Bible?

Apparently, cucumbers have been with us for a long time and can expect to stay around for yet awhile. According to seed industry estimates, 2 out of 3 home gardeners planted cucumbers in 1979.

Ready to plant

Norman Wilson, co-owner of a new Pelham nursery, says inside-grown cucumber plants for transplanting to the outside garden were as much a surprise to him as they were to his customers.

SCHS claims its fourth title at county weightlifting event

Champion iron pumpers

The Shelby County High School championship weightlifting team is made up of (from left) Guy Mitchell, Michael Burns, Daron Burns and Timothy Smith. The team ran away with the county championship by scoring 389 points. Mitchell won the individual trophy with 124 points, which were scored on a bench press of 280 pounds.

A dozen county athletes faced a heavy-duty bar exam Saturday morning in the Montevallo High School gym.

When the groaning and grunting were done, Shelby County High School walked away with their fourth consecutive County Weightlifting Championship.

Wildcat Guy Mitchell won the individual trophy with a new county record of 124 points. With one point scored for every pound pressed over the lifter's weight, Mitchell made his top score on a bench press of 280 pounds.

Not only did Mitchell shatter the previous record of 101 pounds over the lifter's weight, but two of his teammates also topped the old mark. Daron Burns, with a press of 280, scored 115 points and Timothy Smith scored 102 with a press of 265 points.

The Wildcats restaked their school's tradition of winning the four year old event with only a four man team, one lifter short of a full team. Michael Burns rounded out the Shelby County team, and together the four young men scored 389 points.

Of the other two schools participating in the championship, Montevallo finished second with a score of 334 from its five lifters, and Briarwood Christian came in third with 54 points scored by two contestants.

Eddie Sailes and Rance Gaddis of MHS lifted the fourth and fifth highest scores, with 77 and 74 points respectively.

MHS Coach Richard Gilliam officiated the event, assisted by Coach Bobby Sherrer. Gilliam explained that Briarwood was handicapped by the fact that they work out on a hydra-gym, instead of dead weights like those used in the competition.

Gilliam also noted that participation in the event was down from previous years. The weightlifting championship was originated as an incentive for off season football workout.

Under the strain

Wildcat Timothy Smith grimaces under the strain of an attempted lift of 270 pounds. Although these weights got the best of the 163 pounder, he returned on his third lift to press 265 pounds for 102 points, one point better than the previous record.

County tournament will tell who's number one in baseball

Who's the best baseball team in the county?

The answer to that big question will come Friday night at the conclusion of the 7:30 finals of the Shelby County Baseball Tournament, when one of seven ball clubs will walk away from the SCHS diamond with a championship title for their school.

Tourney action cranked off Tuesday afternoon with second seeded Calera going against the Panthers of Pelham, basement seeded with an 0-5 record.

The winner of that game will play Thursday night at 7:30 against the winner of the Tuesday's Shelby County High School/Chelsea game. The Wildcats were seeded third with a 5-3 record, the Hornets sixth with a 2-7 standing.

Vincent and Montevallo, who are developing a serious habit of facing off against each other in big games, played Tuesday to determine Thompson's opponent for Thursday's 5 p.m. game. Vincent went into the first round game with a 5-3 record, while the Bulldogs were standing at 5-4.

Top seeded Thompson bought a first round bye with a 9-0 county record.

Montevallo won the tournament last year, 2-1 over Pelham. Calera won the year before.

An eleven man All-County team will be named Friday night at the finals, as well as the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

All games are being played at Shelby County High School.

County coaches name B'wood mentor head

Briarwood Christian High School head coach and athletic director Gary Flemming has been elected president of the Shelby County Coaches Association for 1980-81. The election took place Wednesday night at the association's meeting at Shelby County High School.

Flemming will appoint the other association officers from his coaching staff at BCHS. His nomination came simultaneously from Chelsea Coach Richard Conkle, Thompson Coach Larry Simmons and Vincent Coach Harold Garrett. No other nominations were made.

With a smile, Flemming afterwards commented that he had been "railroaded" into the office.

The Briarwood coach takes over the office from Montevallo Coach Richard Gilliam.

CVA Rebels etch history with district title win

The Rebels etched a bit of Coosa Valley history Thursday afternoon, clinching their first baseball trip to the state playoffs with a 7-2 win over Shelby Academy.

"It's a big lift for everybody around here," said Coach Rick Naugher after the game. "They're beginning to think baseball really exists."

Naugher commented that last year CVA won only three games. This year they took an 11-3 record (9-2 in district competition) into the first round of playoffs Monday at home against Springwood.

Of the Springwood game, Naugher said Thursday, "I think we'll be competitive if we hit the ball."

But of his team's effort against Shelby Academy, the coach wasn't exactly over-thrilled. He was planning to hold batting practice before Monday to get a little more connection noise out of the batter's box than he got Thursday. And he wasn't too pleased with the Rebs' seven errors, four of which came on one play.

"I think we took them too lightly," Naugher said.

But CVA did win. And this is how they did it:

The visiting Raiders picked up an early, though short lived lead. Terry Crabb whacked a first inning double scoring Billy Eiland who had made it on base compliments of a Rebel error.

Then in the bottom of the first, winning pitcher Eric Davis and Troy Beavers both hit singles, and Mike Wheeler sacrificed himself to give CVA two runs and the lead.

Davis' bat again took its toll on the Raiders in the second inning, as he slammed a stand up triple which scored two of his teammates. The Rebs would have done more damage that inning, but SA retired the sides with the bases loaded.

In the third inning Coosa Valley upped the score to 5-1 when Mike Wheeler dashed home on a passed ball after the Raiders tried to pick him off at third.

Brendon McClary scored on an error for the Raiders in the fourth. Later that inning SA pitcher Scott Attaway filled the bases with Rebels, but none of those runners was able to cash in for a score.

The Raiders tried to rally in the sixth inning, starting with a ground rule double by Keith Knowles that put a dent in the side of the CVA gym. With two potential runs on base, however, Mike Wheeler saved the Rebels with a double play.

The Rebels ended the day's scoring in the sixth inning after Kevin Garrett and Davis, who got a base on ball from relief pitcher Terry Crabb. Both scored. In the same play on two passed balls by SA.

It was the fourth win for CVA pitcher Eric Davis, who struck out six Raiders, walked four and gave up six hits.

Attaway, charged with loss, struck out two batters, walked five and allowed ten hits. The Raiders were charged with eight errors, ten less than the last time the two teams met.

"That's been our problem all season," reflected SA Coach Harry Rawlinson on his team's final 1-13 record which was heavily victimized by errors. But he is looking for things to pick up next season, when he hopes to see his Raiders pull out of the twilight zone and get in the winners' circle. One consolation is his pitchers will be returning and will have some experience under their green and white caps.

Terry Crabb and Scott Attaway led the Raiders' bats Thursday, going 2-4 with a double and single, and 2-3, respectively.

Davis led the Rebel bat department, going 2-3 including a triple and 2 RBI's. Chris Studdard went 2-3 with a double and 2 RBI's. Troy Beavers and Randy Waldrop both stole four bases.

Said Coach Naugher, "Overall, I'm just real proud of them."

Alabaster Dixie Youth reach middle of season

Two Alabaster Dixie Youth baseball teams have unquestioned claims to first place at the halfway mark in the season. A game Tuesday after press time decided the Farm League leader, and a Thursday game will decide the leader in the Majors.

So far, the T-ball Royals, coached by Billy Shanahan, have bumped off every opponent they've played, putting them well out in front of the other teams. In the Farin League, the Mets and Indians were neck and neck for the first place, up until Tuesday.

At the halfway point, the Minor Mets have left no question about who's out front in their league. They are coached by De-wayne Wood.

The Rangers and the Reds have the Major League lead tie in a knot, but that knot will be untangled Thursday night when the two teams clash.

Short stopped

Cardinal Phillip Threatt gets thrown out at first base by Oriole short stop Darren Cook in Alabaster Major League action Saturday. The Cards won it, however, 7-0.

Lay Lake report

Rapala and spinner bait land bass

Fishing reports from Lay Lake aren't exactly consistent, but they don't fluctuate as much as the water level. At any rate, the bass seem to be biting more than in previous weeks.

If the lure of catching a stringer of bass isn't enough incentive to get out and wet a line this week, then maybe the fact that fishing is an act of patriotism will bring more people out on the water.

Patriotism? Well, after all, May 12-18 is National Fishing Week. And isn't that right up there with apple pie and baseball?

Daryl Hyche, who for some reason does a lot of fishing out of Waxahatchee, says that the old rapala is making an unexpected comeback, contrary to the pitches of the lure salesmen who call on the lake's fishing camps.

For the best results, use a surface rapala and lay it out in the weeds and logs around the banks. Try a silver one on for size.

But according to Gevon Glenn, who got familiar with Lay's waters because his family is from the Columbiana area, if you want to catch the larger bass, go with spinner bait. The rapalas, he says, are fine, but are only bringing in medium sizers.

The big 'uns are apparently hanging out in the timber and log jams, playing sneaky under the stumps. Glenn claims the rapalas is too hard to work where the log hogs hide, so he uses spinner bait, or maybe a weedless worm.

Early in the day, a Dudley can be deadly, as the pun goes. Put it in the timber near the banks and buzz it on the surface.

A couple of the better sized bass Glenn brought in last week had been working on their beds, judging by their skinned up tails. But all the fish don't bed at the same time.

Ernest Armstrong and his crew on the Waxahatchee are predicting that the bass will be coming on strong in a week or so. But for right now most people are still after crappie, he says.

(One night last week somebody caught an 18 pound carp with a Vienna sausage, fishing off Armstrong's pier. This prompted a comment from another table that some mystical fisherman caught an 18 pound crappie with a four pound cricket...take it or leave it.)

Along more serious fishing lines, Sandra Kendrick reports that she has had pretty good luck with crappie using a white gig near the banks.

The catfish are starting to make their annual upriver spawning swim, so action on the Clorox bottles should be getting better, too.

Since no one ever bothered to tell the catfish about Logan Martin Dam, the whiskered fish get confused about the time they swim up past Vincent. So a good many people take to snag fishing below the dam, but if the power company has the number one turbine gate open, the water is usually too swift to have very much luck. If gates two and three are open, however, there's a fair chance of seeing some big cats come out of the water there.

If anyone catches one of those 40-pounders, be sure to let us know at the Reporter.

And if anyone catches a bass that weighs in at 19 pounds, call us and we'll get in touch with Field and Stream for you. We promise.

Snag fishing

Fishermen below Logan Martin Dam claim that snag fishing for catfish is no good when turbine gate number one is opened and churning the water, as it was last Thursday afternoon. Fisherman Tom Lindsey says that on Lay Lake the catfish are starting to hit shad off the bottom.

Montevallo Falcons win Southern States Conference title

Never mind the fact that the University of Montevallo baseball team entered last week's Southern States Conference Tournament with a lowly 25-25 record. Disregard the Falcons' second-place finish in the North Division at 7-9. And forget the idea that the Falcons could not win without leading hitter Mike Dunn in the lineup.

When the chips were down, Montevallo played its finest baseball of the season, and as a result, the Falcons won the 1980 Southern States Conference baseball championships.

It is the first SSC baseball crown for the Falcons, and they certainly did not pick on any pushovers to win it. First, they had to knock off 13th-ranked Williams Carey College on the Crusaders' home field in Hattiesburg, Miss., and then they had to beat 3rd-ranked Birmingham-Southern College, not once but twice.

And do it they did, edging Carey 4-3 on Greg Key's dramatic two-run homer in the last of the ninth, nipping 'Southern 3-2 on Harris Gant's RBI single also in the bottom of the ninth, and then erasing all doubt with a 6-3 win in the finale.

In Tuesday night's game the Birmingham-Southern Panthers jumped ahead 1-0 in the top of the first, but the Falcons prevented further damage with an inning-ending double play.

Damage was done, however, to shortstop Dunn, who was cleated on the ankle while leaping to avoid base runner Tom French on the twin killing and needed five stitches to close the wound. He was lost for the rest of the tournament, but is expected back for this week's NAIA District 27 Playoffs.

At the bottom of the eighth, the score stood tied at 2-2, setting the stage for a very controversial finish.

With one down in the ninth, Tommy Walker drew a free pass from BSC reliever Alex McCulloch, and Robbie Guesnard sacrificed Riddle, running for Walker, to second. That brought up Gant, who had two hits already, and he promptly lined the first pitch to center, sending Riddle speeding toward home.

Mark Miranda's throw home arrived just ahead of Riddle, who put a beautiful hook slide around catcher Doug Pennington. The umpire started to rule him out, then signaled him safe, saying that Pennington had missed the tag.

That emptied both benches, the Falcons to mob Gant and Riddle, the Panthers and Coach Bill Meyer to vehemently swarm the umpire, but to no avail. That made a winner of UM ace Tom Bukovac (6-4), who hurled a strong nine-inning game.

'Southern clobbered Carey 16-4 Friday afternoon to set up the title game.

In hopes of nailing it down, UM coach Bob Riesener turned to fireballing right-handed Brad Edlefsen. He gave the Falcons 6½ strong innings, allowing only five hits while striking out seven and walking four. Judy came on then to hurl 2½ innings of one-hit ball, earning his second save.

In the meantime, the Falcons pounded out 13 hits. Hendershot singled for the first UM run in the first, and Railey broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth with a soft single to left. Moments later, Mike McLeod all but iced the game with a towering three-run homer to left for a 5-1 lead, and Hendershot's grounder got Montevallo a final run in the sixth.

A happy but exhausted Riesener heaped mounds of praise on his team's pitching and defense, the biggest problems earlier in the up-and-down season.

"I said at the beginning of the year that pitching and defense would be our strong points, but we didn't show it there for a while," he reflected. "But it sure came through when we needed it."

"I'm so proud of that big guy," Riesener beamed of Edlefsen. "We've been working real hard with him lately, to relax him and build up his confidence, and tonight, in the biggest game of the season for us, he really came through."

The Falcons now face an even bigger challenge. The NAIA District 27 Playoffs begin Wednesday at Rickwood Field in Birmingham, and Montevallo will take on those same Panthers in their first-round game at 4 p.m. The Falcons upset favored to Birmingham-Southern there in 1978.

County Baseball wrap-up

The close game of the week award has to go to Shelby County and Montevallo. SCHS won it 1-0.

With Dan Head on the mound for the Wildcats and Bret Jones pitching for the Bulldogs, the two teams went nearly six and half innings with no one making it across home plate.

Then, in the bottom of the sixth, with two outs, Wildcat Dana Vansant got a base on balls, and stole second. On what proved to be the only error of the game, he then made it safely to third.

"I figured we had nothing to lose and everything to win," commented Shelby County Coach Bill Reid on his decision to have Vansant steal home. And he was right.

Vansant took off for the plate as Jones went into his stretch. The pitch went a little wide and Vansant slid in for the win.

Of the seven hits given up in the game, all were singles and five of them belonged to Montevallo. Head struck out eight batters and walked two for the win. Jones struck out eleven batters, walked three and hit one.

It was the last game of the regular season before the tournament for MHS.

In other action last week, the Wildcats lost to Clanton 4-2 on Tuesday. They were ahead 2-1 with two outs in the bottom of the sixth, when they gave up three unearned runs.

Monday against Vincent, SCHS lost 4-3, again the victim of unearned runs. "We didn't do anything," said Reid.

The Wildcats carried a 9-10 record into a Monday game against Chelsea's 2-9 standings. The younger players on both teams were expected to see some playing time that day.

Monday a week ago the Hornets fell 9-3 to Thompson, as the Warriors exploded for seven runs in the fourth inning. John Durrett was the winning pitcher, allowing only two hits and two walks, while striking out nine batters.

Chelsea lost to Minor Christian 8-6 Thursday. Assistant Coach Mike Sims attributed the loss to five errors.

Vincent Coach Harold Garrett described his team's game against SCHS as "lackluster," adding that the brightest aspect of the seven innings was Barry Ball's pitching game. Ball gave up only three hits.

Garrett said he became a believer of the explosive power of the Thompson bats after the Jackets fell to THS 10-3 Monday.

Thompson was out front 4-3 going into the top of the seventh, when the Warriors unleashed their big sticks. Seven hits later when the dust had settled, Thompson was on top 10-3, leaving Vincent an 8-6 record to take to Columbiana on Tuesday.

For Thompson that game, David Cofer smashed a two run homer in the first inning and a double later on to go 2-4 batting. Jimmy Cocke went 4-4 including a double, and Steve Smitherman went 2-3.

Jim Stanbridge pitched four innings for THS to pick up the win. John Durrett relieved him in the last three innings.

But all was not bright for the Red Tornado last week, as they fell 4-0 to Bibb County on Tuesday. Nonetheless, the Warriors will take a fine 17-4 record with them when they step into second round action in the county tournament today.

Though Calera is 3-1 against county teams, the Eagles will go into the tournament with a 9-10 record.

They got there with a 2-1 loss to Thorsby, a 13-2 win over Isabella, and a 14-4 loss to Jemison, all last week.

The Thorsby game was a close second to the closest game of the week award. Thorsby had a no-hitter going into the eighth when Calera scored. But Thorsby answered the challenge with two runs of their own.

Randy Barefield picked up the Eagles' win over Isabella. He was helped out on offense by Jeff Stewart who slugged a home run, and a triple by Ricky Winterbottom.

In all Calera collected a dozen hits in the day's batting practice.

SA honors Raiders

Shelby Academy honored its Raiders Friday night with its annual sports banquet. The event was held in the Montevallo Room on the UM campus.

The guest speaker for the evening was St. Louis Cardinals' center, Tom Banks, a Birmingham native who played for the Auburn Tigers up until 1970.

Besides making the Senior Bowl team that year, Banks was named to the first Pro Bowl team in 1976, an occasion that gave him the greatest feeling of his professional football career, he told the crowd.

Banks centered most of his talk around the pro players he has come in contact with over the years, pointing out that the one thing "all these crazy guys" had in common was a strong desire to excel and the determination to carry out that desire. After that he fielded questions from the crowd.

In answer to one question, Banks told the crowd that size and speed are extremely important to the football player. ("When you're quick and weigh 300 pounds, you can pretty much do what you want to.") He suggested that the athletes work out with weights during the off season, play racketball or basketball, and run or ride a bike.

Basketball Coach Dewayne Kervin presented letters and certificates to varsity and junior varsity players of the 1979-80 season.

Dirk Carson was named varsity basketball MVP, and James Knowles was named junior varsity MVP.

James Knowles, who also coached the junior high roundballers to an 11-4 record, presented certificates to his team and named Keith Knowles as MVP.

Softball Coach Jo Ellen Harbin passed out certificates to her girl players and cheerleader squads. Lee Snow was named as the Raiders' softball MVP.

Coach Billy Young presented certificates to his junior high football team, naming Keith Knowles as that squad's MVP.

Head Coach Harry Rawlinson gave out letters and certificates to the varsity football players and baseball players. He commented, "I have learned that winning is not everything," adding that he is "quite optimistic" about next season.

Rawlinson handed out football trophies to MVP Jim Terrell, Most Improved Jim Kelly, and Most Dedicated Alan Howard.

Rawlinson named Billy Eiland as his baseball MVP. Furthermore, the coach pointed out Scott Attaway as the only athlete in the school to letter in baseball, football and basketball.

The cheerleaders presented Coach Harbin with flowers, and gave trophies to the basketball teams.

The football players presented the coaches with gift certificates, and a lawn chair was given to Banks in appreciation of his talk.

SA principal Jimmy Miller gave the invocation and recognized the parents present at the banquet, as well as the wives of the coaches.

Top Raiders, plus one

Had St. Louis Cardinal Tom Banks (right) played for the Raiders instead of speaking at their sports banquet, SA's record last year would have undoubtedly been improved.

Most valuable at Shelby Academy

ball, Lee Snow, softball, Billy Eiland, varsity baseball, and Keith Knowles, junior high basketball.

Markspeople

The AA winners in the Vincent invitational shoot last weekend were (from bottom left) Pam Woods, second, Debra Simmons, third, Debra Gray, first (all from the Vincent club), Joe Sorrell, first, Frank Shell, second and Buford Guthrie, third, who is also from the Vincent club.

At Vincent shoot

Bowhunters make points

The Creek Archery Club, Howard Hill Bow Hunters held their first invitational shoot of the season at their Vincent archery range last weekend. More than 100 archers from around the state participated in the event.

For the women bowhunters in the Vincent club it was a big weekend, as they swept first, second and third place in the top AA Class.

Among the guest clubs represented at the shoot were Alabama Bowhunters' Association, Smith Lake Bowhunters, Vulcan Archery Club, Broken Arrow Bowhunters, clubs from Cullman, Walker and Tuscaloosa Counties, and the Howard Hill Archery Club--Home of the Longbow, from Wilsonville.

Sunday evening after all the rounds had been completed on the 28 target course, club president Larry Simmons presented the class winners with their trophies and plaques.

First place winners in the men's competition were Joe Sorrell (AA), Roger Thomas (A), Woody Adams (B), Jamie Turner (C), and Mike Banks (Open).

First place winners in the women's competition were Debra Gray of the Vincent club (AA), Becky Wright (A), Beverly Turner (B), and Betty Russell (Open).

In the boy's youth division, Kyle Spates of the Vincent club won first (A), and Stoney Johnson of the Wilsonville club won first (B).

Tammy Jardon won first place in the girl's youth competition.

The clubs will hold a night shoot this Saturday in Vincent. More information on that is available from Simmons at 672-7124.

Cinderella keeps winning

They don't have an official mascot name, at least not yet. But the SEPCO/MMI women's softball squad is quickly earning the reputation as a "Cinderella" team.

The name just might stick. If it does, it will be fitting and proper. Seemingly, the Cinderellas came from nowhere, and already, in this their first season, they have amassed a 19-3 record.

To say their coaching staff, made up of Danny Deshazo, Pete Atkisson and Rusty Kendrick, is pleased with their diamond club is an understatement along the lines of "Babe Ruth was a fair baseball player."

Last Saturday at the Warrior

Invitational Tournament, the Cinderellas walked away with first place. On their way to the tourney win they downed Daney 13-0, the Hornets from Gardendale 3-1, and Clyde Turner Realty from Huffman 9-0 and 13-12 in the finals.

Twelve teams competed in the tournament.

Finishing auditorium

Workmen are completing the interior of the new multi-purpose auditorium at Shelby Elementary School. The building was built with funds raised locally by several community projects. By this week almost all work has been completed with the exception of staining of the walls and a few finishing touches.

Wildcat drillers hit dry hole; decide to close down operation

by Marcia M. Sears

First steps were taken last week to close down the oil drilling operations at Pea Ridge.

The drillers went down to a depth of 12,520 feet, and apparently found nothing but trouble.

The Alabama State Oil and Gas Board received a request from the drillers on Friday asking for permission to begin plugging operations, according to Dr. Tom Joiner of the board.

Joiner told the Shelby County Reporter it was his understanding the drillers had encountered "an awful lot of drilling problems" in the several months the operation has been underway.

The wildcat well was started in the hope of finding oil or gas. It was known at the outset that the risks were great and the possibility of finding the energy supplies might be slim.

But careful geologic studies had indicated that the site near the historic coal fields of southwestern Shelby County was probably the most promising in the county.

Warrior Drilling Company, based in Tuscaloosa, started operations in October of 1979 and continued around-the-clock until they reached the depth they had originally determined as the limit.

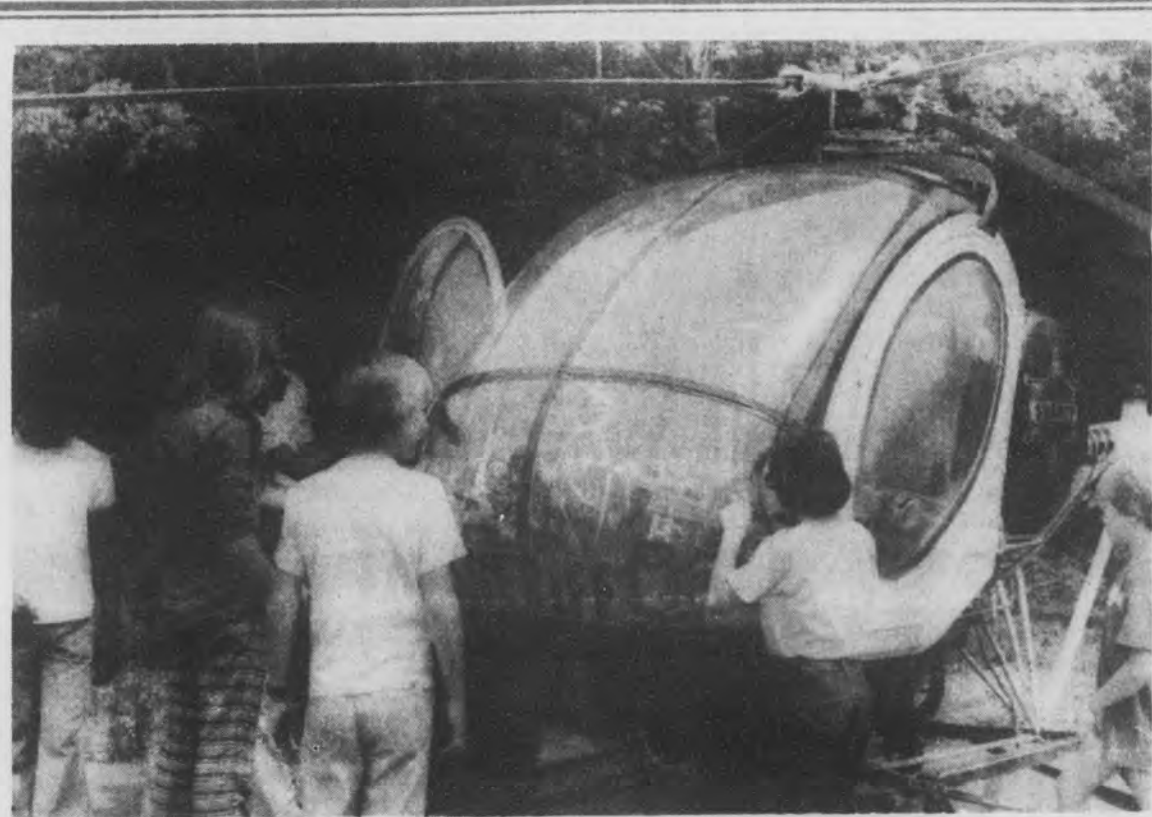

The financial backers of the company held meetings last week to decide whether to drill deeper or to plug the hole. After consideration of all the factors, they apparently decided to give up and seek permission to plug the hole.

Joiner told the Reporter it is common place for rumors to circulate throughout a community when this happens. The rumors usually are to the effect that the company has hit oil or gas and wants to fool the public, so the company can buy up leases on nearby land for a small amount of money, then go back in, uncup the well and reap a fortune. Joiner said he has never known of an instance where this really happened.

State laws will not allow a company to cap a well if it is a producer. The law also requires drilling companies to report their findings regularly to the State Oil and Gas Board.

Warrior Drilling Company was known to have had cash flow problems recently, and had taken preliminary steps toward bankruptcy. The proposed sale of the company to a Dallas, Texas company did not go through, according to recent reports from reliable sources.

Looking in the bubble

Youngsters who attended the Special Education Day Camp at the Shelby County Airport Thursday, were especially interested in the Sheriff's helicopter. Explorer Posts 5 and 561 assisted with the camp, which was sponsored by the Cahaba Boy Scout Council.

Election fever spreads in cities

Filing is underway in all 10 Shelby County municipalities for the election of mayors and council positions. Terms are for four years.

Residents of any of the cities may file papers with the city clerk to run for any of the five offices on the city councils or for the office of mayor.

The last day to qualify for these offices will be June 3. Election day is July 8. Any necessary runoff elections will be held on July 29.

Most of the incumbent mayors are expected to seek reelection. They are: Alabaster, Charlotte Burke; Calera, George Roy; Columbiana, Bob Bolton; Harpersville, J.W. Donahoe; Helena, Charles Penhale; Montevallo, Ralph Sears; Pelham, Burk Dunaway; Vincent, D.B. Smith; Wilsonville, Austin Mitchell and Wilton, Mickey Henson.

UM wins increase

In the education budget passed this week by the state legislature, the University of Montevallo received $6.5 million.

The amount is more than a $1.1 million increase over the current year's appropriation.

Most of the increase will go to salary increases, which the board of trustees had called their top priority.

The remainder will help increase library holdings, add a few new secretaries, buy a few new pieces of equipment and work toward the accreditation of the College of Business.

UM officials praised the legislators who led the effort to get the university's appropriation increased. Last year, Montevallo received 'level funding' from the state, the same $5.4 million appropriation it had received the year before.

Split-office bill passes

A bill which is sure to stir controversy in Shelby County passed the legislature Monday. It will allow the voters to decide if the present duties of the probate judge should be separated into two offices.

The bill to split the offices of probate judge and chairman of the county commission which passed, was the one that was originally advertised. Even if the voters decide to split the offices, the change will not take place until the term of the present probate judge expires.

Judge Tommy Snowden backed the bill, having made a promise to do so at the time of his election. But midway in this legislative session, the original bill was amended in such a way that the split would occur this fall and the new person could have been appointed by political leaders.

Snowden pointed out that it is unconstitutional to change duties during a term of office, so the amended bill was dropped.

The matter will probably come up for a vote in the September primaries.

Other bills affecting Shelby County which cleared the legislative hurdle included the Riverchase annexation (see other story), a bill to employ a county licensing inspector, a tough licensing bill for mobile homes, a bill to increase the pay of part time bailiffs to $40 per day, and a bill repealing the law on restriction of computer print-outs of the voter list.

Auburn Police Chief Barney Hardy (third from left), was the speaker at last week's Fraternal Order of Police meeting at the Shelby County Lodge off Hwy. 26. Shown chatting with Hardy are: Alabaster Police Chief, C. E. Carter; FOP President, Lyle Mitchell; Lodge Conductor, Virgil Rice.

In Alabaster

Candidates start signing up

Alabaster Mayor Charlotte Burke learned Monday night that she's going to have some opposition in her race for that office in July.

H. A. "Doc" Rubin qualified to make his third race for mayor of the city at Monday night's council meeting.

The only member of the present council who qualified at the meeting was Roger Wheeler, who was recently appointed to place 3, formerly held by Mayor Burke.

Calvin T. McCune, a 16 year resident of Alabaster, signed up to run for place 1 which Dan Gillis now occupies. The pharmacist gave business obligations as his reason for not seeking election.

On Tuesday, another member of the panel decided to seek reelection. Councilman Wayne Lucas had reported earlier that he might not run.

Helena McMillan also qualified the next morning. She will be running for place 4, Gene Glasgow's seat.

Glasgow had not qualified at presstime Tuesday nor had Councilwoman Mayo Taylor.

Advertising executive Tom Kimbrough and Alabaster Chamber of Commerce representative George Purpura were at the meeting to hear the panel's decision on their request for funds.

Although it was agreed the city needed a brochure distributed on what it has to offer new residents, industry and business, the panel decided the budget wouldn't stand the $4,000 expense.

Gillis suggested putting the funds in next year's budget as a justifiable expense.

However, the city's governing body felt that a machine to combat mosquitoes was a pressing need.

By a unanimous vote, they agreed to purchase a steam cleaning machine which can be used as a mosquito sprayer.

Even though the county is trying to control the insects, it was pointed out that their one machine couldn't handle the job at the height of the mosquito season.

The new machine will cost

$1,750. But the Mayor noted a private company which the city employed to spray last year, charged $398.75 per trip.

Emphasizing that the purchase of the new machine would save the city money, Mayor Burke pointed out that hiring the job done would cost over $1,500 a month.

One complaint heard at the meeting was the failure of the city to hire blacks as office workers, policemen or firemen.

Arguing that attempts had been made to employ a black policeman, Lt. Leroy Davis named a number who had worked as auxiliary policeman but who had declined to work as fulltime policeman.

The problem, according to the mayor, is finding a qualified black person to fill vacancies when they occur.

Although no decision was made on the matter, there was some discussion of relocating fire sirens to be used as a warning when a tornado is sighted in the area.

In other business, Mayor

Burke was appointed to replace Jack Zuiderhoek on the Water and Gas Board, and an off-premise beer license was granted to Luther Pruitt for Hat's Place on 1st Ave. North.

Riverchase bill clears House

Residents of Riverchase will be allowed to vote on whether or not they wish to be incorporated into the City of Hoover.

A bill allowing the vote was approved by the House of Representatives late on the last day of the legislative session. The bill was opposed by the Shelby County Commission, who did not want to see any Shelby County territory incorporated into a city in another county.

Rep. Sonny Moore of Shelby County vigorously opposed the bill in the House but the vote on it was 10-7 in favor. Rep. Curtis Smith also opposed it.

But Rep. J. T. "Jabo" Waggoner said 99 percent of the residents of Riverchase will vote in favor of joining Hoover.

The move was pushed by John Harbert, leader in developing Riverchase. A sewerage treatment plant will be built to serve the area by the City of Hoover at an estimated $3 million if the residents vote to join Hoover.

Wilson challenges Dunaway

Four candidates seeking to gain or keep seats in the Pelham municipal government, wasted no time in filing their candidacy statements.

At the Pelham council meeting Monday night, Mayor Burk Dunaway officially announced the election notice and said that candidates could file their statements beginning at 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Tuesday afternoon, City Clerk Willie Mae Dennie told the Reporter that four statements had been filed so far.

Incumbent Burk Dunaway will face former Councilman Allen Wilson, who filed for the mayor's office.

Landon Martin will be seeking place number five on the council which is presently held by Ray Hamilton.

Councilman John Tanner will be seeking reelection for seat number two on the council.

Statements of candidacy can be filed at city hall up until 5 p.m. on June 3.

Man killed at dairy

A Pelham man was accidentally killed Sunday morning when he fell into a grain feed conveyor trough. Mike Lucas, 22, was pronounced dead on arrival at Shelby Memorial Hospital.

The accident occurred at 9 a.m. on the dairy farm of Charles Hinds, located of Hwy. 52, where Lucas worked and lived with his family.

Hinds, who was working in the silo above the conveyor when the accident happened, put out the call for help.

PFD Lt. Jerry Lamb, paramedics Danny Endress and Seth Watkins, and Pelham maintenance man Melton Dearing worked for half an hour, giving Lucas CPR and first aid, before he was freed of the machine. During this time, Dearing accidentally cut himself on the blades of the conveyor auger and was later given several stitches in his arm.

Purdy Dam claims life

A Birmingham Water Works employee died Friday after a fall of some 50 feet from the Lake Purdy Dam.

According to Shelby County Chief Deputy James Jones, J.T. Loggins, of Jefferson County, fell from the dam at 10:50 a.m. and died an hour later at Brookwood Hospital.

J.D. Colee, general manager of the water board, refused to give any details as to the cause of the accident, but said that Loggins had been with the company since 1966, and was one of the foremen on a project to grout cavities at the Shelby County dam.

Witnesses to the accident told Jones that Loggins was attempting to climb down the 60 foot, tiered stone structure when he fell.

Needs and opportunities

The wide variety of news this week points up both the needs and opportunities Shelby County citizens face in dealing with their future.

We have the Riverchase developers pushing for incorporation into a Jefferson County city; we have Cahaba Valley residents opposing condominiums in Beat 12, and winning; we have dreams of oil fortune dashed with the news of a dry hole; we have a vote coming up on splitting the office of probate judge - which would be a historic break with past practices; we have persons qualifying to run for elective office in our cities; and we have hundreds of our young people taking that great step into adulthood with their graduation from high school.

This is a time to assess our present situation and look into the future. The votes we cast, and the people we elect to lead us in the next few years will largely shape that future. The bright young people we are graduating can contribute significantly and we certainly need their fresh ideas, their energy and their skills.

It's a good week to analyze the good and the bad in the way we live. Then we can go forward with enthusiasm to create a better Shelby County.

City hall news

Helena residents want no rate increase

Twenty residents turned out in Helena Monday night for the regular council meeting. Much of the discussion time was given to the topics of gas rates and the cleanup of Liberty Heights.

For the second time in as many council meetings, they voiced their concern over the proposed increases in gas and water rates. Already, they said, the rates are too high.

Also for the second time in as many meetings, Mayor Charles Penhale informed the residents that the council has no authority over the gas and water board, which set the rates, even though the board is composed of the mayor and Councilman Bill Harris. The third board member is Grady Wilson.

Penhale informed the citizens that the rates would come up for consideration at the board's next meeting on June 3.

In other action, residents of Liberty Heights told the council a cleanup of that section was greatly needed.

The council said they would back the residents in a citizen cleanup campaign there.

Mayor Penhale proclaimed 1980 as Election year, and officially set the opening for candidacy qualifications Tuesday morning.

Already several candidates have made public their intention of seeking these offices. Herman Jenkins, Jr., Billy Ray Hinds and C.W. Fulgham have said they will be seeking a seat on the council come election day July 8.

Councilman Paul Cribbs has also said publicly that he intends to run for mayor.

Candidacy qualifications can be filed at the city hall up until June 3.

All councilman were present at the meeting.

Condo re-zoning plea denied

Over 100 residents of the Cahaba Valley crowded into the Planning Commission's meeting Monday night to oppose a zoning change in Beat 12.

Developer Emmett Cloud wanted to change the zoning in 'Havenwood' an area near Indian Valley from single family to multi-family. He submitted a plan for building condominiums. The area has exits to Valleydale Road and Comanche Drive.

Larry Dillard, who lives in the valley said, "We don't want anything but single family dwellings. With Inverness and Riverchase, on each side of us, there are plenty of condos and apartments. he said however, that "If it has to be, Emmett Cloud would be the best one to develop it. He has a good reputation in the valley."

Several others raised questions about traffic, septic tanks, the right of privacy and property values. Anyone who wished was given the chance to speak, including Dan Taylor of the Indian Valley Homeowners Association.

When the remarks were finished, the commission voted unanimously not to rezone and applause resounded throughout the room.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Have you ever walked into your house around 10 or 11 o'clock at night, flipped on the light switch, and found yourself still in total darkness?

If it hasn't happened to you, I hope it never does.

That's the experience that befell me Tuesday evening, and I tell you, it was scary!

After putting the paper to bed, I was ready to hit the hay myself when I walked in the door.

But, it was not so to be.

Thinking the bulb might have expired, I groped my way into the next room and hit that switch.

Still nothing!

"Could they be working on the power lines this time of night?" I wondered.

And then the thought drifted through my mind, of those bad guys you see on TV programs, cutting the wires before going in to a home to wait for their victim.

"Oh, that couldn't be," I laughed to myself. But I began to back quickly and quietly out the door, just the same.

Telling myself that the power must be off for some reason everywhere in the neighborhood, I decided to drive by some nearby houses and see if they had lights.

When I saw that they did, I was aghast.

Sure now that I had an intruder, I drove to my daughter's home to use the telephone. But before calling the police, I decided to check with the power company just to be absolutely sure they weren't responsible for my blackout.

Well, to say that I was amazed by what I learned would be an understatement.

"Of course we've cut off your power," the man who answered declared. "You haven't paid your bill."

Okay, I'll admit I'm absent-minded. Sometimes I just plain forget and then one day there's a little pink slip on my door saying pay up or else...

But this time I hadn't seen any slip and I assured the man I most certainly had paid my bill.

He allowed that if I was absolutely positive I had paid, he would try to get permission for my lights to be turned on.

Much to my relief, he got the go-ahead. But just to make sure the electricity would be flowing again by the time I reached home, I stayed awhile and visited with my daughter.

And it's a good thing I lingered. He apparently had just completed his job when I arrived. Laughing a little nervously as I approached, he said, "I guess your son must have thought I was trying to break in."

Deciding not to ask for an explanation, I just thanked him for his trouble and went in to see what had happened.

Of course my son had been in the dark about the reason for the electricity failure and hadn't known anyone was coming to the house to remedy the situation.

So when he heard someone fumbling around outside, he had demanded an explanation for their presence, in what I'm sure must have been a threatening tone.

Poor ole power man. It's a wonder he didn't just take off.

Even though I had a very clear recollection of paying my bill, the next morning I looked at my check stubs to be absolutely certain.

Now I may not balance my checkbook all the time, but I always record what I spend.

But there was no entry.

And I always hang on to the customer's part of the bill - sometimes for years.

On this occasion, however, I thought I remembered chucking it out, deciding there really was no purpose in saving them anymore.

Beginning to wonder if my memory was playing tricks on me, I went to the company's office and asked one of the girls behind the counter if she remembered me coming in.

When she said no, I was sure I had lost my mind. And when the other employee pushed a button and looked at the computer screen with a frown, I was sure I was in trouble.

But after getting my address and pushing again, the record of my payment popped up on the screen.

If it hadn't, they might have had to drag me off to the looney bin.

Questioning why someone hadn't checked with her before turning me off, she said nonchalantly that she must have slipped up.

It's refreshing to know that someone else can be forgetful too. But I hope we can both do better in the future.

My son has replaced all the old lightbulbs, so if I throw the switch again and nothing happens, I'll think someone is waiting to clobber me for sure.

Under The Courthouse Dome

A prisoner at the Shelby County jail made his second escape attempt Monday.

But instead of going out a window of the jail as he had two months earlier, this time Matthew Bullock went out a window in the Shelby County Courthouse.

After a short chase by Jail Administrator Wayne Lucas and Probation officer Jim Cotton, the prisoner was apprehended and returned to the courtroom.

The incident occurred as pleas were being heard by Circuit Judge Harold Walden who presides over the 18th Judicial Circuit.

Seated in the jury box with other prisoners, Bullock suddenly moved to the window and jumped out.

After landing in the courthouse parking lot two stories below the courtroom, he raced across the street behind the Methodist Church.

But Lucas and Cotton were in hot pursuit and caught up with the prisoner in the backyard of a nearby home belonging to Buck Falkner.

In his earlier escape attempt March 4, Bullock and another prisoner, Ricky Hale, climbed down a ladder while a window at the jail was being replaced.

On that occasion, he was found hiding in the back of a laundry truck parked at Farr's Garage about two hours after the break-out.

Bullock now faces two escape charges. He also has been charged with a burglary during his first escape, and with robbing the Kid-die Caboose in Pelham.

A jury was selected Tuesday to hear evidence in a case where Bobby Joe Hope of Shelby is the defendant.

Jurors named were Nadine Jackson, R.S. Anderson, Gilbert Lacy Ennis, James Victor Terrell, Newman Wayne Taylor, Phillip Bakane, Joanne Stevenson, Michael Johnson, Rachel Leemon, Rosalyn McClure, Etherage Brasher and David Tim Harrison.

Telephone problems plague the three county landfill operations. The county commission heard about long distance calls employees were making and asked Solid Waste Supervisor Carlton Franks to handle the situation.

Franks said he does not know why the phones were set up on the basis of 75 calls per month. "I don't know how to control the calls," he told the commissioners.

The commission will meet Friday at the county library for a regular meeting instead of next Monday, because of Memorial Day.

Over 5,000 tax notices were mailed last Friday by Tax Collector Fay Quick.

The notices went out to those persons whose property had not been correctly assessed, or who had protested errors in assessment. The taxes are for the calendar year 1979.

Monday and Tuesday the telephones were ringing off the hook in the Tax Assessor's and Collector's offices, apparently with questions about the notices.

But Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds, and two of her assistants were at an earlier scheduled training session out of the county.

When payments are completed from these tax notices, the County will know just how much income they can expect from ad valorem taxes. Figuring has begun on taxes for 1980 and notices should be in the mail by September 30.

Congressman Richard Shelby is including a stop at Helena on his town meeting schedule for Tuesday, May 27.

He will be at the Helena Town Hall at 5 p.m. to meet with anyone who wishes to see him.

Earlier in the day he has scheduled meetings at four city halls in west Jefferson County.

Shelby County Coroner Billy Thompson was admitted to Shelby Memorial Hospital Saturday for observation.

Mary Thompson, his wife, said Tuesday evening that he was resting comfortably and feeling better.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

In the middle 30's Uncle Henry Stone had chickens in three houses. He had more hens than two guys could count and not a rooster on his whole 40 acres. He had two dogs and a mule and four hogs and two cows and two calves, but not a rooster.

And he had an egg route, that reached all the way from Harpersville to Mountain Brook. It might have gone on to Aden if he hadn't given out of houses to put more hens in.

Our story begins on a Monday. Spring was just over the hill, waiting to come in, and everything about the air and the trees and the wind suited Uncle Henry's fancy.

It was around 11 o'clock when the lady came out of a white house on a high hill with tall oak trees all around.

"I guess I'll have to stop buying eggs from you," she said.

"There has to be a reason," Uncle Henry said.

Across the street a lady leaned over a white picket fence and cupped one hand over her right ear, like maybe she was gonna hem up the words.

"There's a reason all right."

"Let's have it. Maybe I can straighten it out."

A kid came out of the house and grabbed hold of her skirt and let out a squall that echoed on three hills. She stuck a pacifier in his mouth. Across the street, the woman was still leaning on the fence.

"I broke one yesterday that had a chicken in it."

Uncle Henry waited a minute to let her words soak in. "You must buy eggs at some other place too," he said.

"I do. But I keep them in two places. I know this was your egg."

The kid dropped his pacifier and started bawling again. The echo reached only two hills this time. Across the street, the woman had found a seat on a stump and just sat there and pulled at her skirt that kept trying to climb up her thighs.

"Uncle Henry thought about it. How did you tell a nice lady it was another fellow's egg. That it had to be, because there were no roosters in your flock."

"Maybe you got 'em mixed up," he started, and waited to let the words form in his mind. "You, see, it couldn't have been my egg. I don't have any roosters in my bunch."

The lady looked surprised. "What in the world would that have to do with it?" she asked.

Winning project

Two Thompson High School seniors brought home two of the top prizes from the state Social Studies Fair. Joe Snell (l) took a first place award with his project on Kent's Dairy. Shown with the display are owners Doug Kent and his son Mike. Andrea Sides won a second place award with her entry on Stubb's Foundry.

Dairy exhibit wins state prize

Coming away from the state Social Studies Fair with a first or second place ribbon is quite an accomplishment.

Local cadets take orientation flight

Cadets of the Civil Air Patrol participated in six orientation flights at the Bessemer airport last weekend.

Several members of the group are from Shelby County, including Nicky Stribling, Todd Ingram, Bobby Loebler, Toby Chambliss, Mike Charles, Mike Clayton, Eddie Lavett and Danny Stewart, all of Alabaster, and Don Barnes of Pelham.

Requirements to be a cadet in the CAP include finishing the 7th grade and being from 13 to 17 years of age.

Anyone who would like more information on becoming a cadet may contact any of the above members or 2nd Lt. Thelma Dixon, at 663-0016.

And for students who have never entered the fair to walk off with top prizes makes the feat even more significant.

Two Thompson High School students are still glowing with pride that their entries were among the best in the state.

Joe Snell won a first place award in economics for his display on Kent's Dairy and Andrea Sides made her mark at the fair by taking a second place ribbon with her entry on Stubb's Foundry.

In competition leading up to the fair, Snell's project took a 2nd at the THS event, a 3rd in the county and 2nd at district.

At the local fair, Sides' entry took a 3rd, at the county level a 2nd and the THS senior walked away with a 1st at the district event.

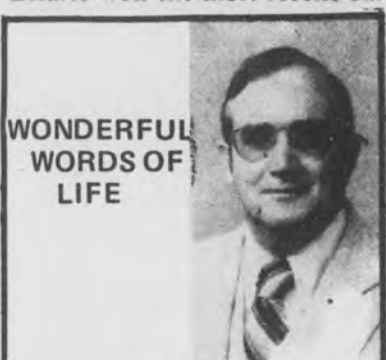

Other THS students who went to the recent state fair in Montgomery served as officials. According to a former teacher, they "organized a perfect fair."

The students, he reported, had learned the ropes by working at district events the past two years.

Christ's Plea for Unity

Unlike the teaching of sectarianism, the Lord prayed for unity. In His prayer to God before His death, He said, "Neither pray I for these (apostles) alone, but for all them that shall believe on me through their word; that they may be one; even as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou didst send me" (John 17:20-21).

First, one learned that all who believe in Christ do so through hearing the Apostles' teaching. Biblical faith cannot be produced by heeding mans contradictory religious teachings. "But in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men," Christ stated (Matthew 15:9). "If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God" (1 Peter 4:11).

Second, one learns that the many different and contradictory doctrines do not please God and Christ. Just as God and Christ are one, all believers are to be one, united in belief, teaching, and practice in the Lord's church. The sectarian, denominational idea and teaching that anyone who desires can start his own church and invent his own religious teaching, worship and practice is foreign to the prayer of Christ.

Third, one learns that religious division leads to skepticism and atheism. Many have denied faith in God because of the proliferation of religious teachings and churches, each one of which claims to be the one that Jesus purchased with His blood and established nearly 2,000 years ago. Christ prayed that we be united, that the world might believe that God sent Christ into the world.

Fourth, one learned that the only way to achieve unity is to practice the teaching of the apostles. Man's teachings bring division. Let us unite on the Word of God—not on man's opinion. Let us speak where the Bible speaks and be silent where the Bible is silent! Let us call things by Bible names and do things in Bible ways! What a power for Christ would exist, were all believers to be so united, instead of comprising hundreds of different religious groups preaching the same numbers of contradictory doctrines!

tle over rezoning proposals for the intersection of Old Montgomery Highway and Hwy. 261. The controlled word war was fought Monday night in the Pelham council chamber at a public hearing during the council meeting.

The hour long discussion centered this time over a zoning change from A-1 to B-1 by Dr. Gregory Horn and his lawyer John DeBuys, Jr.

Horn, a dentist, and his wife, currently live in a house located at the busy intersection, and requested the zoning change so he could modify the house to accommodate a dental lab and several offices after he moves. An adjacent lot was to be used as a small parking lot.

Joe Dean, a resident of the area, led the opposition, saying, "We believe in controlled growth where it's needed." He pointed out that the planning and zoning commission had recommended that property not be rezoned.

Of the 30 people in attendance, 12 residents voiced their desire for the council to go along with the zoning board's recommendation. Said one woman, "We're pleading for you to protect our homes."

They pointed out that the Old Montgomery Highway was the last barrier against commercialism, which they said was trying to move westward along Hwy. 261.

Dr. Horn offered to accept an O-1 rezoning of the lot he intended to use for parking, and said he would follow any recommendations made concerning a buffer between the edge of his property

Revival begins

Montevallo First Baptist Church has set aside May 25-28 for Old Fashioned Revival time. Services are scheduled to begin each evening at 7:30.

The revival services will be preceded each evening with a Biblical doctrinal study for each Sunday School department. The Rev. Cecil Sewell of Clanton will be the guest preacher. Nursery will be provided. The public is invited.

and that of his neighbor's.

But the council ruled in favor of the residents and voted not to rezone.

Prior to this discussion, DeBuys asked the council to reschedule a public hearing on another piece of property at the controversial intersection, this one owned by Ben Chenault. That request for rezoning from A-1 to B-1 will be taken up June 16, along with a rezoning request by Earl Standifer for property on Hwy. 68.

Rezoning changes for a parcel of land in Fungo Hollow owned by Charles Sillery, and a parcel on Hwy. 52 E. owned by Victor Scott were denied.

Cathleen Taylor, a resident of Cahaba Valley Estates, requested a zoning exception so she could start a small day care service in her home. She presented a petition showing the consent of 100 percent of her neighbors.

The request was denied by a motion from Councilman Roy Jowers on the grounds that it would set a precedent for spot zoning.

Another parcel of land owned by Charles Sillery, this one on Hwy. 33, was rezoned from A-1 to R-3 for apartments.

Mayor Burk Dunaway requested an amendment in the zoning ordinance for a office-warehouse classification. This, he said, would prevent anyone from saying such a facility would go on M-1 property, only to build a light industry instead.

Joe Dean also requested that the city adopt a noise ordinance before the mini-racer track is built in Pelham.

Dunaway announced that Friday the state legislature passed the bill for the Pelham annexation of Royal Oaks and it was awaiting the signature of the governor. The Deer Springs annexation bill was due to pass before Wednesday, he added.

Citing the Pelham library's recent loss of $268 worth of unreturned books, the mayor gave the council a copy of ordinance for consideration that would levy a $10-$100 fine against persons keeping library books.

DID YOU KNOW?

It costs less for us to read your electric meter than for you to read it and report the information to us.

We have to process 45,000 meter readings a day. The readings are recorded on special forms and in a certain order so that they can be handled quickly, accurately, and efficiently by a computer. Even if everyone read their own meter and sent the information to us on time, a lot of additional, expensive work would be necessary before our computer could read it.

We're always looking for ways to cut costs, but customers reading their own meters isn't one of them.

Columbiana PD officer resigns

Even though he's "very satisfied" with his job, Columbiana policeman Mike Shaw handed in his resignation Wednesday.

His reasons for leaving the force, Shaw said, are "strictly financial."

At their meeting Thursday, city fathers accepted the resignation, which is the second one they've received this month.

On May 5, John Ashmore gave official notice of his intention to leave the force. In his letter of resignation, Ashmore cited "personal reasons" for giving up his job.

Relating that he has enjoyed his work in Columbiana, Shaw said that he hoped to work with the police department here again at some future date.

In June, Shaw is returning to work at GTE Lenkurt where he was formerly employed. He will be installing microwave equipment.

Howard Clowdus, who has been working for the Brent Police Department 14 months, was hired Friday to replace Shaw.

However, the CPD is still operating without the full complement of officers. Auxiliary policeman Rick Gaught is now in the slot vacated by Wayne Holcombe earlier this year.

Gaught has been a reserve Columbiana officer for two years. Before that he was with the Shelby County Sheriff's department for over two years, and before that, with Jefferson County.

He has lived in Columbiana since 1974.

But at the present time, no one is being considered to take Ashmore's place.

Columbiana resident Jimmy Rowe attended last week's meeting to commend the police department on the work they're doing.

And a family in the community had words of praise for the city's street department.

A letter was read from Debbie and Kenny Stallings commending employees of that department for "prompt and excellent service."

A plaque that was displayed at the meeting made it evident that the city also excels in another department.

The award was presented by the state's Association of Certified Accountants for "significant improvements made in accounting procedures" during the past fiscal year.

Columbiana was the first place winner among Alabama cities with populations under 12,000.

City officials accepted the plaque at the League of Municipalities meeting in Birmingham last week.

It was noted that City Clerk Mary Largin was responsible for the city getting the award.

Since qualifying for upcoming political races is underway in the county, everyone now serving on the Council gave official notice of their intention to run again.

In other business, the panel voted to pay $300 for chemicals which the county is using in spraying for mosquitoes. The amount will be due at the end of the season.

Let's Twist Again Like We Did Last Summer.

When temperatures hit their peak, so do your electric bills. The reason is air conditioning, the single biggest user of electricity in the average home.

But last year, Alabamians learned to save by twisting their thermostats to 78.

This summer, 78 should be an even more popular number. Because temperatures are expected to be hotter than the moderate summer of '79.

If you'd like to ease the impact on your electric bills, twist again. Turn your thermostat up to 78°. And while your air conditioning is doing a little less, you can help by doing a little more.

By using ventilated awnings, drapes and other shading devices to keep the sun's rays out. And by waiting until the cooler part of the day to use heat producing appliances like your stove and clothes dryer.

Let's face it. You may not be quite as comfortable as in summers past. But you can take comfort in the fact that you'll be saving money.

How much? More than you might think. Because even during the peak temperatures of summer, the biggest influence on your electric bill is how much you elect to use.

ACTION: Proposed Rule.
SUMMARY: Technical information or com-ments are solicited on the proposed base (100-year) flood elevations listed below for selected locations in the nation. These base (100-year) flood elevations are the basis for the flood publication of this proposed rule in a newspaper of local circulation in each community.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:
The Federal Insurance Ad-ministrator gives notice of the pro-posed determinations of base (100-year) flood elevations for selected locations in the nation, in accordance with Section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (Pub. L. 93-234), 87 Stat. 980, which added Section 1363 to the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Develop-ment Act of 1968 (Pub. L. 90-448), 42 U.S.C. 4001-1128, and 44 CFR 67.4 (a). These elevations, together with the flood plain management measures re-quired by Section 60.3 of the program regulations, are the minimum that are required. They should not be con-sidered to mean the community must change any existing ordinances that are more stringent in their flood plain management requirements. The com-munity may at any time enact stricter requirements on its own, or pursuant to policies established by other Federal, State, or Regional entities. My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

Columbiana kindergarten stretches two years into thirty

A Columbiana kindergarten that was only intended to be open for two years, held its 30th graduation exercise Saturday night.

And some of the lawyers, bankers, doctors and teachers who were among the first students, were in the audience to see the last class from Mrs. Skelton's receive diplomas.

Johnny Cates and Karen Morris Jones, two former students, presented the retiring teacher and her assistant, Chasteen Carden, with roses for each year they had taught.

Thirty roses were in Mary Nell Skelton's basket, and eleven were in Carden's.

The father of one of Saturday's graduates was a former pupil of Mrs. Skelton. The teacher said her reason for continuing the school was because his mother and others urged her to continue so their children could have a kindergarten to attend.

Catherine Leigh Fowler was the young lady who received her diploma from the same lady who handed one to her lawyer father, Conrad M. Fowler Jr. some 27 years earlier.

A number of other pupils in Skelton's first classes, have watched their youngsters graduate from the popular kindergarten.

The reason she started the school in 1950, Skelton related, was because she wanted her daughter and younger son to have the same opportunity as her older boy.

He had attended a kindergarten in South Carolina before the family moved to Columbiana, Skelton reported.

"And every time I'd try to discontinue classes," the teacher laughed, "parents would urge me to keep going."

Until 1969, Skelton operated the school alone. But as the number of students increased, help was needed and Chasteen was employed.

"We've had as many as 54 youngsters," noted the assistant.

One of the gifts presented to Skelton at the conclusion of the graduation exercises was from the class. It was a gold disk for her charm bracelet.

Both the disk that she and Chasteen received had their initials and the years they had taught engraved on them.

Remembering when she received the bracelet and first charm, Skelton said it had been presented the year Mrs. Sonja Leftkovich was in charge of buying the class gift.

"And the first charm," she laughed, "was a whistle." The teacher explained that one toot on a whistle she used at school, instructed students to go, and blowing twice meant to stop.

As he presented the well loved teacher a plaque of appreciation, Columbiana Mayor Bob Bolton looked out into the audience, and remarked on the number of lives she had touched.

And when it came his turn to speak, Methodist minister Dan Kitchens also commented on how the teacher had influenced the lives of so many children.

"And we celebrate with grateful hearts," he said, "what she has given to the community."

Now that she has retired, Skelton says she plans to learn how to sew and see more of her children and grandchildren.

Both of her sons are doctors in Gadsden and her daughter, Mrs. Angela Hughes and her family are moving closer. They will be in Huntsville in June.

Mayor Bolton mentioned in his remarks, that Skelton's husband Ben will be able to relax now that his wife has retired.

He has been helping her with the kindergarten since he retired in 1973.

Following the program in the Shelby County High School gym, guests adjointed to the school cafeteria where a reception honoring the longtime teacher was held.

In addition to visiting and enjoying the refreshments, the crowd examined class graduation pictures of almost every group that has attended the kindergarten.

Thirty two students participated in the last graduation program entitled, "Kindergarten is Fun."

Each youngster gave a recitation, and accompanied by Mrs. David McDonald on the piano, they joined in singing several songs.

This year's graduates were: Paula De Ann Byars, Mary Caroline Blackerby, Katrina Lynn Caldwell, Kelly Lynn Conn, Tammi Sue Doss, Catherine Leigh Fowler.

Ferman Haynes Garrett Jr., Kenneth Dwayne Goodwin, James Allen Harmon, Tracy Renae Joiner, Nathan Edward Kimes, Jennifer Lois McDonald, Tami Lea Morgan.

Sonya Renee Peeples, Roger Dale Watkins, Chadwick Rondel Wat-

Warriors, Wildcats reach finals

Shelby County High School squeaks by Pelham High's Panthers 3-2

The Shelby County Wildcats bought their ticket to the tournament finals with a 3-2 win over Pelham Thursday night.

With the score tied at 2-all going into the top of the seventh, Ronald Benton and Clark Jones both singled for the Wildcats, then advanced to third and second on a passed ball.

The Panthers toughed up, and downed the next two 'Cats, which brought Ricky Lathan to the plate. Lathan is normally a good hitter, but he was carrying a string of strikeouts with him on the night.

He came through in the clutch, however. He connected with a well thrown, low outside corner pitch by Pelham's Bart Pierce, and smashed a blistering grounder past third base. Lathan was put out going to second, but not before Benton scored what proved to be the game winning run.

The Panthers put a man on first in the bottom of the seventh, but the pond dried up before the duck could make it home.

Pitcher Dan Head, who got the save for SCHS, also got the first run when he doubled in the first, then took home from there on a passed pick-off throw. Joe Tidmore followed Head with a triple, then scored on a single by Dana Vansant.

Coach David Shiflett's Panthers answered back in the bottom of the first when a single by Tripp Woods advanced Mike Lindsey to third. Lindsey scored on a sacrifice by Tommy Roy.

Woods and Roy came through for PHS again in the sixth, when both hit doubles to even the score.

Bobby Greenawalt, who had pitched a good game for the Wildcats up to that point (nine strikeouts with only two walks and three hits), was replaced on the mound by Head.

The 'Cats got out of that sixth inning pinch, then went out front to stay with Lathan's hit in the top of the seventh.

Head struck out one batter, walked none and gave up one hit in his inning and two thirds.

Pierce pitched the distance for Pelham, striking out six batters, walking one and giving up six hits.

Pelham was charged with four errors, the Wildcats with two.

Tagged out

Wildcat Joe Tidmore is tagged out by Pelham first baseman Mike Lindsey on a fifth inning sacrifice bunt that advanced his teammate Allen Henke to second.

Weatherman tosses curve

Since almost every team in the county had at least one of their early season games postponed because of rain, someone might have guessed that the weatherman would toss a curve at the end of the season.

Shelby County and Thompson were originally scheduled to play the final championship game of the county baseball tournament last Friday night.

But after all the rain, they did not have enough boats for the players to use, so they said they would play Monday night. Did they?

No.

The weatherman saw to that. Monday evening at the sports

Easy jog

John Durrett takes an easy jog around the bases after knocking a fourth inning, two run homer over centerfield fence, stretching Thompson's lead to 4-0 over Montevallo.

Thompson blasts Montevallo 5-1

Thompson's potentially explosive bats were held to six hits against Montevallo Thursday. But those six hits produced five runs, three more than were needed to put the Warriors in the finals of the county baseball tournament.

THS began its 5-1 win in the second inning when David Cofer hit a double. A fake bunt attempt gave Cofer the edge he needed to steal third, and an error on the play gave him a safe opening to the plate.

In the same inning, a single by Jimmy Cocke drove in John Durrett.

Durrett added a second layer to the victory cake the Warriors were baking when he slugged a fourth inning homer with one man on base.

Montevallo made a serious attempt to spoil things for Thompson in the bottom of the fourth when David Melsoni knocked in a run with a double. Later that inning, the Bulldogs loaded the bases with itchy runners, but the Warriors denied any more scoring.

In the top of the seventh, Mark Gamble added the icing to the cake when he drove in Joe Glass from second with a double.

In the bottom of that inning, Scott Studdard beat out a throw to first, then worked his way to third. But MHS was not able to rally to the occasion.

Studdard was left on third, and the score was left at 5-1.

John Durrett lead the Thompson attack from the mound, bumping off 8 batters and walking 2, while allowing only one unearned run off 4 hits.

David Melsoni pitched the distance for Montevallo, striking out 6 Warriors, walking 2, and giving up 2 earned runs of the 6 hits he allowed.

On defense, THS committed 3 errors and the Bulldogs were charged with 4.

Pelham, Montevallo, SCHS are first round tournament winners

Pelham, Montevallo and Shelby County all picked up wins in the first round of the Shelby County Baseball Tournament Tuesday, May 13 in Columbiana.

Basement seeded Pelham bumped off second seeded Calera 4-0 in the first game of the tourney.

For the Eagles, the fourth inning proved to be an insurmountable curse, as the Panthers rallied at the plate for their four game winning runs.

Calera started the problem themselves when they let Panther Tripp Woods get on base with an error. Two sacrifices put Woods on third, and Bill Batton drove him in with a single.

Bart Pierce followed Batton with another single. Then with Jeff Butler and Gregg Underwood running for those two batters, Craig Underwood singled to score Butler.

Jeff Mathis then drove in both Underwoods to make the score 4-0.

Pierce pitched for the Panthers, allowing only two hits, while striking out six and walking none.

In game two action, the Montevallo Bulldogs edged out Vincent to even out their season's record against the Jackets at two games each.

As might have been expected, the rivals played a close game.

Vincent led most of the game, carrying a 2-0 advantage into the sixth inning.

But then, with the bases loaded with Bulldogs, Wade Bice stepped to the plate and slammed a three run, game winning double.

Bret Jones pitched a strong game for MHS, striking out nine Jackets and walking three, while giving up only two hits.

Game three Tuesday saw tourney host Shelby County demolish Chelsea 8-1, behind the deadly pitching of Dan Head.

Head sent a dozen Hornets back to the dugout with a big "K" by their names in the scorebook. He gave up only three hits, and walked only the first batter he faced.

Offensively for the 'Cats, the first inning turned out to be a scoring spree as the SCHS bats sent six runs across home plate.

Chelsea tried to retaliate in the second, but the one run they scored did no serious damage.

Shelby County came back again in the fifth inning to score two more runs, making the final 8-1.

On their way to the win, the Wildcats collected nine hits, with Ronald Benton leading the way at 2-3 with one RBI.

For SCHS, the game avenged a loss against Chelsea the day before, in which the Hornets beat them 3-2 in eleven innings.

Larry McDermott was Chelsea's winning pitcher, putting on a good mound show for his first full game appearance since recovering from a leg injury.

Chelsea and Pelham were scheduled to play each other Monday to close out the county's regular baseball season.

Canoe racers

Don Latham of Alabaster and Stewart Raburn of Cahaba Heights came in second in the Bulldog Bend canoe race Sunday. They paddled the four mile run in 38:52, one minute and 27 seconds behind the winner. See story on page 2.

Falcons eliminated in NAIA playoffs

For those who may be unfamiliar with baseball terms, the three little letters above stand for the phrase "Left On Base". That means all those potential runs that get left on base and don't get knocked in.

The University of Montevallo Falcons had a lot of those 'LOB's last week in the NAIA District 27 Playoffs in Birmingham, resulting in a couple of hard-take defeats that spelled the end of the season for the UM nine.

In their first game of the playoffs, the Falcons collected 11 hits, but stranded 13 runners and dropped a 2-1 decision to eventual district champion Birmingham-Southern College.

Forced into the losers' bracket of the double-elimination tournament, Montevallo rapped out 12 hits against Huntingdon College, but left 11 more men aboard and suffered a 7-4 setback.

"One or two key hits in the right spot, and we could have won those ballgames," mused a frustrated UM coach Bob Riesener. "We had the opportunities, but we just didn't cash in."

The double defeats brought the Falcons' up-and-down season to a final 28-27 mark, the fifth winning season in a row for UM baseball.

Although this season was somewhat of a disappointment, Coach Riesener has already put it behind him and is looking eagerly to next year. With a nucleus of 18 returning lettermen, chances for a much-improved record in 1981 are excellent.

CVA Rebels lose two

The CVA Rebels saw their road to the state finals abruptly deadend Monday against a giant southpaw from Springwood.

In a doubleheader to determine who would go on to the second round of the playoffs, Coosa Valley lost 7-1 and 2-1.

"We could have beat them if we'd hit the ball," commented Rebel Coach Rick Naugher.

But hitting the ball is exactly what CVA didn't do. They managed only one hit per game, while 14 Rebs struck out in the first game and 17 struck out in the second.

After playing seven error defense in game one, CAV tightened up and got serious in round two.

They were leading 1-0 in the bottom of the fifth when their only two errors of the game scored two Springwood runners.

Retiring the 1980 season with a 14-6 record which won them a three foot high district championship trophy, CVA should have a lot to look forward to next year. They will lose only three seniors.

UM clinic continues because of top coaches

Clinics come, and clinics go, but the University of Montevallo Basketball Coaches' Clinic is one that endures. This summer's clinic, set for June 19-21, is the 16th, and the reason for such continuous success is obvious -- nationally-known coaches, proven winners all, with plenty of knowledge to share with other aspiring coaches.

This year's staff is no exception. Headlining the lineup is Don DeVoe of Tennessee, who in two years has led the Vols to one SEC Tournament Championship and two NCAA Tournament spots.

Also from the college ranks is James Oliver of Alabama State, whose Hornets were ranked No. 1 in the NAIA this past season and reached the finals of the NAIA National Tournament.

Another national finalist was Bill Lankford, whose Jefferson State Jr. College Pioneers lost out to unbeaten Western Texas in the NJCAA National Championship game.

In the Alabama 4A high school finals, Coffee edged Woodlawn, and both those coaches -- Coffee's Gerald Johnson and Woodlawn's Ronnie Ryan -- are members of this year's staff.

The coaches will cover a wide range of subjects, will demonstrate some of their techniques, and will be available to discuss anything about basketball that might be brought up.

Golf and tennis tournaments will kick off the whole program.

For application forms or other information, contact Coach Bill Elder at the University of Montevallo, Station 182, Montevallo, AL 35115, or call 205-665-2521, ext. 403 or 410.

Coming in 10th in the Bulldog Bend canoe race

by David Moore
"FAME - FUN - FORTUNE"
The luring words were printed on the yellow poster, just under the heading "The Great Second Annual Bulldog Bend Down River Canoe Race. Sunday, May 18th. 10 AM starting time."

The first three placing canoe teams were to receive $175 in prizes, plus trophies. Fourth, fifth and sixth places would get medals.

A light bulb flicked on inside my brain. Whenever that happens, it means I either have an idea or a short circuit. I won't say which this was...

After a year and half of putting up with me, my editor has grown accustomed to my off-the-wall story ideas. "Sure," she said when I told her I wanted to enter. "Just don't drown. We have to get out the sports page."

I promised her I wouldn't drink too much of the Little Cahaba River, then dashed to the phone and called Alan Large, an old friend who lives in Alabaster.

"Fame, fun and fortune? Shoot, I'll go just for the fun part," he said.

So, Sunday, I woke up at 6 AM to get a good start. After I burned the coffee pot, got lost in Alabaster (of all places) and ran out of gas, I finally met up with Alan.

"Bon, Capitan," he sang out from his car. Tied down to his roof was the biggest canoe I'd ever seen. It was the size of a battleship, minus the guns, and was painted fatigue green, black and orange.

"Camouflaged," he explained, reading my expression. "So the ducks won't see it when I hunt."

I had the distinct impression this was going to be one of those days. But, undeterred, we set out to seek our fame, fun and fortune.

We were not alone. When we got to Bulldog Bend, some fifteen miles below Montevallo, we learned eighteen other canoes had entered the race.

Other representatives of Shelby County included Don Latham of Alabaster, and Tim Britnell and Joe Shuffield of Montevallo. Two young men from Fort Walton, Florida had signed up, and one man was even from Indianapolis, Indiana.

The competition looked tough. Most of the teams had entered serious white water canoes, such as Blue Holes and Mad River canoes. Compared to ours, the other canoes looked fast enough to fly.

Alan and I are relatively healthy fellows, but some of the men preparing their gear looked strong enough to bench press a car. And at the risk of sounding sexist, I might add that no women had bothered to enter the race, further cutting down on our chances of beating anybody.

I had never been in a canoe race before. For that matter I hadn't even stepped foot inside one since last spring while covering an assignment on the Cahaba's eligibility for protection under the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act.

Alan was more or less in the same boat, and had not used his Coleman canoe for anything other than hunting and fishing.

"I've got an idea on how to win," said Alan. I was open for suggestions.

"Paddle hard," he said. "I mean REAL hard."

The patron saint of Alabama canoeists, John Foshee, was organizing the show and explained the four mile course to us.

The race would be judged on elapsed time, Foshee said, with the canoes starting at 30 second intervals. We were assigned to the twelfth of nineteen starting slots.

Alan was trying to figure out how we could leash one of the judge's 130 pound huskies to the canoe and get him to pull us from the bank like a dog sled. His plan was waylaid by the announcement to man the boats.

I would imagine the excitement is somewhat more intense at the start of the Le Mans Grand Prix, but we were both pretty well keyed up when the judge told us, "Go!"

And off we went, paddling furiously down the Little Cahaba in search of fortune, fun and fame.

We paddled.

And paddled.

Thanks to the recent, heavy rains, the water was up and moving well. The river conditions couldn't have been much better. Our physical conditions, however, were a different matter.

Nonetheless, I could see from my kneeling position in the bow that we were gaining on the number eleven canoe.

"Let's get 'em," I said, not even slowing to turn around as I spoke.

Stroking a hard, steady pace, we passed our first adversary within a half mile of the starting line. The taste of blood sparked us with renewed vigor.

We paddled on.

When we reached the first set of rapids, Alan was "singing" an Indian chant interrupted by shouts in pidgin French. I don't know if he quit singing when we went into the loud, boiling waves, or if the sound drowned him out, because I was concentrating on avoiding rocks and flipping the canoe.

We shot through the rapids like a greased breeze.

"Go!" we hollered to each other, and kept on paddling.

"Did you hear the joke about the slave galley?" Alan asked. There was no point in answering.

"Well," he continued, "the captain walked into the hold and told the slaves he had some good news and some bad news. 'The good news,' said the captain, 'is that I'm giving you all extra rations of water. The bad news is that I want to do some water skiing this afternoon.'"

It was that kind of race, that kind of day. We paddled on.

The trickiest part of the run turned out to be two slalom gates (actually, anchored inner tubes), the first of which had to be passed through backwards. Just for fun, Foshee had arranged the gates much closer together than anyone expected. Just for more fun, he put them in a set of rapids.

Foshee's fun, the keel on our Coleman, and our lack of coordination with the paddles cost us a 35-second penalty at the gates.

We turned the canoe around and started backwards into the foaming rapids without any trouble. Then suddenly we were on top of the first tubes, tried to maneuver between them and missed.

Miraculously, we turned the canoe around in the middle of the rapids and slid between the second gate. But at the last second we hit one of those tubes.

From the corner of my eye I caught a glimpse of a girl with a camera on the shore among the spectators. She was taking our picture, and I knew I was a victim of poetic justice. After all, how many times have I taken pictures of baseball players as they dropped the ball? Such is karma.

The slalom gates marked the halfway point of the race. With two miles left, the strain of paddling was beginning to tell.

We set our sights on catching two canoes in front of us. We paddled and paddled, but only seemed to make minimal gains on them.

"I hate to say this, but there's a couple fellers' coming up on us and it's not to give us a ride," Alan said to the back of my head.

We bent to our stroking, but by now the canoe felt like it was made of concrete. I looked desperately over the side to see if we were dragging an anchor. No anchor.

When they caught us and passed us a few minutes later, they nearly swamped us with their wake. The two men were in the eighteenth canoe.

"It's a beautiful day to lose a canoe race," Alan commented.

Still we kept paddling.

My arms and legs were talking to me now, telling me to sling my paddle out in the woods, lay back in the boat and float along and watch the great white clouds make castles in the sky. I tried not to listen to my body. I splashed my face and kept going.

Finally we spotted the finish line at Six Mile Creek. It gave us a shot of energy and we thrashed away with our paddles. But we never caught the canoe in front of us.

As we climbed up the bank on sore, spongy legs, another tired contestant commented, "We needed bigger paddles."

"Well, it was a blast, that's for sure," my partner said during the bus ride back to Bulldog Bend.

"It was great," I answered.

Back at the Bend, Foshee tallied up all the times and announced the winners. They were the two men who had driven up from Florida. I was glad it had been worth their while. They clocked a four mile time of 37:25. Not bad at all.

"Ya'll ought to get some kind of medal for running the race in a Coleman canoe," Foshee told Alan and me with a laugh. We placed tenth with a time of 42:41.

The last place time was 50:18, and Foshee had a trophy with the back half of a horse on it for the losers. Oddly enough, they weren't around to claim it.

"Fame, fun and fortune," Foshee told us as he waved goodbye.

"Well, one out of three isn't too bad," I said.

How to change tires... taught at county YMCA

If you had to change a tire or replace a fan belt on your car, could you do it?

Every motorist ought to know something about how their car works and be able to take care of simple repairs, believes automotive serviceman Jerry Handley.

deadline the field was too wet for action. And, according to SCHS head coach Mark Bradley, the chances of the game being played Tuesday night were pretty slim as well.

When the game gets played, it ought to be a doozie of a pitching duel. Dan Head, SCHS, and Steve Smitherman, Thompson, probably the best pitchers around, will have a lot riding on this one.

Thompson will take an edge in to the game because of the explosive bats they tote around with them.

Head will need all the defensive backup he can get. But no one Monday knew the outcome of the game. So in the meantime, the suspense over who will be the county baseball champion hangs in the air, like a dark thunderhead.

class for women, others have urged Handley to have another session on automotive know-how.

So Handley has agreed to hold classes during the month of June at the Shelby County YMCA.

Men, women and teens may attend, Handley related, and he emphasized that hands-on experience would be available.

He explained that components from automobiles such as brakes, engines, transmissions and steering would be in the class for students to see and work on.

"We'll also show participants how to identify all the parts of a car," Handley added.

Classes will begin June 2 and meet every Monday and Wednesday from 7-9 p.m. with a nominal fee being charged.

For further information, call the YMCA at 663-6504.

Businesses study how to beat gas prices

Ready to roll

It takes a lot of gas to haul a load of logs. Anthony and Doug Joseph say that although they are doing no more business than they were six months ago, gas expense at their Columbiana business has tripled.

by Shelba Nivens

Representatives of several Shelby County businesses say the current gas situation is really hurting them. Most add that they have found only minimal ways of coping with it.

"You can raise cain and everything else, but it doesn't help," said a Montevallo businesswoman.

"I go only when I have to, but when you're in business you have to go," said another.

Evie Rochester, operator of a Montevallo record shop, said that when she can order something, she does, but she still has to be on the road a lot.

A beauty shop operator also reported that her business is down because women are staying home and learning to do their own hair.

"It has really hurt us," said a spokesman for a taxi service. "Our gas bill has about doubled this year." She quoted today's cost for gasoline to make a trip from Wilton to Selma and the cost a few months ago to illustrate that it has more than doubled.

"I got gas today," said Mrs. Hatcher, "and they told me that tomorrow it will be up again. Then it's to go to 4 cents more by August."

She added that there seems to be no way a taxi service can cope except by raising fares, then that hurts business because people just cannot afford to pay more for anything.

A Columbiana area "Avon Lady" reported that she sometimes calls ahead to see whether a customer will be at home before making a call. And she tries to work all her customers in one little spot on one visit. "But so many people are away at work, so I have to see different people at different times," she added.

Some local business people report that they now have stock delivered to them instead of going to pick it up. Others who make deliveries say they try to combine trips.

"We used to never charge freight," said Anthony Joseph, who operates a logging and lumber business with his brother, Douglas. "If someone wanted a little something, we would just put it on the truck and take off to deliver it. Now, we save up small orders until we have a load to deliver instead of taking little piddling loads."

Doug Joseph added that despite all efforts, their monthly gas bill is almost three times as much as it was a few months ago.

Is there any hope in sight for people caught in the gasoline crisis?

If you, as a Reporter reader, have any solutions we have not reported in this series, please let us hear from you. Also, if you have received help through any of the tips we have shared, we would like to hear about that, too.

Pelham to teach banking

Where do you go to learn about money, credit and banking?

One answer is, you go to a bank.

But this is not the only answer. Some banks are going to the high school classroom to teach banking.

A new program utilizing filmstrips, sample checks and deposit slips entitled "Banking Is..." has been made available to Pelham High School by the Shelby Bank. The course will be offered at Pelham High next fall.

The program was presented to the school as a public service by Bob Litton, vice-president and director of marketing at Shelby Bank. Receiving a multimedia filmstrip unit at a presentation meeting last Friday was Dr. Edwin Belue, principal and Mrs. Lynn Armistead, head of the business education department of Pelham High School.

In making the presentation, Litton said, "The program 'Banking Is...' gives the student first-hand experience with the basic banking activities he or she will use throughout life."

"Writing a check, applying for a loan, computing interest and using a bank's services are things most adults take for granted," Litton said. "We have done them all our lives, but actually these activities must be learned and for many of today's students they are as foreign as any new endeavor."

"Many adults learned banking by trial and error," Litton continued, "but in today's world of Patriotism taught in workshop

A three-day patriotism education workshop for elementary and high school teachers will be offered at Samford University July 22-24.

Co-sponsored by the Samford School of Education and the State Department of Education, the workshop will introduce teachers to the newly-developed resource kit, "I Pledge Allegiance."

advancing technology, this is no longer a satisfactory solution. For instance, today check writing is as much a part of life as driving a car. Ninety percent of all financial transactions are made by check and the American public will write over 21.5 billion checks this year. Yet, in spite of this, statistics show that less than 85% of the graduating seniors know how to write a check properly. So, it is easy to see that check writing is an activity that each student should understand if he is to take his place in the financial community."

"We hope our sponsorship of this program will help give students a more thorough and systematic understanding of these basic banking activities and help them in the management of personal financial affairs," Litton said.

"We strongly believe that the more financially secure a student becomes through knowledge and practice of good banking, the better a citizen he becomes. The better our young citizens, the better our tomorrow," Litton concluded.

In addition, Litton pointed out that as part of the program an officer of the bank is available for a follow-up classroom question and answer session and the students may be given a tour of the bank to see the operations at work.

Bob Litton, vice president and director of marketing at Shelby Bank (standing), points out details of "Banking Is..." an educational program on banking that will be used at Pelham High School next fall. Looking over a brochure of the program are Mrs. Lynn Armistead and Dr. Edwin Belue.

Library loans patterns

Do you have some dress patterns you have used that you do not plan to use again? The Pelham Library is planning to set up a pattern exchange, where you can bring in used patterns and exchange them for others.

According to Pelham Librarian Mary Carver, "With prices as they are today, exchanging patterns with others can effect real savings. So bring in the ones you don't want and take out the ones you do want. It will be a one-to-one exchange. To get started, bring in as many as you can spare. The greater the selection, the more useful it will be."

UM honors retirees at reception

Six University of Montevallo employees, whose service to the university ranged from 10 to more than 30 years, were honored at a reception on the UM campus last week.

UM President Jim Vickrey said that all of the retirees, through work in their area of responsibility, helped provide the high quality of service that people had come to expect from UM employees.

"And how do you adequately say thank you to someone who has given 10, 20 or 30 years of service?" he asked.

The UM retirees included three professors and three staff members.

The retiree with the most years of service, Dr. Sara Posey Morgan, began teaching at Montevallo in 1944. In addition to serving as a professor in the UM College of Business, she was also the first assistant to the president for faculty-staff relations and wrote and directed UM's first Equal Opportunity-Affirmative Action Program.

Next in years of service was Claudius R. "Shorty" Lucas of Calera, who began work at the UM Physical Plant Department in 1951. Lucas, who retired in March, was foreman of the UM Paint Shop.

W.T. Chichester, professor of speech and director of theatre, began teaching at UM in 1962. Chichester will continue theatre-related activities through his drapery contracting business and through private consulting work.

His wife, Lynne, will continue working as secretary in the UM College of Education office.

Dr. Hendrik Van Tuyl, professor of philosophy and religion, and native of the Netherlands, began teaching at Montevallo in 1966.

Milton Martin, a member of the UM Police Department since 1968, retired last September, but is continuing to work as a part-time policeman at UM.

Walter Ray of Jemison, also on the Physical Plant Division staff, is working part-time since his retirement last October.

Other retiring UM employees will continue working part-time at the University, including Dr. Van Tuyl, Dr. Morgan and Martin.

Gag gift

Marlyn Hayes, assistant activity director at Briarcliff Nursing Homes presents a gag gift to Administrator Mary Alice Edmonds during a luncheon in her honor.

Briarcliff celebrates Nursing Home Week

The spotlight was focused on a different group of individuals each day last week at Briarcliff Nursing Home.

County officials had lunch at the Alabaster facility one day and policemen, firemen, a lawyer and social service workers were among the guests on another occasion.

All the festivities that took place were to call attention to National Nursing Home Week. And this year, Briarcliff went all out to observe the event.

On Friday, the spotlight's beam fell on the nursing home's administrator Mary Alice Edmonds.

At a luncheon in her honor, Edmonds was praised by Briarcliff's owner, Mac Farris, for the "standard of service" she had maintained at the facility.

Presenting a plaque of appreciation to the administrator, Activities Director Margie Payne described Edmonds as a "true friend who has always stood behind her employees."

M. C. Donaldson, Edmonds father, and her husband Bryant, were both guests at the luncheon.

On Monday, Shelby County Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden, Commissioners, Commission Clerk Mildred Ray and County Engineer Jimmy Ray were guests at the nursing home.

The following day was designated as Community Service

Day. And Alabaster Police Chief C. E. Carter, Fire Chief John Cochran, AFD Lt. Mike Higgins were among the guests on that occasion.

Others who joined in the observance of that day were attorney Eason Mitchell, Shelby Memorial Hospital Administrator Roland Bradford, Jay Stuman and other hospital personnel.

Sue Tedford, Lois Farmer, Blance Farr and Richard Ozley, all connected with the Program on Aging, were also present.

Volunteers were honored with a reception Wednesday, and the highlight of Employees Day Thursday, was a skit put on by the staff.

Assistant Nursing Director Willie Lambert played the part of a patient entering the home in the enactment.

As the first 24 hours of residency unfolded, the skit pointed up the importance of every department in providing well rounded care.

Recognition was also given Thursday, to longtime employees. Lambert was honored as the RN with the most service, and Etta Boles was the longest employed LPN.

Aide Mary Valentine had worked in Building 1 longer than anyone else, and Sharon Tannehill held that distinction in Building 2.

Mechanical engineers' auxiliary elects

No one ever had to persuade Martha Geyer to take a job in the Auxiliary of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

"She's the type of person who would call and ask what she could do," Diane Dixon remarked as she presented a medal for service to the Helena resident.

A Centennial Medallion was the gift of appreciation chosen for Geyer since the ASME is celebrating its 100th birthday this year.

Geyer was one of the first officers of the Auxiliary which was organized by Mary Westbrook and officially chartered in 1974.

The award recipient served as the first program chairman and later as chairman. She has also been parliamentarian and headed both the nominating and hospitality committees.

Her national offices have included recording secretary, nominating committee and tellers of elections chairman.

New officers of the Birmingham Section Auxiliary were also introduced at the luncheon meeting which was held at Meadowlark Farm Restaurant in Alabaster.

The chairman's gavel was handed to Alverta Cover by her predecessor Mary Drenning. Other new officers are: Janet White, vice-chairman; Loretta Grabowski, secretary; and Pat Goodman, treasurer.

Martha Geyer (center), was recently awarded the Centennial Medallion by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers Auxiliary. Outgoing president Mary Drenning (l) hands the gavel to her successor Alverta Cover as Janet White (r) and Loretta Grabowski look on.

Library gets best sellers

Many of the top ten best sellers are among the newest arrivals at the Shelby County Library. Robert Ludlum's 'The Bourne Identity,' John Le Carre's 'Smiley's People,' and Ken Follett's 'Triple' are three thrillers now available.

Readers who enjoy family sagas will be eager to check out the 'Books of Rachel' which spans five centuries in the lives of members of a Jewish family.

Romantic offerings include 'Warwyck's Choice,' Elizabeth Cadell's, 'The Marrying Kind,' 'A Matter of Feeling,' 'The Bleeding Heart' and 'The Love Talker.'

'Errol Flynn,' 'All You Need To Know About The IRS,' 'Taxidermy Step by Step,' and 'Feed Your Kids Right.' The Errol Flynn book features a picture of Howard Hill who did much of the archery in the adventure movies made by Flynn. The Vincent Library also has a collection of personal mementos of Howard Hill.

Many children's and junior books will be added to the various libraries just in time for the beginning of the 1980 summer reading program.

Oldsters 'dig' politics

The Hard Knock family lambasted public officials during an RSVP banquet Thursday evening, but the recipients of the barbs responded with good humor.

In the skit they put on, Calera RSVP members spoofed Probate Judge Tommy Snowden, County Commissioners, Sheriff Buddy Glasgow and others about how tax dollars were spent.

The banquet, which was held in the University of Montevallo cafeteria, also included the presentation of awards.

Richard Ozley, chairman of the Program on Aging's Advisory Committee, awarded the trophy to Jake Johnson and Ora Curry for being the oldest volunteers.

"It's wonderful to have outlived everyone else," quipped

Johnson.

Onzell Shaw and Clyde Martin were given trophies for working the most hours. Shaw put in a total of 633 and Martin 622.

Recognition was also given to volunteers who had been enrolled in the program the longest. They were: Beatrice Armstrong, Lois Ryne, Ethel Bearden, Nellie Brand, Rosa Green and Mary Weaver.

Guests at the annual affair included Shirley Totty, district RSVP supervisor and Jim Elrod from Positive Maturity.

Judge Snowden served as Emcee. Other guests included Snowden's wife and young son, Sheriff and Mrs. Glasgow, DA William R. Hill Jr., Circuit Clerk Kyle Lansford and his wife and Municipal Judge Eason Mitchell and his wife.

Helena mayor charged in phone harassment

by Marcia M. Sears

The telephone in the home of Mayor and Mrs. Charles W. Penhale of Helena has allegedly been used to harass other residents of Helena.

Charges were brought against the Penhales Monday by Harold Henderson, B.G. Morgan, Paul Cribbs and Roxie Craig, after they had asked South Central Bell to monitor their telephones to determine where the telephone calls were coming from that were ringing in their homes at odd hours.

According to reports, the callers did not say anything when the phone was picked up, and hung up quietly. The calls continued over a period of several days or weeks, it was alleged.

Mayor Penhale told the Reporter neither he nor his wife made any of the calls "and that will be proven in court."

He said, "They're all good people. I think it's a misunderstanding. They've mistraced something. I wouldn't do anything to hurt any of those people."

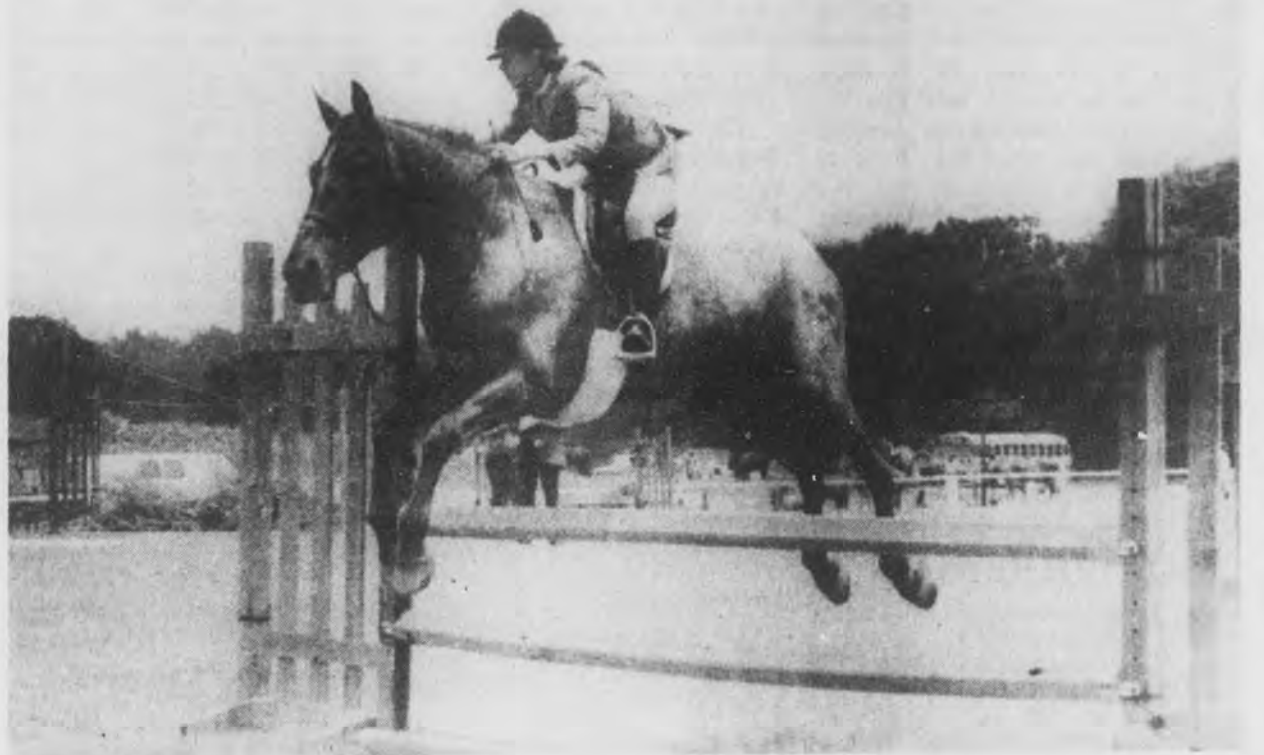

The telephone company reportedly kept a record of all calls coming into the homes, listing the time of day each call was received. The families receiving the calls recorded the time in which a "mysterious" call came. These records were then matched, and the telephone company turned over the records directly to Circuit District Attorney William Hill, not to the individual families.

Hill told the families they could either drop the matter or pursue it in court. They decided to take it to court, and swore out warrants, since they said the calls were causing worry and anxiety.

The official name of the charge under Alabama law is "Harrasing Communications" indicating a call was made with "no purpose of legitimate communication."

It is a Class C misdemeanor, and will be tried in District Court.

Graduates start new chapter

In much the way January 1 rolls out the old and rings in the new, tonight will mark both the end and beginning of chapters in the lives of most of Shelby County's graduating seniors.

Commencement exercises for all public high schools will be held tonight, with ceremonies at other schools scheduled for various times. Three schools have already held graduation.

For a complete schedule of graduation exercises, see page three of the Reporter.

Candidates sign up for city elections

With the June 3 deadline closing in, 89 candidates have tossed their hats into the political rings of Shelby County's ten municipalities.

The final deadline to file candidacy statements within the municipalities is 5 p.m. Tuesday. Political observers across the county were predicting Tuesday that the number of candidates would continue to grow up to the deadline.

In Alabaster, the list of candidates for mayor has increased to three with the addition of W.C., "Bill" Evans. He will be running against incumbent Charlotte Burke, and H.A. "Doc" Rubin.

Incumbents Roger N. Wheeler and Wayne Lucas, along with Calvin T. McCune and Helena McMillen have qualified to run for seats on the Alabaster Council.

Calera Mayor George Roy will be getting opposition in his bid for reelection from Larry Farris.

Bobby Austin and Billy Geeslin will be running for place one on the Calera council. Rodney Middlebrooks and Robert E. Loftin will run against incumbent Bobby Phillips for place two, while W.B. Watts will seek reelection to place three.

Bobby Mitchell, James H. Pilgreen and W.M. "Sonny" Davis will be seeking to capture place four, now held by A.V. Parmer. Parmer is running against Terry G. Snow, who currently holds place five on the Calera Council.

In Columbiana, place two incumbent Harold McCord will be opposed by W.J. "Hank" Spires and Lawrence F. "Larry" Horton, and place five incumbent W.R. Glenn, Jr., will be running against Lewis B. Walker.

Columbiana Mayor Bob Bolton, and incumbent councilmen George W. "Bill" Seale, Frank I. Owen and Paul Smith as of May 27 remain unchallenged in their bids for reelection.

Harpersville's J.W. Donahoo will be seeking to retain his office from mayoral hopeful Bob Muller.

County accepts land at airport

Something for nothing is an irresistible offer.

So the County Commission took Dr. David Champlin up on the proposal he made Friday which will provide a new public road at no cost to the county.

Champlin explained that land he wanted to buy in the vicinity of the Shelby County Airport was owned by the Crim family.

Their agreement to sell to him, he said, depended on donating 1.22 acres to the county for a road and 3.76 acres to the airport for a parking area.

The road, Champlin reported, is to provide access to the nearly 2,000 acres adjacent to the airport on which future development is expected.

Commissioners were told there would be one half mile of road frontage along I-65 and that the strip of land would also provide a place for the installation of field lines and septic tank.

Expressing his approval of the idea, Civil Defense Director, Bill Tucker, said that the new entrance to the airport near the hanger would provide better security.

In their decision to accept the land, the Commission stipulated that it would first have to be approved by their attorney, the county engineer and the Commission Chairman.

The subject of beer and liquor licenses was brought to the panel's attention by beer stamp inspector Solly Perkins.

He reported that the state's license fee had been increased and recommended the county follow suit.

It was agreed that the county should charge half of the license fee now being levied by the state.

This means that off-premise beer licenses will cost $50 and on-premise licenses will be increased $35.

Commissioner Jake Morris brought up the subject of the $11,000 that was to have been spent on a water resource study.

Pointing out that a comprehensive study had been conducted in 1969, Morris said he thought the money could be put to better use by hiring additional personnel.

Members of the panel admitted that no money would be available to carry out the recommendations of a study even if another one were made. So it was decided to drop the matter.

In other business, the Commission listened to Jack Honeycutt

County approves addition of staff person for sheriff

by Bert Seaman

One CETA worker at the jail has become a county employee following the termination of her federally funded contract.

Chief Deputy James Jones brought the matter of the expired contract to the attention of the Personnel Board at their Wednesday meeting.

And the panel agreed to support Sheriff Buddy Glasgow's request that the experienced radio operator be kept on the job.

The County Commission put their stamp of approval on the matter Friday. So Elsie Carter, who has been with the department 18 months, will be put on the county payroll.

Jones also reported on other personnel the Sheriff would like to see hired "when funds permit."

Evidence technicians were listed, as well as more deputies on the road and in the jail. And at least one more clerk is needed, he said.

Examinations for new employees are to be drawn up by the September meeting, the Board decided. And by July, they agreed to have the problem of continuous service ironed out.

That problem has been at the Board's door for several months due to a request by Deputy J. B. Carter. And Wednesday it was submitted in writing.

Carter asked that the year (Jan. 1, 1971 - Jan. 1, 1972) he from the State Health Department discuss the county's mosquito spraying program.

He stressed the need for cooperation with cities, saying that epidemics usually occur in urban areas.

Sub-divisions must be included too, he noted, and he recommended spraying where there were the most severe problems rather than on a routine basis in all areas.

spent guarding prisoners doing road work, should be counted as continuous time.

His pay during that period came from the Highway Department's budget, but he still reported to the Sheriff.

However, when the press refused to leave the room when a closed meeting was called for, no action was taken on the matter.

Since a decision had to be made within ten days though, a called meeting was later scheduled for this Wednesday.

When the panel holds their June meeting, they hope to have a holiday schedule for Sheriff's Department employees worked out.

Of 1st degree murder

Bobby Joe Hope found guilty second time

by Bert Seaman

A striped shirt with blood on it was the reason the Alabama Court of Criminal Appeals reversed the guilty verdict against Bobby Joe Hope when he was tried for murder two years ago.

The court held that Hope's attorneys were limited in presenting evidence about the shirt during closing arguments.

But after his second trial last week, the Shelby man was again found guilty of first degree murder in the drowning death of Louie Earl Jones.

The verdict carries a sentence of life imprisonment, and if an act passed in the 1977 session of the legislature is applied, Hope will not be eligible for parole.

At the time of his second murder trial, he was serving a ten year sentence for assault with attempt to murder.

Since that conviction was less than five years ago, the act states that no parole shall be granted.

After hearing three days of testimony last week, a jury of four women and eight men deliberated four hours and fifteen minutes before bringing in their verdict.

That was an hour and fifteen minutes longer than it took the first jury who heard the case in December, 1978.

Roy Miller from the Attorney General's office assisted District Attorney William R. Hill Jr. in nailing the lid on the case the second time around.

The two insisted that evidence pointed to Hope and his younger brother Phillip as being the men seen in the water with Jones on the night he drowned.

Phillip Hope was convicted of first degree murder in a separate trial and is now serving a life sentence.

Jones' body, which bore signs of a beating, was found floating in Waxahatchee Creek on the morning of March 25.

Attempting to show that someone else could have committed the murder, the defense put three witnesses on the stand who said they heard Donnie Edge admit that he drowned Jones.

Edge, it was contended had taken Jones' girlfriend away from him.

But in his closing argument, the District Attorney told the jury they were being asked to believe fairy tales.

He compared the witnesses to Winkyn, Blinkyn, and Nod.

Trying to show that the crime was premeditated, the prosecution called witnesses who testified that the brothers had a run-in with Jones about ten days before his death because he had their carpentry tools.

It was also brought out that the two Hopes got into a fracas with Jones at a boat launch on Waxahatchee Creek the night he died.

Defense attorneys tried to discredit testimony given by Charles Barnette, one of the prosecution's key witnesses.

Some bad character traits of the builder were brought to the jury's attention by Hope's counsel.

And the defense attorneys also said that another witness tying the Hope brothers to the crime had changed their testimony from the first trial.

Those who took the stand said that Jones and his girlfriend Tammy Moton left a Shelby lounge the evening before to go to a boat launch where they planned to have a party with some friends.

The Hopes showed up and argued with Jones, witnesses said, and they remained there with him when the others left.

According to Barnette, who said he had told the Hopes they would have to have their own carpentry tools if they wanted to work for him, Bobby Joe had remarked they'd get their tools from him (Jones), or throw him in the river.

About a week after Jones' body was found, the building contractor testified that during the drive to work, Bobby Joe had said to Phillip, "We got rid of him didn't we?" But he admitted Jones' name had not been mentioned.

Jones had been frightened, other witnesses testified, when the brothers had tried to get their tools from him in mid March.

And the Hopes resented it, according to the testimony, because Jones had called the law on them.

Defense attorney Sonny Conwill presented the testimony of a witness who said both Bobby Joe and Phillip arrived home around 12:30 a.m.

This left the jury to ponder the discrepancy in the time element, since two fishermen camped on the river where the altercation took place, reported the incident happened around 1 a.m.

James Nesbitt, one of the fishermen, told of hearing the words, "Bill, I love you like a brother."

And another voice, he reported as saying, "Stay down, you s.o.b., stay down."

The reason the name Jones called out sounded like Bill instead of Phil, the DA pointed out, was probably due to the fact he'd been drinking and because his mouth was full of water.

When he turned a light in the direction of the voices, Nesbitt said he observed two men in the water and one on the shore.

The one behind seemed to be pushing the smaller one toward shore, the fisherman said, and he turned off his light.

Nesbitt also told of seeing a car drive off a few minutes later.

The defense brought up the matter of the blood stained shirt found at the scene, which caused the reversed decision, but ownership was never determined.

During his closing argument, Hill said, "The only person who isn't here today is Louie Earl Jones."

Gesturing in the direction of Jones' family, who were seated on the front row, he reminded the jury that all that was left of the deceased was the memories they had of him.

Members of Hope's family were also present during the trial and his wife Delene sat with him at the defense table during short recesses.

Retired Judge Dave Archer from Hunstville presided at the trial.

Relocated church from Sterrett opens new doors in Harpersville

by Reporter staff

The Church of Christ will be opening new doors in Harpersville this Sunday.

The church is not new, but its location is. Founded in Sterrett over 28 years ago, the members decided to seek a new location when the building in Sterrett became too small for the congregation.

Having served Northeast Shelby County for 28 years, they looked for a site that would be both more centrally situated for their members, and more visible.

They found just such a place on Highway 280 where the four-lane ends at Harpersville. The new structure has a commodious sanctuary. A soundproof room for mothers with babies overlooks the sanctuary through a large glass window. There are several classrooms and a covered drive-up entry.

The church's preacher, Curtis Pope, told the Reporter the first services will be held June 1 with Bible classes at 10 and church services at 11.

Owen Hassett of Vincent, Harvey Crocker and Harold Wortham, both of Harpersville have served on the church's building committee.

The church was founded by Mrs. Elmer Falkner and Mrs. Bert Stevens. Early meetings were held in their homes in Sterrett. In 1955 a church was built. Members came from several communities in the northeast section and from Childersburg. About 1977 they decided it was time to move and expand.

The land was purchased last year and construction started late in the year.

A regular schedule is already laid out. In addition to Sunday and Wednesday services, a gospel meeting is scheduled for June 9-15.

SCHS Awards Day

'Keep pushing on,' Senator Proctor urges

May 23 was proclaimed Lister Hill Proctor Day at Shelby County High School. And it was also the school's annual Awards Day.

Saying he'd never been greeted so warmly nor made to feel as welcome anywhere as he had at the Columbiana school, the Sylacauga legislator spoke to students about achievement.

"Don't stop with the award you receive today," Proctor urged. "Keep pressing on."

He told the audience that leadership is sorely needed in government and advised students to get involved.

"Your leadership abilities have enabled you to get where you are today," Proctor told his listeners, "and they'll carry you forward in future years."

But the bottom line, he stressed, when all is said and done, is, "Have we performed the best we could with the capabilities God gave us?"

Shelby County High School Principal Don Bulger commended the senator for what he had done for public education in the state.

The legislator was introduced by Mayor Bob Bolton. Other guests at the occasion included Rep. Sonny Moore, former county school superintendent Elvin Hill, Shelby County Sheriff's Department Chief Deputy James Jones.

UM representative Joe Brindley, Probate Judge Tommy Snowden, Extension Agent John Jones, Columbiana Councilmen W. R. Glenn and Bill Seale, and Civitan District Governor Walt Davis.

The district Good Citizenship award pin was presented to the SCHS Junior Civitan chapter. And Davis also presented the Francis E. Leonard award for outstanding service to Jeff Seale.

Danforth award winners were Joyce Powell and Phillip Smith.

Students were also recognized for their work in FHA, the Special Olympics, band, math, 4-H, Key Club, Annual and in vocational education.

Homeroom presidents gave out academic awards and Emily Rabren, Executive Secretary of the county's Red Cross chapter recognized the school as first runners-up in the blood drive this year.

Students responded enthusiastically when the Teacher of the Year winner was announced. This year's recipient was coach Bill Reid.

The club which received the award for being outstanding was Junior Civitan.

UM schedules music classes

The University of Montevallo Music Department's Preparatory Division will offer non-credit classes this summer in voice, piano and organ.

The summer session will begin June 2 and continue through Aug. 8.

Classes are open for students of all ages. Anyone who wants more information can call 665-2521, ext. 202.

New leaders

Pelham High School Anchor club officers for next year are, back row, left to right, president Laurie Yawn, vice president Cheryl Hosey, secretary Anna Bailey, and treasurer Linda Dorcheus. Kara Pless and Lye McMillan are junior representatives. Senior representative Joe Ellen Lovelady, not pictured. Anchor club members are high school girls scholastically qualified, with good character and leadership ability, and so certified by school officials.

Helena names PO contractor

A contractor to build and lease a new main post office at Helena has been named, according to Postmaster Lois E. McGlawn.

The contract was awarded to: Ewell S. Robinson, Robinwood, Inc., of Birmingham.

The new post office will have 2,784 sq. feet of interior floor space. It will be located on the southeast corner of the intersection of Alabama Highway 21 and County Highway 52.

Construction costs will be paid with private funds. The building will be leased to the Postal Service for a basic period of 15 years with renewal options for an additional 20 years.

The building is expected to be completed in November.

Memorial blood drive draws crowd

Friends of Mike Guthrie and his family donated 155 pints of blood Monday afternoon. Some 192 people offered blood.

Red Cross officials on hand were reportedly quite surprised at the big turnout.

The drive was organized by the Montevallo Fire Department to replace blood that was used in a vain effort to save Mike Guthrie's life two weeks ago.

DID YOU KNOW?

By 1981, Alabama Power will have spent $357 million for environmental protection.

That's about $350 per customer over the last ten years. Protecting the environment is an important—but expensive—undertaking. It's necessarily a cost of doing business these days and part of the reason for higher electric rates. We also are required to file 600 reports each year with some 30 governmental agencies. Alabama Power is proud of its record of protecting the environment.

Spelling out teachers' jobs

At the Shelby County Board of Education meeting Wednesday, a proposed job description for teachers is being presented for the panel's approval.

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles pointed out that this delineation of teacher's duties will be the basis of a uniform evaluation procedure for the school system.

At the Board's last meeting, UniServ Director Wayne Sumners had complained there was not such a system in effect.

And he said that teachers were sometimes unaware of any shortcomings in carrying out their duties which in some cases led to disciplinary action or non-renewal of contract.

Taking issue with Sumners' claim that the system lacks an evaluation procedure, the Education Superintendent told the Reporter that "most principals do use some type of evaluation process."

And he noted that the faculties, in many cases, had assisted in developing the procedure.

Mentioning another charge made by the UniServ Director at the May 8 meeting, Knowles pointed out that the county system has a grievance procedure.

He said that it had been adopted in 1976 and that a copy was supposed to have been placed in the hands of every teacher.

Sumners had called attention to the matter when referring to a problem involving a Chelsea teacher.

He said that an "inappropriate" letter had been placed in her file. But Knowles denied that had ever been done.

If the Board approves the job descriptions, and the Superintendent said he is confident they will, that will be the first step for putting a system-wide evaluation plan into effect.

The committee who began working on the project in the fall of 1979 used the policy manual as their guide.

And the descriptions they came up with were reviewed twice, Knowles said, with the former UniServ Director present at both sessions.

Others on the committee which looked over the description were representatives from every school faculty, a group of principals, members of the central staff and the president of the county's education association.

Every teacher in the system had a chance to examine the final product, the superintendent said, and 90% of them endorsed it.

Touching on the matter of no explanation being given when non-tenured teacher's contracts aren't renewed, the Superintendent said the policy is state law and he feels it to be fair.

Teachers in that situation are apprised of the fact in April, Knowles said, and have the option to resign if they wish.

"The law," Knowles stressed, "states that neither party should give a reason." And this is to the teacher's advantage, he pointed out, because nothing goes in their records which would blot their career.

When a teacher's contract "dies a natural death," Knowles pointed out the reason for not renewing wasn't necessarily because the individual wasn't doing a good job.

He explained that other factors entered in, such as the inability to get along with the rest of the faculty.

Following the necessity of providing a quality education for the students of this county, the Superintendent said his next priority was to "support the well being of our teachers."

"The best thing about the 1980-81 budget," he declared, "is the 16% pay raise for teachers."

"I'm glad they got it," he went on to say, "and I wish it could have been more."

School upkeep called success

The new system for maintaining Shelby County's schools was termed successful by Superintendent Charles Knowles in an interview this week.

Knowles met with some resistance last year when he introduced the idea of having a maintenance man assigned to the campus of each county school, instead of working from a central pool in Columbiana.

But now that the first year of the system is completed, Knowles says nearly everyone likes it better; the communities, teachers, principals and maintenance men themselves.

"The schools look better," he said and added that awareness of maintenance has increased the pride in each school.

On another subject, the number of resignations and vacancies in the teaching staff is somewhat less than in previous years, Knowles said.

As far as he knows, no principals will be leaving the system, he added. His office has dozens of applications, but he said the seeming oversupply disappears when he tries to fill certain positions. For instance, he had to drop plans for expanding industrial arts this year because of a shortage of qualified teachers.

For the next budget year, he is asking each division of the school system to come up with estimates of need in early June. He wants the budget publicized so the public can get a better insight into the way the system functions.

"The Southeast can be an exporter of fuel" said Dr. Chuck Ogburn addressing over 60 persons in Columbiana on May 21. The meeting was sponsored by the Shelby County Resource Development Committee.

Col. J. Claude Smith, chairman, opened the meeting advising that one objective of the Resource Development Committee was to make Shelby County farmers more energy self-sufficient.

Ogburn, an agricultural engineer from Auburn, listed a number of crops in addition to corn that could be used to produce ethanol. He said sweet sorghum could produce 500 gallons of ethanol per acre.

He advised that economists at Auburn University had determined that a still with a 10,000 gallon a year capacity would produce ethanol at a cost of $1.73 per gallon.

Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds was hospitalized and unable to attend the special training session for tax assessors last week as reported.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Up until a few days ago, I didn't realize there were so many people in the same boat as me.

But then I read an article which revealed that hundreds - nay thousands - have also failed to renew their driver's license.

About 10,000 reminders a month are being sent out, according to the report.

I wonder what excuse those folks have.

They probably weren't aware their license had expired, or they might have had a problem in getting to the courthouse.

I can't use either of those excuses. The folks in my office alerted me to the approaching expiration of my license. And they've continued to nag me about getting it renewed.

Since the newspaper is right next door to the courthouse, time and distance can't be considered a problem.

So if you want to know why I've been putting it off, I'll tell you.

It's because of that danged picture you have to have made.

I cringe every time I have to show my license. And to think, I have to have another picture made - ugh!

I'll probably look even worse than I did in my last one.

Some people are just not photogenic. And I'm one of them.

Once in awhile, I'm pleasantly surprised when I see a picture of myself - like the Scrambled Eggs photograph. But it doesn't happen often.

I always get uptight when I try to decide on what my expression should be.

If I try to look "just pleasant," I usually wind up looking as though I've lost my last friend or else I appear to be smirking.

If I put on a big smile, more than likely, it turns out lopsided.

The last time my editor prodded me to renew, I used my hair as an excuse. The length was all wrong - it needed to be cut, and besides, I needed a shampoo.

And then there's makeup to consider. I found out from my previous photo that you need a whole lot just to appear that you're alive.

A little dab will do me most of the time. But even when I applied a goodly amount for my other session before the camera, I still came out looking like death warmed over.

So when I finally psyche myself up for the trip next door, I guess I'll have to plaster it on - especially on my eyes.

In that other disaster, my eyes resembled Orphan Annie's - just blank.

Once or twice, I've almost decided to face the camera, but that day I didn't have the right outfit to wear.

Oh yes, that's very important if there's to be even a chance for a decent picture.

I wore a gorgeous silk blouse before, but it was beige and it added to my washed out look.

When I finally take the big step, I'm going to be in something bright, bright, bright.

Oh, what's the use in making all these plans? I know the darned thing is going to turn out lousy anyway.

I just hope I won't have to produce my license on too many occasions. It's so depressing when the person who needs to see your identification never says, "Can this really be you?"

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

They said I'd lose my ten dollars in the end. And I did. It could've been twenty, or a hundred even, and it wouldn't have bothered me, the way things turned out.

Her name was Aunt Ida Vick and she was so old she didn't have to pretend. Age was all over her, like the smell on a barn. She was young once. She had to be. You've gotta be young before you can get old, and Aunt Ida had done a marvelous job of getting old. She might have done a marvelous job of being young, if somebody was still around who would know about it. But they had all slipped away and she was the last twig on the bush.

She'd cripple into the post office every month, somewhere between the 15th and the 20th, wrapping up like two sore fingers if it was cold and one sore finger if it was hot.

I'd come up with a ten spot and I'd hand it to her. She'd take it and put it in the corner of her handkerchief and tie a little knot in it before she stuck it in her pocket.

"Thank you," she'd say, letting the words trickle out.

"You take care," I'd answer. Then I'd look for her mail.

Maybe I wouldn't see her again until after the first of the month. But either on the first or the second she'd turn up at my window, holding her handkerchief in her bony hand.

"I've brought the ten dollars," she'd say.

She'd hand me the money and I'd take it and put it in my pocket. "You take care," I'd say, the same as always.

Then one day, around the 28th, they found her in bed long after her getting-up time. She had slipped away in the night.

They buried her on a little hill under some tall trees where the wind would come by and play with the leaves. I think that's the way she would've wanted it, if they could've asked her.

She was old and she was bothered, and maybe she had a little more trouble than most finding her way in our hurry-up world. But tonight, almost twenty years later, I'm a thousand times glad Aunt Ida Vick called me her friend. Because, more than anyone else, she taught me that living on this earth is a two-way street.

Watch that easy money

According to postal authorities, four Texas firms have been advertising under false pretenses in local and national publications.

Advertising by the companies is designed to lure readers with visions of big money for very little work, said the U.S. Postal Service. It warns consumers about such advertising.

The San Antonio based firms are identified by the postal service as American Association of Home Income Programs, Consolidated Reliance Agency, Financial Advisors Services, and Ladies Financial Security Program.

Two of the firms advertised for people to either "stuff" or "process" envelopes with guaranteed weekly incomes of more than $300. The other two guaranteed weekly earnings of more than $200 for one or two hours work per day.

An attorney in the Postal Service Law Department says the mail for the work-at-home operators is presently being held in the San Antonio post office. A judicial hearing is being held. If it results in a decision against the companies, the mail will be returned to the senders, says the postal department.

A booklet on the "Work-at-home" scheme is available at the Birmingham post office. It may also be obtained by writing W.C. Long, Postal Inspector, PO Box 2767, Birmingham 35202 or by calling 254-1922.

Donators to cemetery thanked for support

Letter to the Editor: (Referring to letter printed in May 15 issue)

As a concerned person and one who cares deeply about loved ones buried in the Elliottsville Cemetery on Highway 119, I feel as a trustee of the cemetery for many years I should correct one simple point of fact.

The collections have always been adequate to supply the basics to pay a caretaker to cut the grass which is $100 per cutting, except when there is lots of extra work. I personally feel gratified for generous contributions in the past which have more than covered expenditures.

Of course, there will always be those who give to the care of the cemetery and those who do not, for whatever reason. That is our way of life! However, many people find comfort in visiting the grave sites of their loved ones often to care for them in a very special way. There are many concerned people who care about the graves of all buried there as manifested by nearly 100 percent

Reporter's coverage appreciated

Letter to David Moore, Sports Editor:

The Thompson High School Baseball Boosters would like to thank you for your outstanding coverage this year of baseball in Shelby County. This is the most and best recognition we at Thompson have ever received. We hope you will maintain regular contact with our school in all athletics.

Thanks for a job well done. Thompson Baseball Boosters coverage of flowers at Homecoming.

While I commend the writer's concern for the cemetery, perhaps she had in mind perpetual care. This could well be a challenge to her generation for the future of the cemetery. Right now I would like to salute all those who have helped to make the present system work. I feel many do care, and hope some day we will have perpetual care.

Coping in the 80's

Recycle cars and save

"People are driving less and having fewer accidents, but the cost of repairs has gone up," said Bill Weston, a Montevallo insurance agent.

He added that the cost of parts and labor is one thing which has kept up with inflation.

Billy Graham at Calera says he has found a way to help owners of foreign cars fight the cost of automobile parts.

Spread over ten acres just south of the city, Graham has approximately 700 wrecked foreign cars from which he salvages parts.

Most of the cars have been declared total losses by insurance companies which have paid the owners for them, he said. But many parts in them are still good. He buys these automobiles directly from the insurance companies and hauls them to his Calera business where he and another mechanic take off usable parts for resale.

Many portions of the automobiles are dismantled so parts can be catalogued and stored for easy access. Other portions are left intact until customers call for them.

Mechanic, Robert Williams, usually cuts off parts, such as doors or fenders, as they are needed. "Cutting off parts is a dangerous job," explained

Graham. "You need someone who sort of specializes in it. There are often gas tanks, air conditioner components and such involved."

A special telephone system, connecting such salvage yards throughout the southeast, allows the Calera yard to locate quickly any part it does not have.

"Just yesterday I called a place in Biloxi for a part," said Graham, "and they can have it here within ten days. That beats ordering from Japan or England."

He pointed out that this recycling of automobiles not only results in big savings of money and time to car owners, but also saves our natural resources and energy. "It takes less oil to melt down a car than to take iron ore from the ground and process it," he explained. He added that it is of course obvious that when we reuse already manufactured parts, we are saving on iron ore itself.

The used parts industry points out that it "serves the community by purchasing total losses which reduces insurance rates" while "making serviceable used parts available at reasonable prices." It also claims that it rids the streets of 8.2 million non-operating vehicles each year and converts them to usable parts and scraps.

Recycled car parts

Billy Graham cleans parts taken from wrecked automobiles at his foreign car salvage yard in Calera, before reselling them.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

Two degrees, or grades, of faith are mentioned in the Bible. They are discussed in the following scriptures. "O ye of little faith" (Matthew 6:30). "Him that is weak in faith receive ye" (Romans 14:1). "I have not found so great faith" (Matthew 8:10). "But was strong in faith, giving glory to God" (Romans 4:20). "With which worketh by love" (Galatians 5:6). "Believe to the saving of the soul" (Hebrews 10:39). "Faith without works is dead" (James 2:20).

From the foregoing Scriptures, it is evident that the two degrees of faith are as follows:

One is weak-- The other is strong
One is little-- The other is great
One does not work; it is dead-- The other works by love

One sings him who dies with it into deeper depths in torment-- The other saves

What type faith do you have? Do you have obedient, saving faith?

Dear reader, to become a Christian, one must hear (Romans 10:17), believe (Hebrews 11:6), repent (Luke 13:3), confess (Matthew 10:32, 33), be baptized (Acts 2:38; Acts 22:16).

County vets receive over $3.2 million

Shelby County veterans and their dependents received a total of $3,219,565 during FY 1979, from the Veterans Administration.

Jim Mayhew, local service officer, said the bulk of the money was paid for disability compensation and pension benefits. "Other expenditures for 1979," Mayhew said, "were for readjustment and Vocational rehabilitation training, insurance, and indemnities."

"With only one Federal VA Regional Office in the State and with our Department's offices in every county, it's a well established fact that Alabama Veterans Affairs county offices are the main source of work and input into the VA's outflow of benefits," says Mayhew. "In other words," he added, "most all the funds for Shelby County were obtained through our Shelby County office of the Alabama Department of Veterans Affairs."

He emphasized that the local office has no official connection with the Veterans Administration, which is a federal agency. He pointed out that the job of the Department of Veterans Affairs is to keep all veterans and their dependents informed of their entitlement to benefits and to provide personal and professional assistance in securing those benefits.

"These expenditures do not include the thousands of dollars spent for educational benefits for veteran's dependents which are paid for by the State of Alabama and administered through local county offices," he added.

"We in the local office are proud of the benefits we've been able to secure for our veterans and their dependents during 1979, as well as the 35 years of our existence since World War II."

Fifteen local students make UA dean's list

Fifteen county students have made the Dean's List at the University of Alabama.

They are: Cheryl E. Fazekas, and Lee Beth Gould of Alabaster, Cheryl Diane Franklin of Calera, Donald E. Hall of Chelsea, Catherine Ann Alston and Jeffrey L. Cary of Columbiana and Jeffrey L. Blankenship of Harpersville;

From Helena are: Rhea Culbertson Fleming, Jeffrey Edward Holmes and Debra Anderson Scott;

Carla J. Kirkland of Montevallo, Billy Doyle Bailey and Francis H. Brown, of Pelham; Julia M. Kelley and Charles A. Richey, of Vincent, also made the list.

Montevallo moves to upgrade gas lines

A $20,000 to $25,000 project to upgrade gas lines and gas meters will begin in Montevallo next month.

City Clerk Don Hughes outlined plans for the Public Service Commission mandated project during this week's meeting of the Montevallo City Council. Hughes told council members that plastic pipe will be inserted into approximately a half mile of cast iron gas line along Montevallo's Highland Street. The project will also include the installation of new gas meters at individual homes. Work on the project will begin in June.

In other action Monday night, the city council upheld a vote by the city's Planning Commission that denied the Montevallo First Baptist Church a variance of the city's code prohibiting house trailers and mobile housing units.

The church had requested the code variance which would permit the church to locate a double wide modular unit of housing adjacent to the church. The temporary structure would serve as teaching facilities while a renovation project is underway in the church building. The request is contrary to a part of the city's code adopted in 1973.

In other matters Councilman Grady Parker reported that Police Patrolman Bill Gray is attending the State Police Academy and Councilman Herbert Milstead reported that the 1980 street improvement program is underway.

Coon Town dancers elect new officers

Harvey and Chris McHan, Lloyd and Martha J. Embry, Thelma Garrett, and Charles and Sue Hogge were recent guests of the Helena-Shelby Shuffler's Club at Panama City for a weekend of square dancing and entertainment.

Clubs from Birmingham and Pell City were also represented.

A group of parents and young people from Shelby County High School were hosts at a party honoring Coach Mark Bradley and Coach Don Poncey on May 24.

The party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lawrence in Wilsonville, with about 130 persons attending. After an afternoon of swimming, a picnic buffet was served, and gifts of appreciation were given to the two coaches.

Who really pays the highest interest?

You've read the claims: "We Pay High Interest," "We Pay Higher Interest," "We Pay The Highest Interest."

The fact is, the federal government establishes the same maximum interest rates on savings for all savings and loans. Likewise for all banks although a bank's interest rates are generally one-quarter percent less than a savings and loan's.

United Federal pays the maximum rate on its various savings plans. But others may not. Make sure you ask.

There is a big difference, however, in the way financial institutions add interest to your original deposit (compounding). United Federal compounds continuously. This is the most preferred technique because your money is constantly working for you. "Continuous" compounding is slightly better than "daily" compounding and definitely more desirable than "monthly" or "quarterly" compounding.

To appreciate the difference compounding can make, ask the institutions you are considering what the return on your investment (yield) will be if you put $1,000 in an account for one year.

Another big difference at United Federal is our savings consultants. Whether you have $300 or $300,000 to work with, we can help you develop a personal savings plan to meet your specific needs. Visit us soon.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

You've got a friend...

WE HONOR W.I.C. PROGRAM PURCHASES

THS service awards

Honors Day service awards at Thompson High School were presented to (front, from left), Karen Fancher, Connie Brogden, Susan Headley, (back)

Dan Ward, Julie Warne, Cindy Holcombe and Lorrie Austin.

Program builds readers at county's public libraries

All children who have completed grades 1-7 are eligible to register for a "Summer of Champions".

The 1980 summer reading will begin June 2 and continue through August 8. All eight libraries in the county and the bookmobile will feature the Summer of Champions registration materials.

Each participant in the program will receive a bookmark at registration. When a child has read two books, the librarian will give him a reading log with space for titles of books read. It also features puzzles and sports-related questions to answer. Each child who had read a minimum of 15 books by August 8 will receive a certificate signed by Governor James.

An annual program in Alabama, the statewide summer reading program is sponsored by the Alabama Public Library Service and the Shelby County Libraries. It is made possible through funding from the Library Services and Construction Act.

Many libraries have planned a variety of activities for the reading program this year. June 2 is the kickoff date. Marathon races to the library or nearby parks are planned to start at 9 a.m. in Alabaster, Calera, Columbiana, Helena, Montevallo and Vincent.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners and there will be refreshments for all participants. Then the children will have a chance to choose their first set of books and start reading. Some libraries will also show a movie following the race.

Pelham Public Library will treat its children to a showing of the Hooper - Blood Highway, a Dr. Seuss film and refreshments at 1 p.m., June 2. Reading program registration will follow the film.

Preschool story hour will be held on Tuesday at 9:30 in Alabaster at 1 in Helena and at 2 in Columbiana.

On Wednesdays, it will be at 10 in Montevallo and 2 in Calera. It will be held at 10 on Thursday in both Pelham and Vincent.

Persons wishing more information may contact their local libraries.

Calera citizens group draws public support

A citizens group has been organized in Calera with Bill Colm as its chairman.

Colm says the group, called "Concerned Citizens of Calera" will provide a platform to state the needs of the city, and get "a real overview of the city's problems."

All segments of Calera's population are encouraged to join and already there are representatives in it from all parts of the city, he said.

June 9 is the date for the next meeting. All candidates for city posts are invited. A barbecue rally has been set for June 14.

Publicity and campaign chairman is Becky Hayes, 668-0875.

VOTE

Robert A. Muller, Sr. For Mayor of Harpersville

I am announcing my candidacy for the office of mayor of the town of Harpersville. I feel there are some changes that need to be made in our town for the benefit of the citizens of Harpersville and its local business people.

Harpersville City Hall belongs to the people of Harpersville and its facilities should serve the best interest of all of them, not just a small select few.

I believe:

1. We need a full time clerk, someone at city hall on a regular basis. The town's business should not be run in a haphazard manner. Telephone numbers are listed for City Hall, Police Department, and Fire Department but calls are not answered. The lives, homes, property, and time of the town's citizens deserve full time attention and protection.

2. The mayor-city council system we have could be improved upon by allowing council members (as representatives of the town's citizens) now voice in the running of the town; its police department, and its fire department.

3. The Harpersville Water Board, not the mayor's office, should control the water system.

4. The Police Department needs experienced, trained, and qualified to do their job, given good equipment, then allowed to do it.

The Fire Department also needs the support of, not interference from, the mayor's office.

If I am elected I will endeavor to see these things are done.

New businesses hold open house

Alabaster Mayor Charlotte Burke cut the ribbon opening Billy Golden's Spur Station and Convenience Store last Friday. Special prizes will be awarded in connection with the grand opening of the station, located on Highway 119, just off Highway 31.

An award winning firm, S and S Appliance and Service Company, is holding a grand opening celebration in Pelham's Shelby Mart this week.

Organized in 1960, S and S has been affiliated with Loveman's in Huntsville and Birmingham, since 1961. S and S leased floor space from Loveman's and sold and serviced appliances including televisions in each of Loveman's stores.

When Loveman's closed its doors company president Duell Speegle established two stores, one in downtown Birmingham and the other in the Shelby Mart in Pelham. The Pelham location services most major appliances and sells Whirlpool, Panasonic, Hardwick, Zenith and Litton.

Larry Sheets is general manager of the Pelham store. Jim Covington is sales manager for both locations.

Sheets is a native of Birmingham and a graduate of Auburn University. Sheets told the Reporter that he, his wife Marilyn and son Michael will move to Shelby County "as soon as we can find a house."

Burl Robertson, Jr. of Alabaster recently joined the Horace Mann Insurance Companies as a sales representative providing multiline insurance primarily to teachers. Robertson graduated from the University of Alabama in Birmingham with B.A. in history and an M.A. in guidance and counseling.

Thompson wins first baseball championship

Red Tornado sweeps county

Question: How do you cork a Red Tornado?

Answer: You don't--not if you're playing them in the 1980 Shelby County Baseball Tournament, that is.

An estimated crowd of 300 baseball fans was on hand in Columbiana, Tuesday night, May 20, as the Thompson Warriors--affectionately known in some circles as the Red Tornado--claimed their first county baseball championship, defeating the Shelby County Wildcats 4-1 in seven innings of determined ball play.

And it wasn't just Thompson that was determined.

After being postponed twice by rain, the weatherman finally gave a damp nod of approval for the Tuesday game, a game in which most everybody was expecting to see a good pitching duel. And so it was.

Thompson mound king, Steve "Tubbs" Smitherman, picked up his ninth win in as many games, downing 10 Wildcats while walking none and allowing but one hit, that to the sure bat of Ricky Lathan.

Dan Head pitched an admirable game for Shelby County, as well. Head's blistering fast ball and crafty curve retired 10 Warriors. He gave up only two bases on balls, counting intentional walk against David Cofer. He also hit Brad Cocke in the first inning.

But stopping the Thompson bats is like corking a tornado (of any color), and even though they were all singles, the Warriors collected nine hits off Head.

The score remained knotted at nothing-all for three innings.

Then in the top of the fourth, Allen Henke set up SCHS's only run when he made it to first on a fielder's choice, and took second on a passed ball. When Dana Vansant hit into the only Thompson error of the game, Henke was already well on his way to third. The throw from short stop to first, which would have retired the sides, bounced short and Henke didn't even slow up as he rounded third and breezed home.

You could tell from the wild explosion of the Wildcat fans and the sullen looks on the faces of Thompson coaches Billy Woodham and Steve Lee, that it was a big run.

Someone forgot to tell the Warriors that one run was too big an obstacle to overcome, however. Three hits and three errors later, the score was 4-1 in the bottom of the fourth.

Pete Lint started things off with a single and Chuck Woody went to the first as his runner. Steve Boothe followed site with another single that sent Woody to third.

Head downed the next batter, but Mark Gamble came to bat and singled to short left, scoring Woody. Then Brad Cocke made it to first, loading the bases.

Smitherman sacrificed to score Boothe and an error put David Cofer on first and scored Gamble.

John Durrett then accidentally connected with the ball, leaving some question as to who was more surprised, he or Dan Head, Head fell down trying to make a play for the erratic grounder. Whoever was most surprised, it wasn't Cocke, who dashed home to make the score 4-1.

Lathan, the Wildcat's catcher, retired the game's scoring when he made a peg on the money to put out Durrett stealing second.

The Wildcats saw their final shot at the county championship and a winning season dribble down the drain as Thompson downed them three up and three down in the top of the seventh.

The 4-1 loss saw Shelby County fall to a misleading 11-12 record, Coach Bill Reid's first losing season in seven years at the school.

Though Reid was understandably down after the game, he still had a lot of pride in his team.

"As a group of kids, they had the best attitude of any 20 folks we've ever had. We've had our share of tough breaks. But when they give 100 percent, you can't ask for anything more."

"Thompson has a good team. there's no doubt about it. Smitherman threw the best he's thrown in three weeks."

Wildcat pitching coach Bill Henke called Head's pitching job "super" and said he was the "finest competitor I've ever coached."

Asked about the Wildcats' hitting, or lack of same, in the game, Henke commented, "Most all batting's off against Smitherman."

"Not counting their breakdown in the fourth, the game could have gone either way," said Thompson's Woodham. "Head did a super job against us. He throws hard. Shelby County will always be a contender. Reid does a great job."

Of course it wasn't Reid's boys that Woodham wanted to spend all his time complimenting. He was fast to credit his seven seniors with strong leadership.

"We had a good year because all the boys worked real hard. It was a real pleasure working with them."

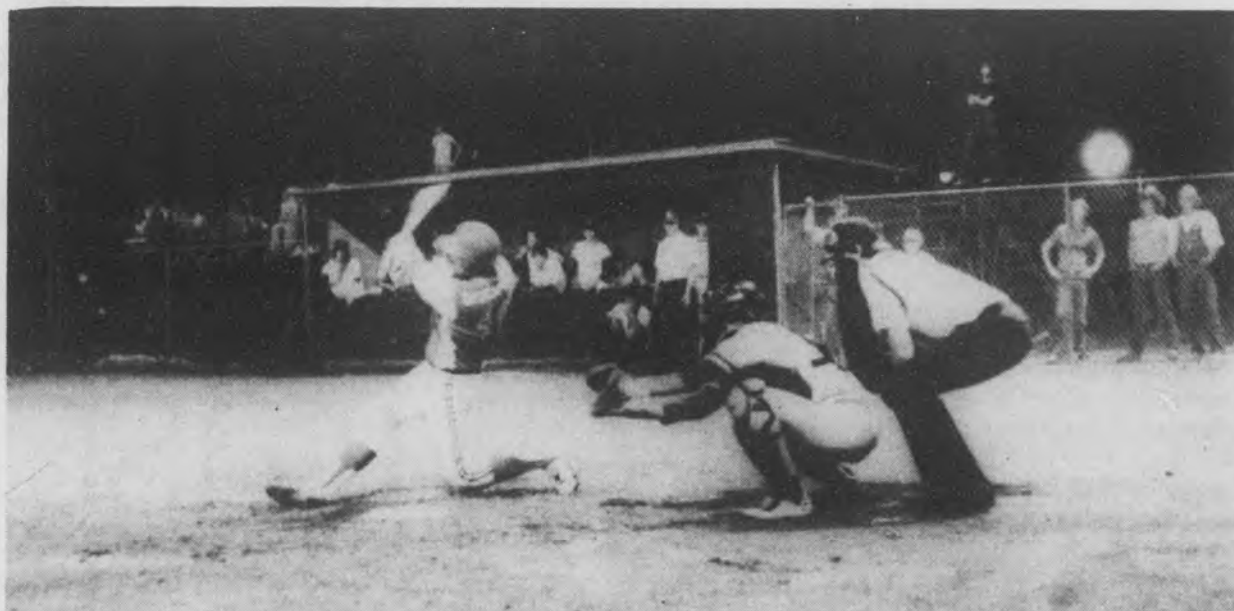

Woodham noted, and not without undue pride, that in his two years as THS baseball coach, the Warriors have chalked up a highly respectable 38-10 record, which also includes two area and two regional championships.

Which just goes to prove that maybe it's not impossible to cork a Red Tornado, but it sure is tough.

On the way

THS got their final run of the evening when Steve Smitherman sacrificed himself at first to score Steve Boothe.

Head made it hard

THS won the county title, but Shelby County made it hard. Pitcher Dan Head led the trouble making for the Wildcats with his pitching. With the bases loaded in the third inning and a full count on Bret Davenport, Head threw this strike to keep the score--temporarily--at zero all.

ACAC state track champs

Leading the Briarwood Lions to the Alabama Christian Athletic Association's state track championships were (front, from left) co-MVP's Mike Schor and Peter Wright, and (back, from left)

Janie Stover, Marcy Bradford, Tyler Nash and Beth Buck. They were honored, along with some 180 of their fellow athletes, at the BCHS spring banquet Friday. (Story on B-3)

Coaches name all-county team

Sluggers, fielders, pitchers and catchers--the coaches put their heads together after last week's baseball tournament, and picked the cream of the crop. Twelve players and two MVP's were chosen as the 1980 all-county baseball dream team.

Normally, only one player is picked for the top MVP honor. But since Shelby County's Dan Head and Thompson's Steve Smitherman were both held in such high esteem, the two were voted to share the distinction of being most valuable.

Also from Thompson, left fielder Bret Davenport and catcher David Cofer were picked as all-county material. Further representing the Wildcats were catcher Ricky Lathan and pitcher-outfielder Allen Henke.

Montevallo also placed three players on the dream team, too:

shortstop-pitchers David Melsoni and Bret Jones, and right fielder Carey Thompson.

Pelham pitcher Bart Pierce, Vincent pitcher Steve Riggins and Chelsea pitcher Paul Kendrick were chosen for their talented arms, and Calera catcher Jeff Stewart was choosen for the way he backed up such talent.

Now, if they only had someone to play...

Sports shorts to note

►According to Bobby Talton, the man who smiled at you and took your dollar when you went in the gate to see the Shelby County Baseball Tournament, attendance for the three nights of games was in the neighborhood of 900 fans.

►Speaking of the tourney, Friday night's final must have seemed like a case of deja vu for SCHS's Dan Head and Thompson's Steve Smitherman. Back when they were knee-high to a base bag, the two pitched against each other twice in Little League championship play, winning a game each.

►David Melsoni, Montevallo junior, tied the school's record for getting hits in consecutive games. He got at least one hit the first 9 games in the season, tying the record set by Percy Brown in 1974.

►Thompson's Brad Cocke may get the "don't give that man a bat unless you want him on base" award. According to Coach Billy Woodham, Cocke's batting aerage is right at .490. If anyone in the county can top that, somebody needs to let us know.

SCHS's top-notchers

Some of Shelby County's High top-notch athletes who received awards Thursday night (from front left) football captain and baseball MVP Dan

Head, baseball captain Dana Vansant, (from back left) basketball MVP Terry Carter, baseball captain Ricky Lathan and tennis MVP Don Phillips.

More than 150 people attended the Shelby County High School sports banquet Thursday night in Coumbiana.

Mastering the ceremonies was booster president Joe Tidmore, and the invocation was given by senior Wildcat, Dana Vansant.

Much bar-b-que and many chicken fingers later, principal Don Bulger introduced guest speaker Thomas "Pap" Morris from Nunnelley State Technical School, who gave a rather colorful talk on dedication and persistence.

When you get knocked flat on your back, said Morris, summing up his years of experience as both coach and athlete, you've got to have the backbone to get up, walk tall and fight again tomorrow. This sort of backbone development calls for dedication and persistence on the part of the athlete.

Head Coach Mark Bradley recognized the varsity football team and passed out letters and certificates.

Explaining he had stolen and adopted the motto of "all for one and one for all," for gridmen, Bradley said he did not believe in singling out one player for a MVP award. But, he said, there was little question that Dan Head and Guy Mitchell should be honored as captain and co-captain.

Bradley recognized the Wildcats' B-team basketball players, as well.

Coach Don Pouncey made his presentation of letters and certificates to the varsity basketball team. Leon Maddox and Jeff Seale were named as captains because they were the ones who "did it best," Pouncey said.

The team voted Terry Carter as the roundball MVP.

B-team cheerleader sponsor Bonnie Atchison, speaking on behalf of co-sponsor Carolyn Lawrence, recognized the girls who spurred on B-team sports from the sidelines. Sheila Rasco and Tricai Jones were cited as head and co-head cheerleaders.

Deanne Vansant presented varsity cheerleader letters, and Donna Hughes and Sabra Phillips were recognized as head and co-head of that squad.

Coach Vansant also presented letters and certificates to the Wildcat tennis team and volleyball team.

Don Phillips received the tennis MVP for his distinction of winning every one of his matches.

Michele Reed was named as captain of the volleyball team, and Julie Rutledge and Mary Powell were recognized for making the all-county and all-area teams, respectively.

Coach Pouncey made the track team letter presentations. Jeff Keenum was chosen by his fellow trackers as the team's MVP, and Guy Mitchell and Leon Maddox were named as captains.

Coaches Bill Reid and Bill Henke presented letters and honors to the baseball team, with Reid saying, "Overall, man for man all the way down the line, this was the best bunch of guys I've ever worked with. Their attitude was super."

Pitching ace Dan Head was chosen by his fellow baseball players as MVP, and Ricky Lathan and Dana Vansant were voted as captains.

Coach Reid also made the trophy presentation for the athlete with the highest grade point average. Jeff Seale was named for the honor, but was unable to attend the banquet due to illness.

In their talks, all the coaches recognized the contributions of their managers and scorekeepers. These people were Kenny Whitner, Greg Hall, Donald Reed, Mike Dozier, Hattie Johnson, Pam Newman, Dell Moody and gate keeper Bobby Talton.

The program concluded with the cheerleaders leading the singing of the alma mater.

Honored Wildcats

Receiving some of the top honors handed out at the Shelby County High School sports banquet Thursday night, were (from left front) track MVP Jeff Keenum, all-county volleyballer Julie Rutledge, (from left rear) volleyball captain Michele Reed, basketball and track captain Leon Maddox, Fred Lilly, and all-area volleyballer Mary Powell.

Wanted: men for soccer team

Randy Halcomb wants to start a Shelby County men's soccer team.

He has been coaching four soccer teams this year while finishing his college education at the University of Montevallo.

The teams were the university team, and teams at Thompson High, Montevallo High and Montevallo Middle Schools.

Now he is looking for a group of men who might be tired of softball and interested in the faster sport of soccer. The team he proposes would be a community-type team composed of Shelby Countians who might want to play in a league with four or five teams in Birmingham.

Halcomb, who became interested in soccer at a private Southern Baptist High School in Kentucky, says he is looking for men who just want to have a good time and get involved in the community. He would organize and coach the team just for the fun of it, he told the Reporter.

The team he proposes would not be sponsored by a business. The players would buy their own uniforms and pitch in to help pay for the referee at each game.

Other than that, he said there would be little expense connected with it.

Anyone who is interested can get in touch with him at 665-1449.

Let's Twist Again Like We Did Last Summer.

When temperatures hit their peak, so do your electric bills. The reason is air conditioning, the single biggest user of electricity in the average home.

But last year, Alabamians learned to save by twisting their thermostats to 78.

This summer, 78 should be an even more popular number. Because temperatures are expected to be hotter than the moderate summer of 79.

If you'd like to ease the impact on your electric bills, twist again. Turn your thermostat up to 78°. And while your air conditioning is doing a little less, you can help by doing a little more.

By using ventilated awnings, drapes and other shading devices to keep the sun's rays out. And by waiting until the cooler part of the day to use heat producing appliances like your stove and clothes dryer.

Let's face it. You may not be quite as comfortable as in summers past. But you can take comfort in the fact that you'll be saving money.

How much? More than you might think. Because even during the peak temperatures of summer, the biggest influence on your electric bill is how much you elect to use.

Briarwood banquet draws 300

Approximately 300 people attended the elaborate Spring Sports Banquet Friday night at Briarwood Christian High School. The marathon banquet lasted nearly three and a half hours, during which time some 180 athletes, managers, cheerleaders and color guards were honored.

Guest speaker for the occasion was former NY Yankee second baseman Bobby Richardson. Richardson, who still holds the World Series record for most RBI's, was chosen the Series MVP in 1962.

An active member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Richardson asked the question, "Can you be a Christian and an athlete?" He pointed out he'd rather be an unknown "down here," and have his name in the Hall of Fame "up there."

The junior high cheerleaders were given letters by their sponsor, Bev Kruger, and Gwen Betsch and Anna Harris were recognized as head and co-head.

Head cheerleader Anita Barker, co-head Ann Jernigan and most valuable Holly Har-ison were honored, along with the rest of the BCHS varsity cheerleading squad, by their sponsor Jan Godfrey.

Donna Daniell gave out letters to the marching Marturians and color guard, noting Lee Mann, Kelli Morris and Janet McLendon as captain and co-captains.

Coach Toby Yelverton gave out letters and certificates to the junior high basketball team, with the sportsmanship trophy going to Terry Brown.

B-team basketball coach and athletic director Gary "Big Red" Fleming, passed out letters to his roundball squad, and the hustle and most improved trophies to Jeff Nelson and Bo Smith.

The girls varsity basketball team was presented letters and certificates by Coach (and school principal) Roger Sikkenga, who said, "They were the most fun I've had all year!" Janine Stover received the most improved award, Cathy Campbell received the coach's award, and Cathie Simpton was named MVP.

"These guys have character," said Lions varsity basketball coach Steve Franklin, noting that his roundballers had turned an early 0-5 record into a strong 17-9 season standing. Jim Nelson was cited as captain and Scott "Moose" Moore received the rebound award for his 153 caroms. All-county Pat Trammell was named MVP and leading scorer, averaging 17 points per game, with a high of 28.

Junior girls track coach Karen England noted that her team, in their first full year of competition, won third place in the AHSAA State Championships. Captain Janine Stover was named most valuable runner.

Coach England also handed out letters and awards to her varsity track team who won the ACAC State Championships and finished second in the Shelby County Championships. The MVR award went to Marcy Bradford, and Beth Buck was named as captain.

Boys track mentor Bobby Scott recognized Wayne Price as junior MVR and Kenneth Preston as captain of the five man junior high team.

"I just watched and had a great time," Scott said while handing out letters to his varsity trackers who won their fourth consecutive ACAC State Championship as well the Shelby County Championships. Peter Wright and Mike Schor carried off a ton of trophies including their co-capturing of the ACAC MVP for two years their claiming of this year's Shelby County track MVP.

Wright was also named the team's MVR and Tyler Nash was recognized for his leadership as captain.

Coach Dee Thompson named Susan Crowe MVP of her girl's tennis team. Captain of the team was Amy Agee.

Boys tennis coach Steve Franklin said he dubbed his team the "giant killers" because of their habit of bumping off 4-A schools on their way to a 10-1 record. The MVP went to undefeated (11-0) Clay Wheeler. Seventh grader Patrick Herren was also recognized for his 11-0 record. Team captain was Wood Herren.

Anthony Hand was named captain of the golf team and Page Gamble received a trophy as low medalist. Coach Joel Inman pointed out that his 12-4 team most recently defeated Berry High, defending 4-A state champs.

Coach Dr. Byrle Kynerd passed out letters to the baseball team and recognized Bill Jollit and Lawton Miller as co-captains.

Dr. Kynerd, speaking for the coaching staff and those present, thanked Sikkenga for the work he had done in organizing both sports and scholastics at Briarwood. The crowd gave the principal a standing ovation. Emcee for the banquet was John Bradford. Keith Scott gave the blessing and Dean Ledbetter gave the closing prayer.

BCHS student Jim Anderson provided piano music during dinner and slides of the track team were shown during those presentations.

Honored seniors

Among the senior athletes honored at the BCHS sports banquet were (from front left) baseball co-captain Bill "Shorty Forty" Jollit, basketball MVP Pat Trammell, basketball captain Jim

Leading Lionesses

THS team rewarded with steak

The Thompson High School baseball team was honored Thursday night with a steak dinner at an Alabaster restaurant.

If everyone there was in a good mood, it was no wonder. Besides savoring their steaks, the Warriors were still savoring their first ever, country baseball championship, which they won last Tuesday.

Coach Ellie Glasscox gave an informal talk to the 50 players, dates, and parents attending the dinner. He noted that the Warriors baseball program was bringing recognition to the school, and said that the team as made up of the "20 best kids in the school."

Glasscox, as well as baseball coach Billy Woodham, said that the seniors on the team had exhibited the best leadership of any graduating group to go through THS. When Woodham noted that the seven graduating seniors were going to leave some big shoes to be filled, he was speaking about more than just foot size.

Coach Steve Lee assisted Woodham in presenting letters and certificates to the team.

The team voted Brad Cocke and Mark Gamble as best offensive and defensive players, respectively. Their awards were presented by former THS baseball player Don Collins.

There was no surprise, but everyone applauded when Steve Smitherman was named MVP.

The senior Warriors presented Woodham and Lee with personalized t-shirts proclaiming Thompson as 1980 county baseball champions.

Woodham gave a special thanks to the school's first ever baseball booster club, and its president, Jean Smitherman. Under her leadership, he noted, the club raised about $1700 for team equipment.

Winning Warriors

Leading the team effort of the Thompson's Warriors' baseball club, which amassed a 19-4 overall record, capped off with the county championship, were (from left) best offensive player Brad Cocke, MVP mound ace Steve Smitherman, and best defensive player Mark Gamble.

The Major League Braves of the Central Shelby DY program, still undefeated in eight games, remain in a strong first place. Last week the Braves demolished the Chelsea Tigers 22-11 and did the same to the Dodgers 13-3.

The second place Pirates, 6-3 on the season, defeated the Cubs 6-3 and the Cardinals 9-6.

The Cubs beat the Dodgers 16-8 and the Cards beat the Tigers 10-1, putting those teams in third and fourth with respective 5-4 and 4-5 records. The Dodgers are in fifth at 3-5 and the Tigers sit in the cellar with an 0-9 record.

Lure of the sea beckons county family

by Bert Seaman

Anyone who loves the sea often toys with the idea of someday "leaving it all behind" and setting sail.

But a job and family and schooling prevent most people from pulling up stakes and making the dream become a reality.

None of those things, however, have stopped a Montevallo family from embarking on a two year cruise.

John and Marnie Owen and their four sons will be on their way to Florida in a few weeks to make a final choice of the boat that will be "home" until 1982.

Family togetherness will take on new meaning when parents and offspring finally cast off in their boat, which Owen says will be a 40 foot ketch.

"In six months or a year, we may wonder why we ever decided this would be a good idea," laughed the UM music teacher.

Owen related that he has a two year leave of absence from the university. "We figured that would be the minimum time we could see all the places we wanted to," he remarked.

And his wife explained that the motivating factor for their leaving this year was the oldest son's graduation from high school.

"We felt this was the last chance we would have for all of us to go together," she said.

Even though 18 year old Johnny won't have to worry about studies, his three younger brothers will have to keep up with their lessons during the voyage.

"They'll be doing this through correspondence courses," Owen noted.

In addition to studying, the boys will also be making music as their boat cuts through the waves.

Johnny, 17 year old Tommy and 16 year old Richey, are all members of the Montevallo High School Marching Band.

And Owen said he expects they'll take along some trumpets and possibly a trombone.

Because of the moisture, Mrs. Owen won't take her violin, so she and her youngest son, 9 year old Jimmy, will just sit back and enjoy the music.

The son of a career naval officer, Owen said that a long sea voyage had always been a family dream.

And it was during his boyhood days along the St. John's River in Florida, he reported, that he first learned to sail.

Several years ago, the family started sailing on Lake Logan Martin with their friends, the Samford Collees.

And last year they bought a larger boat which they kept moored in Florida.

The Owens' plan to make a trip down the east coast of Florida to the Bahamas as their shakedown cruise.

Later in the summer, they plan to sail along Florida's west coast, and during the fall they hope to go around the gulf and down to Mexico.

"If everything works out," Owen said, "we'll spend Christmas on the Yucatan peninsula."

And the family wants to stay in that area several weeks "getting to know the people," and perhaps even obtaining temporary jobs.

Although their itinerary is flexible, Owen says the family has discussed the idea of anchoring in Chesapeake Bay for several weeks next fall so the boys can visit the nation's capital and get a "first person look at American history."

They also plan to spend some time on the Great Lakes and travel around the Superior, Wisc. area where Mrs. Owen grew up.

After that, the Alabama sailors expect to go up the St. Lawrence Seaway and do some exploring in the Nova Scotia area.

Although shipboard life will take a lot of organization, Mrs. Owen points out that with such a large family, she's used to scheduling.

Everyone will have chores, she notes, which will include cooking, cleanup, steering and standing watch.

In their leisure time, the family will fish, swim, scuba dive, monitor the short wave radio, read and play games.

Learning Spanish is another project the family plans to work on together and everyone will also be keeping a log of the trip.

Since there's limited space aboard ship, clothing and possessions will be cut to a minimum.

After selling their home, the Owens' either sold, stored or gave away what they weren't taking.

However, they did leave something in Montevallo. And when they return from their wanderings, their Saint Bernard, Sigie, will join the family circle again.

Leaving it all behind

The John Owen family of Brierfield, who will soon be seafarers, study a map showing some of the places they will visit on their two year voyage.

Seated on the bench with his parents, John and Marnie Owen, is their youngest son Jimmy. Standing (l-r) are Richie, Tommy and Johnny.

Trees can be champions Do you know of one?

Champion Tree nominations must be submitted to local county foresters by June 18, according to Mary Autrey, coordinator of the Champion Tree Program for the Alabama Forestry Commission.

A champion tree is the largest of its species within the state. There are three criteria, for determining champions height, circumference, and crown spread. Upon gathering these measurements the forester uses a formula value to calculate its actual size. The formula is: circumference (in inches), plus the height (in feet), plus one-fourth the crown spread (in feet). If the formula value exceeds that of the current title holder the nominee will be declared new state champion.

The Champion Tree Program was started in 1970 by the Alabama Forestry Commission to recognize the largest known tree of every species in the state and to encourage preservation of those trees. To date there are 92 champion trees in Alabama.

When a tree becomes a champion, according to the program coordinator, a certificate is awarded to the owner and a marker placed beside the tree bearing the owner's name; tree species and scientific name; the nominator's name; and the month and year it became a champion.

A list naming the size, species and locations is available at the county forester supervisor's office. The county forester must have these nominations in office by June 18.

Students get career ideas

A self employed businesswoman was one of the most popular speakers at Elvin Hill Elementary School's Career Day program recently.

Not only did Vivian Butterworth describe some of her products, she showed pictures of them as well.

Students responded enthusiastically when the owner-manager of the Columbiana Dairy Queen showed pictures of the sundaes she serves.

Butterworth and the other speakers pointed out some of the duties that were involved in their occupations and professions and the preparations needed for that position.

Telling students he wasn't advising them not to eat the Dairy Queen specialties, the speaker who followed Butterworth advised that immediate action should be taken afterwards.

Some basics in good dental care were given by Dr. Robert Thornburg who went on to tell about qualifications for his field.

Others in the health care field who addressed the students were

Dr. Harry Phillips and Shelby Memorial Hospital's Assistant Nursing Director, Faye Hylton.

Speaking on law enforcement, Shelby County Sheriff's Department Chief Deputy James Jones told the students that TV renditions of law officers weren't always accurate.

He said it annoys him when mothers point at policemen and tell their children to be good or "He'll put you in jail!"

Reporting that the Shelby County jail is overcrowded, Jones said, "We don't have to solicit business, it comes to us on a regular basis."

Another program participant involved with the law was Columbiana attorney Conrad M. Fowler Jr.

An explanation of her work with the 4-H and the education required was given by Peggy Prucnel from the County Extension Service.

Third, fourth and fifth graders at Elvin Hill made up the audience at the school's first program aimed at showing youngsters some of the careers that people pursue.

When students reach middle school, noted EHE Principal Ann Head, students will zero in and explore certain career fields.

Then in high school, she pointed out, some actual "hands-on" experience will be available.

It's beating

Vandiver holds B-B-Q

Vandiver Volunteer Fire Department will hold its third annual barbeque Saturday, May 31. Serving time will begin at 10 a.m. at the Vandiver Civic Center.

Competition and games beginning at 10 a.m. will include a four mile run, horseshoes and bike race. Activities beginning at noon, include go carts, tug-o war and water battles.

From 3 until 7 various races and arm wrestling will be held.

The day-long event will close with music and contests from 7 until 10 p.m.

All proceeds will go to the fire department, which celebrates its second anniversary this month. The department now has two trucks, a fire house and a force of about 20 regular volunteer firemen.

It has an insurance rating of 9A, which has benefited many Vandiver residents on home insurance, said secretary, Pat Brasher. She added, "We are working to get the rating even better."

Persons wishing further information on the fire department or the barbeque, may contact her at 672-9500.

Strongmen do battle

Dwight Spradley was one of the contestants in weight lifting competition during the Vandiver Fire Department's annual barbecue Saturday. A crowd gathered around to watch and encourage contestants in the lightweight, middleweight and heavyweight divisions. A fire department water battle, rides on the fire engine, musical entertainment, and various contests all took place during the day long event. (Photo by Seaman)

Last minute catch

This Montevallo Cub Scout went down to the wire in his effort to win the prize for catching the most fish during Pack 559's Fishing Rodeo Saturday. And persistence paid off for young Jeff Smitherman when he pulled in one last fish during the closing seconds of the event at UM's college lake. (Photo by Seaman)

Montevallo approved for green front store

The first self-service "green front store" in Alabama will open in Montevallo within 60 days.

According to a letter of commitment signed by Joe Broadwater, head of the Alabama Alcohol Beverage Control Board (ABC), the Montevallo store will be located in the Vallo Plaza between the laundry and the Dollar Store.

The store will provide open shelves and grocery carts for customers to make their own selections, breaking with ABC tradition where customers had to tell employees exactly what they wanted, and had to make their selections from locked glass cases.

Because of the different style, only two employees will be needed to work in the store.

Various groups and individuals in Montevallo have tried to get an ABC store located there since the time Montevallo cast the heaviest vote in the county in favor of legalizing liquor in the county.

But the stores went to Columbiana and Alabaster during the Wallace administrations. Governor Fob James delayed locating new liquor stores, hoping to get his bill through the legislature which would have taken the state out of the liquor business and turned it over to private enterprise. That move, however, failed in two legislative sessions.

Victor Scott, owner of the building where the store will be located has agreed to remodel the building to comply with state requirements.

Alabaster seeks board member

by Bert Seaman

Alabaster's three member Personnel Board had one turnover last month. And with the resignation of Virginia Johnson, which was announced at Monday night's Council meeting, the Board is one member short again.

Mayor Charlotte Burke read Johnson's letter of resignation, which became effective immediately, and asked the panel to have a name ready by the next meeting as a replacement.

Johnson's reason for giving up the post was lack of time due to work responsibilities.

At the May 5 Council meeting, Willie Arrington was appointed to replace Roger Wheeler when the Board chairman took the Mayor's Council seat.

John C. "Puncher" Creamer is the continuing Board member. When the Mayor asked if anyone in the audience had something to bring before the Council, Morris Prestridge questioned the absences of Councilman Gene Glasgow.

"If he's through, he should resign," Prestridge contended. "I don't think he should continue drawing his Councilman's pay," Prestridge added.

At the present time, panel members receive a $50 monthly check from the city.

Glasgow reportedly does not intend to run for election again. In other business, the Council voted to make several changes in the cost of work to be done at a Siluria railroad crossing in order to get a grant.

The city has been working for several years to get the grant for safety work on the crossing at Siluria Mills.

A resolution to apply for funds from the State Highway Department was passed in December, but in several areas, prices listed were too high.

Councilman Wheeler was asked to confer with Sewer Department Superintendent R. C. Walton and draw up specifications for a truck the department needs.

And the monthly Fire Department report given by Councilman Wayne Lucas listed a total of 70 runs.

Fifty calls were answered inside the city, 20 outside the boundaries of Alabaster and there were 10 calls of assistance to other fire departments.

Cribbs seeks office of Helena mayor

Paul Cribbs is running for the office of Mayor of Helena on a platform of "pulling the town back together again."

Cribbs has served two terms on the Helena Town Council, and is now rounding out his eighth year of service.

His chief responsibility on the council has been with the fire department, and he also volunteered in the work of installing playground equipment at the city park.

He told the Reporter that if elected he would favor reducing the gas rates the city is now charging its customers to the same rate that Alagasco charges its customers in Helena.

He is of the opinion that the water system in Helena makes "a little money" but the sewer system is losing money. The money lost by reducing gas rates would have to be made up by increasing sewage rates, he feels.

On other city matters, he would like to see park maintenance improved and a new fire chief hired to improve that department.

Cribbs resigned his council office for a time last summer over "how the city was run," but he said he withdrew his resignation when a problem came up and there was no one else to handle it.

He is disturbed over current controversies in the city and says, "I value my friendship with the people." He would look forward to bringing back "the oneness there used to be in Helena."

The candidate is a graduate of Thompson High School and studied at Jefferson State Junior College. He and his wife have two children.

PATTI SMITH

Smith runs for judgeship

Patti M. Smith announces her candidacy for the office of District Court Judge. Mrs. Smith has served as District Judge in Shelby County since her appointment by Governor James in January, 1980.

A graduate of Troy State University and Jones Law Institute, Mrs. Smith was a George C. Wallace Leadership Scholarship recipient and chosen the 1973 Outstanding Female Graduate of Troy State University by the Jaycees.

Prior to her serving as District Judge in Shelby County, she practiced with the legal firm of Bell, Johnson and Medaris in Pelham and served 2½ years as an Assistant District Attorney in Shelby County.

Mrs. Smith is a member of Our Lady of the Valley Church. She is married to Jerry Smith and has one daughter, Richelle Marie, born May 1, 1980.

AEA enters lawsuit against school board

Claiming that the Shelby County Board of Education is depriving a group of county employees of their rights, the Alabama Education Association has filed suit in the Circuit Court of Shelby County.

Phyllis Emmons, Field Representative for the Educational Support Personnel Organization, an AEA auxiliary, reports that membership dues are not being deducted for lunchroom workers, secretaries or janitors.

She says this is an effort to restrain the growth of the organization she represents.

"This is blatant discrepancy of state law," Emmons declared, and it won't be tolerated.

The law to which the ESPO representative referred says that local school boards must offer employees the privilege of payroll deductions.

Deputy Superintendent of Education Verne Davis explained that the Board's position was based on the fact the Board doesn't pay the employees in question.

Davis said he suggested to Em-mons that she take the matter up with school principals who pay those employees.

"We can't take deductions from employees we don't pay," Davis stressed.

At the present time, deductions are made for bus drivers and maintenance technicians, support personnel who are on the county payroll.

Defendants in the suit, which was filed May 28, are: the Shelby County Board of Education, Superintendent Charles Knowles, individually and in his official capacity, and members of the Board, individually and in their official capacity.

Plaintiffs are: the Alabama Education Association, Inc.; and support personnel, Sarah E. Palmer, Rose M. Jones, Annie J. Brashier, Mary Hamm, Doris Moore and Claudia Taylor.

The matter was brought up at the Feb. 26 meeting of the Board of Education. But Knowles recommended continuation of the present policy and the Board backed him up.

Hospital to accept more indigent cases

Shelby County will soon accept responsibility for its own indigent maternity cases.

In the past, Shelby County women who could not afford to pay for their pre-natal care and hospital delivery costs went to University Hospital in Birmingham.

But according to Bradford Roland, administrator at Shelby Memorial Hospital, the doctors at Shelby have agreed to try to see all the indigents. The hospital will accept them under the provisions of the Hill-Burton Act, he told the hospital board at the regular monthly meeting on May 27. Hospital deliveries have been averaging about two a day since the fiscal year began last October 1.

Gene Taylor, assistant administrator of finance, told the board the new construction is proceeding on schedule. He is making payments to subcontractors.

North Shelby hot over water rate hike

by David Moore

North Shelby residents are fuming over the rate hikes reflected on their monthly bills from the Birmingham Water Works Board. Had the cost of water not increased up to a reported 100%, some of the residents would probably try dousing their tempers with a bucket of water.

New Pelham Chamber drives for members

The Pelham Chamber of Commerce is opening its membership drive today. According to interim president Ken Williams, 427 letters were mailed to Pelham area business earlier and received an excellent response.

The one-on-one membership solicitation will be conducted by committees.

Committee chairmen consist of Mike Myers and Ken Terry for retail; Ray Hamilton, industrial and commercial; John Tanner, professional division; Robert Owens, service and general firms; and Joe Miller, fringe area businesses.

Meanwhile, attorneys for the North Shelby County Fire District have been preparing a lawsuit against the water board, and today fire district board members John Pruitt and Jack van Pelt were scheduled to meet the lawyers to discuss the issue.

Van Pelt said that the class action suit was being filed on behalf of the residents of North Shelby because 'the new water rates are arbitrary and therefore unconstitutional.' The suit will also ask for damages due to the rate hike's affect on property values.

He said, the suit may also ask for an injunction to stop the new rates until the issue is settled in court, if the cost of the injunction bond is not too steep.

Rental rates on the district's 114 fire plugs which are hooked on the Birmingham water lines have jumped from $54 to $250 per year each.

One victim of the water rate hike, Bill Velotas of Valleydale Road, told the Reporter that his bill had jumped from $30 to $60 despite his cutback in consumption. Velotas said he was mad.

Said van Pelt, "I think the thing was absolutely unwarranted. We're going to see what can be done."

VOTE

Robert A. Muller, Sr. For Mayor of Harpersville

I am announcing my candidacy for the office of mayor of the town of Harpersville. I feel there are some changes that need to be made in our town for the benefit of the citizens of Harpersville and its local business people.

Harpersville City Hall belongs to the people of Harpersville and its facilities should serve the best interest of all of them, not just a small select few.

I believe:

1. We need a full time clerk, someone at city hall on a regular basis. The town's business should not be run in a haphazard manner. Telephone numbers are listed for City Hall, Police Department, and Fire Department but calls are not answered. The lives, homes, property, and time of the town's citizens deserve full time attention and protection.

2. The mayor-city council system we have could be improved upon by allowing council members (as representatives of the town's citizens) more voice in the running of the town, its police department, and its fire department.

3. The Harpersville Water Board, not the mayor's office, should control the water system.

4. The Police Department needs experienced, trained, and qualified men to do their job, given good equipment, then allowed to do it.

The Fire Department also needs the support of, not interference from, the mayor's office.

If I am elected I will endeavor to see these things are done.

Oak Mt employee found dead at park

An employee at Oak Mountain State Park, found face down in a mud puddle there Thursday, was later pronounced dead at Shelby Memorial Hospital.

Genia A. Hosmer, 18, of Alabaster, was found by park personnel about 2:45 p.m. near the exhibition farm. According to assistant park manager Phil Robeson, she had just finished feeding a crippled pig and was walking back to the farm when she apparently fell over into the mud.

Pelham paramedics were called to the scene at 3:04, and administered first aid and CPR to her before she was transported to Shelby Memorial by ambulance.

Acting coronor Tom Barnes of the Sheriff's Department said the paramedics were unable to detect any life sign from her at the scene.

Officials estimate she had been lying in the mud 5-10 minutes when she was found.

Barnes said there were no outward signs she had been hit or kicked by an animal. An autopsy is being performed to determine the cause of the death.

Robeson said Hosmer had been working at the park for a month under the federal Young Adult Conservation Corps program.

She was the daughter of Noah and Jessie Mae Hosmer. She is also survived by two sisters, Sandra Ellison and Linda Anderson and two brothers, Terry and Michael Hosmer, all of Alabaster.

tors as they finish phases of construction, and scheduling the payments with the due dates of the hospital's investments. In this way, he indicated, he keeps the funds earning maximum income.

Administrator Board Chairman Ben Grubbs told the Reporter that the architectural firm of Dampier, Harris approves the subcontractor's bills and Administrator Bradford okays payment. Architectural fees are given regularly to the architects.

The building committee, chaired by Howard Gates, has not had to meet for five or six months, getting monthly updates from the administrator, Grubbs said. He added there have been no change orders in the construction plans to date.

Republicans set deadline

The Shelby County Republican Party established June 1 through July 4, as the qualifying period for persons seeking to run as Republicans in the September 2nd primary election.

Candidates must have filed their declaration of candidacy and have paid their qualifying fees prior to 5:00 p.m. on July 4th.

Persons wishing to declare their candidacy for the election must endorse the principles and policies of the Republican Party and possess the qualification, fixed by law, for the office they seek. Candidates should contact R.A. "Bob" Dewey, Shelby County Republican Chairman, at 663-3182 for further information, qualifying fees, and to qualify.

Vandiver FD hosts barbecue

Vandiver's fire engine made three runs Saturday. But no fires were extinguished.

As the truck pulled away from the station on each trip, the sound of the siren was mingled with the laughter and shouts of youngsters.

A ride on the fire engine was one of the many activities that filled the day during the fire department's annual barbecue.

Proceeds from the event this year, will be used to buy two life packs.

Contests held during the event included weight lifting, long jump, a bike race, four mile run, go-kart race, horseshoes, a sack race and a pancake toss.

Two fire department teams also held a competition in which they faced each other with drawn hoses.

And guests settled down during the latter part of the afternoon to listen to a program of Bluegrass music.

CowBelle president Alma Ludwig and Shelby County Cattlemen's Association president James Braden (R) are beefing up plans for Father's Day with Probate Judge Tommy Snowden who proclaimed beef the traditional dish for Sunday, June 15. The CowBelles will hold their annual Father's Day celebration that day at Matterhorn Farms in Alabaster, which will feature square dancing and--of course--grilled steaks.

Board of education holds closed session

For the second meeting in a row, the Shelby County Board of Education went into a closed door session to discuss an employee.

The matter was brought up before the Board by Chelsea resident Phillip Alford.

And over the protest of a member of the press, Board Chairman Dr. Elaine Hughes called the panel into executive session since the reputation of an individual would be discussed.

The name of the person was not given and no action was taken.

When Board members returned from the session which lasted around 20 minutes, Dr. Hughes reported that the assistant attorney from the State Department of Education had been contacted about the protest from the press.

She had been informed, Dr. Hughes said, that the Board was not required to give the press any information nor did they have to reveal the name of the person under discussion.

Dr. Hughes reported that the Superintendent of Education would investigate the matter that had been brought to the Board's attention in the closed session.

UniServ Director Wayne Summers had gone into a closed session with the Board at its last meeting to talk about problems involving two Chelsea teachers.

When the panel returned from that hour and a half session, it was also announced that no action would be taken.

Amendments to the policies on sick leave and personal leave were passed at Wednesday's meeting, but Board member Barbara Whitman strongly objected to the length of sick leave time.

"We're being too generous," Whitman said after the proposal was made to require a teacher to furnish a doctor's certificate if they were absent five consecutive days.

Suggesting that some teachers might feel they could take some extra days off, Whitman moved to subtract two days from the proposal.

However, her motion died for lack of a second.

When the subject of making a change in personal leave policy was brought up, the panel voted unanimously in favor of the amendment.

From now on, an administrator will have the authority to deny a teacher's request to be off a certain day if 20% of his staff are out.

And a teacher will now be required to pay a substitute whenever he or she uses any of their three personal leave days.

In other action, the Board adopted a job description for teachers which Knowles says will be a valuable tool for evaluation of performance.

The resignations of nine teachers were accepted and approval was given for the employment of two new teachers.

Helena council rezones for post office

The Helena City Council dispatched its business in rapid order Monday night. The group agreed to a zoning change from R-1 to O-1 at the location for the new post office.

However, on a tie vote, broken by the mayor, they decided not to allow a zoning change at the intersection of Highways 58 and 70. Councilmen Herman Jenkins and Paul Cribbs wanted to study the matter further before rejecting the request of Reid Long and the FDA to rezone the area from R-1 to O-1, but were outvoted.

In other matters, Mayor Charles Penhale read a letter from the Alabama Power Company stating that three street lights in the Alabaster subdivision of Port South were actually in Helena. The council voted to pay the electricity bill for the three lights.

A request from the Attention Home for the use of a green van was approved. Councilman Jenkins said, "It's just sitting there. I make a motion we let them use it." The Attention Home had spelled out dates during the summer when it wanted the van for special purposes.

Joanne Agostonelli of the Woman's Club of Dearing Downs invited the city officials to a "Meet the candidate" night the club is sponsoring on June 26 at the school.

A letter from Randall Johnston was read, asking the city to help pay power bills for the ball fields during the baseball season. The council agreed to pay half the bills, as it has done in the past.

All councilmen were present except C.R. Harpst, who was recovering from an illness.

At Monday meeting

Democrats plan for campaign

The Shelby County Democratic Committee will meet on Monday, June 9 at 7:30 p.m.

At that time the committee will set qualifying fees for those who will be seeking offices in the Democratic primary of September 3.

Anyone wishing to qualify for those offices, may do so at the meeting.

Offices of local interest which are open this year are: County Commission seats in Districts 1 and 3; at present held by Jimmy "Jake" Morris of Wilsonville and J.E. "Ned" Bearden of Helena; District Attorney of the 18th Judicial Circuit, now held by William "Billy" Hill; one position as Judge of the 18th Judicial Circuit now held by Robert Armstrong, District Judge of Shelby County now held by Patti Smith, and two places on the county board of education, now held by Elaine Hughes of Montevallo and Doug Kent of Alabaster.

The Democrats will meet in the Community Services Building in Columbiana.

Book borrowers beware

The Pelham City Council passed an ordinance Monday night aimed at curbing the problem of unreturned library books.

The municipal judge can now levy a fine of $10-$100 against anyone who does not return material borrowed from the library.

Last month the library reported a loss of more than $250 worth of books and other borrowed materials.

During the giving of departmental reports, city clerk Willie Mae Dennis cited that the library circulated 1091 books last month, added 52 new volumes to its shelves and issued 49 new library cards.

Police Captain Allan Wade reported that 278 traffic citations and misdemeanor tickets were issued during May and 40 accidents, including one fatality were investigated.

Police also handled 14 cases of criminal mischief, two thefts of service, six violations of the Alabama Uniform Controlled Substance Act, three cases of harassment, two official dog complaints, 24 thefts of property, one case of buying, receiving and concealing stolen property, five cases of telephone harassment, five residential burglaries, one burglary of a vehicle, two stolen vehicles, two cases of criminal trespassing and one accidental death.

Deputy Chief Mike Howell reported that the fire department answered 72 alarms last month, broken down into 24 fire class and 48 rescue runs. Eighty-nine man-hours were spent at the fires and 32 man-hours were spent on rescue calls. He reported that 168 man-hours were spent in various fire fighting classes.

Mayor Burk Dunaway announced that open house would be held at Fire Station #2 June 29 from noon to 6 p.m.

Guthries express gratitude

Letter to the Editor:

Please express our sincere thanks to the multitude of friends, neighbors, and our own loved ones, for the great outpouring of love and sympathy given to us in our terrible tragedy in the loss of our beloved son, Michael Hawkins Guthrie.

Mike was our first born of five beautiful children. He was a normal red-blooded American boy interested in a full life. His activities included participation, according to his ability, in all athletic endeavors, music, and the enjoyment of nature. His love for his family, his friends and his fellow man was from the heart.

He attended and graduated from Montevallo High School and the University of Montevallo. He enlisted in the U.S. Navy serving four years and attaining the rank of second class petty officer.

The nature of his fatal accident necessitated the use of more than 100 units of blood in the valiant effort made by the doctors and nurses and all the hospital attendants to save his life. When a call was sent out for volunteers to give blood for him more than 190 wonderful people responded.

People came from all over Central Alabama and elsewhere.

So many cards, letters, flowers, prayers, and many other expressions of concern were sent to us that it is literally impossible for us to express our thanks individually to those sending them, so we are asking you to do this for us and to let this letter say to them, "We thank you with all our heart and pray God's richest blessings upon all of you—"

Sincerely and Gratefully,
Pete, Carleen, Karen,

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

They were standing on a little hill, on the edge of a dove field where we were shooting, an old gink about 70 and his two grandsons about 11 and 12. He was old and knew it and made no effort to hide it, just letting it cover him from his shoe soles to his cowlick. That's the way with time. If you give it the reins and let it scamper, you'll wind up old and wrinkled and stiff, and time'll still be going, faster than a bird flying.

From the dove field to the little hill across a spring branch, it was about eighty yards. The way a dove would fly. Or maybe a little over a quarter of a mile if a guy walked it and went half a quarter up the branch and half a quarter back, hunting a place to cross.

But the doves, the ones we missed, crossed over the branch and sailed over the old man and the boys. Sometimes they'd shoot nine times at one dove, and sometimes just eight times, but never less than seven.

They had shot so many times by five o'clock that I walked up the little hill to see their kill.

"Having any luck?" I asked, sort of friendly like.

A dove flew over, dripping feathers, that some guy had dusted down on the field. He was flying low, in a line as straight as a string.

One boy shot three times. The other boys shot three times. The old man shot twice before the dove wobbled out of sight behind a stooping pine.

After a moment, remembering what I said, he started counting the empty boxes scattered about on the ground.

"We've emptied eight boxes," he said.

"How many you killed?"

"We crippled one—" He stopped and watched a dove coming in. One boy jumped up, his red cap shining in the sun, and the dove turned.

"He fell in the tall grass," he went on. "But we haven't had time to look for him. If we find him, and I think we will, we'll have one to take home."

Across the banch, in the dove field, the fellows were beginning to leave. Loaded down with their stools and their guns and their doves, they looked a little stooped trudging across the rough field.

In the west the sun set a bundle of clouds on fire. The old man and the two boys were in the tall grass hunting the crippled dove.

It has been a fantastic afternoon. But somehow I figured these three had more fun than anybody. An old gink and his two grandsons blasting away on a little hill on the side of the dove field.

Old records disappear from courthouse

Letter to the Editor

Do you know that little by little the original court records presently being housed in the courthouse attic are disappearing? These records, by law, belong to you, the people of Shelby County. The Alabama Code states there is a possible $5000 fine and from one to five years imprisonment for anyone convicted of removing, damaging or possessing any court record. In addition, one of the ten amendments is being broken. Either one of these statements should be "food for thought" for the one or ones responsible for walking out with any court record.

For anyone to get in the attic he or she must sign the book in the office of the Probate Judge before being handed the key to the Padlock on the attic door. He or she must also sign their entering and leaving time.

I do not mean to imply that everyone entering the attic is a thief. Quite the contrary. The majority of people go there for genealogical and or historical research and are serious preservationists. The other few are the selfish "Me" people whose intentions are to either keep the records, which may hold some family skeleton or their intentions are to see the records - which is very profitable.

Madine Evans and I have been working in the attic records on a project for the county historical society for over a year, searching for final settlement of a circuit court case. The book is gone and we are unable to find any original recording of the final settlement. This is only one example of lost records. We placed papers we were working on in a box, in a reasonably safe place we thought. Returning to the attic one day recently to continue searching we saw our box had been opened and many of the papers left in various spots around the room. Apparently, someone had found and removed records, he or she wanted to take home.

Since court records are public records they cannot be closed to anyone wishing to see them. But I sincerely wish the person or persons who have "borrowed" these missing attic records would quietly return them one day soon, just as quietly as they were removed.

Taxes called 'mess'

Letter to the Editor:

My property taxes were the worst messed up I ever heard of. You can't believe what I'm about to tell you unless you went through the mess I did getting it straightened out.

I have 47 acres. It's debt free. The SCL Railroad runs across a corner of it. The assessor's books showed 11 acres and 30 acres on the other side of the railroad. Two separate units; two tax bills.

That's one for the books. The 30 acres across the railroad had been sold and my home taken off the books. I hadn't sold any land and don't intend too. I paid two taxes. My land had been denied homestead exemption and I've had the exemption 34 years. It had been completely taken off the books and the land had been classed commercial.

The land is farm land only. Hay is the main crop and a few beef cows to feed the hay.

Thanks to Mrs. Frankie Woods for getting it straightened out. She's the one in the assessor's office that will help.

Then to add to my woes I have 6.3 acres separate from that and it was divided into two units.

Two more tax bills. One parcel 2.1 acres; the other 4.2 acres. I paid more tax on the 2.1 acre than I did on the 4.2 acres. Why?

What a sloppy mess - I've always gotten two tax bills before. I know the government had a hand in re-assessment.

But they didn't mess the assessor's sheets up. The Jacobs Company didn't mess up the books either. The books were messed up in the tax assessor's office. There's the problem.

How dumb and stupid can the elected officers get?

They are breaking the county completely. The taxes are in a worse mess now than ever.

One good thing when election time comes around in 3½ years we can straighten the mess out. The late Bob Mullins never had a mess like this while he was in office.

You can never find the tax assessor in her office. She rides high and mighty now; that'll change also.

The county needs leadership in the probate judge's office and it isn't there. He wants to divide the office into two separate units. He can't handle both of them. He's busted the county.

We lost our leadership when we lost Conrad M. Fowler, Sr. You see where his ability has put him. In the nation's hall of fame. Congratulations "Bulley."

If the county had his leadership it wouldn't be in the mess it's in. We can also change that when election time comes around.

Yours truly,

Cecil Dyer
Rt. 1, Box 221
Harpersville, AL 35078

P.S. I think the only way to straighten the assessor's office is to let the assessor explain such a mess to the courts.

Litter law gets teeth

Letter to the Editor:

I have just been informed that the long awaited Prima-Facie Law has passed both houses and now awaits the Governor's signature.

I feel it is my responsibility as, Solid Waste Supervisor for Shelby County, to inform your readers of the impact this new law can have. This primarily concerns those who persist in dumping their garbage on our highways, dirt roads, and on other people's property or any place other than the three landfills operated and maintained by the Shelby County Commission.

The law simply states that any mail or other personal items found in an illegal dump shall constitute Prima Facie evidence. Any person, law enforcement officer, or member of the Shelby County Health Department shall have the authority to seek prosecution against such persons based on Prima Facie evidence. If convicted, the fine will not be more than $500.00 or sentenced to hard labor for the county for not more than six months or both.

This law has but one purpose, that is to keep our county clean. We have tried several methods to keep people from dumping illegally. We have advertised, used signs, written letters, begged and pleaded, but to no avail. With this legislation, we will have something with which to work.

The many people which I have talked with about the problem of people dumping on their property will be pleased to know that the much advertised Prima Facie law has passed.

Yours truly,

L.C. Franks

Body recovery operation clarified

Letter to the Editor:

Last week when I gave some information about a drowning here at Oak Mountain State Park, I somehow gave the impression that someone from Riptide had located the body when, in fact, it was recovered by two volunteers from Alabaster by a dragging operation, instead of scuba divers.

In addition to the Alabaster volunteers, we at Oak Mountain would like to express our appreciation to the following persons and organizations for their help in this unfortunate incident: Pelham Fire Department, Alabaster Fire Department, Riptide Divers, Shelby County ambulance, Lay Lake Rescue Squad, and Pelham Fire Department Junior Volunteers.

Sincerely,
John T. Meredith,
Park Superintendent

Under The Courthouse Dome

Deputy J. B. Carter told the Personnel Board that he still considered himself a deputy while he worked as prison foreman for the Highway Department.

And after deliberating whether the year Carter spent in that capacity should be counted as continuous time with the Sheriff's Department, the panel agreed that it should.

The Board held a called meeting Wednesday to listen to Carter's reasons for believing the time he spent out of uniform should not constitute a break in service.

Since a policy on the matter hasn't been formulated as yet, Board member Mickey Johnson stressed that the reason for the decision be made clear.

The main point to make the panel grant Carter's request was the fact that all parties involved had been agreeable to the move.

Carter reported that former Sheriff C. P. "Red" Walker had suggested the move and had told him he could come back to the department any time he wanted.

He guarded prisoners from January 1971 until September of 1972, Carter related, when the Sheriff recommended he return to his former duties.

And that was because deputies were being given the same pay raise as State Troopers, he explained, which he would not have been eligible for in his work with the Highway Department.

Since he was still a county employee, carried a badge and gun and reported to the Sheriff daily, Carter reasoned that he should have been considered a member of the Sheriff's Department during the year in question.

It was noted that he drew the same pay as a deputy but the plus factor in the move had been better hours.

There was no night duty and he was off most weekends.

Board member Larry Dillard underscored the reasoning behind the panel's decision by pointing to the provision in the Personnel Board's Rules and Regulations which makes it justifiable for transferring between jurisdictions.

However, the Board made special note that their decision was made contrary to a previously established policy.

It has been the Board's stand not to consider requests concerning problems which arose before the formation of the Board and not filed by March 3, 1980.

The panel noted that the special circumstances in Carter's case was the reason for their deviation.

Shelby County Coroner Billy J. Thompson underwent by-pass surgery Tuesday at Brookwood Hospital. He was reported in satisfactory condition.

"I don't feel this is fair," declared Linda Jones after the Shelby County Board of Education refused to allow her child to enter kindergarten at Elvin Hill Elementary School.

The reason for the Board's decision was because Mrs. Jones had entered her child's name at both Thompson Elementary School and at Elvin Hill Elementary in Columbiana.

But Mrs. Jones stressed that she was not aware of the consequences of dual registration, and pointed out her reason for signing up in both places was because she was mistaken about the school zone in which she lives.

Asked by Board Chairman Dr. Elaine Hughes if she hadn't realized she was giving her child an unfair advantage by leaving her child's name in the drawing at both schools, Jones replied that it hadn't occurred to her.

Since there are only a limited number of kindergarten openings in the county, selection of students is done by lottery.

And Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles pointed out that it was only fair to give the slot at Elvin Hill to a child whose family had followed the correct procedure.

Jones explained that she moved here last year and had not had a child in school. Neighbors down Hwy. 26 from where she lives were sending their children to Thompson, she pointed out, so she assumed that was the place to register.

She later learned that she was zoned for Columbiana and then registered at Elvin Hill.

Presenting a poster that had been put up in a local business and Shelby County newspapers, the mother said that nothing was mentioned about registering at more than one place.

Knowles reported that all principals had been informed that the name of any child registered at more than one place would be eliminated and he said a notice to that effect had been sent to newspapers for publication.

Explaining the reason for putting the name of a child registered at more than one school at the bottom of the list if it were drawn, Knowles said that some youngsters were found registered at three schools.

"We're trying to give fair and equitable treatment to everyone," the Superintendent maintained.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

Beating the clock is a game I seem destined never to win.

Even when I arrive during the hours I'm told an event will last, it still doesn't work out. And that's because, here lately, the events haven't lasted that long.

My latest encounter with disrupted time occurred over the weekend. Two stragglers were all that remained of the honored guests I had intended to photograph.

And really, I didn't get there late. The lady who had asked me to come had said any time between 2 and 3 o'clock would be all right.

With 20 minutes to spare, I stode into the room, proud of making it before the last second.

But I was quickly deflated when I found my subjects, all but two, had departed.

Circumstances had forced the event to come to a speedy conclusion, I was told.

But it was a little disheartening because I'd had a similar experience a week earlier.

On that occasion I was trying to squeeze a particular event between two others, and had planned to get some quick shots and be on my way in jig time.

I was on my way even quicker though. When I pulled up, my subjects were taking their departure, a good 30 minutes ahead of time.

Before this syndrome of early meeting breakups began, I was puzzled one evening, to see people getting in their cars and leaving a meeting place, just as I was driving up.

Accusing the people who remained of holding a mighty short session, I found out the meeting had begun 30 minutes prior to the time I had written down.

My informant had apparently misinformed me.

Even when I manage to put an assignment on the right date with the correct time, I can still get my eggs scrambled.

Not too many days ago, I was patting myself on the back for being on time for an event. But when I got there, the place was deserted.

Short meetings or no, I knew this thing couldn't be over. So I hurried back to the office to consult my calendar.

And still I didn't see my error so I started calling around. During one of those calls the light suddenly clicked on as I realized the day was Friday and the event was on Saturday.

How's that for being early?

I'll tell you one that beats all though. There was no mistake about date or time, and these folks who are members of a class I attend, claim they didn't break up early. But I still wonder.

This happened on a Sunday morning. And since I'm prone to be a little late for my Sunday School class, I rushed in, sat down and started to smile at the person next to me when the teacher asked us to bow our heads for the closing prayer.

It's a good thing I didn't have to report on the lesson.

Helping hand

Shelby Bank Vice-President Bob Litton presents a check to Donna Morris, treasurer of Columbiana's Beautification Board, for the first project in the city's plan to make the city more attractive. Looking on is Geron Daniel, new Branch Manager of Shelby Bank.

Mini park nears completion

It shouldn't be too much longer before the first phase of Columbiana's "face lift" is completed.

The city owned parking area between the Post Office and Western Auto store was picked as the initial project in a city-wide beautification plan.

And brick masons are expected to finish laying a walkway there this week with the planting of trees, shrubs and flowers to follow.

So far, $3,000 has been collected in a fund raising drive headed by Jim Strickland. But $2,000 is still needed to meet the cost of the project.

Strickland points out that the plans drawn up by landscape architect Nimrod Long give Columbiana a more up-to-date look.

Creating a mini-park gives a functional and aesthetic approach to the area between the Post Office, City Hall and the downtown business section, Strickland says.

Realizing the importance of the undertaking by the Beautification Board, Strickland reports that businesses and industry in the area have been generous in their contributions.

Mrs. Mildred Harrison is chairperson of the group which was formed through the Columbiana City Council.

City crews, headed by Street Superintendent James Palmer prepared the area presently under construction, thus cutting the cost of the project.

Other areas slated for beautification are designed to create a unified effect through the use of similar type planters and crepe myrtle shrubbery.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

THE JUDGEMENT DAY

The great day of the Lord's second coming will be characteristics should cause us to prepare for that great day.

First, the judgement will take place on that day. Both the righteous and the wicked will be raised in that hour. (John 5:28, 29)

Second, the judgement will take place before the greatest Judge that ever sat. (Matthew 25:31) "Then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory." He will judge righteous judgement, influenced by neither financial, social, or political pressures.

Third, the crowd will be the greatest ever assembled. "Before him shall be gathered all the nations." (Matthew 5:32) Alexander the Great, Augustus Caesar, Napoleon, Adolf Hitler, and Abraham Lincoln will be there. And, dear reader, YOU will be there.

Fourth, the greatest separation ever experienced will take place. "He shall separate them one from another." (Matthew 25:32) Parents will be separated from children, husbands from wives, brothers from sisters. And, there will never be another reunion.

Fifth, the greatest sentence ever pronounced will be heard. Christ will declare, "Come ye blessed!" Or, He will declare, "Depart from me!" And, this pronouncement will be determined by one's works while in the land of the living. (Matthew 25:34-45)

Sixth, the wicked will be cast into eternal punishment, and the righteous will enter into life eternal. (Matthew 25:46)

Dear reader, by your life you are determining your destiny.

Members of Shelby County's Fraternal Order of Police are sponsoring the outing at their meeting place just off County Road 26 in the Camp Branch area.

Some of the activities scheduled for the weekend are fishing, softball, football, ping-pong and other outdoor games.

New Hope Cumberland Presbyterian Church has scheduled vacation Bible school from June 9-13 for ages 3-13.

Pre-register children by calling 967-5800.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

You've got a friend...

Soccer season ends on big kick for North Shelby Americans

The North Shelby based Americans Soccer Club ended their spring season last weekend with three division winners and one second place in the Colin Tonks Invitational Tournament.

Besides tourney wins by the conference champion under-16 and under-8 teams (see related stories), the under-14 Americans of Coach Len Widra captured the red division tourney title win a 2-0 win over Highland Day School and a 3-1 win over Mountain Brook.

The under-14 team had its troubles in regular season play, winning only three of ten games. But in tournament play, Widra's team came through with four wins and no losses, two of which came in the Hamilton Invitational, and the other two last weekend.

The Americans-Widra finished fourth in their Midstate Soccer Conference division with a 7-7 record.

The under-14 blue division finished second in last week's tourney with a 1-0 win over Simmons. They finished third in the conference.

According to Bill Wynn, president of the Americans Soccer Club, approximately 160 boys and girls, mostly from North Shelby, played on ten teams during the spring season.

Wynn said at least two more teams will probably be added for the fall season which starts in September.

Under-8's cap title

The Americans, coached by Tom Pinkron, certainly got their kicks this year on the soccer field. The North Shelby based team composed of boys under 8 years of age, won the Midstate Soccer Championship with an impressive 10-1-2 record.

May 18 in Roebuck, the under-8's defeated the Hoover Rowdies 4-0 in the finals of the conference tournament to claim the title.

But the young Americans took the rough road through the tournament, losing that Friday 3-2 to the Vestavia Blue Demons. The cliffhanger game went through two overtime periods with the score 0-0, before Vestavia won it in the five player shootout.

They fought their way out of the losers bracket Saturday with a 3-0 win over Shades Mountain Christian and a 3-0 win over the Homewood Blasters.

Players for the Americans-Pinkron were Jason Tropeano, Chris White, Bartley Pinkron, ace goalie Sean Lusco, Chris Widra, Brian Huss, Jeff Isabell, Shannon Hughes, Mark Kirkemier, Stephen Adams, Jason Summers, Brian Widra, Amy Green, Frances Holder, John David Nolen and Lori Markley.

Assisting Pinkron in the coaching of the championship team was Jerry Isabell.

Under-16's win first

The Americans Soccer Club under-16 team, coached by David Engel, captured first place in the Midstate Soccer Conference this season with a 10-1 record.

Their only defeat was 2-0 loss to Birmingham Best at midseason. But the Americans averaged that loss twice, defeating the Erwin based team 2-0 in a regular season game and again 2-0 last Sunday in the finals of the Colin Tonks Invitational Tournament.

The under-16's got their second shot at revenge by defeating Gresham 3-2 in tourney action Saturday.

Leading the North Shelby based Americans to the Conference title was top scorer Eric Woodard.

The other under-16 Americans are Lance Bonavitch, Larry King, Lauren Cole, Gary Gwinn, Scott Engel, Tim Crocker, Billy Curtis, Chris Mattson, Jimmy Geyer, Ed O'Neil, Kevin Colburn, John Jermain and Damian Costa.

Foot work

The Americans under-14 soccer team (light shirts) kept pressure on Highland Day School all Saturday afternoon with their quick foot work. The Americans won this first round game of the Colin Tonks Invitational by a score of 2-0.

Action at Riverchase

Boswell golf classic draws stars

Nationally known blind golfer Charlie Boswell has a knack for attracting top stars to the area to benefit the Birmingham Eye Foundation Hospital.

And Saturday at the seventh annual Charlie Boswell Golf Classic, he is doing it again.

Heading the day of celebrity golf at Riverchase Country Club in Shelby County, will be Bob Hope, a classic himself, "Dandy" Don Meredith of Dallas Cowboy fame (also reputed to be a friend of Howard Cosell's), and a singer Gordan MacRae.

Among the more serious golfers who will be demonstrating their putting skills at Riverchase will be PGA tour members Hubert Green, Jerry Pate, Bob Goalby, Mason Rudolph and Tony Pena.

Other names of fame slated to tee off are Ole Miss coach Steve Sloan, Auburn coach Doug Barefield, former Alabama cager coach C.M. Newton, UAB basketball mentor Gene Bartow, Kentucky's Fran Curci, Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer, the pick of the losers "Leonard's Losers" Postero and movie actor Dale Robertson who used to drive a stagecoach for Wells Fargo.

A dinner show, starring Bob Hope and Gordon MacRae will be held Saturday night at the Birmingham-Jefferson County Civic Center. Tickets for that event are available through Charlie Boswell's Birmingham offices in the Brown-Marx Building.

Gallery tickets to the golf tournament will be on sale at the gate. Tee off time is set for 7 a.m., with the Bob Hope group scheduled to take the course between noon and 1 p.m.

ISS names its top athletes

Indian Springs School recently honored its top athletes at the awards ceremonies for its spring sports programs.

In girls basketball, Priscilla Goodwyn, who was named as the Shelby County's Tournament's MVP, was co-recipient of the school's MVP, along with Beth Wilkinson, who was also a member of the all-county basketball team.

Goodwyn with Emi Araki, was named to the Shelby County's volleyball all-tournament team and the Region 4 Area 8 all-tournament team.

Alex Leath and Thome Matiz were named as Dixie Soccer all-conference players.

Mike Wilensky captured the MVP award on the ISS tennis team.

In varsity basketball, Greg Bester and Mike Wilensky shared MVP honors.

Leath, Scott Bryant and Dani Berman were named as co-MVP's of the baseball team.

Winners of the Presidential Fitness awards were Susan Pizitz, Priscilla Goodwyn, Bebe Smith, Dale McGeehen, Lisa Rueve, Michael Perkins, Greg Blach and Bill Branden.

Central Shelby Braves continue winning streak

The Central Shelby Major League Braves stretched their unblemished winning streak to ten games with an 8-2 win over the second place Pirates and a 17-2 trouncing of the Cubs.

The Pirates took out their frustration over the loss by blasting the last place Tigers (0-11) 29-5, to give them a 7-4 standing.

The Dodgers picked up wins over the Cards and Tigers to even out their season at 5-5. The Cards and Cubs are now both deadlocked at 5-6.

Montevallo soccer

Montevallo High School's first soccer team, coached by Randy Halcomb, finished up a learning season of play in the Midstate Soccer League with a 2-9 record. Members of the team are Cagle Rochester, Van Hawks, Dennis Beers, MVP Paul Spicer, David Tishler, best hustler Tracy James, Taylor Lawrence, middle school MVP Andy Brindley, Michael Staggs, Jimmy Chism, Louie Green, Mark Verbitski, Mike Verbitski, (not pictured) Tim Walker, John Verbitske, Kevin Cooley and Sean Roberts.

Top Hornets

Some of the top Chelsea Hornets honored at their May 22 sports banquet were (from front left) girls basketball MVP Cindy Rich, who also made all-county and all-area, all-area basketball player Lynn Jones, all-county basketball player Robin

Johnson, (from left rear) top varsity free throw shooter Mark Howard, top varsity rebounder Russell Roberts and varsity basketball MVP Terry Kelley.

Spring sports stars

Awards winners at the Chelsea spring sports banquet included (from left front) Paul Kendricks who had the baseball team's highest batting average (.318), baseball MVP Keith McCullers,

New Brownie troop

Eighteen youngsters from the Columbiana area took part in the ceremony last week which made them brand new Brownies. Parents were guests at the program which included the induction ritual and singing several songs, including one which called for putting on "A great big Brownie smile."

Columbiana Brownies organize

A Brownie troop has recently been organized in Columbiana, and Tuesday the 18 members were invested.

Troop Leader Darlene Armstrong conducted the ceremony which centers around a mirror in which the new Brownie sees her reflection.

Pins were given out by assistant leaders Joyce Willis and Gail Ford.

The members of troop 360 are: Tiffany Anderson, Stacey Armstrong, Kelly Conn, Tonya Crowson, Connie Erwin, Kristy Folmar, Angela Ford.

Diane Ford, Jenny Grantham, Jenny McDonald, Suzette Merrell, Sherry Moore, Sharla Morris, Mary Beth Ray.

Alice Robertson, Walinda Williams, Cindy Willis and Stephanie Isbell.

ARC worker honored for her services

Sue Lucas DeBoer was recently honored for her work with the Shelby County Association for Retarded Citizens.

The Shelby Memorial nurse was one of 39 persons from across the state nominated to receive an award for outstanding work with the handicapped. Robert Weaver of Talladega placed first, but DeBoer received one of three Certificates of Appreciation awarded runners-up.

DeBoer was responsible for organization of the Shelby County ARC in 1974. Since that time, she has remained active in volunteer work with the handicapped.

Among other things, she has lobbied for funds in Montgomery; counseled with new parents of handicapped children and served as a regional officer for a state group.

Induction tradition

Troop leader Darlene Armstrong conducts the Brownie ritual which concludes with each young lady seeing her reflection in a flower bedecked mirror.

Lake drawdown re-set

Drawdown of Lay reservoir should bring it to an approximated elevation of 393.5 feet above mean sea level Friday night, June 6.

This word came from Alabama Power Company after rescheduling for the drawdown of Lay reservoir. The new schedule called for drawdown to begin as a gradual reduction on Monday.

E.P. Byars, Manager system operation, said the new schedule was necessary due to heavy rainfall in the Coosa River watershed.

He stated that Lay Dam turbines will be operated to maintain reservoir level between 393.5 and 394.0 through Sunday, June 8 unless heavy rainfall or increased power demands occur. Refilling of the lake is expected to begin on Sunday when the work is completed.

Byars cautioned that owners of boats, other floating equipment and facilities and marina operators along Lay Lake should take appropriate steps to prevent damages or make repairs.

Weather moves big canoe trip

A 25 mile canoe trip down Flint River in Georgia. That was the plan of Chelsea Boy Scout Troop 354 last weekend. Then a bad weather forecast cancelled the trip, but not the spirits of the boys.

They packed up their bus as planned on Friday afternoon, along with a pickup load of canoes, headed out for the boy scout camp in north Alabama.

"Some of the boys have never canoed," said a scout leader, "and we'll use this time for them to learn."

The time was also used to help achieve other goals. Several scouts spent the weekend completing work toward advancements. The troop has had a total of 17 advancements since January.

Merit badges and skill awards were presented at a special program in the K-Springs Church of God fellowship hall on Tuesday evening. Gifts were also presented to the troop's two graduating high school seniors, Tracy Horne and Ferrell Swiney.

Two scouts, who will be working at the boy scout camp this summer, received recognition at the meeting. Burt Pittman will be working in the commissary at Camp Sequoyah. Ferrell Swiney, who recently completed training as an emergency medical technician, will be in charge of first aid at the camp.

Slides of the Chelsea troop's activities at Sequoyah were shown Tuesday evening to scouts and parents.

According to scout leaders, the canoe trip down Flint River will be re-scheduled for the fall. Next month, the troop will be going on a spelunking trip to Cumberland Caverns in Tennessee.

Old cemetery list re-printed

A second printing of Shelby County cemetery records has now been completed, according to a spokesman for the Shelby County Historical Society.

Printing was delayed for several weeks, but persons wishing copies may now purchase them from the Society's office in the Jeter Building on the University of Montevallo campus.

The number to call is 665-2521, extension 409. The address is Station 30, University of Montevallo.

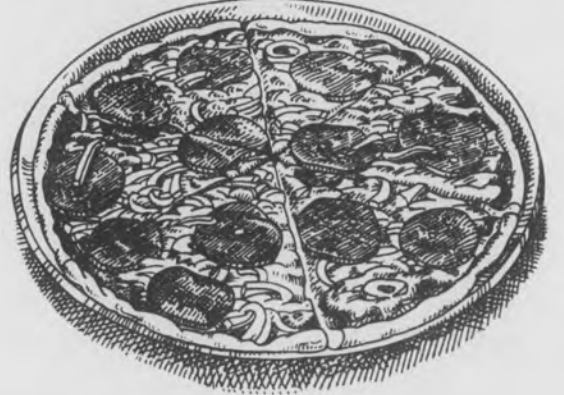

Scout trip

Damp weather in Georgia, where Chelsea boy scouts planned to canoe, failed to dampen their spirits as they loaded their bus for a trip to the scout camp in north Alabama instead.

Scholarship given

Bernie Wedge, Executive Vice-President of the Elastic Corporation, presents the company's scholarship award to Sonja Jones of Wilsonville.

Elastic Co. gives scholarship

After interviewing students and studying a transcript of their grades, a selection committee for the Elastic Corporation named Sonja Jones as this year's scholarship recipient.

The Shelby County High School graduate plans to attend the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa where she will study business administration.

This is the second year that the Columbiana plant has awarded a $500 scholarship to a student whose parent is an employee.

Sonja's mother, Ernestine Jones of Wilsonville, has worked at the plant 11 years.

The committee who picks the winner is made up of individuals who are not connected with the plant.

Pageant runner-up

Farm Bureau President, Royce Morris (l), and 1979 Fair Association Manager John Jones present a scholarship check to Andrea Lovelady of Montevallo.

Bureau Queen gets check

Shelby County's Farm Bureau Queen had the thrill of competing, and being fourth runner up, in the state pageant last year.

And she also received a $50 cash award when she won the local contest in September.

But one prize was just awarded to Montevallo's Andrea Lovelady last week.

That was a scholarship. And it was presented after Andrea had expressed her intention of entering the University of Montevallo this summer.

Andrea, who graduated from Montevallo High School Thursday, will be studying mass communications at UM.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lovelady.

Anyone who anticipates entering this year's contest may call for an application now. The event will be held Sept. 8 in connection with the Shelby County Fair.

Pelham Miss competes

A Pelham teenager will compete for the title, "Secretary of the Year" at the national Junior Achievement conference. She already bears the title in four Alabama counties.

Representing Shelby, Jefferson, Walker and St. Clair counties, Cindy Wilson will compete against 120 other young people from across the country. Competition will be held when Junior Achievers convene this summer on the campus of University of Indiana.

Junior Achievement is a non-profit international organization financed by businesses and individuals. Its purpose is to provide high school students with practical business experience and insights into economics. Members have opportunity to actively organize and operate their own businesses with advice from local business and organization volunteers.

Miss Wilson's student company operated under the name Student Interprises, with Blue Cross/Blue Shield as its counseling company.

The fifteen-year-old Thompson High School student is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wilson.

Fire chiefs offer training in school fire safety

The Reporter recently ran a series on Fire Safety in the School.

And now the county's Fire Chief's Association has taken the ball and is proposing a course of instruction on the subject for school students.

The plan for integrating the subject into courses in the curriculum was outlined by three members of the association at Wednesday's Board of Education meeting.

Appearing at the meeting were Dr. Mike Mahan from Montevallo, William Byars, Pelham and Verne Craig, Chelsea.

Valley first grade teacher Kathy Owens also took part in the presentation. She showed slides which focused on the importance of a child's life.

The instructional books that Valley Elementary used during a pilot program were also displayed.

But considering the cost of purchasing books for every school, Dr. Mahan reported that the University of Montevallo had agreed to produce a film which would give the material.

The Fire Chiefs and UM would bear the expense of the filming, the Montevallo Chief said, and he asked if the Board would furnish teachers for acting parts.

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles expressed the Board's interest in pursuing the matter.

Two other parts of the plan are to have a Safety Officer at each school with a coordinator for the project, and to have a short presentation on fire safety made at the county teachers' orientation meeting at the beginning of school.

University College has named two Shelby County students to its spring Honors list for outstanding scholarship. Sherry Brady of Alabaster and Sue Smith of Chelsea have received this recognition.

University College is a degree-granting division of the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

What do you do after the garden is up?

by Shelba Nivens

More Shelby Countians are planting gardens this year than ever before, report seed and plant store operators.

The novices are commended and encouraged, but cautioned by older gardeners not to plant more than they can handle.

"After being closed in all winter, it really feels good to folks to get out in the early spring and start planting a garden," observed one gardener. "But they must remember that planting is only the beginning. The days are going to get really hot, and there is lots of work to do between planting and harvesting."

Mrs. Bill Baker a long-time gardener in Harpersville area, talked to the Reporter recently about some of the things which must be done in a garden after planting.

"The biggest job is keeping the weeds out," she said. She keeps the middles clean and the dirt loose with a tiller. But she uses a hoe around the plants. "You have to hoe lightly to keep from hurting the roots," she cautioned, adding that she pulls a little soil to the plants each time she hoes.

Between rows of pole beans, she barely scrapes away weeds with the hoe.

As Mrs. Baker walks through her garden talking she is busy, with a devoted gardener's instinct, pulling a weed here and there, or breaking off "suckers" on tomato plants.

She explained that "suckers" are the extra little limbs which shoot out between larger limbs. "Tomato plants need to be pruned so they will bush out," she said.

The tomatoes are set out in a row along a wire fence. When they are big enough, they will be tied to the fence to keep them from blowing over.

Moisture is very important to gardening, cautioned Mrs. Baker, adding that tomatoes and cucumbers especially need a lot of water.

Her cucumbers are planted in hills. Each hill is watered twice a week for as long as they bear. "When they are given enough water, they will bear for a long, long time," she said.

To help hold moisture around tomato plants, Mrs. Baker puts burlap bags around them, then waters. This also helps keep down weeds. She said that sawdust or wood shavings can also be used. It should be 3 or 4 inches thick and should be dry and at least ten years old, she cautioned. Her daughter, Billie Darby, added that she used black polyethylene to mulch her plants.

Mrs. Baker said if gardeners wish, they can mulch beans, but she prefers to irrigate them. She runs the tiller between rows to make a slight ditch while throwing soil up to the plants. When the Baker water supply is plentiful, she uses a hose to fill the ditch. But, when necessary, she carries bucketsful of water to the garden for irrigating. Other vegetables planted in rows can also be watered by this method of irrigation, said Mrs. Baker.

The Harpersville gardener also talked about the need to spray or dust for insects and to "feed" plants. "I feed my tomatoes (with commercial fertilizer) all during the bearing season," she said.

Tying tomatoes

Mrs. Bill Baker, retired Vincent school teacher, and daughter, Billie Darby, tie tomato plants to a wire fence to keep the wind from blowing them over.

Bridge to advancement

Seven Brownies from an Elliottsville troop recently left that program behind when they crossed the bridge into the Junior Girl Scout program.

Brownies and Girl Scouts both participated in the program which included a flag ceremony and candle lighting ritual.

Elliottsville Brownies cross bridge

Third graders from the troop sponsored by Elliottsville Cumberland Presbyterian Church left the Brownie ranks May 23.

As their parents looked on, the seven youngsters crossed the bridge into the Junior Girl Scout program.

They were presented with wings and all members of the troop were given Brownie B patches and yearly stars.

According to troop leader Priscilla Gray, her group is the only one in the Alabaster area to be designated a Daisy troop. And it's one of the few in the Verla Price Neighborhood, she added.

The achievement constitutes a year's work, the leader pointed out. She explained that the girls have to do two requirements in each of the five Worlds of Scouting.

Brownies who flew up that evening were: Erin Beckett, Sherry Coggins, Lori McDonald, Tina Grant, Kelli Stephens, Kimberlee Bush and Susan Sargent.

Six mothers, who chaired various committees and chaperoned field trips, were presented with gifts. The troop also gave a going away present to Cathy McDowell, one of the assistant leaders who is moving.

The other assistant leaders are Kay Weldy and Betty Gilliam.

During the summer, the troop will meet the last Thursday of each month for a watermelon cutting, a spend-the-night, and a picnic.

Mormons plan to start new chapel

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormons) will hold ground breaking ceremonies for the new chapel for the Indian Springs branch June 11 at 7 p.m.

The ceremony will be at the site located 1½ miles East of the Indian Springs School on highway 119.

This is part of the church's overall building program that for the past 3½ years has resulted in 1.6 churches per day being built worldwide. This building program has been the result of the rapid growth of membership, according to George W. Porter of Alabaster, public information director.

Let's Twist Again Like We Did Last Summer.

When temperatures hit their peak, so do your electric bills. The reason is air conditioning, the single biggest user of electricity in the average home.

But last year, Alabamians learned to save by twisting their thermostats to 78.

This summer, 78 should be an even more popular number. Because temperatures are expected to be hotter than the moderate summer of '79.

If you'd like to ease the impact on your electric bills, twist again. Turn your thermostat up to 78°. And while your air conditioning is doing a little less, you can help by doing a little more.

By using ventilated awnings, drapes and other shading devices to keep the sun's rays out. And by waiting until the cooler part of the day to use heat producing appliances like your stove and clothes dryer.

Let's face it. You may not be quite as comfortable as in summers past. But you can take comfort in the fact that you'll be saving money.

How much? More than you might think. Because even during the peak temperatures of summer, the biggest influence on your electric bill is how much you elect to use.

Vote called off in judges' race

by Marcia M. Sears

There will not be an election for Shelby County district judge or for a circuit judge in the 18th judicial district this year. The clerk of the state Supreme Court and the state Attorney General concur with this conclusion.

This discovery stunned hundreds of political observers Tuesday in Shelby County, when several people interested in the judgeships started re-reading the laws of Alabama.

What they found was that circuit judge Robert Armstrong and district judge Patti Smith could serve out the full terms to which the governor appointed them in January of this year. This means they will not have to face an election until 1982.

Both had made preparations to make the race, and opponents for the offices had also been preparing for the contest.

The question that resounded around the courthouse Tuesday was, "Why among all those lawyers, didn't someone read the law earlier and discover the offices were not open this year?"

The answer seemed to go back to last fall, when it became known that circuit judge James Sharbutt would retire in January, leaving open his office for an appointment. The general assumption was that whoever was appointed would have to stand for election in the next general election, which is in November. Everyone seems to remember taking the word of older political authorities. Those who looked up the law apparently did not cross-read references.

When Sharbutt retired, Armstrong was appointed to his place and Patti Smith was appointed to the district judgeship Armstrong left. That is why there were two judgeships in question.

The legal question revolves around the 1901 constitution which provided that gubernatorial appointments would last "until the next general election...held at least six months after the vacancy occurs," and the 1973 judicial article which repealed that section but set out a special circumstance for vacancies in Shelby and 14 other counties. Some lawyers think the section is ambiguous and would like to see it tested in court.

Judge Armstrong told the Reporter he started reading the law himself after questions were raised. By Tuesday noon Montgomery authorities had assured him there did not need to be an election.

He said, "This law is not a technicality. It is analogous to having someone file against Governor James this year. There is no office open. No one can run for an office that is not open."

Eason Mitchell of Calera had announced his intention to challenge Armstrong, and the state Democratic Committee had accepted Mitchell's qualifying fee. But the controversy ended quickly on Tuesday when Mitchell informed Judge Armstrong that he would not pursue the matter further or try to reverse the decision made in Montgomery.

Mitchell said, "I am sorry not to be able to serve all the people of the 18th judicial circuit, but will cheerfully devote all my time and energies to serving those who become my clients in my practice of law."

Pelham attorney Harry Lyon told the county Democratic Committee Monday night that he was planning to run for the district judgeship, but after Tuesday's developments, he was reportedly cancelling his plans.

4-H dedicates Center

by Marcia M. Sears

Over 800 persons from every county in Alabama were in Shelby County Monday to dedicate the new statewide 4-H Youth Development Center.

Lt. Gov. George McMillan gave the dedicatory remarks. Other distinguished speakers on the program were Dr. Harry M. Philpott, President Emeritus of Auburn University, Dr. Hanley Funderburk, President of Auburn and Mr. J. Lem Morrison, Chairman of the Alabama 4-H Club Foundation.

The center has been a dream of 4-H leaders for over 20 years, during which time nearly $1 million was collected to help build the center.

Located on wooded acres overlooking the Coosa River directly east of Columbiana, the center is designed to give young people experiences that will "reinforce the values of 4-H and to promote development of positive character traits."

Four major facilities are finished and ready for use.

The lodge is built of natural wood and stone. It houses a 250-seat cafeteria, conference rooms and offices. The building overlooks the river. Manager Terrell Guthrie has been in residence at the home built for him at the edge of the grounds.

The Lem Morrison Dormitory can house 48 young people and 8 counselors. It was furnished by donations from various county 4-H groups. The building is arranged with four persons to the room. Bath facilities are provided in each room. There are four activity or living rooms in the building.

An Olympic size swimming pool and amphitheater were named for Tine W. and Eunice Davis who have provided considerable support to 4-H programs through the years. The amphitheater is located near the river and provides space for up to 400 people.

Construction on the center began a year ago. The first groups will start using it within two weeks, and the facilities are expected to be in use year around for youth programs and adult training sessions.

Pelham gets industry

Pelham will be getting a new industry that will boast 'one of the biggest machines in the country.'

Sherman Concrete Pipe is the name of the new industry, according to Tom Holton, who appeared at the county commission meeting Monday.

Holton said the big machine Sherman plans to install will produce 16 foot lengths of concrete pipe, up to 144 inches in diameter.

It will be capable of producing four tons of concrete in a minute, or 400 tons of pipe per day.

The product will be used primarily in sanitary sewers.

The new industry will employ about 25 persons initially, and will employ about 40 when in full production, including shipping personnel, he told the Reporter.

The company will also have the capacity to produce precast box culverts, large storm drains and highway culverts.

The new industry will be located in the Pelham Industrial Park sharing 32 acres of land with Sherman Ready Mix Company.

Holton told the Reporter that although the recession has affected the concrete business in home construction, the demand by cities for sewers has been increasing. He foresees a strong demand for the new sewer pipes.

The county commission granted the new company a five year 5-mill general fund exemption from ad valorem taxes.

Litter march

Deputy Windsor and the cleanup crew take a break after a two and a half day litter march from Calera to the Columbiana city limits. Biddie took the opportunity to drench his head with a glass of water. Completion of the task gave the crew a sense of purpose, and the public a clean highway--at least temporarily. (Photos by Moore)

Helena mayor seeks reelection

Charles 'Sonny' Penhale, Helena's incumbent mayor has announced he will again seek the mayor's office.

Penhale has been mayor of Helena since 1968. Before that he served a term on the city council. During his service as mayor Helena has built a sewer system and developed a park system.

Over $2 million in grants for city improvements have come into Helena during Penhale's terms of office. He notes that other city services, especially fire and police protection have been upgraded.

If elected for another term, Penhale plans to upgrade the sewer system and obtain a shopping center under a comprehensive plan for controlled growth. He also plans to seek banking services, better housing, day care services, bring in a resident physician and improve schools and parks.

Penhale was born in Helena, his ancestors having roots there since 1876. He has been married to his wife Shirley for 29 years and has 3 grown sons. He is employed at American Cast Iron Pipe as foreman of special processing unit.

He is an active member of the Helena United Methodist Church, presently serving as chairman of the building committee, a member of the finance committee, a trustee and a member of the administrative board. He is a master mason and is Past Worshipful Master of Helena Masonic Lodge #410 FAM, in addition to serving as a trustee of Helena Elementary School.

Two commissioners make reelection bid

The two incumbent county commissioners whose places are up for election this year from districts one and three declared their intention to run again for those positions Monday night.

Paying their qualifying fee of $200 were Jimmy Jake Morris of Wilsonville, filing for district one, and J.E. "Ned" Bearden of Helena, filing for district three.

They attended the meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee where the fee was set by a committee composed of Frances Blalock of Four Mile, Dr. M.L. Orr, Jr., of Montevallo and Curt Payne of Alabaster.

No qualifying fee was set for the place on the board of education because no pay is connected with the position. Dr. Bill E. Fancher of Montevallo announced his intention to run for the place now occupied by Dr. Elaine Hughes. Dr. Hughes will be unable to seek reelection because she has moved out of the county.

The Democratic committee discussed nominations to fill vacancies on the committee, noting that there are six places in each beat. Place five was originally added to provide a slot for women, and place six was added to give blacks an opportunity to serve.

Several beats, however, have vacancies and county chairman Teddy Brasher urged members to offer nominations at the next meeting.

Jail inmates clean up county

by David Moore

Road gangs.

Mention of that phrase conjures up images of chained convicts toiling laboriously down a hot stretch of road. A shotgun toting deputy stares menacingly at them from behind reflective sunglasses. The eyes of the convicts reflect both fear and hatred.

Road gangs also bring to mind the Paul Newman movie "Cool Hand Luke," and the prison master belting the star into oblivion while saying in a nasal tone, "What we have here is a failure to communicate."

But those images are a far cry from the true picture of the personnel from the Shelby County Sheriff's Department and the inmates involved in the highway litter cleanup program.

We're just one real happy family out here," says inmate Bobby Wilder, giving Deputy Bibb Windsor, his guard, a friendly slap on the back. "Right, Papa?"

"We're salt and pepper out here," adds inmate Jimmy Louvell Swain. Swain is black, the other three inmates on the cleanup crew are white. Being with them, you can tell they work

And work they do.

"I can flat verify these fellows work--flat work, I tell you," says Windsor. He beams with the pride of a coach who just won the big game.

Picking up trash along the roads behind the hundreds, probably thousands of thoughtless people who throw litter from their car windows is no game, however. It's a big job.

But under the supervision of Windsor, along with support from several county and state agencies, the cleanup crew has picked up approximately 44 tons of litter since the program began. It was initiated in February by Sheriff Buddy Glasgow as an outgrowth of a county wide cleanup campaign started by a citizen group.

Glasgow points out that the clean up crew is quite different from the old images of the road gang. For starters, a road gang is comprised of prisoners sentenced to hard labor. The cleanup crew is voluntary, and composed of trustees.

Glasgow notes that out of the 80 inmates in the jail, 75 of them would be willing to go out on the cleanup crew. But because of the screening involved, only six or seven are eligible.

On days when the jail is short a guard, Windsor has to stay in the jail and his crew is unable to work.

Despite these handicaps, the cleanup crew has left their beautifying mark on a large segment of the county.

Windsor says they started the program on Hwy. 26, working their way west to Hwy. 31. From there they worked their way south along Hwy. 31 to the I-65 interchange, then back Hwy. 70 to Columbiana.

The crew says the stretches of Hwy. 26 and 70 were the worst they've seen.

They also picked up litter north on Hwy. 17 to Helena, then back down Hwy. 119 from Alabaster to Montevallo, working several side roads in the process.

Furthermore, they spent better than three days at the Shelby County Airport cleaning hangers and rampways, as well as several days around interstate interchanges.

On Tuesday, May 6, the crew loaded its 2000th half-bushel bag of litter on the county truck that carries all the trash to where it should have gone in the first place--one of the county landfills.

Firemen hold open house

A big open house is planned for Saturday and Sunday by the Chelsea Volunteer Fire Department.

It will be held at their new fire station on Highway 280 next to the old Lloyd's Restaurant. The station was built primarily by the firemen themselves.

The public is invited to visit between the hours of 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Several entertainments are planned along with a barbeque prepared by Lloyd and Stanley Chesser. All proceeds will benefit the fire department.

The department was organized three years ago by the Chelsea Jaycees. All personnel are volunteers and the department is supported solely by contributions, according to Don King, publicity chairman.

Chelsea now has three fire trucks and is constructing another truck to be used as a tanker. The department has a fire rating of 9A which means residents can probably get a reduction in their home insurance rates, King said.

Anyone who would like to make a contribution may mail it to P.O. Box 165, Chelsea, AL 35043.

Calera candidates speak

There was general agreement among the candidates who spoke at a Calera forum Monday night, that the town is a fine place to live, but that it could be better.

And one of the main points of several of the men who spoke at the Calera Concerned Citizens' meeting, was the necessity for growth.

Sixteen of the 18 candidates for city council seats and the office of mayor, presented their platforms to citizens who turned out for the meeting at the Civitan Building.

Only Billy Geeslin and Councilman Bobby Phillips failed to appear. It was reported that Phillips' wife had undergone surgery that day.

Although some of the office seekers said they wouldn't make any promises now, the majority stressed they would listen to the voice of the people.

Incumbents made the point that citizens needed to attend council meetings to air their problems and make their desires known.

Subjects of concern mentioned during the meeting included further annexations, improving education and recreation, beautification, drainage problems, the sewer system and drugs in the schools.

Some of the candidates made brief declarations of their intentions, while others went over the three minute time limit to tell the voters what they would do if elected.

After all the candidates had spoken, emcee Mark Jones asked for questions from the audience.

Most were directed at Councilman W. B. Watts and Mayor George Roy.

In this election, Roy has two opponents, Carl Prichard and Larry Farris.

One of Prichard's campaign promises was not to accept a paycheck. Farris stressed that he would be "mayor for all the people."

Asking the voters to return him to office, Roy reminded them of his efforts in getting an expanded sewer and water system, a new school building, upgrading the police and fire departments, backing a beautification program and other accomplishments.

Municipal Judge Eason Mitchell, who was present for part of the meeting, told the audience he had qualified to run for Circuit Judge that day.

In addition to those already mentioned, candidates present at the meeting were: Hilton Shirey, Roy Hadaway, Rodney Middlebrooks, Robert Loftin, John W. Woodall, James H. Pilgreen, Sonny Davis, Bobby Mitchell, Terry Snow, A. V. Parmer, Douglas LeSueur and Arthur Burnice.

Candidate put in wrong slot

In the Reporter's listing of candidates for city office in Vincent last week, Patricia Wood's name was put in the wrong place.

She will be running for Council Place 4 against Wallace F. Denty, not for Place 5. Those running for Place 5 are Dr. Karen Joines and Vestula Thompson.

James Rowe Jr. and Nolen Clinkscales are unopposed for places 2 and 3. For place 1, Roland Henson, Pat Roper and D. L. Spates will contest.

The mayor's race will be between Wayne Lowe and Robert D. Greene.

Prisoners fight litter

It was picked up on Hwy. 25 between Montevallo and Calera.

Not without pride, the crew points out that its record trash pickup for one day is 117 bags.

Further demonstrating the crew's gung ho attitude is the fact that they covered Hwy. 25 from Calera to Columbiana in just over two days.

Normally, the inmates load trash bags up until lunch, then spend until 2 p.m. loading the bags on the truck. But sometimes, Windsor says, Wilder or one of the others, will get fired up and the crew will take only a short, early break, then work through lunch.

One unexpected incentive the inmates have found to their job is selling returnable bottles for cigarette money. And for a while, they had a buyer for the hub caps they find in ditches.

Although nickels add up, returnable bottles are not the reason the litter crew works so feverishly.

Says Swain, "We want to work so we can come out here again. Windsor'll fire us if we don't work. Besides, I like being out here where I can see the girls."

Grover Biddie, who has been on the crew from the beginning, explains, "We feel like we're free people when we're out here with this officer. It's a privilege to get out in the fresh air. And after work I can look down the road and say I got out there and picked up all that trash for the people. Nobody can take that from me."

The one grudge by the inmates is against those who do the littering.

"All they're doing is making the county smell bad," claims Wilder. "They ought to be shot!—not really, but they ought to have to come out and pick up the trash."

All the cleanup crew agrees that stiff fines should be leveled against people littering, and that the people should care more about the appearance of Shelby County.

And, adds Biddie, "If you're going to print this, make sure you tell some of those people to slow down. Our lives are important to us. We're due some respect, even if we are inmates."

Sheriff Glasgow says, "I had been noticing how much the litter was piling up on the roads. It just got to bothering me and I thought I could do something about it."

"The prisoners are doing a good job. But in some areas they left spots, people have already come back and messed them up."

"I'm most appreciative of the job they're doing and it helps a whole lot," states solid waste supervisor Carolton Franks. Franks, as well as Probate Judge Tommy Snowden, State Highway Department District Five Supervisor James Braden, and County Engineer Jimmy Ray, have all cooperated in the program.

"But," continues Franks, "people come along and throw stuff right back out there. How can we impress upon them to refrain from littering?"

Says Deputy Windsor, "The point is getting people to understand that these convicts are doing something beneficial for the taxpayers who are paying for the jail anyway."

One of the inmates, taking a breather on the trunk of Windsor's patrol car agrees with Wilder's original suggestion, "Yeah, take them out and shoot them."

Confiscated grass

Montevallo police officers O'Dell Caputo, John Bolling, University of Montevallo Chief David Nichols and Montevallo Chief Troy Kirkland confiscate dried marijuana, marijuana seeds and a set of scales from a Montevallo building Monday morning. Some 1,300 growing marijuana plants were destroyed in the ground. Arrested and charged with possession of marijuana is Gregory Cox, Montevallo. Cox, 29, posted $8,000 bond and is free. The arrest was made by Chief Kirkland. Assisting in the investigation was Shelby County Chief Investigator Reed Smith.

In Columbiana

Sub-divisions give headaches

Who has the responsibility of correcting problems in a sub-division if the development hasn't been approved?

That appears to be the question the Columbiana City Council must answer.

One problem brought up at Thursday night's council meeting involved drainage in an area of Triple Springs sub-division, more commonly known as Billingsley sub-division.

A picture taken by Buddy Roy of his flooded yard, was passed around for the panel to inspect by Councilman Harold McCord.

The homeowner contends that the 24 inch culvert at his residence on the corner of Timothy Drive and Mooney Rd isn't adequate to handle a heavy flow of water.

Roy is hoping, McCord told the panel, that the city and county will join forces to correct the problem.

However, the county has no responsibility for doing work in sub-divisions inside a city limits, and from all indications, the sub-division was never approved by the city planning commission.

According to Hilry King, who heads the local planning board, the group was not active when the first section of the development was started in 1968.

And it was only after construction was started in the third section in 1977, that the board was reappointed, King said.

At that time, a set of sub-division rules and regulations were drawn up, King pointed out, but he said the planning commission never approved the Billingsley sub-division.

And that gave rise to another dilemma, which involved the dedication of streets.

Generally, when a planning commission recommends a development be approved, the plat map is recorded with the city clerk's signature noting that the streets are dedicated to the city.

McCord mentioned that a "bunch" of streets in both Billingsley and Highland sub-divisions needed to be dedicated.

But the panel was uncertain of how to proceed at this point and agreed that the city attorney should be consulted before taking any action.

Reporting to the council on conversations he had with Senators Howell Heflin and Donald Stewart while he was in Washington, D. C. recently, Councilman Paul Smith said that they promised to help expedite a sewer project grant.

The city applied for an EPA grant several years ago to expand the sewer system and all the required studies have been completed.

After discussing policeman Mike Shaw's request for a 60 day leave of absence, the panel gave their approval.

Financial reasons required Shaw to take a temporary job with a company which installs microwave equipment for railroads.

During his absence, the council agreed that Calera investigator Tom Carter would be hired to fill in where necessary.

Men nabbed with furniture

Two men apparently moonlighting in the furnishing business were arrested by a Pelham police officer early Sunday morning on burglary charges. They were picked up as they attempted their getaway from a mobile home dealership with a pickup truck full of furniture.

PPD Lt. Charlie Brown was making a routine patrol along Hwy. 31 when he spotted a light moving around in a trailer at Showcase Mobile Homes at 1:37 a.m. As he pulled into the drive, he stopped the two men who were leaving with a sofa, chair, end table, coffee table and lamp in their possession.

Arrested on 3rd degree burglary charges were James Barfield, 22, of Pelham, and Brian McGuffie, 20, of Alabaster.

Barfield was released from the county jail Tuesday on $3,000 bond. McGuffie is being held on violation of probation revocation.

Pelham police have also apparently broken a juvenile theft ring responsible for at least six burglaries in the last three months.

Three youths between the ages of 13 and 15 were petitioned Tuesday in juvenile court on 2nd and 3rd degree burglary charges and a fourth youth is still under investigation.

The arrests were made last week by Lt. Detective Tommy Thomas, who said that the youths had been stashing their cache behind the Pelham Mart.

Dam causes lake closing

Deterioration of an 85 foot dam on Belcher Lake, a private lake off Hwy. 280, has caused the temporary closing of the upper fishing lake at Oak Mountain State Park a half mile away.

The owners of the lake could not be contacted.

Park manager John Meredith told the Reporter, "Our only concern is if it broke, the water might swamp someone on our lake.

Currently, the 13 acre private lake is being pumped by the Army Corps of Engineers, who, according to Meredith, will lower the water level about 25-30 feet so the dam can be further inspected.

Meredith said he closed the park lake Thursday after that action was suggested by Civil Defense coordinator Bill Tucker.

It will probably be open again by this weekend.

New 4-H facility

Center promotes values

Shelby County is fortunate to have been chosen as the site for the Alabama 4-H Youth Development Center.

The Center will attract young people and adults who are vitally interested in studying, living and promoting all the values we, as Americans cherish.

The enthusiasm of these people, coming by the hundreds into Shelby County can bring great benefit to all of us.

A glimpse of this was seen Monday when over 800 4-H leaders and interested citizens from every corner of the state came to the dedication of the center. They are obviously the types of people who make things go, who do not consider second rate good enough and who will always be striving to bring out the best.

We see the benefits of 4-H programs in Shelby County every day with the training they give our young people. It will be even better to have the center nearby where 4-H members from all over the state can meet each other, plan together, and build a better Alabama.

Under The Courthouse Dome

The county commission put another 30 day binder on the insurance it has for its employees, while studying bids that will take care of all retirees. This happened at Monday's meeting. The insurance matter has plagued the commission for some time, since bids have not been comparable for various types of insurance.

Commission chairman Tommy Snowden remarked that he has been getting complaints about property taxes again, and other commissioners indicated they had, too. Snowden emphasized that the commission does not have any control over the ad valorem taxes or the reappraisal program.

Snowden said tax assessor Bobbie Reynolds has the responsibility and all the people in her office are responsible to her, not to him or to the commission. "We don't have anything to do with it. All we could do was decide whether to hire contract maintenance or in-house maintenance. Outside of that we have no authority."

He added that Mrs. Reynolds and the state revenue representative recommended in-house maintenance of tax records, and the commission agreed to it.

County Engineer James Ray, Jr., gave the commission a check for $88, which he said was reimbursement for his time when he testified in a federal case in Birmingham. The case involved a wreck on highway 87 near Longview two years ago when a truck hit an Amtrak passenger train on the L & N tracks. The truck driver was killed. Ray said the case was settled in the railroad's favor. He had asked attorneys only to reimburse the county for the time he spent in testifying, not for an 'expert witness' fee.

The Shelby County library would have to close down without a trained librarian, Mildred Harrison told the county commission Monday. She asked for additional salary money to offer persons with a master's degree. The crisis developed with the resignation of librarian Pam Williams. Mrs. Harrison, chairman of the county library board, said the board could not find anyone who could fill the qualifications for the $13,200 salary that is offered. Without a trained librarian, the county would lose state and federal funds and be forced to close, she noted. So the commission agreed to do whatever was necessary. Mrs. Harrison mentioned $15,000 as the salary she thought was needed.

If Teddy Brasher lived in his barn instead of his house, he could run for office in district one.

This predicament caused some amusement at the county commission meeting Monday and later, at the county Democratic Executive Committee meeting, when Brasher told the story on himself.

The Brashers live in Beat 23, a beat that was carved out of older beats a few years ago to make voting easier for those who lived there. It is located roughly near "The Narrows" on Highway 280, between Chelsea and Oak Mountain in the Simmsville area.

But district lines for the county commission run through Beat 23, with part of it in district one and part in district three. That's where Teddy Brasher's dilemma lies. The barn on his property is in district one, but his house is in district three.

He said he wanted to run for county commission in district one against Jimmy "Jake" Morris. "I thought Jake and I could have a pretty good race," he told the Democrats. When he found out about the district line problem, he asked the commission to redraw the line.

But the law is strict on the point. The commission can change the line only at their first meeting in even-numbered years. That means January, 1982. So Brasher will not be able to run in district one this time. He says he doesn't want to run in district three against Ned Bearden, joking that he can't take on a Bearden and a bank.

But is slump leveling out?

County housing growth may get 50% slice

by David Moore

A crippling combination of inflation and recession may slice the growth rate of housing in Shelby County as much as 50% in 1980.

But the slump may be leveling out, according to some indicators, if, indeed, it has not already begun an upswing.

Realtor and contractor Hershel Trimm of Vincent recently conducted a survey for the board of education which revealed that 1600 houses were built in the county last year; two-thirds of them in North Shelby.

Trimm told the Reporter that figure may be down by as much as 50% this year.

"The demand for housing is there, but people can't afford them," he pointed out.

For contractors and realtors, the current housing slump has been hard to cope with due to the mixture of recession and inflation. In past slumps, recession has curbed inflation, but not this time, said Trimm.

Pelham realtor Fred Ulbricht noted that the few housing starts thus far in 1980 have been "sparse and sporadic."

Currently his firm has 10 houses either completed or under construction, compared to 70 units a year ago.

Ulbricht said that when the prime interest rate hit 15% in late 1979, his contractors cut down on nearly all speculative building, and since then have been in a "holding pattern." This move, he explained, kept them solvent, unlike some other builders in the area who went bankrupt.

Riverchase project manager Roger Yanko noted that even though new starts are off in that planned community, Riverchase was not overbuilt when the recession started, and that has helped.

"We just didn't have the housing starts this year you usually see in the spring," said he. "We're probably 25%-30% behind. Since January we've started about 15-20 houses."

Though single family unit starts remain off at Riverchase, a few townhouses are currently under construction on Parkway West, Yanko pointed out.

He explained that the present slump was almost predictable in that such housing drops occur in four to five year cycles, the last coming in 1974 and early 1975.

1978 was the last "boom year" for Shelby County housing. In that year, area growth was at 8%-10%, as compared to two percent for the rest of Alabama. Trimm, Ulbricht and Yanko all remain optimistic that 1978 was not the last boom Shelby County will experience.

Perhaps the brightest news to hit the housing industry in a year, is that several banks have lowered their prime interest rate back to 14% in the past two weeks.

Furthermore, interest on FHA and VA loans, which was up to 14% has now dropped back to 11.5%.

As a result, Ulbricht noted that his contractors are once again beginning to pull out their house plans.

When the prime drops another one or two points, he added, they will probably begin to build again--cautiously.

Another indicator that points to a possibly brighter future, is that Alabama Power Company is basing its future plans on an expected 20% growth rate.

According to Vicki Zoghby in the power company's information office, this expected growth is hinged on the completion of I-65 from Alabaster to Hoover.

The state highway department is predicting I-65 to open to the public as early as the end of 1980.

But Ulbricht says completion of the interstate is about three years too late to play that important a role in the growth of Shelby County.

"It will help, but the help will be offset by the distance factor involved for people who have to drive to Birmingham to work," he said, noting that gas is not getting any cheaper.

In the meantime, according to Trimm, housing woes, both in Shelby County and across the country, are due to general confusion over the economy.

Said he, "The stability of the country is the big question."

Evening treasured

To the Honorable Mayor Bob Bolton, Reverend Dan Kitchens, Former Graduates, Parents, and Friends of The Columbiana Kindergarten:

Some 30 years ago when I commenced my kindergarten program I never dreamed of touching hundreds of children's lives in our community. My pride in working with the young was increased many times over as I have watched my graduates enjoy their childhood experiences, whet their appetites for continued learning, and grow into community-minded citizens.

Your display of gratitude on my retirement on 17 May was heart-touching--the Honorable Mayor's tribute and service plaque presentation, the prayer of Rev. Kitchens, the 30 red roses given by Johnny Cates, and parents' and former graduates' personal conveyances--I shall treasure in each conscious thought for years to come. I truly appreciate the effort of each person involved who made that evening a special one in my life.

The Shelby County Reporter's recent displays of appreciation through the articles of Mrs. Seaman and Mr. Rasco and listed endorsers are grateful remembrances I can reread over the years and pass on to future generations.

Thank you,
Mary Nell Skelton

Leftout gets thanks

We've left someone out. We filed into the gym, the same as years in the past.

There was excitement in the air. The suits were hot, the ties hurt our necks and the high heeled shoes hurt our feet. This really didn't matter much because it was Honors Day at Thompson Middle School.

We had finished another year, and had come to honor those who had made the best grades, been a good citizen, student or excelled in one way or another.

We honored our God, our country, our teachers, our principal and ourselves.

I was one of the lucky ones who was honored. I was so thankful and proud.

But as I looked over the past three years, I realized that "we had left someone out."

I remember who took a small, frightened, sixth grade student, taught her to make change and put her to work in the student council store. I remember who said "you can do it." I remember who was at the skating parties until ten at night. I remember a more confident seventh grader who was carried to foreign places through social studies. I remember who helped me with my social studies project, when I got stuck, who said "you can do it." I remember who was at Montgomery to congratulate me when I won an award at the State Social Studies Fair. I thank this teacher for the many after school hours he has given to his students for the encouragement he has given me, not only when I was his student, but over the past three years. I am a better student and a more confident person because of his help. Thanks to you Mr. Denham. I did do it!

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Granny sent me to get a quarter's worth of steak. It didn't seem strange that I wanted just a quarter's worth. You could get a 24 pound sack of flour for 80 cents. Sugar was 4 cents a pound. White meat was 9 cents a pound. A loaf of bread cost a dime and a box of snuff cost a nickel.

"I want a quarter's worth of steak," I said.

Mr. Carter was busy at the meat block and didn't look up. When he did, he wiped his hands on his long white apron and asked: "What kind o' steak, sonny?"

"Round."

He started sharpening his knife. He took the hind leg of a cow out of his big cooler and laid it on the block.

"How's Mrs. Nelson?" He didn't look up. He was busy with the cow's leg.

"She's fine," I said.

And she was. She never changed, Granny didn't, not a smidgen from one day to another.

"She's a fine lady," Mr. Carter said.

Henry Chapman passed outside. He stuck his head in the door and said: "I've got a big boy at my house. We named him

Ed."

"Are they all right?" Mr. Carter asked.

"Doing fine."

He had cut the steak and laid it on the counter.

Pete Christian came in and left a list of groceries. He went back to his store across the street.

"What does a boy do in the summer?" Mr. Carter asked me.

"We go to the wash-hole and play marbles and hoe in the garden."

Bill Farley passed on his way to his drug store. He crossed the street on slabs that had been there all winter.

"He's late," Mr. Carter said.

"He's got pneumonia. They don't think he'll make it." He started to leave and turned back.

"Got a fresh hair cut and drove to Birmingham in the wind."

Mr. Carter picked up my steak and wrapped it in white paper.

"Is there something else?"

"No, sir."

He held out his hand and I put the quarter in it.

Before I got to the door, he said: "Tell Mrs. Nelson if she needs coffee she'd better get some. They say it's going to 30 cents a pound."

I thought that I had broken the car key hex, but I was wrong. It's come back to haunt me.

Ever since I've started carrying a camera almost everywhere I go, I make sure to lock the car door when I get out if I don't take it with me.

It's become like a reflex. But unfortunately, removing the keys from the ignition hasn't.

So an El Camino has been a Godsend for me. The open rear end is a perfect place to stash a coat hanger - that indispensable tool for forgetful door lockers.

Up until a year or so ago, I never would have believed I could master the art of poking a bent hanger through the rubber sealer around a door and latch on to that little knob.

But necessity sometimes forces you to do things you don't think you can.

And after my initial experience in gaining entry to my locked vehicle, it became increasingly easier each time I locked myself out, to poke through, hook on and pull up.

Somehow or other though, up until just lately, I've made progress in remembering to remove my keys when alighting.

But then, one fateful day, when I was driving my daughter's car, and was late for an appointment, the car key hex struck again.

Jumping out and rushing into the building where I thought the office was located, I suddenly realized my keys were still in the car.

Gnashing my teeth, because I didn't have my trusty hanger, I went inside to keep my appointment only to find I was in the wrong building.

So I was forced to call the person who was waiting for me, find out where they were, and explain that I would be there as soon as I could get into my car.

Luckily, I was able to obtain a hanger, but the sealer in my borrowed car didn't have a hole already punched and I couldn't get the wire bent just right.

My layoff must have made me rusty too, so I really had a struggle before I finally snagged a button in the third window I tried.

All went well for a few days, and then came that night at the jail. No, I wasn't thrown in the clink - I was covering a meeting being held at the county facility.

My door key had been removed from my key chain by another party, and when I went rushing into the meeting after quickly locking the car, I failed to realize that fact.

And when I found I was locked out, I also found my hanger had been lifted.

There was no problem in coming up with another hanger, but some of the men at the meeting wanted to demonstrate their skill with the wire, so I let one of them perform the feat.

But I have that trusty little tool back in the accustomed place again in case the car key hex ever returns to plague me.

The purpose of the hearing is to allow older persons, public officials and other local citizens an opportunity to express their views on the proposed Plan for Fiscal Year 1981.

Minor retires

Tom Minor, left, is congratulated by Bill Tucker while "Rags" Lowery waits his turn.

County officials praise retiring Hwy. employee

by Marcia M. Sears

When the Shelby County Highway Department staff hold a barbecue, it is like a big family reunion.

Last Friday, they gathered under the trees at the picnic area behind the headquarters and saluted Thomas Wayne Minor, who was retiring after 31 years and 8 months of continuous service.

Many men who had retired earlier were there with their families, and almost all the current department members were there too, with their families.

J.E. "Ned" Bearden, commissioner from district 3, served as spokesman for the Shelby county commission. He praised Minor's work and presented him with a watch from the commissioners.

Department chairman James L. Ray, Jr., said Minor's contributions were valuable "in every sense of the word. Through it all he has responded to every possible situation as maintenance superintendent without a single complaint or the least reluctance."

Ray called Minor "most instrumental in the development of the 750 miles of paved roads and 250 miles of unpaved roads, 306 bridges, three sanitary landfills, public school ball fields and recreation areas on the Coosa River that we now have in this county."

Minor responded by giving credit to "the judge, the commissioners and the men and women of the department. That's why we've made so much progress while I've been here."

His wife, Dru, attended the festivities. Their daughter, Toni, came from Memphis with her husband Jerry Paulk and their daughter, Carrie Ellen. Their son, Tom, his wife, Susan, and their children, Tim, Terry and Alice of Birmingham joined the family too.

County Commissioners Harold Davenport and Jimmy "Jake" Morris also praised Minor's work with the department.

Citizen of year named

The Central Civitan Club elected as its citizen of the year, the woman who has overseen the education of 6,328 Alabaster students in the past 10 years.

Mary Roach, principal of Thompson Middle School, was honored for her years of dedication as an educator by the Civitans Thursday night at a banquet. To keep her award a surprise, the Civitans invited her to the meeting under the pretext of giving a school status report to the club.

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles, who has worked for years with her, related a story of how she once planted a small, struggling cottonwood tree on the campus of Thompson High, and how she watched after it and took care of it until it grew to maturity.

"Mary Roach's nurturing care of that tree is indicative of her approach to human life," Knowles told the crowd of about 40 people. He added that she has the gift of "seeing good in people and helping to develop it."

Shelby Memorial Hospital board member Herchel Meadows told stories of her struggle to build the middle school into a quality institution, and described her as a person who has "lighted candles along the way."

In short acceptance speech, Miss Roach said, "We dream about a lot of things. And I believe daydreaming is a good way to get things done when you put legs on those dreams. The fact that people believe in you and stand behind you when you know you're right is a tremendous help."

Citizen of the year

The Central Civitan Club honored TMS principal Mary Roach as citizen of the year Thursday night. Among those on hand who related their experiences over the years with the educator, were Mike Kent, a former student of Miss Roach's, Shelby Memorial Hospital board member Herchel Meadows and Bill Morris, who headed up the nomination committee.

Poet sees father as special man

by Becky McDonald

A Special Kind of Man

A father is that special man who stands so big and tall to the little eyes that follow him he's the grandest of them all. No wrong he is able to commit perfection is his realm.

As through the eyes of his little ones he's seen as the hero in a film.

A few years pass and the comrades grow the father and his off spring.

They fish, they laugh, they play together sometimes they even sing.

Hand in hand they may be seen in search of a new adventure.

The world seems fresh and the air so clean as they walk through it together.

And then as the dawn comes seeping up conflict creeps upon the world that had seemed so perfect to that father and that son.

No more do they share the secrets that had held them like a bond.

They look at each other and wonder where had it all gone

As more years pass they separate and the father's left behind.

And the young man walks into a world that seemed tangled and unkind.

He struggled and he made his way through the world that had seemed so big.

And looks around for that perfect friend he longs to share it with.

It must be someone he can look up to a comrade and a friend.

For special times that must be shared with that special kind of man.

He looks around and sees him. He's been waiting all along.

It's his Father who's that special man. And he's still standing -- big and tall.

WONDERFUL WORDS OF LIFE

Interpreting God's Word

One must follow some basic rules in the area of Biblical interpretation, also known as "hermeneutics." These rules of interpretation are necessary when one attempts to understand any book, especially God's word.

First, one should ask who is doing the speaking. Is the author speaking the commands of God, or is he simply quoting the words of Satan or of someone who is not speaking by inspiration. Satan told Eve that she would not die when she ate the forbidden fruit. Job's friends spoke advice to Job which was not good advice at all.

Second, one should ask to whom the author is speaking. When God told Noah to build an ark, He was not commanding us to build arks today. When God commanded Moses to lift up the brazen serpent in the wilderness, He was not commanding all of us to have brazen serpents.

Third, one should ask the time of the commands. People living today are not bound by the patriarchal laws or the Mosaic laws. The Patriarchal Age lasted from creation to the giving of Moses' law from Mount Sinai. The Mosaic Age lasted from the giving of the Law of Moses until the death of Christ. (Colossians 2:14; Romans 7:1-4; II Corinthians 3:1-12) We are now under the Law of Christ. It went into force on the day of Pentecost of Acts chapter 2 and will continue until the end of time in Galatians 5:4, Paul warned of trying to justify ourselves by the Law of Moses. To do so is to fall from grace. Why? Because we are living under the Law of Christ.

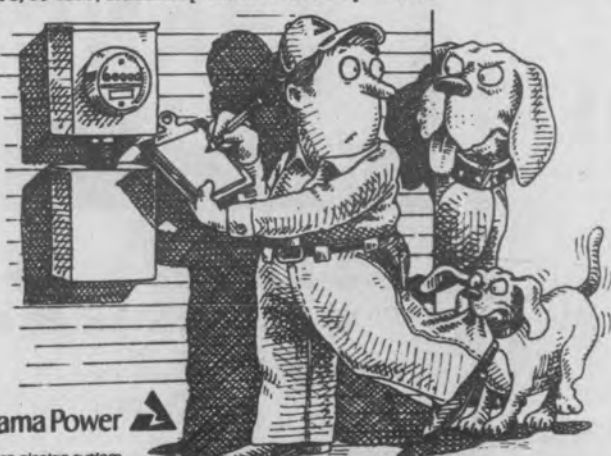

A great blessing is in store for those who study God's word, meditate upon it day and night, and live by its precepts.

Curtis A. Cates, Evangelist

DID YOU KNOW?

We read 98% of our customers' meters each month.

That means only about 2% ever get estimated. And that only happens because of factors beyond the company's control, such as locked gates and doors, and inclement weather. When it is impossible to read a meter, the company will estimate the meter reading. And any difference between the estimated usage and the actual usage is corrected when the meter is read the next month. We always try to avoid estimating anyone's reading for two months in a row. But in any case, no customer ever ends up paying for more, or less, electricity than is actually used.

Coping in the 80's

Economy minded mom

Laurie (standing) and Jeannie Norton show off outfits sewn by their mother, Jean Norton. Mrs. Norton recently participated in a class where she learned to do the smocking which decorates the front of Jeannie's dress.

A stitch in time can save cash

"I don't see how people make it who don't sew," a woman was heard to remark recently at a Pelham fabric shop.

She was purchasing material to make a blouse like a ready-made one she had seen in a dress shop for $14.00, she said. She figured that by the time she bought fabric, thread and buttons she would have around $2.00 tied up in the blouse.

We have learned that such incidents are becoming more and more common around the county as inflation has also hit the clothing industry.

At Charlotte Thornton's shop people are buying materials for sewing everything from bedspreads and drapes to warm-up suits and blue jeans.

A saleslady added that women are also buying pillowslips with eyelet trim to make "quickie" sundresses. She explained that when opened on one side and stitched together, one pair makes a dress with the trim already sewn on.

A Columbiana saleslady told about a woman who came into her shop and found material reduced to $1.00 per yard which was identical to material in a dress she had bought at Parisians for $67.00. "She bought enough to make another lady a dress like hers for almost nothing," she said.

Louise Smith at a Montevallo fabric shop can tell similar stories.

"Just this morning a girl came in who had been looking at some ready-made shorts priced at $22.50," she said. "It was a pair of long walking shorts with cuffs. She bought 7/8 of a yard of fabric to make a pair, and it cost her only about $3.05. With thread and a zipper the shorts will probably cost about $4.00."

Smith said she has noticed that a lot of people who use to sew are going back to it again.

"This is a very sensible move," remarked another lady. "Most women can make a dress from two yards of 60 inch material which cost from $9 to $11," she said, "While they might pay $60.00 for the dress ready-made."

But, it is not only older seamstresses who are returning to the sewing machines. Younger folks are learning to sew, too.

Marian Owen of Chelsea Estates has two little girls for whom she is learning to sew. She loves to do hand work she said and recently took a class in smocking. But she is trying to learn other kinds of sewing as well. When she runs into trouble she calls on her friend, Jean Norton, who is more adept at the task, she said.

Mrs. Norton is the mother of two little girls, Laurie 4 and Jennie 14 months, and a son Greg, who is 11. She sews for herself and her daughters and has also recently learned to smock so she can sew fancy clothes for the girls.

Some mothers told us that they do not sew as much as they did when their daughters were younger because they do not have the time. They usually shop around for bargains or wait until items they want go on sale. One mother said she enjoys looking for good buys at a Goodwill store.

However, some of these same mothers said that when a special occasion arises where a daughter needs a specific outfit, they bring out the sewing machine.

Helena dairy tops state in milk increase

The J.E. Bearden Farm in Helena led the state in total milk production increase last year with 3,026 pounds.

Two county dairies placed in the "Top Ten High Herds" for 1979.

Calvin McCarthy's farm placed sixth among dairies with less than 100 cows. He has 44 cows on his farm at Harpersville.

Ralph Bearden's farm at Vincent has 164 cows. It placed second among dairies with 100 or more cows.

County dairymen are joining with others across the country to commemorate "June Dairy Month," with the theme "Dairy Days U.S.A."

Young Dairymen

Shelley McCarthy, a recent graduate of Vincent High School, and 4-H club member Damon Folmar of Columbiana, prepare to milk a cow at the McCarthy farm in Harpersville.

Pelham man named associate

George W. Ellingson of Pelham is the newest associate of the John H. Krooss Agency of Memphis, Tenn., as a district representative in the Shelby County area for Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL).

AAL is a fraternal society, a nationwide organization of 1.15 million Lutherans and their families.

In addition to participating in AAL's insurance programs, members and representatives take part in humanitarian, service and social projects.

A one to two percent production increase is expected in the state in 1980 unless unforeseeable weather conditions or economic changes occur severely altering production factors and costs.

This word comes from the Alabama Cooperative Extension Service and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

They say that given a fair price, dairy farmers will likely respond by continuing to expand their production and operations to provide the milk and dairy products consumers want. Total U.S. milk production in 1979 was up 1.7% from 1978.

According to the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, Shelby County's milk production per cow is above the state average. The state average was 13,013 pounds of milk per cow last year, the county's average was 13,723 pounds.

Revival set

Reverend Robert L. Pickett, Pastor of Aldrich First Baptist Church, invites the public to hear Evangelist Keith Fordham during revival services on June 15-20. Services will begin at 7:30 PM each evening and a morning service will be conducted at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Fordham, a ventriloquist, will bring along his sidekick, Homer, who will be an inspiration to the youth.

A graduate of New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary, as a Master of Divinity, he has conducted over 50 revivals.

Music will be directed by Walter Coffey, minister of music of the church.

THS's star pitcher signs with Alabama

Since he was knee-high to a pitching mound, Steve Smitherman has dreamed of playing professional baseball.

And last Saturday he took a giant step toward the realization of that dream when he signed a scholarship to play for the Crimson Tide.

"It's just starting to hit me," the Thompson High School graduate said Monday. "Sunday I was out running and it occurred to me we'll be playing the best teams in the nation. I just started grinning."

If Thompson's pitching ace for the past several years is excited, it's more than understandable.

"Just going to Alabama is good enough for me," said he. But there's more. UA head baseball coach Barry Shollenberger, who used to pitch for the Cincinnati Reds, is taking big steps toward rebuilding the school's program. And he's going about it in a professional manner.

"It's a professional setup. He's trying to make all his players professional. And I want to play pro," asserts the Alabaster native.

"Shollenberger knows his stuff. He said he can show me things to make me better. I don't want to play like I did last year. Shoot, I want to be better."

If playing for the University of Alabama makes Smitherman a better player, it can only be said they had a lot to work with. In four years on the mound he amassed an enviable record of 26 wins, eight saves and only four losses. And all the losses were in his sophomore year.

He'll take a string of 18 consecutive wins to Tuscaloosa with him, including his senior performance of one perfect game, another no-hitter, and five shutouts.

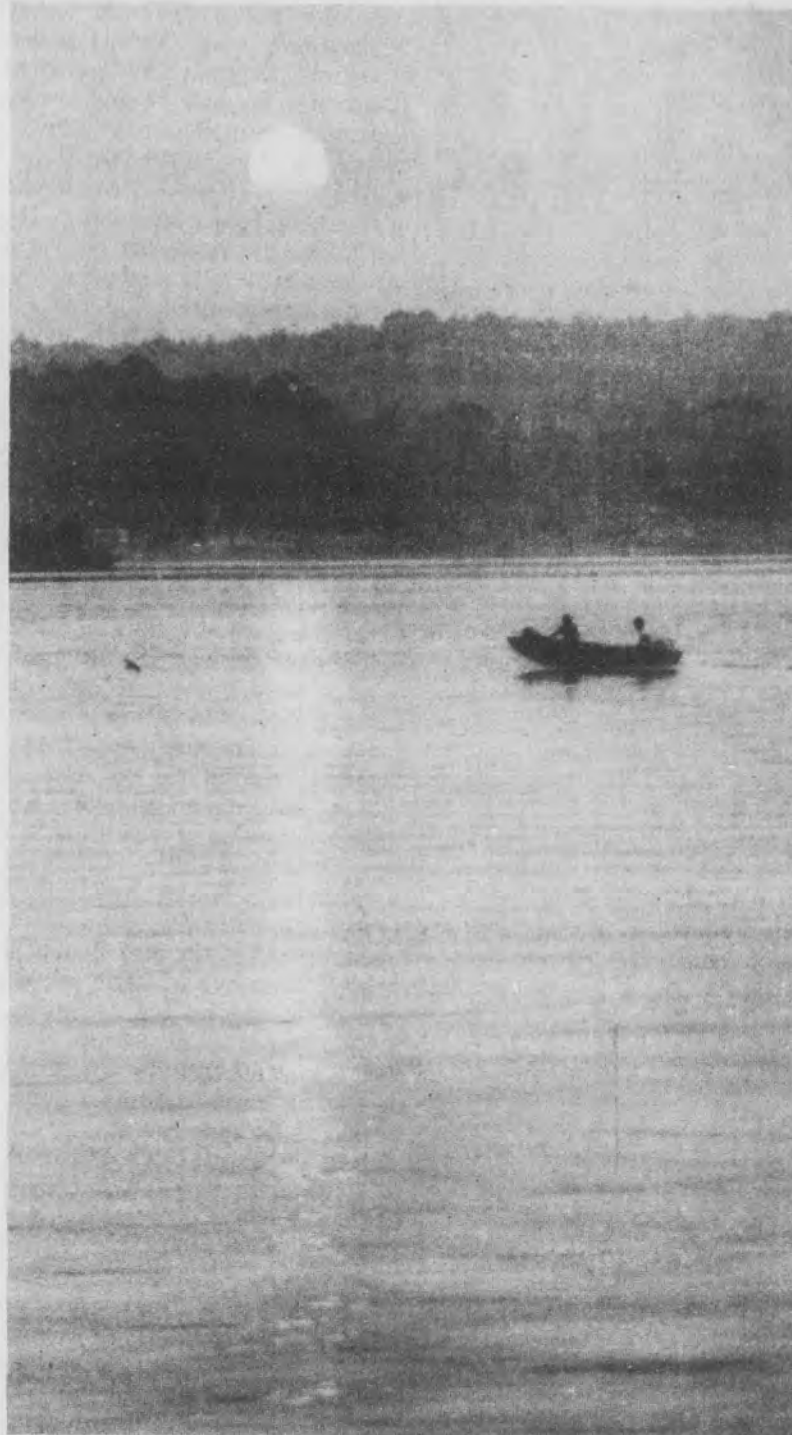

During his senior year at Thompson, Smitherman gave up only two earned runs.

His four year scholarship will include tuition, books, and half his rooming expenses. And if he keeps playing the caliber of ball he's capable of, UA will probably increase those scholarship benefits.

He is the son of Robert L. and Jean Smitherman and attended Thompson schools for 12 years.

Smitherman said he plans to major in criminal justice.

"Shoot," said Smitherman with a grin you could see over the telephone, "I couldn't believe it when he called. This is my first step toward fulfilling a dream."

Going fishing

SEPCO-MMI women

New softball team is earning reputation

"It was like the Olympics when the Americans beat the Russians in hockey," commented Danny Deshazo, coach of the SEPCO-MMI women's softball team. If he was proud of his 18 players, no one can blame him.

The new Cinderella team grabbed a surprise third place in the Birmingham ASA Tournament played last weekend before a massive crowd at George Ward Park.

Pitted against a field of 21 of the top place teams in the southeast, the Pelham based women made it to the quarter finals with wins over the Birmingham Rookies (6-4), the Green House Gang (10-3), the Longshots (12-6), and the defending state champions, John Crump Toyota (8-7), ranked ninth in the nation in women's softball.

UPI, from Cookeville, Tennessee, who eventually won the tournament, handed SEPCO-MMI their first defeat (9-1) Sunday. Natural Light from Auburn defeated them again later in the day, and went on to finish the tourney in second place.

The women on the team are Melissa Matthews, Pam Herron, Judy Carroll, Betty Winfrey, Pam Smith, Myra Giddens, Flo Lawley, Judy Atkisson, Pam Kendrick, Deanne Vansant, Michele Reed, Shirley Horton, Wendy Partridge, Juliann Moody, Tootie Tucker, Toots Cooley, Cindy Rich and Lisa Davenport.

Helping Deshazo with the apparent fine coaching job were Pete Atkisson and Rusty Kendrick.

UM slates basketball clinic

There is still plenty of time to register for the 16th Annual University of Montevallo Basketball Coaches' Clinic.

The clinic is set for June 19-21, and this year's list of featured coaches is just as star-studded as ever. Heading the cast is Tennessee's Don DeVoe, and he will be joined by James Oliver of Alabama State University, Bill Lankford of Jefferson State Junior College, Gerald Johnson of Coffee High School in Florence and Ronnie Ryan of Woodlawn High School in Birmingham.

Golf and tennis tournaments kick off the whole program. Lodging is available for those who desire it in Lund Hall.

Registration will be in the Myrick Hall gym lobby at noon Thursday, June 19, and at 9 a.m. Friday, June 20.

For application forms contact Bill Elder at UM, Station 182, Montevallo, Alabama 35115 or at his office 205-665-2521, ext. 403. The clinic is open to both men and women coaches.

Penning dream

Thompson graduate Steve Smitherman signed with the University of Alabama Saturday when baseball coach Barry Shollenberger came to Alabaster. Watching the pitching ace sign scholarship papers are his parents, Jean and Robert Smitherman and THS baseball coach Billy Woodham.

Roundball is way of life at ISS camp

For seven days they lived basketball, practically ate, drank and breathed the sport.

But for a boy who loves the game, for a young athlete wanting to sharpen his basketball skills, it was a golden opportunity. After all, how often does a young player get a chance to learn basketball from a mentor the caliber of UAB Blazers' coach Gene Bartow?

From June 1-6, 120 boys from the third to eleventh grades, from Shelby County to Indiana, came to attend the Gene Bartow Basketball Camp at Indian Springs School. And from June 22-27, another 120 boys will do the same.

"We've taken the best out of a lot of good camps," said Bartow last Wednesday afternoon speaking over the clamor of young voices and running tennis shoes that drifted from the gym into the office of ISS coach Jim Riley. It is the tenth year Bartow has been involved in similar camps around the country.

He continued: "We feel we're pretty organized here. The kids are involved in basketball all morning, evening and night. They're tired by the end of the day, but they have a desire to improve their skills. So we're here to help them become better players."

With a staff of 14 coaches assisting him, the camp has one coach per eight campers.

Mark Howard of Chelsea, who led the Hornets in rebounding last season, was one of the campers at ISS last week. He explained that he signed up mainly to improve his dribbling, to learn those between-the-legs moves that can keep a player going when the traffic gets heavy.

Howard, who played on a 2-21 team last season, also had another motive behind attending Bartow's camp. Said he, "I can't stand to lose. I hope to take something back with me that'll help the team next year."

UAB coach Lee Hunt, explained the daily schedule at ISS.

The campers ate breakfast at 7:30. By 8:30, basketball lessons were underway, starting with a lecture by Bartow or one of his Blazers who just graduated, like Stan Scales or Keith McCord who recently signed with Philadelphia.

Next, the boys divided into three age groups and spent from 9:00 to 10:15 rotating through teaching stations which specialized in shooting techniques, defense, passing, rebounding and individual offensive work such as pivoting.

The rest of the time before noon lunch was devoted to running 3-on-3 and 5-on-5 competitive drills.

From about 1:15 to 4:30, the campers ran 1-on-1 competitive drills, played team matches and entered into singles competition such as free throw shots. Supper was served at 5:00.

At 6:30 the teams played full court games for two hours, then films of college and pro games were shown and discussed.

If a kid dreamed about basketball when the lights were blacked out at 10:00, no one would be surprised.

While their friends basked in Florida, worked, or just loafed around, these campers lived basketball. But as coach Hunt pointed out, "They've got the rest of the summer to do what they want." He added that several of the Blazers who spoke to the boys emphasized that hard work is essential to success in any endeavor.

But it wasn't just the campers who benefited from the week of basketball. Two Shelby County coaches, who assisted Bartow noted that they and their schools would see benefits from the camp.

Briarwood coach Steve Franklin said, "When you're around Bartow, Hunt and these other coaches, you get a chance to pick new drills and strategy. This is the best coaching clinic there is."

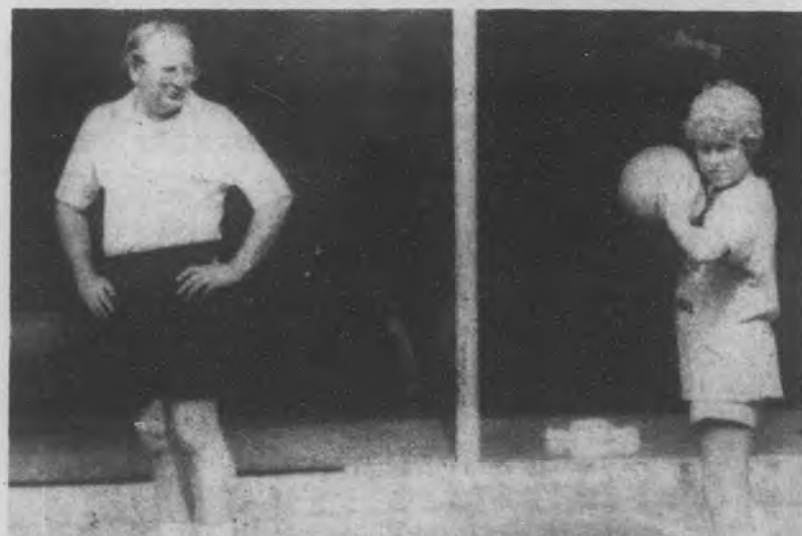

Coach Riley explained that holding the camp at ISS should have a strong, positive effect on that school's basketball program. "Maybe people will think basketball can be a first rate program around here again."

Besides Howard from Chelsea, Greg Bestor, David and Ben Hunt and Darby Henley from ISS, Andy Scotch, Scott Moorer and Mike Schor from Briarwood, and two athletes from Pelham attended the camp's first session.

This week Bartow is assisting Falcon coach Bill Elder with the UM Basketball Camp, which is being attended by about 65 boys.

Camp days

UAB coach Lee Hunt takes a moment to give a few pointers to one of the 120 campers who attended the Gene Bartow Basketball Camp last week at Indian Springs.

Cub fishermen

It was a great day for fishing. And the Montevallo Cubs in Pack 559 were eager to try their luck at a fishing rodeo. The boys fanned out around the College Lake to find just the right spot where the fish were biting. Thirteen contestants from the recently reorganized pack vied for prizes at the event.

Fishing rodeo hooks Cubs

Jeff Smitherman's persistence paid off during a Cub Scout fishing rodeo at the College Lake in Montevallo.

Staying on the dock until the last minute, the young Cub Scout managed to pull in the fish which gave him the prize for catching the most fish.

Other winners in the event were: Steve Milstead, biggest fish; Patrick Thomas, best pole; DeWayne Cox, most effort.

Three dens from reorganized Pack 559 participated in the rodeo and cookout which followed.

Gene Glover is Cubmaster of the Pack, which is sponsored by the Montevallo United Methodist Church, and Herbie Milstead is Webelos leader.

Den leaders are: Harriet Payne, 1; Daisy Conwell, 2; Shirley Taff, 3.

And the boys who showed up Saturday to compete for the fishing boxes and the rod and reel donated by Smitherman's Pharmacy were: David Lewis, Shannon Hurt, Shane Baugh, Jason Payne.

Patrick Thomas, Jeff Smitherman, Quin Hedrick, DeWayne Cox, Shawn Maddox, DeWayne Bice, Mike Ludwig, Gray Taff and Steve Milstead.

Every boy who competed received a Mepps fishing lure which were also donated for the event.

Boy Scouts who served as judges were Meador McClanahan, Kevin Colley and John Hawkins.

Best line wetters

Montevallo Cub Scouts went all out to win the prizes offered at a fishing rodeo. But the lucky boys who went home with the loot were: Jeff Smitherman, Steve Milstead, Patrick Thomas and Dewayne Cox.

Turkey gains state status

by Earl Franklin Kennamer

Seven years ago I asked my local legislator to introduce a bill making the eastern wild turkey Alabama's state bird. I called "Pete" Turnham, my "personal legislator because he and I were in the Alabama Extension Service together after World War II.

Anyway, I told Pete in no uncertain terms the reason the wild turkey should be our most prominent bird in Alabama. This state, I pointed out, is a leader in the 30 to 40 states with annual hunting seasons for the wild turkey. Many states, like Virginia, went to spring seasons for hunting wild gobblers only when Alabama proved shooting of turkeys in March and April in no way interferes with potential increase of the total flock.

I also told Pete that Ben Franklin labored long and loud to have the wild turkey legally established as the emblem of the newly organized nation of 13 colonies, which were the nucleus of the United States of America. But too many dimwits who always looked to the past back in the late 1700's overrode Franklin's outcry by declaring the carrion-eating, fish stealing bald eagle as the bird symbol we have today. The eagle was the popular symbol of the ancient Greeks and the Romans.

Our wild turkey--a native of North America only -- is a member of the group of ground nesting birds of the order Galiformes and includes the quail, grouse, pheasant, and yes -- our most important poultry species -- the common chicken. The flesh of all these birds is edible and sought after by hunters. The meat of the eastern wild turkey helped sustain our starving forebears in early settlement days. Today, assuming we over the nation bag 10 percent of an estimated total national population of two million birds, we are placing on our dinner tables a ball park figure of 12,000 tons of the finest poultry meat in the world! Think of it--24,000,000 pounds of dressed, cooked turkey will be the main meal of 96 million persons!

Pete kept introducing bills to give the wild turkey state status. Finally, on April 2 this year the House of the Alabama Legislature passed House Bill No. 889 by Turnham and with an able assist by House Speaker Joe McCorquodale. Joe not only is an able legislator and the best House Speaker I've ever watched in action; he is a topnotch turkey hunter in his home woods of southwest Alabama.

In the dying moments of the past legislative session the Senate passed the bill making the wild turkey a state emblem. However, this triumph is somewhat watered down in that the bill is "To designate the wild turkey as the official state game bird for the State of Alabama." The word, "game," dilutes the position of the turkey as a status bird symbol to second place, since the yellowhammer, or flicker, a woodpecker, is the present Alabama state bird.

In other words, the turkey has the same rank as the first runner-up in a Miss America contest. And when does anyone see or hear anything about the beauty contest runner-up? Never, unless something happens to the queen.

Even the distinction of the wild turkey's being the first state game bird in the nation would be more than a triumphant act, but S.C. made the wild turkey its state game bird in 1976, according to my son, Dr. James Earl Kennamer, now the biologist of the National Wild Turkey Federation, Edgefield, S.C. You know what the state bird of S.C. is? Appropriately, the Carolina wren.

The only significance to me of the yellowhammer's eminence is that the soldiers of one Ala. regiment during the War of the Rebellion wore yellowhammer feathers in their caps.

Making the eastern wild turkey Alabama's state game bird is a positive victory. However, I'll never rest until the eastern wild turkey is the STATE bird. Turkey hunters, outdoor photographers and birders, too, rally around me! How many youngsters today know what a yellowhammer is? Yet, how many would not recognize the wild turkey feeding in a pasture?

The wild turkey is a romantic figure, the most difficult quarry of any hunter, and the largest of all game birds!

UM edges BSC for conference title

A mere half-point margin turned out to be all the difference in the world as the University of Montevallo edged Birmingham-Southern College to win the Charlie Richard All-Sports Trophy of the Southern States Conference.

The award, inaugurated this year, is named for a former coach at now-closed Southern Benedictine College, known as St. Bernard College in Richard's day. The trophy goes to the program that demonstrates the best all-around program in the conference, based on a point system, and it certainly helps to have more than just one athletic team.

Montevallo competes in four intercollegiate sports -- basketball, baseball, golf and tennis. The UM program received 18 total points to 17½ for runner-up Birmingham-Southern.

Montevallo gained 6 points out of a possible eight by finishing third in the conference basketball race, earned 7 out of a possible seven by winning the SSC baseball tournament, got 2 of a possible six with a fifth-place finish in the conference tennis tournament, then got 3 of a possible three by winning the conference golf championship.

"This is quite an honor for us," said a happy UM athletic director Dr. Leon Davis. "We feel like we put a lot of hard work into our program here in an effort to compete on the highest possible level with our opponents, and this award seems to signify that we are accomplishing that goal. I'm proud that our university's name will be first associated with this award."

UM gives Shirley award

Valuable "sixth man" Hal Riddle, a guard on the basketball team, won the Neal Shirley Award to highlight ceremonies at the University of Montevallo Men's Athletics Awards Banquet recently.

The Shirley Award goes to the male athlete who best combines the qualities of both a good student and a good athlete, and is the highest honor awarded by the men's intercollegiate athletics program, as it is voted on by the coaches themselves.

Riddle, a senior from Trussville, averaged 2.9 points and 2.2 as sists while compiling a 2.1 grade point average, and was named "Mr. Montevallo" for 1980.

Chelsea tennis

The Chelsea Open tennis tournament will be held Thursday, June 19 through Sunday, June 22.

Five divisions will be competing for trophies and prizes, men's "A" singles and doubles, men's "B" singles and doubles, and mixed doubles. For registration information, call Boo Mason at 678-9502.

Citizenship awards

TMS students who received Citizenship awards at a recent program are Jackie Harris, Jody Williams, Jackie Franklin, Dale Walker, Ken Scheirer and David Holcombe.

TMS honorees

Principal's Scholarship winners at Thompson Middle School are: Amy Livengood, Rebecca Cobb, Susan Dunivant, Greg Glascock, Matt Pigan and Carl Gillis.

Outstanding students

Students named as outstanding at TMS are Dee Dee Horton, Jenny Howard, Melissa Bloomer, Ralph Watson, Russell Worrell and David Pryor.

TMS observes anniversary

While Thompson Middle School has grown and improved during its ten year history, some things haven't changed.

Mary Roach is still the principal of the Alabaster school and six teachers who joined the school faculty in 1970 are still in the TMS classrooms.

Jean Pryor probably summed up the feelings of other longtime teachers when she remarked, "If you aren't happy where you work, you can leave. A lot of us have chosen to stay," she said, "and I for one plan to remain here."

Other educators who have watched TMS grow and improve are: J. B. Denham, Carlton Reese, Mary Virginia Sorsby, Johnnie Summerville and Corene Rodgers.

These faculty members, along with others who have taught at the school during the past ten years, were honored at a luncheon at the school last Wednesday.

One of the highlights in the school's history was receiving accreditation from the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges in 1977.

TMS is still the only middle school in the county to have this distinction.

When the facility was designated a middle school, the student enrollment was 560. At the end of the 1980 school year, the student body will have 723 members.

Over the past ten years, the facility has been improved and expanded and new equipment has been added.

When the fall term begins, two new courses will be added to the elective curriculum. Home arts and industrial arts are the additions which will give greater scope to the program.

Credit for assisting with the school's advancement has been given to school trustees, PTO members, past and present superintendents of education and board members, the city of Alabaster and the local Civitan Club.

Historic drama opens July 2

"Brighthope," Alabama's first professional outdoor pageant, is "on" again this summer.

Marty Everse, director of Brierfield Ironworks Park, site of the historical pageant, said enough money had been pledged for producing the second season of "Brighthope"—a drama about some of Alabama's early coal and iron-making industry. "Brighthope's" first season in 1978 played to more than 5,000 Alabamians and out-of-state tourists at the Bibb County site near Montevallo, south of Birmingham.

In addition to the private funds pledged, Everse said $30,000 in state funds had been allocated to the play—a $20,000 line-item appropriation guided through the Legislature by State Rep. Walter Owens of Centerville and $10,000 from interest on Gov. Fob James's revenue sharing fund.

Other supporters include the Bibb County Commission, the University of Montevallo, the Alabama State Council on the Arts and Humanities, and the Alabama Bureau of Publicity and Information.

Written by Kermit Hunter of Dallas, Texas, who also wrote "Unto These Hills" which is seen by thousands every summer in Cherokee, N.C., "Brighthope" begins with the arrival of settlers in the north Bibb County area after the War of 1812.

In addition to hosting "Brighthope," Brierfield Ironworks Park features the remains of an old pig-iron furnace which produced some of the finest iron in the Confederacy during the Civil War, Everse said. Built in 1861, partially destroyed by Wilson's raiders in 1865, rebuilt in 1865, and closed for good in 1892, Everse said the furnace produced more iron than any furnace in Alabama during the last two years of the Civil War.

Campsites are available at the park, which is located seven miles southwest of Montevallo just off Alabama Highway 25.

The University of Montevallo will be home base for the acting and producing crew for the play, according to Dr. John Rude, director of "Brighthope" and director of UM's experimental theatre.

"The actors for 'Brighthope' were chosen from more than 700 who auditioned at the Southeastern Theatre Conference in Nashville, Tenn., and at UM last spring," Rude said.

"Brighthope" begins July 2-6 and plays every Friday, Saturday and Sunday night through Aug. 3. During the final week the pageant will be performed five nights, Aug. 6-10. Showtime is 8:15 p.m.

Group rates are available. For more information call Marty Everse, 665-1856, or write to "Brighthope," Route 1, Box 32, Brierfield, Alabama 35035.

Local singers look forward to attending national meet

Singers from Shelby County and from throughout the U. S. are expected to attend the first national Sacred Harp Sing to be held at Samford University June 26-29.

According to convention leader Hugh McGraw, the gathering will re-create the original Sacred Harp convention as it happened in 1844 in Upson County, Ga.

No national meetings have been held in recent years, although more than 700 "sings" are held throughout the South each year.

"We hope that everyone who participates in these events will also attend the one we have planned," said McGraw, who expects between 1,500 and 2,000 people at the convention.

The June convention is sponsored by the Samford School of Music, Dr. Claude Rhea, Dean.

Morning and afternoon song sessions will be held daily at 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. A special worship service will be held on Sunday at 10:45 a.m. All sessions will be in the Wright Center Concert Hall. Admission is free.

In Sacred Harp singing, also sometimes called fa-so-la or shaped note singing, each note in the musical scale is written as a different shape.

Yellow peace rose

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gilliam admire the roses growing in their yard, as do other residents at their mobile home park in Pelham.

For Pelham couple Rose growing comes naturally

by Shelba Nivens
"As far as knowing how to grow roses, we don't. We're just lucky with them," laughed Mrs. Paul Gilliam of Pelham. And a lot of people have witnessed the Gilliam's luck while travelling past their yard at Belle Vista Mobile Home Park this spring. Red climbing blaze roses cover a trellis at the front of their patio, and climb their white fence along beside a yellow peace climber. Other park residents often take walks past the Gilliam yard to admire the blossoms. "They weren't expensive. We bought them done up in a sack without much dirt on the roots," said Gilliam. His wife added that the roses along the fence cost around $2.50 each in the plant department of a discount store. The couple dug large holes and put a commercial rose fertilizer in with the bushes. "We usually fertilize and mulch them about once a year," said Mrs. Gilliam. Sometimes, they use a fertilizer such as 8-8-8, she said, but she thinks that is too strong. "We've never used bone meal, but we once had a neighbor who used it, and he grew beautiful roses," she added. "Rose bushes should never be planted any deeper than it looks like they were planted before you got them," advised Mrs. Gilliam. "We usually plant them almost up to the knob." Growers agree that bushes should be planted so that the "knob", or bud union, is just above soil level.

A blossom wilts, it should be cut off just past the second leaf. "Then they will grow back out and another rose will come on the same year," he added. Most rose gardeners also agree that roses should be planted where they will get plenty of sunlight. And they should be in an area that is well drained. If a good garden loam is unavailable, organic matter might be added to the soil. Stone said he has found that red soil grows the best roses.

Growers caution that large holes should be dug for rose plants so that roots will not be crowded. The soil should be packed gently around the bush by hand. Stone cautioned that care should also be exercised when weeding so as not to damage roots. "Don't cultivate deep," he advised. He also advised that every time

The Gilliams planted their roses early in the spring. Other gardeners prefer planting them in the fall. Jack Stone of Chelsea says he has found that roses do better when planted in November. "And every fall after that they should be pruned," he said.

For Shelco area

Fire district on front burner again

Making another stab at establishing a fire and medical rescue district, members of Shelco held three meetings last month to get input from residents in their coverage area. In an election held two years ago, voters defeated the proposal to establish such a district. And the law decreed that another vote couldn't be called for within two years.

So now the unit is endeavoring once more to set up a district which would provide a source of badly needed revenue.

Petitions which have been circulated following the May meetings were expected to be turned over to Probate Judge Tommy Snowden Friday. He would then have to call an election within 40 days.

Shelco Chief Doug Ballard said the unit would have to close down if the district isn't voted in since attempts to secure adequate funding in other ways have failed.

The response from most of those attending the gatherings last month was favorable, but Dogwood area residents declined to be included at the present time.

However, the door hasn't been shut completely in that area. After discussing the proposal, which was soundly rejected there two years ago, homeowners asked for the option of coming into the district at a later date.

As it now stands, the boundaries of the district are the railroad crossing on Hwy. 22 at Underwood on the west, and the crossing between I-65 and Hwy. 31 on the east.

The northern boundary is the Maylene crossing and the line would come down Hwy. 80 with Shelco covering the south side. The unit would go as far as the Montevallo Police jurisdiction.

Winston Boutwell, Chief of the North Shelby District, told those at the gatherings that he believed a fire district was the "only way to go."

Since Shelco held the first election, Ballard pointed out that the Beat 12 district had profited from Shelco's mistakes. And changes have been made in the new fire district proposal, Ballard noted, that should prove more satisfactory to homeowners.

There will be a varying scale in setting a fee on homes this time, Ballard noted, whereas before there was a flat rate.

There was talk during the first election, Ballard said, that there would be no reduction in fire insurance rates.

But the Shelco Chief stressed the fact that almost every homeowner would get some reduction. Homes with a class 8 rating, he noted, would realize a tremendous savings.

If the fire district passes, most single family dwellings will be charged annual dues of $100. However, homes with less than 1,000 square feet of floor space and without a basement, will only be required to pay $50. That will also be the rate charged for trailers.

The distance from a fire hydrant will also make a difference in the charge.

Businesses will be required to pay two cents a square foot with a minimum charge of $100 and the same for farms operated as corporations with a ceiling of $200.

Churches, schools and other non-profit organizations would pay one cent per square foot with the minimum payment set at $100.

Shelco's first priority, should the district pass, would be to purchase a new truck. The next use of revenue received would then be to build a fire station in the Moore's Crossroads area.

"We want to provide better service, but we haven't had the funds to do that," Ballard remarked.

A grant provided funding for the purchase of a medical rescue vehicle, but Shelco's fire engine is on its "last legs."

MHS grads return for 50th reunion

When he addresses MHS alumni Saturday, former principal Miles Hardy may not recognize some of the faces.

And the reason that some prompting might be called for to establish identities, is the fact that 50 years have passed since the class left Montevallo High School.

The class of 1930 will gather at Reynolds Hall on the University of Montevallo campus at 10 a.m. And Miles will speak during the luncheon in the UM cafeteria.

Anyone who would like to see Miles or any of the alumni from the 1930 class, may attend the reception which is being held at 2:30 p.m.

Judge gives split verdict in Helena telephone case

by Marcia Sears

Shirley Penhale, wife of the mayor of Helena, was found guilty of 'harassing communications' after a two-day trial in Shelby County District Court last week.

Judge Patricia Smith handed down the guilty verdict against Mrs. Penhale Monday morning. Mrs. Penhale gave immediate notice she will appeal the conviction and seek a jury trial.

At the same time, Judge Smith found Mayor Penhale not guilty of the same charge. The charge is a misdemeanor under state law.

Charges against Mrs. Penhale were brought by Paul Cribbs, who said in court he had received several 'hang-up' silent telephone calls after announcing his candidacy for mayor. On one occasion, he testified, a voice he recognized as Mrs. Penhale's said, "I'm on the phone."

Mayor Penhale was also charged with the offense by Cribbs and three others persons; B.G. Morgan, Harold Henderson and Roxie Craig. The charges were based on evidence gathered when the South Central Bell telephone company placed a 'trap' on their lines, and traced 57 illegal calls to the Penhales' home telephone number and two to the mayor's office.

Mrs. Penhale is employed part time by the City of Helena and works in the city hall.

The four who filed the complaints all testified that the calls came at various hours of the day and night and continued for three to four weeks before they individually asked the telephone company for help.

Mrs. B.G. Morgan, who is Cribbs' mother, said the calls to her house started in April, soon after Cribbs announced for mayor. Her husband testified that he is subject to high blood pressure and has had a heart attack. "When I get called at 4 in the morning, and get woke up, it naturally affects my health."

Roxie Craig, who is active with her husband, Ed Craig in civic affairs and the Shelby County Attention Home, said 'hang-up' calls started coming to their house the first week in April and continued until May 27.

She testified that anxiety and worry over the harassing calls "definitely made (my husband) go into the hospital."

Harold Henderson testified that calls started coming to his house at 12:10 the night after he went to a city council meeting. At the meeting he said his wife had presented a petition relative to city gas and utility rates.

The Craigs and the Hendersons are not related to Paul Cribbs.

The four families presented the lists they had kept of the times they received the harassing calls. Telephone company security manager Paul McAllister verified the times the calls had been traced by the company.

Defense attorneys Frank Ellis and David Oglesby cross-examined McAllister at length as to the possibility of someone else making the calls by tapping into the Penhale line. McAllister said the calls could have been made by someone very knowledgeable about the lines from the Alabaster telephone office or at any cable box between there and the Penhale home.

During the second day of the trial, the state's attorneys leaped to their feet to demand a mistrial when defense attorney Frank Ellis mentioned that Charles Penhale had taken a lie detector test. Ellis had completed asking Penhale a series of questions when he told the judge the same questions and answers were obtained on the lie detector test. He waved a sheaf of papers he claimed were the test results.

Assistant District Attorney Mike Campbell called for the mistrial because Alabama law does not recognize polygraph tests as admissible evidence.

Judge Patricia Smith, however, refused to declare a mistrial, and said she would "make every effort to exclude (the reference to it) from my mind."

Attorneys Jim Porter and Mickey Johnson worked with Campbell in representing the four complainants.

Much of the testimony concerned the whereabouts of Shirley Penhale the afternoon of Mother's Day. It was at 12:22 on that day when Cribbs said he recognized her voice on the telephone.

At the conclusion of the second day's testimony, Judge Smith told the large crowd of spectators in the courtroom she would study 32 pages of notes and report a verdict Monday.

In Mayor Penhale's case, she found "no direct or circumstantial evidence" that he made or directed anyone to make the calls.

In finding Mrs. Penhale guilty, she wrote, in part:

"Although the defense suggested that someone had tampered with the Penhales' phone, the Court is not convinced this is the case."

Working with vengeance

King's Ranch was a beehive of activity last week when a group of Methodist young people from Indiana arrived armed with hammers, paintbrushes and rakes. Working with a vengeance, the 28 MYF'ers landscaped the grounds, painted and laid tile in one of the buildings and put up fencing. Stephenson runs again at request of voters

Robert G. Stephenson said he is running for Mayor of Wilsonville because people have kept after him to run again.

Stephenson was mayor from 1960 until 1964. After skipping two terms, he then went back into office for another term.

His past record and the fact that people want him in office again are his best qualifications, he said.

While he was in office, Wilsonville bought its fire trucks and built the city hall. The town also annexed the Smith Camp area and put in water there, during one of his terms.

He is making no promises, he said for he does not know the financial condition of the city right now and there is no need to promise things he might not be able to do.

Stephenson is retired from Kimberly-Clark. He is a Sunday School teacher and holds other positions in the Methodist Church. He is married, has 4 children and 5 grandchildren.

Lyon up for election if judgeship is open

Harry Lyon, a practicing attorney in Pelham, has announced his intention to run for district judge of Shelby County.

He has filed qualifying papers with the state Democratic Committee, even though there is a question as to whether or not the office is open for election this year.

Lyon is starting his campaign, even though the question is not settled.

He said, "I would like to do the best I can to insure justice for all the people of this county, through being impartial. I am not soliciting support from any special interest group." He emphasized that he is not running 'against' anyone. "I am running 'for' the office," he said.

A graduate of Huntingdon College in Montgomery, he holds a law degree from Miles Law School, where he teaches night classes.

A veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps, he is a 5-year member of the American Legion. He is a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason and a member of the First Methodist Church of Columbiana.

He is married, and he and his wife Martha have one child, Daxton.

BURK DUNAWAY

Pelham mayor running on record of progress

Burk Dunaway, Pelham's "full time mayor, by choice," is seeking reelection to that office. Since its incorporation 16 years ago, he has served the city 12 years as a councilman, and four as mayor.

During his term as mayor the city upgraded its volunteer fire department to a full time department with a class 6 insurance rating, two new pumpers, a new fire and police substation, and 18 certified career firemen.

In the past four years the police department has grown from seven to 17 officers. The department exceeds the national average for comparable size towns by 50% in solving misdemeanors and felonies, Dunaway claims.

The city has also expanded it

Sewer tops Falkner's concerns

J.D. "Buck" Falkner sees the upgrading of the sewer system as the number one priority if he is elected mayor of Columbiana.

A lifelong resident of Columbiana, Falkner served on the council for 21 years and was city superintendent for five years. In announcing his candidacy, he states he is well aware of the needs of the city. He has passed state certification tests that qualify him to administer not only the present sewer system, but the more complex one that is planned.

He notes this would save the city an $18,000 salary to a specially trained employee.

His number two priority is the city police department. He says, "The police department should be run by the police chief, not by a councilman."

He stresses that if elected, "People will have someone to talk to. I will sit down and listen, and I will represent the majority of the people."

Falkner served in the Air Force in WWII for over 3 years. As a surveyor, he was a construction superintendent for the county highway department seven years after the war.

He operated a clothing business in Columbiana for 21 years, and is now a real estate broker with the Johnson-Rast-Hays firm. He will head up their Columbiana office when it opens this month.

He was treasurer of the statewide Alabama Natural Gas Association for 8 years.

For the last two years he has served on the advisory council for the county RSVP program.

He and his wife Lorene have two adult children.

J.D. "BUCK" FALKNER

Muller wants some changes made

Robert A. "Bob" Muller, Sr., has announced his candidacy for the office of Mayor for the town of Harpersville.

Muller said he is out seeing the people and talking, but making no promises. "What we are trying to do is get some changes made in the town," he said.

One of the changes he and other residents would like to see, he said, is a full-time clerk in city hall.

According to Muller, the use of city hall and the water board have been primarily controlled by the mayor. He and other residents he has talked with would like to give councilmen more say-so in running the city and would like to put the water board back in control of the water board, he said.

Muller also wants to get some community activities started for the town's young people. "We don't even have little league here," he said, adding, "A lot of things have been neglected."

The candidate has lived in the Vincent/Harpersville area for 11 years. He is a graduate of Lee College in Cleveland, Tn., and is a member of the Assembly of God Church. He is a past-pastor of Vincent Assembly of God. "We're trying to work some in all the churches, now," he said.

Presently, he is owner and operator of a gas station in Harpersville. He is married and has three children. During World War II, he served in the Air Force.

Burke says Alabaster needs young leader

"My total interest is what's best for Alabaster," remarked Mayor Charlotte Burke who is seeking reelection.

Having been appointed by the

CHARLOTTE BURKE

council to finish Jack Zuiderhoek's unexpired term, Burke is now running for a four year term against two opponents.

"The city needs young, aggressive leadership," the mayor stressed. She noted that studies already made dealing with traffic control and planning for growth needed to be followed through.

Pointing out some of the reasons for Alabaster being a prime area for light industry, Mayor Burke mentioned Shelby Memorial Hospital, the sewer system and an excellent police and fire department.

The mayor works parttime in the business office at Shelby Memorial. Her husband Joe is with Association Management.

There are three daughters; Jennifer, 16; Susie, 13 and Mrs. Deidre Hale.

Shuffling dancers

The Shelby Shufflers provided entertainment at the Father's Day event Sunday which was hosted by the CowBelles Association. There were 124 people at Matterhorn Farms near Alabaster to watch the dancers and enjoy a steak dinner. Steaks were also given away as prizes during the affair which lasted from 3-7 p.m.

SMH construction on schedule as workers brick up third floor

Nearly all the brickwork has been completed on the third floor addition at Shelby Memorial Hospital, according to the general contractor, E.C. Coston. Masons are expected to finish bricking the fourth floor elevator penthouse by next week, he added, as the $13 million expansion project moves into its fifth month.

The foundation wall has been laid around the new dining area facility on the south front of the hospital and brickwork is expected to begin there within a week.

Roofing on the third floor should also begin next week. In the rear of the building, preparations continue for the pouring of the foundation for the new 10,000 square foot emergency room.

Another water line has been connected to separate the hospital's drinking water from the lines to fire hydrants and sprinkler systems.

The sprinkler system for the existing second floor is nearly complete, and before the entire project is completed sometime in the fall of 1981, all the hospital will be equipped with sprinklers.

Other major remodeling projects will not begin until the new construction is finished.

Roy Hobbs, an inspector for the architect, reports that the construction work force at the hospital has averaged 40-50 men in recent weeks.

County feels woes of US Steel

The closing of U.S. Steel's operations in Fairfield is having its direct effects in Shelby County.

The Gurnee coal mine near Pea Ridge closed last Friday, with production stopping the week before that. Equipment is being pulled out and 48 employees are laid off.

George Keebler, company spokesman, told the Reporter that once business picks up the company plans to re-open the mine. The coal mines at Concord and Oak Grove are remaining open.

Employees at Burnee are being put on a panel and will be available for recall at other mines if openings develop, he said.

The Gurnee mine, the newest of U.S. Steel's coal mines, has been open only for the past two years and had not reached its full production potential.

Because of the downturn of orders for American made steel, the last of the blast furnaces at Fairfield will be shut down June 28. Production at Oak Grove and Concord can supply all the coal needed for coke to keep the furnaces banked, Keebler said.

United Way names two campaign leaders

J.E. "Ned" Bearden and Robert Hosea have been named to head up the Shelby County Division of the 1980 United Way campaign.

The announcement was made by John W. Woods, chairman of the campaign for Jefferson, Shelby and Walker Counties.

Bearden is president of the First Bank of Alabaster and a member of the Shelby County Commission. Hosea is district manager of the Alabama Power Company with offices in Alabaster.

Section chairmen who will assist Bearden and Hosea in the Shelby County drive are: Harold E. Bissell, Robert R. Armstrong, Dr. M. Ray Mayfield, Daniel M. Spittler, Harold L. Davenport, Diane Rooker and Steven R. Sears.

Production drops in Columbiana

Three of Columbiana's industries have stopped or cut back production in light of the current economic downturn.

National Standards has not produced wire since May 9, but is still shipping its products from inventory, according to Ken Robinson.

Hackney Inc. has reduced its work week from 5 to 4 days a week.

Valley Industries, which makes textiles for the carpet industry, has also cut back its work week severely.

Is race on, or not?

It still seems to be a wait-and-see game as far as knowing for certain whether there will be a district judgeship race in the upcoming election.

Last week Montgomery authorities assured Circuit Judge Robert Armstrong that there would not be a race for his office this year.

But on Monday, District Judge Patti Smith was still trying to be certain about her position.

In a telephone conversation with John Lockett in the Secretary of State's office that day, Judge Smith was told that she would hear by Friday on the status of her office.

Pelham attorney Harry Lyon has announced his intention of running for the office and has already paid his qualifying fee to the state Democratic Executive Committee.

If Judge Smith failed to qualify and Secretary of State Don Seigleman didn't announce until after the July 3 deadline that the office was open, she would not be able to run.

According to a member of the judiciary, no one can say for certain whether either judgeship is open until the Secretary of State makes it official in writing.

However that office is awaiting an attorney general's opinion before making an announcement on the matter.

And it's been reported that Mrs. Louise Limbaugh with the state Democratic Committee has also requested an attorney general's opinion in order to know for which offices she should accept qualifying fees.

Although the possibility seems dim that there will be a race for circuit judge, Calera attorney Eason Mitchell has qualified for that position and would be eligible to run in the event of a contest.

But last week Mitchell said he would not pursue the matter if it was decided in Montgomery the judgeship was not open.

It had been assumed that both judgeships would be up for election this year until last week, when a careful reading of the law was thought to mean that an election would not come up until 1982.

Both Armstrong and Smith were appointed to their posts by the governor in January.

The confusion arises from the wording of the 1901 constitution and the 1973 judicial article which repeals section 159 dealing with the initial appointment of judges.

Watch for fraud

Elbert Gibson, Postmaster of Columbiana, warns that some advertised work-at-home schemes are frauds.

He states that some of these advertisements really have the purpose of selling something, such as a set of instructions to the prospective home worker. There may be no real employment offered, as the ad implies.

Gibson warns that if you are required to buy anything before you can find out what the work-at-home job will be, it would be wise to contact the Postal Inspector at P.O. Box 711, Chattanooga, TN 37401 before sending in any money.

'What convinced the Court even more than the pattern of times the calls were made, was the fact that calls were made not only from the Penhale residence, but also from the Mayor's office during an hour Mrs. Penhale would have been at work. Dunaway said that a quarter million dollars worth of grants have been procured in the past two years, and three million more is projected for the sewer system. A 44-acre site was purchased with some of those funds.

'The good point about all the things we've done is that except for bonds issued for city hall and the water board, it's all paid for, and with a balanced budget. I'm running on this record of progress and see no reason why we can't continue with another good four years.'

A native of the Pelham area and a graduate of Shades Valley High School, Dunaway also attended Livingston University and served in the Navy two years. He lives on Lee Street with his wife, Faye, and their two children, Michael and Kristie.

Besides spending 12 years as chairman of Pelham's finance committee, he serves on the boards of the Shelby County Attention Home, the Jefferson-Shelby Lung Association, and the 208 Water Study Committee. He is the vice-chairman of the Shelby County Mayor's Association, a member of the Metropolitan Planning Organization, and attends Pelham United Methodist Church.

Chelsea opens station

A ribbon cutting ceremony Saturday morning officially opened Chelsea Volunteer Fire Department's new station.

Jamor Bill Tucker, county civil defense director, cut the ribbon, assisted by county commissioner Jake Morris. Also participating in the ceremony were Chairman of the Board Billy Weldon and Chief Verne Craig of the Chelsea fire group.

One of the highlights of the two-day-long open house celebration was barbeque cooked by the Lloyd Chesser family. According to fireman Don King, more than 1,000 pounds of meat were sold.

'We were well pleased with the opening,' he told the Reporter, adding, 'We had terrific response from the people and we want them to know that we really appreciate it.'

Land for the building was donated by Lloyd and Margaret Chesser. Most of the materials and labor were donated.

Two vacancies occur on Alabaster force

The Alabaster Fire Department is now two men short.

But until the vacancy on the Personnel Board is filled, no action can be taken on hiring more fireman.

Reporting the resignation of Virginia Johnson from the three member board at the June 2 council meeting, Mayor Charlotte Burke asked the panel to be thinking of a replacement.

And at Monday night's meeting, the mayor stressed to the council the importance of presenting names to City Clerk Dot Henry so an appointment can be made.

One of the openings on the Fire Department roster was created when Philip Walker left earlier this month to become Harpersville's police chief.

And it was announced Monday, that Doug McBrayer is moving to Huntsville.

Another matter concerning the AFD was brought up by Councilman Wayne Lucas. It's been discovered, the fire commissioner reported, that various items of equipment have been removed from the west side station.

The reason, Lucas pointed out, is because there isn't time to close and lock the overhead door when responding to calls.

Going along with a recommendation made by Lucas, the council agreed that an automatic locking system be purchased.

Fire Chief John Cochran was asked to get prices and report back with them at the next meeting.

The council also unanimously approved a rezoning proposal brought up by Councilman Roger Wheeler.

Ten lots south of Shelby Memorial Hospital on Hwy. 31 were changed from R-1 to B-1. The property is owned by the Latham and Nash families.

Noting that Wheeler is the only council member without opposition in the upcoming election, the mayor read a certificate of election which confirms his election to place number 3.

In other business, the panel voted to buy a pickup truck for the sewer department from Ken Terry Chevrolet for $6,169.79.

The only other bid on a truck was submitted by Strickland Chevrolet. Their price was $6,195.95.

Wilsonville 'hams' it up

Amateur radio hams from Wilsonville will be participating in an emergency preparedness test June 28-29.

The 47th Annual American Radio Relay League Field Day emergency preparedness test will run from 1 p.m. Saturday to 1 p.m. Sunday. Thousands of amateur radio operators in the U.S. and Canada with their stations set up away from home will operate under emergency test conditions with portable antennas.

The Wilsonville Wireles Wizards Amateur Radio Group will be operating from the Boy Scout hut at Helm's Park in Wilsonville. Members of the group will be available to answer questions about equipment, procedures and the public service role that amateur radio plays in the community.

The American Radio Relay League is a membership society of U.S. and Canadian amateur radio operators with headquarters in Newington, Connecticut. The Field Day test is designed to help hams refine operating skills so necessary during disasters and times of emergency when normal channels of communication are disrupted or unavailable.

In recognition of the event, Mayor Austin Mitchell of Wilsonville has proclaimed June 22-28 "Amateur Radio Week."

Once again....

Election stirs scramble

If Shelby County ever went through a calm election season everyone would probably feel disappointed.

Once again this year, election events are living up to the rough and tumble reputation that the county has gained over the years.

At the head of the list comes the controversy over whether there is to be an election for the circuit judgeship and the district judgeship. Those involved had assumed there would be an election for both positions and only last week did a serious doubt come up.

Now it is a last minute scramble before qualifying time to get an attorney general's opinion, the secretary of state's opinion, and the sanction of the state Democratic Committee.

The fact that all ten of the county's cities have elections on July 8 is stirring considerable election interest this year. Some cities seem to be coasting smoothly without much dissension, but others have gone all the way to court with election-related problems.

In all the towns there are good contests for council or mayor positions. Dozens of interested and talented people are offering their services to their communities and this is a fine indication that democracy is alive and well in Shelby County. The pay is low or non-existent in all the city positions, and the people who win the posts can expect far more trouble than glory once they accept the responsibilities of office.

But the excitement of the race spurs the candidates on, and their willingness to serve should spur on the electorate to choose their favorites and enter into the electioneering with enthusiasm.

Where else but Shelby County could elections be so exciting?

...MMS

Under The Courthouse Dome

Chief Justice C.C. "Bo" Torbert, Jr. announced today that in spite of an increased workload in both the circuit and district courts, Alabama's trial judges reduced their pending caseload statewide during 1979.

Statistics compiled through the judicial system's case reporting system show that judges in 19 of the 39 judicial circuits and in 42 of the 67 district courts have reduced their pending cases, meeting a goal Torbert urged for all judges in 1978.

The chief justice complimented former Shelby County District Judge Robert Armstrong for meeting this goal of a reduction in pending cases. Judge Armstrong is now on the circuit court bench. Torbert also complimented Circuit Clerk and Register Kyle Lansford and local court system employees for their support effort in handling court cases.

Statistics show that the pending caseload of the Shelby County District Court was reduced by 15.2 percent during calendar year 1979.

Statewide statistics show that during the 1979 calendar year, 567,737 cases were filed in the circuit and district courts, as compared to 536,451 in 1978. The 201 circuit and district judges handled and disposed of 571,015 cases during 1979 compared to 509,537 in 1978.

Helena utility rates should be lowered

Letter to the Editor:

The residents of Helena are currently served by two separate natural gas systems; the Helena Utility Board and Alagasco.

The Helena Utility Board buys its natural gas from Southern at wholesale rates and sells it to its customers at approximately 35% more than residents who purchase gas directly from Alagasco. This markup generated a profit of $23,300 during fiscal year ended October, 1979 from only 295 gas customers. Retail rates were raised by the Utility Board 66% during the year ended January 1980.

The gas profits of $23,300 and water profits of $19,200 from 639 customers were used to offset a sewer loss of $39,768.00 during fiscal year ended October 1979.

The sewer system serves 403 customers.

It is painfully obvious to the 295 gas customers that the sewer system is not self-supporting. They are being overcharged to pay the operating expenses of the sewer system and the interest on the $470,000 water-sewer expansion bank note.

There can be no justification for asking Helena's gas customers, many who are widows, retirees and low income residents, to subsidize the sewer system. The Helena Utility Board officials must immediately adjust sewer and gas rates to reflect their respective costs.

Records do not match property

Letter to the Editor:

Hear it from the other side of the county. Bobbie Reynolds has our land records in such a mess that I do not believe anyone can straighten them out, without each individual taking it up through a lawyer. To think we are having to pay her for this mess! Then, after mailing these incorrect bills to us, she then leaves her office for one or two weeks so no one can even contact her.

I personally own a vacant lot on main street in Montevallo and in this same block I also own a house and lot. The vacant lot tax is over double what the house and lot is. Her office informs me that this cannot be corrected because this property is within city limits.

On Highway 119 she shows a ten acre tract which I own as eight acres and an adjoining ten acre tract as eleven acres with a big difference in the tax amount of these two tracts. I am informed that I must prove by survey (at my expense) the difference. These deeds have been on record for years.

In other areas of the county, I own a forty acre tract and this is shown as forty-one acres and in a thirty-four acre tract shown as thirty acres. I am also being charged more tax for an eleven acre tract of timber land than for an adjoining forty acre tract of timber land. I also have four adjoining lots in another area with two houses on two of the lots and the other two lots are vacant. All four lots are listed on one tax form as vacant. They tell me all of this is correct and they will do nothing about it but if I wish to pursue it further, I can come to

Mrs. Reynolds' office. I have already made six trips and got the same answers each time. They tell me that now I will have to wait for the designated time to protest this again and this will be on next year's tax forms.

I mailed my check for all these excessive tax claims June 5, 1980 in order to keep my land from being sold for taxes. I still do not know whether I have paid taxes on my own property or on someone else's property.

The problems I have listed are by no means all of them. I would like to print out one more example of inefficiency and carelessness. I bought a tract of land from a Birmingham resident four years ago. She still receives my tax notices each year even though she has made two trips to the tax assessor's office in Columbiana to correct this mistake.

I would like to commend Frankie Woods. I appreciate her efforts in my behalf. She has worked tirelessly and hard to rectify all the mistakes which she was allowed and permitted to make by her boss. She is certainly a dedicated and capable person for the tax assessor's office to have.

Won't you join me in this campaign for the preservation of property owner's rights?

Harbert wins bid

Harbert Construction Company, a Shelby County firm, was apparent low bidder for two intersection improvements on U.S. Highway 31.

The announcement was made by the Alabama State Highway Department this week.

The improvements to be made include turning lanes and resurfacing on U.S. 31 at County road 66 in Alabaster and Oak Mountain State Park Road in Pelham.

Harbert's bid for the work was $154,503.

Central Alabama Paving & Construction Company of Calera submitted the low bid on a project involving three miles of resurfacing, striping and safety items on Old U.S. Highway 280 west of Harpersville.

The bid was $68,545. Other bidders were Butts & Billingsley of Childersburg and Dunn Construction Company.

Writer says he's wrong

Letter to the Editor;

Dear Mrs. Reynolds:

Since I have learned more about the new property taxing system in the county as set forth by the federal court in Montgomery and mandated, the guidelines then sent to the counties I find that I unjustly criticized the tax assessor.

I am man enough to admit my mistake publicly and openly to apologize for the wrong. So Mrs.

Reynolds, accept my humble apology.

It was an error of the mind and not of the heart.

So, all of you that have tax problems have patience with her and you can get them cleared away. It'll take time and patience.

Candidate enjoyed his brief run

Dear Editor and Citizens of the 18th Judicial District:

You and your readers are undoubtedly aware of reports that the Judicial races in our district have been postponed until 1982.

Chelsea chief thanks helpers

Letter to the Editor:

The Chelsea Volunteer Fire Department wishes to express thanks and appreciation to the many people who made our Open House and barbeque on June 15 and 16 a success.

We especially wish to thank Lloyd, Margaret, Stanley and Cynthia Chesser and Sarah and Terry Crumpton.

I wish to add my personal thanks to each of the firefighters and their families. Without them, none of this would have been possible.

Sincerely,
Verne P. Craig
Fire Chief

Chelsea, Al

It was formerly my opinion that the district would elect a circuit court judge this year since several attorneys and State officials knowledgeable in election law concurred and my prospective opponent had publicly announced his candidacy. However, after I qualified with the State Democratic Executive Committee to run for the position of circuit judge, I was informed that the proper authorities in Montgomery had issued an opinion to my prospective opponent that the election would be in 1982 rather than this year. Even though the law is vague, I do not intend to contest that decision.

I feel that it would not be in the best interest of the judicial system, the community or the candidates to undergo an election which apparently will be contested. Since I have been a candidate for State office, I am required by law to complete filing with the State Ethics Commission and to file a list of my former campaign activities with the proper authorities. For this reason, I have not formally withdrawn, although I expect to be withdrawn as soon as I fulfill the requirements of law.

I found my brief exposure to the political process personally rewarding. I have traveled over our judicial district and met many people and made many new friends whom I might not otherwise have known. I discovered caring, friendly, honest and concerned citizens wherever I traveled.

I am sorry that I will not be able to serve all the people of the 18th Judicial Circuit, but I will cheerfully devote my time and energies to my law practice and to any other endeavor in which I can be of service to the community. I also want to urge everyone to support all of our government officials. There is no place in our political process for bitterness or grudges. Thank you, everyone, for your support and prayers.

Sincerely yours,
Eason Mitchell

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly "Good Morning" column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Everything seems about normal for the middle of June. After the second "gully-washer" in May, Pete Jones caught his garden at the mouth of Mudd Creek in a tramble net. he tried to put it together for two weeks and gave up and replanted on the 26th of May. Today, in the middle of June, he watched it burn up. Next year he'll try again, the same as I.

My garden is as shriveled as a sack of prunes and the man on T.V. says something about a rain in Colorado and I'm already making plans for next year's garden.

The primroses have dried up and blown away and the dust is five inches deep in my corn middles and it looks like I'm gonna have a bumper crop of fodder.

The little boys are playing baseball and the little girls are hollering for 'em and the Mamas and Poppas are going along for the ride.

The lightning bugs are flying half a foot above the ground and the raincrow is yelling himself hoarse in the swamp below the house and I saw my first junebug today.

The katydids are cutting up in the tall oaks and the mockingbird is singing a song Como would like to copy and two catbirds are nesting on the edge of my strawberry patch.

The bluegills are on the bed at Elbert Gibson's lake and the martins are toting snake-doctors to their little 'uns at Leon Kelly's gourds and a bobwhite and his hen are feeding in the grass patch next to my garden.

The clouds come up and hang around like wash on a lady's clothesline who has ten chillun, and slip away just before dark without making a sound.

The washhole is in Cates' pasture the same as always and the water is still ice cold at Browning Mill and the little creek still runs through Longshore's pasture where the old washhole is--but the boys are swimming in the pool back of the high school.

They still sell eskimo pies on the corner and hotdogs in the cafe and candy bars in the grocery store. But it takes a quarter to buy a nickel's worth. And they don't taste half as good.

There'll be a new moon tomorrow and a full moon before the month is gone and the young folks will e doing the same things under the moon they were doing 50 years ago.

Editor's note: Last week through a typesetting error, we omitted three lines of Mr. Bird's column, which changed the meaning.

Mr. Carter had commented that Bill Farley was late. Then, Frank Norris came by on his way to the Advocate office.

"Hear out Ed Duran?"

"How's that?"

"He's got pneumonia."

(The missing lines implied that Farley had pneumonia.) We regret the error.

Scrambled Eggs

By Bert Seaman

I thought I was going to get my eggs scrambled for sure on Friday the 13th.

After all, what better day would there have been for fate to deal me a low blow?

But it didn't turn out that way at all. In fact, I managed to have a better than average day.

I could have been smushed, flatter than a pancake, as my granddaughter likes to put it. But I suffered nothing worse than a moment of panic when I was trapped on a railroad crossing.

Driving along, with my mind on heaven knows what, I suddenly realized the crossing guard arms were lowering just as I started across a set of railroad tracks.

My first thought was to keep the heavy objects from smashing down on my vehicle. And after I managed to avoid being hit from above, I swiveled my head right and left to see what was coming and from where.

Much to my relief, all that I sighted was a work crew a short ways down the tracks. They were doing something, I assume, that made the guards come down.

Anyway, I carefully made my way around the striped barrier in front of me and went merrily on my way.

My next run-in with fate came when I had to walk under a ladder.

Reaching a landing on the stairway of a municipal building, I found a man atop a ladder propped there, replacing a light bulb.

Without any hesitation - well, hardly any - I proceeded underneath, and neither, he, the ladder or the light bulb fell on me.

Surely, I decided, nothing was going to go wrong for me then, despite the date.

I wasn't late for anything and I didn't get lost. That surely was a feat on what is supposed to be a bad luck day.

As it turned out, instead of going awry, things worked out rather well.

Two people that I'd been trying to track down for an interview were found and the needed information elicited.

And even though the lights went out as I spoke with one of them, they went on talking so I went on writing - as best I could, that is.

You know, the more I think about it, there ought to be more Friday the 13ths so things would run smoother for me.

The next day for example, I lost my car and forgot the time and place of an event I was to cover.

So everything's back to normal again for Scrambled Eggs.

Civil liberties union claims James wrong in using plane

Governor Fob James and his wife have been asked to repay the costs incurred in using state airplanes to fly to religious events.

The Civil Liberties Union of Alabama has made the request, saying the use of state airplanes is "a step toward governmental control of religions."

"By flying in a state plane to the 'Washington for Jesus' march, he appears to be using state property and state funds to advance one religion over another," the CLU states.

The CLU notes the nation's founding fathers made freedom of worship the first phrase of the Bill of Rights, and prohibited the government from establishing or advancing any religion.

"Religious freedom would soon evaporate if government were permitted...to spend taxpayer's money advancing one religious group or denomination over another," the CLU continues.

"It is perfectly all right for the Governor and the first lady to travel to religious meetings, but this organization believes they should spend their own money to get to these events."

Second try for rezoning fails

by Reporter Staff

Ben Chennault was disappointed again in his request to change zoning regulations on his property in Pelham.

At the Monday night council meeting, the city fathers unanimously turned down the rezoning which would have permitted Chennault to build office and retail business buildings on the property.

The property is located on County Highway 275 (old Highway 31) and consists of 2.6

acres. Re-zoning has been requested for it previously.

Among those who spoke against the change were nearby property owners Joe Dean, John Kovach, Karen Dean, Donalyn Saxon and Anita Holley.

Kovach cited traffic problems. "The intersection has gone from country to almost chaos in eight years," he said, adding that a convenience center on the property would only add to the traffic hazards.

Several said they did not see a need for another convenience store in the area.

On another zoning request, Earl Standifer had asked for a change from R-3 to M-1 for his 26 acres on top of the hill on highway 68 behind Specification Rubber Products. The zoning board had recommended denial and the council concurred.

Mayor Burk Dunaway reported that he has requested the state to help at the intersection of highways 61 and old 31. He said state records show only one accident there since 1972, but other state records given the number of accidents as 17. He is pursuing the matter.

Announcements were made that the Pelham Homemakers will sponsor a candidates' forum at city hall on July 30 at 7:30, and that June 29 is the date set for open house at the new fire station.

Motion dies to fire mayor's wife

by Reporter Staff

When the Helena city council met Monday night for its regular meeting everyone had heard that the mayor's wife, Shirley Penhale, had been found guilty of making harassing telephone calls.

A group of about 25 citizens attended the meeting and Mrs. Lou Childers asked that Mrs. Penhale be fired from her part-time city job.

Mayor Charles Penhale said his wife was appealing the judge's decision and she would be found not guilty, just as he was.

But Councilman C.R. Harpst made a motion to fire Mrs. Penhale. Councilman Paul Cribbs, who is a candidate for mayor, commented that he would not second any motion or vote on any matter pertaining to Mrs. Penhale.

No other councilman seconded the motion, and it died. Councilman Herman Jenkins, Jr., commented "I can't believe some of the things that are happening. This isn't Helena. There are a lot of hard feelings and animosity." He said that in light of the election and the appeal he did not think the council should act on the matter.

Before the firing was discussed, residents of Dearing Downs reported they were having water problems. Comments were made on ways to conserve water. The mayor said the water department hoped to have the new well working by the end of the week.

Poll workers for the July 8 election will be selected at a special meeting on June 12.

Two term mayor sits out race in Wilsonville

Wilsonville Mayor Austin Mitchell is not running for the office again. He has had two terms already, he said, and really did not care to run the last time. He ran only because people were after him to run, he added.

"I'm reaching retirement age, and when I retire I want to be footloose and fancy free," he chuckled. Then, in a more serious vein he added that he really does not have time for the office now.

As an employee of Kimberly-Clark, he has a big department where he is on call 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, he said.

He added that even more time is going to have to be put into the mayor's job in the next few years.

He enumerated some of the headaches of the mayor, "The environmental people are always getting after you and staying after you... the health department stays right on top of you... you have to be sure you have qualified people to operate the water system and the sewer system....," he said.

Gov. James has declared June as Kidney Awareness Month in Alabama, stating that the state has the highest incidence of kidney disease in the nation.

He is urging all citizens to make themselves aware of the facts concerning kidney disease - its causes, prevention, and treatment - and to contribute generously to a Kidney Foundation volunteer.

Mrs. Johnson, a native of Wilsonville, now lives in Columbia and has been employed by the bank for 18 years.

Dogwood residents plan volunteer fire department

Thirty property owners in the Dogwood area do not want to be included in the proposed new fire district.

Ben Hall and T.R. Hughes found that the area between County Highway 17 and the Southern Railway tracks in Dogwood had been included in the proposed Shelco Fire and Rescue EMS District, when the district lines were advertised in last week's Reporter.

They circulated a petition, getting the signatures of all but two of the property owners in that section of the proposed district, asking that the section be deleted.

Hughes told the Reporter Monday that he would rather see a volunteer fire department organized for west Dogwood than the financial obligation that would be required under the fire district. He said he, Hall and others are making plans to organize a volunteer department.

Around the county

by Becky McDonald

Summer has settled in Shelby County and lots of folks are off on vacation. Jackie and Chuck Kalb of Alabaster are eagerly awaiting a visit from Jackie's sister, Joette Manley, who is flying in from New York sometime next week. Though only in one syllable expressions, one year old Mother Kalb says he can't wait to be pampered by his aunt Joette. Welcome to Shelby County Joette.

Peggy and David Egge and their daughters Shawn and Tiffany are relaxing in their Pelham home after a strenuous but enjoyable trip south. The Egges stopped off for some wet fun in the sun at Water World in Mobile and enjoyed the day with Peggy's sister Delane Small and her boys Sam and Ray. Tiffany especially liked the innertube ride through a waterfall though Shawn said the water slide was the most fun.

At the close of that day the Egges journeyed down Florida's east coast and finally returned home last week.

Their son Steve had made the trip the week before, so he decided to stay home to plan his curriculum for Jacksonville State, where he will begin his college career in the fall.

The Acteens of the First Baptist Church of Pelham had a pleasant trip to Six Flags last Saturday. Harold and Shirley Hubbard said the girls had lots of fun and made some new friends. Tami Harris and Suzanne Ruzzel led Kelly Benson and Kim Davis in Acteen songs on the way and the weary teens stopped off for hamburgers before coming home.

Johnny Cates, sometimes known as the rose buddy of Columbiana, was finally the recipient of a long stemmed rose. That rose was applied on an apron by the skillful hands of Carolyn Sockwell and Mary Mann presented to Johnny on his birthday. Happy Birthday, Johnny!

Ben and Kimberly Roberts are showing off their Gulf Coast tans while they visit for the month of June with their grandparents,

Mr. and Mrs. Rux Carter. They also may be seen at the home of Diane and Butch Ellis, talking over summer fun with their children, Kelly, Christy and Corley or heading to a ballgame with their aunt and uncle, Nina and George Bentley and their children, Rux, Amy and Casey.

Rachel and Conrad Fowler and their children Catherine and Elizabeth are very excited to be in their new home in Columbiana. Ginny Fowler, from Lanett, is visiting for a few days to help with the moving.

Edgar and Kay Ray were among the members of Wilsonville Methodist Church to welcome home the Rev. Vellie Bittle, the Rev. Bittle has been recuperating from open heart surgery.

Mr. and Mrs. Lane Shaw of Union have been enjoying a visit from their granddaughter, Angela Liles. Angela is the daughter of Donna and Barry Liles of Columbiana. Among other special treats, Angela has been attending Bible school at Union Methodist Church and Barry will assure you that his daughter is top in her class.

Glenn Vincent took a group of Columbiana Methodist youngsters to Cheaha State Park recently to explore the woods. Going into the woods, Ramsey Bentley, Joel Kitchens, Kenneth and Kevin Jones and Brad Liles took turns leading the group. On the return, Emily Mann, Suzanne Jones, Rebecca Vincent, Audra and Shelia Oliver shared that responsibility.

Next on their list is a trip to Little River Canyon.

Douglas Williams of Calera, who graduated this month from Auburn, has accepted a position in systems engineering with the Federal Systems Division of M & S Computing, Inc. of Huntsville.

He is making plans to take courses toward his master's degree at the University of Alabama Huntsville while working there.

Like everyone else I'm running a carpool for my children -- from the pool, to the movies, to the park and to endless birthday parties. Jennifer says "Isn't summer fun, Mommy! It's like one big vacation!"

Y campers learn nature's secrets

Over 70 Shelby County youngsters have been getting acquainted with aquatic life in Joe Tucker Park during the past few weeks.

And the YMCA campers have also been exposed to nature lore in the wooded area of the Helena park.

Learning about water safety and canoe handling while keeping an eye out for amphibious life, was one of the activities of campers in the first day camp session.

Arts and crafts are also being taught during the two week sessions which will continue throughout the summer.

Campers have an opportunity to swim in the Y pool and take field trips which include a visit to a stable and the zoo.

Anyone interested in enrolling in the next session June 30 is urged to do so as soon as possible.

Shoving off

A group of day campers from the Shelby County YMCA are set for a canoe ride on the pond in Helena's Joe Tucker Park. Program Director Mary Byrum gives instruction on water safety and tells youngsters about aquatic life they encounter.

Mormons break ground on Cahaba Valley Road

The Indian Springs Branch of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints held groundbreaking ceremonies on June 10 for its new chapel on Cahaba Valley Road.

Reid Giles, President of the 4,000 member Birmingham, Alabama Stake was present for the occasion, as was ISS Branch President Dr. Sam Fletcher.

Construction on the first phase of the project is expected to begin next Wednesday, Fletcher said.

Included in the $600,000 first phase of construction will be a chapel, library, classrooms, offices and a cultural center.

Fletcher said that the growth of the Mormon faith in the area was responsible for the church being built in Cahaba Valley. It has been in the planning stages for three years.

Currently, the 210 member congregation is meeting at the Stake Center on Montevallo Road in Birmingham.

The church's unique brick and rock front will blend into the natural surrounding, Fletcher said, adding, "it's such a beautiful location, backed up against Oak Mountain like it is."

Located on Hwy. 119 about four miles north of Hwy. 31, the 7,000 square foot ISS Branch is being built by the Wyatt Company. The architect is H.G. Elliott.

To The Residents Of The Town Of Helena

The town of Helena natural gas users paid up to 35 percent more for gas than Alagasco users in the fiscal year ending October 1979. $26,000 of gas and water revenue was used to pay interest on the water-sewer expansion loan. In the first seven months of this fiscal year $23,000 of gas revenue was used to pay the water-sewer gas expansion loan interest.

The Helena Utility Board raised gas rates 66% from December 1978 to January 1980 to have money for the water-sewer debt interest.

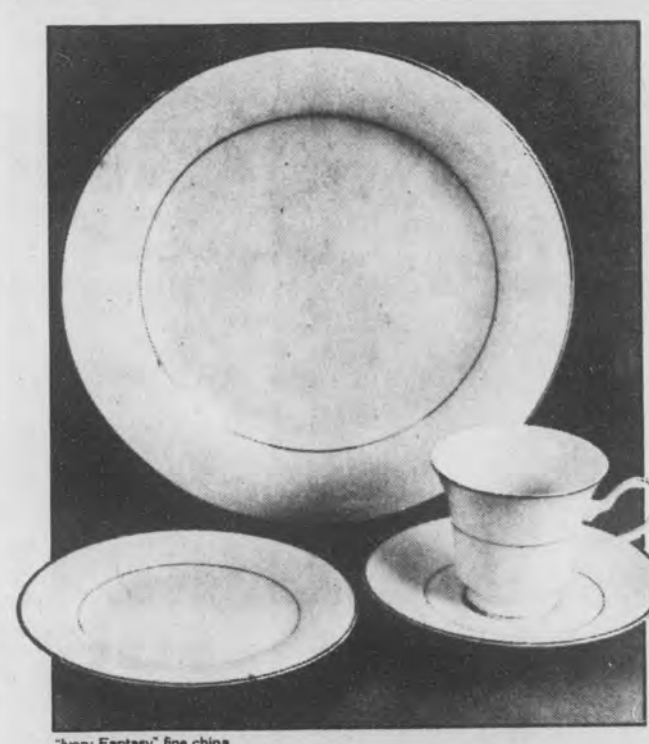

There are 403 sewers, 639 water and only 295 Helena City Gas customers. Many of the Helena Natural Gas users who are paying this higher rate are widows, retired people and low income people and cannot afford to pay the water-sewer bill for the entire town.

During the fiscal year ending October 1979, water profits were $19,200; gas profits $23,300 and sewer losses $39,768.

We are sure that the people of Helena not using Helena City gas prefer to pay their rightful share.

All of the above statements are correct and can be verified.

Softball tourney saw 235 homers slugged

Montevallo's Park and Recreation Department hosted two outstanding softball tournaments Saturday, according to Ott Knight, Park and Recreation Director.

The "A" classification tournament fielded six of the top fifteen teams in Alabama playing a round robin type competition.

A total of fifteen games were played featuring 235 home runs hit over the 280 foot outfield fence. Eight of the games were decided by three runs or less.

First place trophy went to Cupps Coal of Jasper. Second place was captured by Green Top Lounge of Sumiton. The third place trophy was awarded Stockham of Birmingham.

The other three teams are from Birmingham. They are Keplinger, Garrett Paving and Graffeo Imports.

Cupps Coal defeated Green Top 11 to 10 in the final game to decide first and second place trophies. Both teams had lost one game going into the final game.

Stockham took home the third place trophy when Graffeo defeated Keplinger.

Larry Keedy of Stockham took trophies for most hits and most home runs. He is credited with 18 hits and 13 home runs.

Knight described Saturday's action as "the most exciting and competitive tournament played this year...all teams had beaten each other during the season."

Twelve teams participated in the "B" classification tournament. Top honors went to a Montevallo team, Brashier Roofing. Brashier went through the tournament undefeated.

Southern Trophy took second place honors; Buddy's Barbecue placed third. Captain D's came in fourth. Book-out Auto Parts placed fifth.

Brashier defeated Southern Trophy 26 to 8 to capture the "B" division honors.

Youth goes to Europe on three week mission

Denise Bradley left on June 16 for a three-week mission in Europe as a Summer Training and Evangelism Partner (STEP). Denise is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. W. R. Bradley of Chelsea and is a member of the Chelsea Church of God.

She was selected by a screening committee to join nearly a hundred other young people from across the United States and Canada. During the program she will visit West Germany, France, Switzerland, and Austria. As a part of the STEP team she will become acquainted with the ministry of her church in those areas and share many cross-cultural experiences.

Not intended as a vacation, the STEP trip will involve witnessing, distributing Christian literature, training local young people in youth outreach, and other projects. According to its director, Marcus V. Hand, the STEP program is intended as a missionary education tool to acquaint young people with the international ministry of the Church and to give them experience in trans-cultural living.

Before leaving for Europe Bradley will participate in a three-day seminar in Cleveland, Tennessee. Here she will be briefed on customs, languages and foods of the various countries she will visit.

The Chelsea miss is a member of the Chelsea Trio and a part time student at the University of Montevallo. She has done volunteer work at King's Ranch.

Phone relay raises charity funds

The race has ended in South Central Bell's Reach Out Relays and $2,000 has been donated to various charities in Birmingham, Shelby County, Childersburg and Sylacauga.

Recently, Bell's Installation-

Repairmen in these areas were divided into teams to compete against each other by selling items such as extension phones, Design Line Phones, Touch Tone Calling, and customer calling services. Each team scored points and dollars based on the number of sales which were made each month. When each team attained their goal at the end of the relay, the maximum $100 donation was made to the group's favorite charity.

As a result, the Children's Aid Society, Shelby County Youth Organization, American Lung Association and the Heart Fund were among the many charities selected by the Installation-Repair groups to receive donations.

The 21 teams in the Greater

Birmingham, Sylacauga, Childersburg, and Shelby County areas were part of the 1,000 teams in South Central Bell's five state area to make donations through the Reach Out Relays.

GOOD NEWS

IN A TIME of so much "bad news", it is especially refreshing to consider the "good news" from God. We must not permit the "bad news" to get so loud, that we neither hear nor accept the "good news".

THE GOSPEL OF CHRIST is the "good news" concerning God's love for us; the sacrificial death of Christ on our behalf; the resurrection of Christ; the church (kingdom); and our opportunity for salvation.

GOD'S POWER TO SAVE is the gospel (good news) of Christ. (Rom. 1:16). We receive the full blessings of the "good news", when we believe the historical facts; obey the commandments; and receive the promises. THE "GOOD NEWS" is God's word by which we are purified and born again. (1 Cor. 4:15; Peter 1:22-25).

THE POWER IS OPERATIVE in our lives through our obedience which makes our faith effective. (2 Thess. 1:8-9; Heb. 5:8-9; James 2:20-24).

Oil search continues

Even though the drilling for oil at Pea Ridge ended in a dry hole, the search continues for oil and gas in Shelby County.

Atlantic Richfield Corporation, through the Pacific West Exploration Company, has been conducting geophysical Vibroseis work along Highways 55 and 119 in Shelby County. Starting at I-65 and Highway 45 in Chilton County, crews made their way up Shelby County highway 155 through Montevallo.

The crews worked swiftly, stringing miles of wire as they worked.

One of the crew members told the Reporter, "We're just a bunch of kids, trying to make more money than we would at home."

Atlantic Richfield showed great interest in Shelby and Bibb Counties last year, advertising to buy mineral rights to land in the two counties.

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

Calera sweeps up in girls' softball

Judging from this year's record book, the Calera girls in the Central Shelby DY program certainly know how to play softball.

In the 6-9 age division, the Calera Pixies had clinched first place Monday with an 11-2 record. The Columbiana Sunshiners (6-6) and the Chelsea Darlings (6-8) were tied for second and headed for a showdown.

"We went at it this year, but we had a lot of luck, too," said Pixies coach Sylvia Ingram, noting they finished last last year. She was assisted by her husband, Walter, and Berry Bradley.

In the 10-12 division, the Calera Bunnies, coached by Diane Snow and Rebecca Garrett, were still undefeated Monday with a 10-0 record. The Wilsonville Peppers were in second at 7-2.

The Calera Eaglettes clinched first place in the 13-15 division with a 13-1 record. They are coached by Anne and Ellwood Edwards.

The Chelsea Bombers had a chance to catch the Shelby Angels (6-5) for second place Monday night.

Food Center bought

The Food Center store in Montevallo has new owners and a new name.

For many years the supermarket located in the Whaley Shopping Center was known as the Moss Food Center.

Earlier this month Mr. and Mrs. James Tarrance of Forestdale purchased the business from Mrs. Jewel Moss and the store is now known as the Tarrance Food Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Tarrance have been operators of the Food Center in Graysville.

Tarrance is a native of St. Clair county and a graduate of Ashville High School. He did additional studying at the Gadsden Trade School. He is an army veteran of the Korean conflict. Prior to entering the grocery business Tarrance was a supervisor for Birmingham Stove and Range.

Loretta Tarrance is a native of Anniston. She is a graduate of Alexander High School and attended Alverson Draughon Business College.

Her career includes serving as office manager of a GES store and as administrative assistant to W.H. Metz, vice president of the Birmingham Post Herald. She has been in the grocery business since 1970.

The Tarrances have two daughters and two grandchildren.

They told the Reporter they plan to move to Montevallo as soon as possible.

The Food Center store in Montevallo employs 22 people and is open for business from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday, from noon until 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Friendship swap set

An international people-to-people, exchange program, Friendship Force, will again swap Alabamians and citizens of another country this fall.

The plane taking the Alabamians to the country will bring a similar number back here to stay with host families, Oct. 4-16, said Mrs. Blackmon, director of the University of Montevallo's International-Intercultural Studies program.

Persons participating in the program will pay $595 for the flight and exchange costs, with the flight leaving from Montgomery.

As is customary on Friendship Force exchanges, the destination of the exchange will not be announced until a few weeks before the flight at an orientation session. The object of Friendship Force is more than mere tourism, the state director explained.

"We want to involve people from all segments of the community," she said. "The purpose of Friendship Force is to develop better understanding between the grassroots citizens of the world.

Anyone interested can contact Mrs. Blackmon at St. 153, University of Montevallo, Montevallo, AL 35115.

Opening, Columbiana, June 2, Granny's Tender Loving Day Care Center, Old Hwy. 25 next to Gulf Oil. Ages, infants up, Mon.-Fri., 6:30 through 6:30. Planned learning and play activities. 669-4516 988-0588

Foresters qualify

Kimberly Clark foresters Jim Burns (l) and Louis Olivier, are shown application forms by County Extension Agent John Jones for obtaining a permit to use restricted pesticides.

Foresters take pesticide course

The old adage about an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure could be applied to individuals who use dangerous pesticides.

As a safety precaution, the state's Department of Agriculture and Industries requires anyone purchasing restricted pesticides to have a permit.

And the way to get a permit is to receive instruction in their use from the county extension office.

Farmers are one of the main groups who obtain permits. But last week, it was foresters who watched a slide presentation and listened to Assistant Extension Agent John Jones talk about pesticides with dangerous chemicals.

The men were Kimberly-Clark employees who look after the company's landholdings throughout Central Alabama.

Most companies only require the supervisor to have a permit, but K-C wanted all of their foresters to have the training.

Jones explained what precautions to take while spraying to ensure personal protection as well as to protect the environment.

He also went over the calibration of pesticide equipment and gave information on pesticide laws and regulations.

Labels on restricted pesticides, and how to understand them, was something else the extension agent went over during the instructional session at the Shelby County Library.

'Look, Mom...'

Footing the ski rope, Hal Hamilton demonstrates "tricking" during the ski show Sunday at Oak Mountain.

Coaches come, go

Coaches come and coaches go. That's the way the "system" works.

Larry Molton has recently taken over the job as head coach of Shelby County High School, the position vacated at the end of the school year by Mark Bradley.

The Reporter was unable to reach the new coach or principal Don Bulger for more details by presstime Monday, but according to reports, Molton played both high school and college football under Auburn head coach Doug Barfield.

That ought to make at least half of Columbiana happy. But no doubt, the Alabama fans will show their class and get behind the new coach as he tries to rebuild the Wildcats' football program.

On the other side of the county at Chelsea High School, principal Brad Stephens was reportedly still in the market for a head coach to replace Richard Conkle who resigned last week.

Whoever is chosen to start a new page in football history there, what promises to be one of the strongest teams of Hornets in a number of years. Even so, Chelsea faces a tough schedule with a number of 3-A clashes to overcome.

With the support of the community, though, the Hornets still stand a chance of ending the season in the winner's circle. Time will tell all.

Cypress Garden stunt skiers show off at Oak Mountain

The Cypress Garden Ski Show performed for a crowd of some 600 spectators Sunday at Oak Mountain State Park. The presentation was presented in conjunction with the 5th Annual Cahaba Outdoor Festival.

Two members of the ten-skier team are from Shelby County.

Mark Whitlock, who lives in Indian Springs, grew up not more than a mile from his skiing partner Steve Bryan.

Along with the other skiers, the boys are spending their summer weekends demonstrating the sport of skiing throughout the southeastern states.

Among the ski feats demonstrated are the classical pyramid, barefoot skiing off the beach, tricking, running slaloms, flying over jumps and sailing on kites.

Ski rides were provided for the spectators before the 2 p.m. show started.

The Cypress Garden group was enticed into the Oak Mountain show by championship Birmingham skier Hal Hamilton, who joined in water antics. Besides being highly rated in ski circles, Hamilton at one time skied with the Cypress team at the Garden.

Hamilton explained that the ski jump is one of the more dangerous ski tricks, since the skier hits the ramp at speeds up to 60 mph.

A good skier can fly off a 5.5 foot jump, such as the one used Sunday at the park, and sail up to 60 feet through the air. He also adds, from personal experience, that it's a good way to dislocate one's shoulder.

Ricky Simmons, the troupe's master kite flyer, with the help of his wife, Beverly, built the two kites that were flown during the show.

He has seven years of experience flying the kites, and won his division in the 1978 Master's Kite Tournament.

Both Bryan and Whitlock note that touring with the show isn't exactly a good way to get rich. But as far as having fun and following the endless ski rope all summer, they say the experience is great.

The other members of the Cypress Garden Ski Show who were on hand Sunday at the park, are Joey Wagner, Kelle Wagner, Kelley Williams, Eddie Hand, and Robin Anderson.

Skiing pyramid

Mark Whitlock, who hails from Indian Springs, holds down the right base of this classic, three skier pyramid, which also includes Ricky Simmons and his wife Beverly.

Off the jump

Ricky Simmons shoots off the 5.5 foot ski jump traveling at a speed of 60 miles per hour, as spectators on the beach watch the demonstration and soak in the rays.

If someone tells you to, 'Go fly a kite,' do it!

By David Moore

"Go fly a kite!"

Next time anyone tells you that, you ought to follow up on the suggestion. It's a real blast, especially if you're actually riding on the kite and somebody is pulling you at 45 m.p.h. with a ski boat.

Last Sunday, after watching Ricky Simmons and Joey Wagner soar on kites over the crowd at Oak Mountain State Park as a part of the Cypress Garden Ski Show, I knew I had found out how it feels.

"You sure you want to do this?" asked Simmons. "It's windy today even for somebody who already knows how to fly."

He pointed out that the kites are not free flying, that is, should the boat stall or the rope break, the kite would drop with either a hard splash or crunch, depending on whether I hit the lake or the shore. To complete the picture, he related an incident in Mississippi last weekend where he crashed a kite from 50 feet over the water.

Still, I had dared myself to fly the kite, and had further sealed my decision, by announcing my intentions to several people. Even if I had wanted to back out, I couldn't have.

"Let's do it," I said.

"Can you ski?" he asked.

"Sure." I didn't bother telling him I'd only skied four times in my life. He seemed sceptical enough about the wind factor.

Step one involved the almost painful procedure of squeezing into a yellow (Playtex 24-Hour Living) wetsuit and an extremely tight leg harness which buckled onto the trapeze bar of the kite.

Soon I found myself squatting in three feet of water under a 15x18 foot orange competition kite which was tied by 100 feet of rope to a 250 hp inboard ski boat.

"Are you sure you know what you're doing, Moore?" I asked myself, trying to pull the tips of my CG Skinner skis out of the muddy lake bottom. The next to the last thing I wanted to do (besides get killed), was to make a fool of myself.

All I could really remember about getting up on skis was to keep my legs firmly in front of me with the tips out of the water. I had no idea how my newly attached "wing" might complicate things. Finally, I got my skis out of the mud.

"Go!" I yelled, before I lost my awkward balance.

Simmons hit the throttle and the boat started dragging me through the water. From here on out I was playing everything strictly by ear-my standard procedure.

The kite popped into the air and gave me a gentle tug about the time I straightened up and came out of the water. I was off with a grin.

Because the wind was out of the southwest, we had to "taxi" to the upper end of the lake and turn around before I could take off. I used the time to get a feeling for the skis and 27 pound kite which kept tugging at my harness. I was doing fine and Simmons gave me a thumbs up signal from the boat.

After the turn, I gave him a thumbs up. Simmons gunned the boat. My skimmers were skimming now and the kite making me light on the skis. But I still wasn't flying.

The kite pulled me to the left, across the wake. I let it do what it wanted to, but gave the trapeze bar a light pull on the right, just to remind the kite that I had a sayso in matters.

"Faster," I hollered.

My skis skimmed over a wave. But this time they didn't touch down again.

I was airborne.

The wind carried me further to the left. I pulled harder on the right of the bar-harder than necessary, in fact. The kite dipped quickly towards the water.

I started to pull to the left to re-counter the action, but my instincts told me to let the kite fly itself. Don't fight, I thought.

Sure enough, the kite straightened out. I was in control.

"Faster! Faster!" I yelled, knowing that faster meant higher.

They sped up. It was as if I had punched the express button on a high rise elevator. I shot up to about 15 feet, maneuvered to the right, then back to left again.

I was loving it, but we were starting to run out of lake. They slowed the boat and I came back on the water, absorbing the light jolt by bending my knees.

Simmons and Steve Bryan, one of the show skiers who was in the boat with my camera, clapped. Simmons held up his index finger. One more?

"Yes." I called, "Definitely!"

Again we taxied to the top of the lake. I was really fired up. Simmons, Bryan and Wagner, who was driving, were more confident in me, too. This time they flat gunned the boat.

I shot up in the air about 20 feet over the lake, then almost as suddenly felt myself drop to the water, I kept my balance skimming the water for just a moment, then shot again up in the air.

I was going faster now, and higher. Looking down at the water and the park from 40 feet high was reminiscent of a parachute drop.

I was thrilled. I was a giant yellow and orange hawk soaring over the park, flying high, but not so high as to melt the wax on my wings, ala Icarus and Greek mythology. For a minute or so, I was Superman. For the rest of the afternoon, I was ecstatic.

Simmons, as it turned out, was quite pleased with his student's success.

"Nearly everyone I've ever taught to fly in my seven years of experience has lost control and crashed when they left the water. You did great."

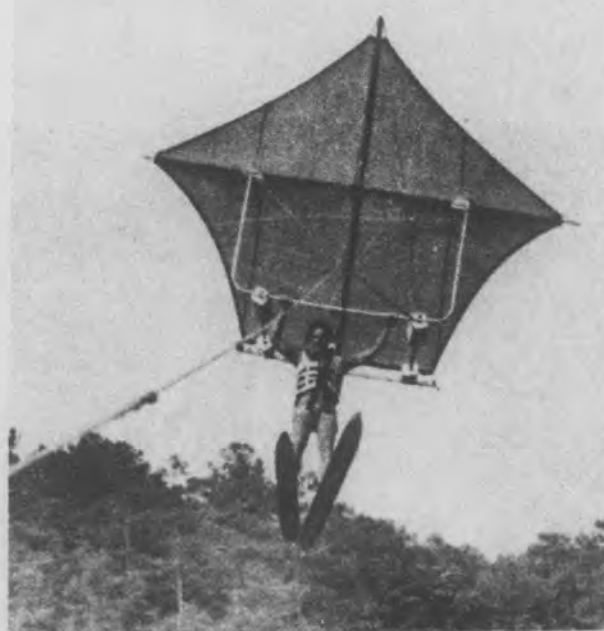

"Go fly a kite," I said with a grin.

"Anytime," he said.

Up, up and away

Fly fishing good

Purdy fishing is on verge of picking up

Two of the nicest attractions about fishing at Lake Purdy are that it's free and peacefully quiet. No private boats are allowed on the 1050 acre lake, but they do have plenty of fishing boats which they rent for a minimal fee.

Walter Lowe, who runs the bait shop there, notes that the lake is overstocked and begs fishermen not to throw anything back.

Alabaster DY to name stars

The Alabaster Dixie Youth baseball program will name its all-star teams Saturday evening around 5 p.m. At the same time, the top division teams, their coaches and sponsors will receive trophies.

The coach of the year award will also be presented.

Ballots for Alabaster DY and the ladies auxiliary officers will be passed out during the afternoon.

Pelham DY raises funds

The Pelham Dixie Youth fund raising project netted a total of $3400 for the league, thanks to the work of all the players and their parents.

The Pelham DY coaches have challenged the Channel 6 softball team to a duel to the last batter. The free game will be played Saturday, June 28, at 9 a.m. in Pelham.

Father, son win

James "Billy" Horton and his son, Richard, each won a first place in a recent fishing tournament.

Horton caught the largest string of fish and the largest bass in the Stockham Valves and Fittings sponsored event. Richard caught the largest string of bream.

"If you don't want them, take them to East Lake," he says, almost jokingly, noting that a year and a half ago when that lake was drained, 17,000 fish from it were dumped in Lake Purdy.

Lowe says that the bass, who have been on bed since early March, are starting to move now, but haven't yet worked up real good appetites.

An eight pound bass was caught at Purdy in February, he says, but within the last week or so a 3.5 pounder is the biggest he's seen on a stringer.

But it won't be long until the bass action gets back into full swing. Already they're starting to hit the surface for breakfast. And, Lowe predicts, in about a week the willow flies will start falling. Then, says he, the bass will start tearing up the surface.

He reports that a lot of fly rod fishermen have been having a blast with the bream using worms, crickets and chartreuse popping bugs. In fact, several people have come off the lake dragging a stringer of 50 bass after a half day of fly fishing.

The water, Lowe adds, is crystal clear, making it easy to spot the fish. (Clear water is a two way street, though, so no dancing while fishing.)

Crappie have moved to the deeper water, but have been hitting well off minnows, and grubs trolled at night.

If you want to fish at night with a boat, you need to get out there and rent it before Lowe calls it a day and closes shop. And you will probably want to take some bug repellent with you, too. After all, you want the fish to bite, not the mosquitoes.

Meanwhile, the water level is back up on Lay Lake and fishing this weekend ought to be pretty good.

Thanks

Principal joins class reunion

Montevallo High's class of 1930 celebrates

There was a lot of catching up to be done when members of the 1930 graduating class from Montevallo High School held their first reunion Saturday. Thirteen of the 22 member class who graduated 50 years ago were present for the get-together on the University of Montevallo campus.

And two of that number had gone all the way through school together while a third member of the group joined them in the third grade. Dr. Leslie Hubbard and Ashley "Snooks" Jeter spent twelve years in the Montevallo school while Mildred Dean Doyle went with them through nine grades. Five members of the class are deceased and two were unable to be located. Reviving his skill as an auctioneer, Miles Hardy, who was the MHS principal in 1930, took bids on a Bulldog T shirt during the festivities. The memento went to Jeter who passed it on to his longtime classmate with the joking remark that he could wear it for plowing. Hubbard owns a farm near Montevallo. In addition to being class president, the Montevallo doctor was also valedictorian. Salutatorian for the class, which was the first to hold graduation exercises in Palmer Hall, was Myra Horn. A printed program of the event, which was brought to the reunion, listed the topic of her talk as "Advantages of Being a 20th Century Graduate." Following lunch, each member of the class gave a resume of their life and when prizes were handed out, Mary Frances Williams Richardson received one for talking the longest. The award for traveling the farthest distance went to Lois Jones Angerman who came from Miami to attend the occasion. With eight grandchildren, Maurine Dobbs Bates won the prize for having the most, and Dr. Hubbard received a wig because he had lost the most hair. Other prizes were given for such feats as arriving earliest, having the whitest hair and bringing the most mementos. The former MHS principal, who spent four years in Montevallo, told the alumni during his luncheon talk, how much they had meant to him. Hardy, now 80 years old, became a professional auctioneer several years after leaving Montevallo. He is now in his 26th year of conducting a daily hour long farm program for a Selma radio station.

Vincent gardener says:

'Corn gets in my way'

by Shelba Nivens
Mrs. Albert Datcher has been gardening on land near Vincent for 40 years. Before planting, she plots out her planting arrangement according to full-grown size and harvesting time of vegetables. In doing this, she is careful not to place tall or spreading plants where they will shade or over-run other plants. "These will be gone by the time the squash reaches here," she said, indicating beets and turnips greens growing on either side of a row of squash. The squash plants are in bloom but not yet large enough to reach the beets and greens which the family is already enjoying at the dinner table. "Never put corn in with low stuff," she cautioned, adding, "I hardly ever put corn in my garden. It is in the way." Greens and string beans are Mrs. Datcher's favorite vegetables, she said. She grows bunch beans early in the year and pole beans for later. Kentucky wonder is her favorite variety of pole bean, and contender is her favorite bunch bean. Pole bean runners are just beginning to wrap themselves around a wire fence in the Datcher garden, while bunch beans are already being harvested. The latter grows next to rows of peas which are only a few inches high. By the time pea vines are large enough to reach the bean rows, the beans will be gone and the plants ready to pull up and get out of the way. At least a bushel of beans has already been picked from one row of bunch beans which is around 70 feet long, said Mrs. Datcher. And the plants are still full of young beans. Although most people say they prefer canned beans to frozen ones, she likes them frozen. "They just don't know how to freeze them right," she added. "You have to break them up as soon as they are out of the garden," she cautioned. "And they must be tender. If you put up tough beans, they'll be tough when you go to eat them." She went on to explain the right way to prepare beans for the freezer: As soon as the beans are broken, they should be dropped into boiling water for three minutes, then dipped into ice water. They should be drained in a colander while they cool and then placed in freezer bags and immediately stored in the freezer.

A planned garden

By the time Mrs. Albert Datcher's squash plants grow large enough to cover the rows on either side of them, the vegetables in those rows will have already been harvested. The Vincent gardener makes good use of a small garden plot by well-planned planting.

Pelham wins contest

The Alabaster Area Rotary Club's annual essay contest between Pelham and Thompson high schools was won this year by Pelham. Students wrote essays from a list of topics provided by the Rotarians earlier this spring, and finalists were chosen to represent each school as a team. Representing Pelham were Jill Hooper, Mike Swett and Ellen Lyons, and Thompson finalists were Debra Payne, David Hosmer and Freddie Tezak. Individual essay winners chosen by the club were Ellen Lyons and Freddie Tezak. Rotary Scholarships were awarded at the school's graduation ceremonies on May 29. The Pelham scholarship recipient was Leah Parker, who will attend Florida College in Tampa. Laurie Moore, who will attend Samford University, was awarded the Thompson scholarship. The Alabaster Area Rotary Club awarded the two $1000 scholarships on a basis of academic achievement and need of assistance toward continued education.

Calera gets new minister

Episcopalians name church

A newly established church in Riverchase has chosen "The Episcopal Church of St. Francis of Assisi" as its official name. Rector of the church is Rev. Taylor Wingo. The group meets Sundays at 9:30 in the Riverchase Middle School library. Since the group started meeting on March 23, it has grown to about 50 members.

Long, hard work

Young people from the Carmel, Ind. Methodist Youth Fellowship worked long and hard last week to finish the lodge at King's Ranch and make other improvements to buildings and grounds.

Twenty eight teenagers took part in this year's annual service project. The grounds crew (above) made a stone walk, sowed grass seed and planted flowers at the lodge.

From Indiana MYF

Tom and Linda Owen, who operate the facility near Westover which cares for children from disrupted families, will remember the visit every time they walk through the buildings or look over the grounds.

The 28 young people who made the trip in a church bus, did landscaping, planted a garden, put up fence, painted, laid tile and built an addition on the barn.

For the past 13 years the Carmel MYF group has traveled to different parts of the country to perform service projects.

"People are totally amazed at how much these teenagers can accomplish in one day," remarked one of the counselors.

The group heard about the ranch through a sister of one of the counselors who attends Briarwood Presbyterian Church.

Members of that church are vitally interested in the ranch since the Owens are members there.

In order to raise money for their annual trips, which are undertaken as soon as school is out, the Indiana young people sell Christmas greenery.

According to one of the six adults who accompany the work team, the sales project begins in October.

"When we get home, this MYF group will have charge of the worship service at church the next morning," reported a counselor.

In addition to relating the tangible accomplishments, she said the young people would also tell of their spiritual growth through helping others.

Flooded areas in various states have been the group's target for assistance several times. And they have even constructed buildings to be used for businesses in developing towns.

Besides the bus, the MYF's also rent a truck to haul their equipment. They may be housed in a church, a school or the basement area of a building.

The latter accommodation was their sleeping arrangement at King's Ranch. The youngsters spread their sleeping bags in the basement of the lodge.

Painting, wallpapering, and other work was done by the young people during the week in this facility which has recently been occupied by houseparents.

The young people learn carpentry and landscaping skills from each other, a counselor related. She added that the men also passed on their knowledge of carpentry while some of the boys had gained their know-how through working with construction crews.

This year, 12 boys and 16 girls made up the group which came to Shelby County.

They put in a full day's work, rising at 6:15 and taking time out only for meals.

But the evenings were a time for fun, sharing and inspiration.

One night there was a talent show and another evening was designated as "Crazy Night." Sometimes there were speakers.

Hockey player Paul Henderson from the Birmingham Bulls talked to the young people during one of their evening sessions.

The reason one of the men gave for spending his vacation in this manner would probably have been the feeling of the young people as well.

"I enjoy the feeling of having accomplished something," he declared.

Theatre sponsors park event

Monday Night Live will be produced in Montevallo July 14.

The musical-variety program will be staged in Orr Park with members of the Shelby County Community Theater and bluegrass and country bands providing entertainment.

And a beauty parade featuring some of the county's best looking men will be one of the highlights of the event.

Families picnicking in the park will be dining to music which begins at 6:30 p.m.

Appearing on the program at 7:30 p.m. will be Buddy Gaines and Jim Garrett, Pam and Bennie Middaugh, Barbara Belisle, Jane Pharis, and Wanda Vick.

UM begins classes at Riverchase

The University of Montevallo's new community service courses at its Riverchase office begin this week with 15 non-credit courses.

The new office includes classroom space for the new courses, according to Kay Watts, director of continuing education at UM.

Twelve of the classes are taught at night for working adults. Three new children's classes are taught Saturdays.

Night classes are Electronics, Solar Energy, Photography for Fun and Profit, Contract Bridge, Computer, Seminar in Attitude Development, Gold Panning, Residential Security, Real Estate, Europe for the Art Lover, Stress Management, and Interior Design.

Classes for children are Introduction to Rocktry, Fun With Your Camera, and The Saturday Morning Gang and the Great American Holdup, which will teach children to create their own commercials.

Classes range in price from $10 to $100, and there is still time to register, Mrs. Watts said.

Call 665-2521, ext. 362 for more information.

Classes will meet at Riverchase Office Plaza.

More than 100 persons are to represent the Calera Jehovah's Witness group at a "Devine Love" convention. The four-day meeting is planned for the Memorial Coliseum, July 3-6.

Swamp crash

After sloshing through waist-high water in the swamp that borders the airport, a rescue worker reaches the wreckage of the stunt biplane that crashed during the air show Saturday. The pilot escaped, unhurt. (Photo by Milton Bridges. See story, page 12.)

Stunt pilot lives, air show goes on

The two day Shelby County Air Show featured one act no one booked.

Aerobatic stunt flyer Jim Gaston, 38, of Arkansas, crashed his Pitts biplane into the swamp some 500 yards west of the air strip Saturday afternoon. The pilot waded away from the wreckage, virtually unharmed.

After the crash Gaston told the Reporter, "I didn't think a thing. I was just glad to get out."

Gaston's plane crashed when it failed to recover from four spins after he came out of a tail slide in the muggy, summer air.

Most of the estimated crowd of 2500 people Saturday did not realize Gaston had crashed until some ten minutes after it happened.

The finale of the show included an aerial display by a B-25 Mitchell bomber, two T-28 trainers, seven T-6 trainers, an AD-4 Skyraider, three P-51 Mustangs and a DeHavilland Beaver, most of which belonged with the Valiant Air Command out of Florida.

Other acts included a clown show by Jim Saltzman who was chased up and down the runway in his J-3 cub by a sheriff's deputy, a skydiving and parachute demonstration from 8500 feet, an F-4 Phantom flyby, and much more.

"We considered the show a huge success," said Lane Aero owner Larry Chapman. "We were glad there were no further incidents. We deeply appreciated the reserve deputies and the Shelco One Rescue Squad for being out here."

Proceeds from the tenth annual show, which is presented by the Birmingham Aero Club, went to the Southern Museum of Flight, which is now scheduled to open near the Birmingham Airport in late fall.

Said BAC show chairman Amos Mitchem, "It was stupendous. We've earned over $100,000 for the museum in the last ten years."

Mitchem said that Sunday's crowd of 6,000 was the largest turnout to date for the show.

Rubin says Alabaster needs on right track

"I want to try and get Alabaster back on the right track," declared H. A. "Doc" Rubin, giving his reason for entering the race for mayor.

H.A. "DOC" RUBIN

"We're not getting the growth we need," he continued.

Having served eight years on the council, Rubin feels that he has the knowledge and experience that's needed for the job.

Now retired from the real estate business, Rubin also mentioned his managerial ability which he gained in an executive position with a large pharmaceutical firm.

He said he felt a fulltime mayor is needed and pledged to devote 100% of his time to the job if elected.

Rubin and his wife Sue have lived in Alabaster 23 years and he has made two other tries to win the mayor's post.

The couple have one son, Dr. Donald Rubin, an aerospace engineer with NASA.

JAMES BATSON, III

Batson runs for mayor of Wilsonville

James L. Batson, III, is running for the office of Mayor of Wilsonville.

The Wilsonville native retired from the Air Force in November, 1977. While serving in the military, he was in charge of large numbers of personnel, he said. He feels that with this experience, along with his management courses, and as a graduate of the Sr. NCO academy, he has the managerial ability to be mayor.

He also cited an associate degree in criminal justice as another plus on his side of the board.

If elected mayor, he would like to see a complete change in Wilsonville. "It is very stagnated in growth and population," he said.

He would like to see the town grow and have more unity among the citizens. He thinks this would give the people more incentive to work together to get things rolling.

He would like to bring more industry in to the area, he said, adding that he thinks the three or four previous administrations have lagged in this area.

Batson and his wife have two children living at home.

Donahoo stands on past record

J.W. Donahoo says that if he is re-elected mayor of Harpersville, he will continue to do as he has done.

"I'm running solely on my past record," he said, adding "with the help of the council."

He stressed that mayor and council have always worked harmoniously, and co-operated to the fullest.

The town of Harpersville owes no bills except current bills, Donahoo told the Reporter. Among things he enumerated as now paid for are the medical clinic and its equipment, fire hall and fire truck, city hall and its furniture, paved streets, new pump in the well at city hall, the tie-in with Vincent water system and three dry wells.

"Ten wells have been paid for by HUD," he said adding that the tenth HUD well looks good. "It looks like it can pump 200 gallons of water a minute or more," he said.

According to Donahoo, Harpersville's water system and fire department were checked last Thursday by representatives of the insurance service out of Montgomery. "They felt we will get a number 8 rating," he said, "which our residents will save 30%-40% on their fire insurance."

Garbage pickup will continue to be free within the city-limits of the town, said Donahoo, adding, "Although in 1979 we voted to not raise property tax from 5 mills."

The incumbent mayor first took office in 1964, and has served intermittent terms since that time.

He and his wife have four children.

Calera approves

ABC store site

At its June 17 meeting Calera City Council was asked to approve the proposed site of an ABC store in Calera.

The request was made by Charles W. Wade of Clanton, owner of the former Western Auto building.

Calera Council approved the site, and it is assumed that the store will open as soon as the building can be modified to specifications.

Three-time councilman seeks top Pelham post

One of the founding fathers of Pelham is now running for that city's highest office.

Allen Wilson, one of Pelham's original councilmen who helped with its incorporation, has announced his candidacy for mayor. Wilson served for three terms as councilman.

The candidate says he is satisfied that the city's fire department is a good one, but says some of the other departments may need some work done on them. The city also needs a sewer system to draw more industry, and expanded a park facilities for recreation, he says.

In short, Wilson says, "I believe we need a better government and I think I can do a better job. I'm not adding any more taxes, either. We have too many already."

Wilson, who previously owned Wilson Contracting and two Shell service stations in Pelham, is now retired and lives in Deer Springs with his wife of 19 years, Betty Faye "Cookie." They have four children and two grandchildren.

Wilson was born in 1931, and has lived all his life in the Pelham area, except for two years spent in the Air Force.

Since his retirement a year and a half ago, Wilson says he spends most of his time gardening and "politicking the hills."

He is a member of the Shelby County Democratic committee, a former member of the First Baptist Church of Pelham, and a graduate of Thompson High School.

District Judge office open for challengers

The office of district judge of Shelby County will be on the ballot this September.

The question appears to be finally settled after a merry-go-round of legal opinions, which kept the matter up in the air for the last three weeks.

John Lockett, staff attorney for secretary of state Don Siegelman said that although Judge Patti Smith has not served a full year, she is the second person to be appointed to fill out the unexpired term created when Bill Hill was named district attorney more than a year ago.

The law stipulates a year as the length of time to pass before the office is open at the next general election.

Judge Smith is expected to file for the office. Harry Lyon, a

Tucker interested enough to work

Howard Tucker is one of four candidates for the office of Mayor of Wilsonville.

Tucker said that he has no special qualifications. He just thinks the people should be represented and, as mayor, he would be interested enough in the city to work for them.

He said he thinks the people should get their money's worth when paying taxes, and that the city could do a lot more than it has done for the money.

"Not that there is anything wrong with Wilsonville," he added, "but it could be upgraded." He added that the previous administration has not done much in this area.

The candidate is a machinist and has worked as an equipment operator for the city of Birmingham for several years. While working in that capacity, he learned a lot about how a city does things, he said.

Tucker served in the army. He has lived in Wilsonville three years. He and his wife have one child.

Evans lists changes planned for Alabaster

W. C. Evans is running for Mayor of Alabaster because he sees things that need changing.

He thinks there should be a reduction in taxes and that improvements are called for in the way city departments are run.

He singled out the police department and street department in particular.

Having worked in the construction business, he feels this knowledge would be an asset. And being in business for himself for the past seven years Evans pointed out, has put him in a position to know how much it costs to operate and the price of materials.

Sales tax money the city now receives is being spent unwisely, Evans believes.

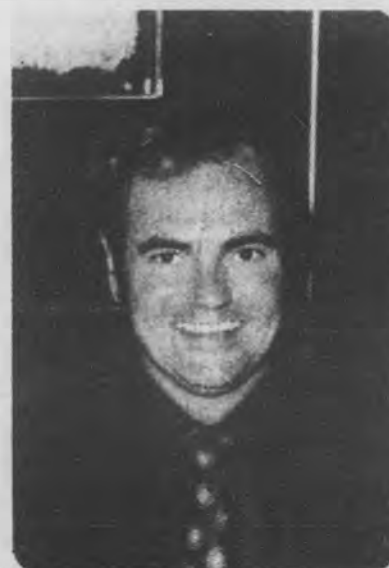

One of his goals, if he's elected Evans related, will be to bring more industry into the city.

A native of Columbiana, Evans and his wife Charla have three children. Shawn, 12, and Melody, 10, are students in Alabaster schools and Richard, 28, lives in Savannah.

Evans is the owner of Alabaster Tire and Salvage Co.

Farris wants Calera run like a business

"My basic platform is to be fair and impartial to everyone," says Calera mayoral candidate

LARRY FARRIS

Larry Farris. "I want an open form of government," he adds.

The self-employed businessman points out that he wants to reorganize the city government and set it up on a business basis. "I want to promote the growth of the city by bringing in new businesses and residents, and also by enlarging the city limits," he continues.

Raised in Calera, Farris is a graduate of Calera High School and holds a B.S. degree in business from Livingston State University which he earned in 1966.

He has lived for the past seven years in Brentwood Hills with his wife, Gayle, and daughter, Melynda, 7.

Farris is a member of the Calera PTA and the Calera Baptist Church. He is past-president of the Calera Civitans.

Little claims he will do best for Wilton

A lifelong resident of Wilton is running for the office of mayor because he says that a number of people have asked him to be a candidate.

His love for the town and the challenge of seeking the office is what motivated him to comply with their request and enter the race, W. H. Little related.

Stressing that he wasn't a politician, Little said, "I'll do the best I can if I'm elected."

Now retired from a civil service job, the Wilton native said that Cities hold public forums

A public forum for all candidates running in the Pelham city elections will be held Monday, June 30, at 7:30 p.m. at the city hall.

The forum is being presented by the Pelham Homemakers Club and refreshments will be served afterwards. For more information call 663-2778 or 663-7442.

The public is encouraged to attend a candidates' meeting in Alabaster on Monday, June 30 at 7 p.m.

All mayoral and council candidates have been invited to be on hand at the meeting at the Thompson High School cafeteria to discuss city issues.

A question and answer session will be a part of the meeting, which is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

was added to the list of resignations approved by the Board of Education Wednesday.

In a letter delivered to the board 30 minutes before their meeting, Corbett cited health reasons for giving up his position.

It was on the advice of his doctor, Corbett wrote, that he was leaving the post he has held 10 years.

MHS trustees Dr. Bill Fancher and Grady Parker were on the agenda to address the panel. However, when it came their turn to speak, the trustees said the matter they had come to discuss had been resolved.

Prior to his resignation, the MHS principal was on sick leave. And Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles said that would be Corbett's status until Sept. 20.

Until a replacement is found, Assistant Principal Don Benton will be in charge at Montevallo High School.

A rearrangement of Wednesday's agenda moved the vote on the acceptance of teacher resignations from the second item, far down the list to just ahead of the time reserved for MHS trustees to speak.

It was later learned that a change had to be made in Corbett's letter and that a trip to Montevallo and back was made for his initialing. This was necessary in order for the board to be able to accept the resignation.

The board also voted separately on each resignation in a play for time.

The trustees, not aware that the principal was planning to resign, had reportedly come to the meeting to ask that he be removed from his post.

Although a grand jury failed to indict the MHS principal on child molestation charges last November, there has been talk of inappropriate conduct on Corbett's part.

Another matter brought to the board's attention at the Wednesday meeting, concerned the Riverchase teacher who was fired last year on the grounds that she was incompetent.

On June 10, the board's attorneys filed an appeal in the case of Odessa Jackson, who the Alabama Tenure Commission had ordered reinstated.

Since an appeal has been filed, the superintendent asked that the minutes of the May 8 meeting include the words "or appeal of the case," be added to the board's intention of petitioning the court for reconsideration.

In April, Circuit Court Judge Robert Armstrong backed the commission's review of the case, hence the board's latest appeal.

In the petition filed this month, the board posted a $25,000 bond so that Jackson will get her back pay if the appeal court decision is in her favor.

Shelco says all or nothing

The board of directors of the Shelco Fire and Rescue Unit voted to discontinue services if the vote on July 8 does not approve the new fire district.

Wayne Davis, president of the board of trustees, told the Reporter that the vote was taken Monday night.

He said that the expenses of maintaining the fire and rescue service are so high, that unless funds can be raised through the proposed new fire district, Shelco will disband the total unit and disburse the equipment.

Other members of the board of trustees are John Mathers, Forrest Crim, Allen Eisenberg, Jack Albright and Doug Ballard, Jr.

District judge

Pelham attorney, has already filed for the office.

He was in Montgomery Monday consulting with the attorney general's office and with the secretary of state's office to get a final ruling on the matter.

He said the only possibility that the situation may change again, would hinge on the state Supreme Court's ruling on another case to be heard July 3. But everyone expects the court to agree that the judgeship is open.

The circuit judgeship is not open for election this year, as was thought before June 9. Judge Robert Armstrong has not served in that position for a year, so he can continue until the next general election next January.

he would be able to give as much time as required to the office.

Although federal employees are prohibited from holding political office, Little said that with special permission from the personnel department where he worked, he had filled an unexpired term on the council a number of years ago.

"Wilton is a great little place to live," Little declared. He said that his plan for improvements in the community would be governed by the budget.

Before his retirement, Little worked as a maintenance engineer at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Birmingham.

"BORN AGAIN"

"Born Again" has become a frequently used phrase in our everyday language. Perhaps we should say a misused phrase. In Biblical context, it is used to describe the life that is changed by hearing, believing and obeying God's Word. The Word of God is the "seed" of the kingdom. (Luke 8:11,15).

CHRIST SPEAKS. "Except a man (a person) be 'born again', he cannot see the kingdom of God." Then, he tells how. (John 3:3-7). If this presents difficulties, they disappear in the light of the teaching in (1 Peter 1:22-25; James 1:18). This is the same "born again" of which Christ speaks in (John 3:3-7), because there are not two different ways to be "born again."

THE NEW LIFE BEGINS. The penitent believers raised from baptism to "walk in newness of life". (Rom. 6:3-4). This is the "born again" process ordained by God, and, by it, we enter God's family (the church). (1 Tim. 3:15; Acts 2:38-47; 1 Cor. 12:13; Acts 18:8).

WE ARE "BORN AGAIN" by our sincere, honest response to God's word in obeying it.

The Shelby county commission heard a request for a license to establish a county-wide cable television station at its meeting Monday. Kenneth Bernard, president of KRS Electronics of Douglasville, Ga., made the request. Commissioners suggested he make a study of the county and return with details for their further consideration.

● Civil defense director Bill Tucker told commissioners an impact study of the airport is required before grants can be obtained to extend the runway. The commission gave the go-ahead for Wainwright Engineers to conduct the study, to be paid 90% by federal funds.

● The commission refused to accept a deed filed by Henry E. Florey of Vincent, conveying a road to the county. Engineer James Ray said no road exists on the property in the place described in the deed.

● Former commissioner Doug Ballard, Sr., resigned as a member of the Law Enforcement Personnel Commission, saying he did not have time to serve.

● Commissioners agreed to start condemnation proceedings after the first of the year, to acquire a right of way to improve the Bay Springs road from the church to Highway 45.

Pony Express goes to schools

Although mail won't be delivered on horseback, a new method for handling written communications to and from the Board of Education office will bear some resemblance to that method.

The effective distribution of mail and materials between the 22 schools in the Shelby County system has always been a problem, Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles said Wednesday.

He proposed to the Board of Education, a plan to speed up the process and save the board money over a period of time.

Using a pouch something like the riders of an earlier day, mail from the central office would be delivered and picked up from the schools on a set schedule.

The panel approved the proposal and the hiring of an employee to handle that system as well as the state owned textbook program.

Norma Wilson will take over the position on July 1 at a clerk's salary of $10,248. Part of the money, Knowles said, will come from textbook funds.

Before a decision is made on whether to purchase or lease a van for the delivery system, a study of costs will be made and presented at the next board meeting.

A further use for the vehicle, pointed out by board member Paul Summers, would be the delivery of small parts that maintenance supervisors in the various schools might need.

A $2,500 expenditure was approved by the panel for improving the system's payroll computer system.

The money will be used to pay two programmers from Jefferson County to adapt their program to fit the needs of this system.

He was advised by the State Education Department, Knowles said, to hold off on buying a computer because the state is just now putting a new system into operation.

At the present time, payroll checks are made out on the county's computer in the courthouse. However, there have been some problems with this arrangement.

Presenting a program which would provide resource people to assist classroom teachers, Evan Major told the board that teachers had asked for such a program.

It was stressed that experienced teachers would be hired, not as administrators, but to work in the classroom.

The budget, Knowles said, will dictate the number employed. He forsees the maximum number the first year as five.

Eventually, the superintendent related that he would like as many as eight or ten resource teachers in the program.

The salary schedule of employees reflecting the legislature's 16% raise was approved.

Mentioning central office administrators, Knowles said that he would someday like to see a position created for supervising principals.

With the title of director and a $600 raise in salary, the superintendent said that successful principals should aspire to such a post.

In other business, the board gave permission for a student to continue attending school at Calera even though she lives outside that school zone.

Approval was given because the student will be a senior this year. The same consideration would be granted to any student in similar circumstances, the board decided.

A petition from Vincent parents for two more kindergarten units was presented by Mrs. Ann Limbaugh.

However, she was advised to contact the county's legislative delegation for assistance.

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Notebook Time: There were five of them-- Pam Parker 5, Beth Parker 9, Anjanette Jones 7, Allison Yeager 7 and Pam Graham 14-- and they had come from their homes in North Shelby County to dance for the old folks at Briarcliff Nursing Home. And for me, too, since I was over there. They could have been swimming, or playing, but they came over here instead. It made an old gink feel good just to be around them.

For all you boys and girls who started to Public School in the old school house in 1914 this is to tell you that Hill Barnett passed away last week in Texas.

It's election time on the Main and this is the one time I'm always glad I live outside the city limits. How would I decide between the two when I've known them both since they were little boys in rompers. Or pick out one when five guys, all friends, are running for one job. But it's a healthy sign when so many guys want to serve their town.

For the first time in over half a hundred years Jack Stone is without a garden of his own. Verna has a little garden, but the big garden, big enough for a whole neighborhood, is mostly a weed patch. But Jack is getting better and maybe next year he'll be back again, making enough stuff for a dozen families.

Boy, how I'll miss Lawrence and June Elliott. It won't seem right, come another Thursday, not to go by and see these two. But they are fine, living in Opelika, so they can be near Mrs. June Martin, their daughter.

Saw Irving Stone in the Food Center today. Gee, he's had it rough, but he's better again. Maybe that Four Mile water, like the Four Mile dirt, will have him feeling good again before too long.

We got two rains this week. The primroses are sprucing up again and the marigolds are putting on more blooms than a guy can count. I'm gonna have enough beans for 40 folks, if I can find Grandpa's old ladder and get up there where they are. The corn is tasseling and shooting and the tomatoes are bigger than golf balls and the old rain crow is still hollering.

That do-dad they've fixed between the Western Auto and the Post Office is about the prettiest thing that's come along the old street since street lights. But who would o' thought we'd see a guy plant trees 40 feet high and make 'em live.

Herman Strong was sort o' poley for several days. And the blackberries were getting redder by the minute. So, just like that, Dr. Harry Phillips gets him on the road again. And come next Monday we'll head out, Herman and I, hunting a berry patch.

D. B. Smith retires from public life

I am old enough to retire: I have worked for some type of service to the public for 60 years, since 1920. (I do not expect to get a rocking chair to move from one shade to the other.) I am tired too, but not that much.

All my service has been a pleasure, with ups and downs of course, but the people and the public have been good to me and I have appreciated the ones I have been associated with. The Lord, has with the help of doctors and hospitals kept me in better than average health.

I am listing some of my services below but do not add the years to determine my age as you might think I'm older than I am.

I began work at 16 on my own in pipe shops and rock quarries but quit and began teaching in 1920. (Some of my work has been overlapping since 1920.)

I taught 50 years most of the time as principal or principal and teacher. I was on the hospital board 15 years having helped find the location and getting it built. I was supervisor 3 years of the cotton measuring program when the program began in the 30's.

I served 4 years on the County School Board of Education, 2 years as County Coordinator of the Program on Aging and others on getting The Aging Centers going. I have been Mayor of Vincent for 5½ years.

I am getting to the point at my age where things upset me more when I was young if they don't go right.

In Vincent we had two young men to qualify to run for mayor and whoever may get elected will be able to take the pressures better. I've lived in Vincent since 1945 and wouldn't trade places anywhere I've been. We have travelled in every state of the union as well as Canada and Mexico by automobile except to Hawaii and Alaska.

In closing I want to give credit for all help of the people in working with me but most of all to my loyal-faithful, Christian wife, Minnie, who has stood by me in any trouble or joys, poverty, or when we got a pay day.

I'm not resigning angry or hurt at anyone. The Council in Vincent has co-operated well and we have made many improvements during my term of office which I shall at any time be glad to enumerate. Later I will write a resume of my active life if the papers will print it.

Helena utility allegations challenged

Letter to the Editor:

This letter is in response to Mrs. J.R. Lovelady's letter to the editor published in your paper June 19.

Like Mrs. Lovelady, I also pay utility bills and am interested in paying my fair share of the utilities--but only my fair share. In reading her letter I found several items that disturbed me, so I asked a member of the utility board to explain them to me. Frankly, Mrs. Lovelady's figures were as confusing to the utility board as they were to me.

Upon comparing Mrs. Lovelady's allegations with H.E. Timmerman's audit of the Helena Gas and Water System for the fiscal year 1978/79 (this audit is a matter of public record on file with the Alabama League of Municipalities and the First Alabama Bank, among others) it appears that her assessments of utility costs, rate increases, and profits are incomplete and dangerously misleading. I do agree that there are two separate gas systems serving Helena, and that both systems purchase their gas from Southern Natural Gas. But it should be noted that because Helena does not enjoy the buying power of Alagasco, Helena pays almost 18 percent more for its gas supply. This appears to have been overlooked by Mrs. Lovelady.

Mrs. Lovelady also overstated the profits of the gas system by approximately 100 percent. Her revenues and expenditures apparently were taken from the 1978/79 Timmerman audit but the customer base used to prorate expenses is inconsistent. Utility board records show that the number of customers at the beginning of fiscal year 1978/79 was: gas, 295; water, 532; and sewer, 155. Also, at the end of the fiscal year 1978/79, the number of customers were: gas, 295, water, 615; and sewer, 356.

These numbers do not agree with Mrs. Lovelady's. Mrs. Lovelady's incorrect customer base resulted in gas expenses being understated by approximately $2,700. Mrs. Lovelady also failed to include bond expense of $10,610.04 paid in partial satisfaction of a utility board bond originally financed in 1951 and refinanced in 1967.

In regards to the sewer, Mrs. Lovelady failed to point out that the original sewer proposal was only for the old part of town. All sub-division sewers, gathering lines and mains, were paid for in full by the developers, the cost being passed on to the purchaser of each lot. These residents have paid for their sewers in full. Every dollar of government grant and loan money spent on the sewer system was spent in the old section of town without any assessment to the residents (including the widows, retirees, and low income residents).

Also, published Helena gas rates show that during the calendar year ending January, 1980, Helena Gas increased its retail price by only 40 percent rather than the 66 percent stated by Mrs. Lovelady.

In conclusion, I disagree with Mrs. Lovelady's accounting. As a

Letter to the Editor:

To let the ones who thought up the proposed, "Shelco Fire and Rescue E.M.S. District," know that one man's idea does not mean that it is another's wishes. This letter is to let all of those involved in this scheme know that I will not be part of it. Here we are facing, not only hard times abroad, but here at home both financial and physical.

We hear each day of places going out of business and people losing jobs. It is hard enough to make a living as it is without the added burden. I, for one, do not go along with these people at all!

Dear Dee Dee,

Never in my life have I been so surprised, so shocked and yet so happy and so proud as I was when I discovered your letter to me in this paper.

I simply cannot express what a good feeling it is for me, as it would be for any teacher, to receive such praise and kind words in such a public manner from one of my truly outstanding students.

I did not feel left out that day but quite the contrary - I was so

So up to now I have to pay for any illness that befalls my family, make sure of all things that are involved to carry through and without anyone's help. So to be as nice as I can be, I have just one more thing to say and I want them to understand fully that I will not be a part of it. "The day they pay my bills, is the day I let them make my bills."

happy for each of you and so proud of you and your successes at Thompson Middle School.

You see, every time you or any of my students do anything well, you reflect all the training of the past from school and home.

How well I remember all those occasions you mentioned in your letter. I also remember a time when I offered 100 bonus points to anyone that memorized the Hippocratic Oath, never expecting anyone to do it.

The very next week you did it without missing a word, and that inspired others to do it too.

Your act of unselfishness in withdrawing your name in a student council election so one of your friends could be on the council also made me know that you were a very special person.

I'll never forget that special little girl who worked the store, attended skating parties, won fairs, said that oath and wrote the sweetest letter I shall ever read. No tribute can ever equal it.

Scrambled Eggs

Seaman

A trip to the dentist has been known to make strong men tremble.

In fact, I was talking to someone yesterday about an interview who said it was out of the question because he was too nervous about a dental appointment.

Now I've never been especially noted for bravery, but a trip to the dentist's office has never unnerved me.

However, I might be more apprehensive after I finally finish with my next appointment.

My teeth have reached the stage, I was told after my last checkup, when crowns have become necessary. So although I wasn't exactly frightened, I didn't look forward to that session with relish.

"The only good thing about this," I thought as I hurried in the morning of my appointment, "is that it will be over with in a few hours."

Arriving almost right on time, I expected to be ushered immediately into a cubbyhole and given my deadening shot without delay. But such was not the case. "Oh your appointment isn't until July," the receptionist informed me with a bright smile. "I had to do some juggling."

Well, I never thought I'd be disappointed not to have my teeth worked on. But it really was a letdown since I had myself all psyched up for this new experience.

Thinking back over my encounters with dentists, my only memory of a really unpleasant experience took place when I was in college.

It was during that period when my wisdom teeth reached a crucial stage and just had to come out.

And at that time, the general practice was to have the pesky things removed two by two.

When I complained to this dentist of excessive bleeding after my first removals, the dear man fixed me up good the second time around.

I don't remember what he did, but those sockets from which the teeth were removed remained dry, dry, dry. The only problem was, that I could barely open my mouth for days. It was as though I had lockjaw.

But the most frightening experience involving teeth that I can remember, still causes me apprehension and near panic. Whenever I see a child fall down and hit his or her mouth I want to look and see if the teeth are all there and yet I'm almost afraid to.

On a never to be forgotten evening when my middle child was about four, he toppled off a toy ironing board. And when I raced into the room after his first shrieks, my heart stood still.

There, where his two beautiful front teeth had been, was empty space.

My memory of most things that happened that long ago are pretty dim, but I still remember as clear as can be, searching in his mouth and then on the floor for the missing teeth.

After rushing him to the dentist, the teeth were found up in his gums, but they had to be pulled. So for the next four years, the little guy went around with a blank space there.

In fact, we all began to wonder if any teeth would ever come through. But they did, and they were whoppers.

So all's well that ends well, right? Sure. I think I've almost convinced myself that my crown work isn't going to be half bad.

I just wish my appointment was tomorrow!

Columbiana denies Klan request

by Bert Seaman

Referring to the city's legal code, city fathers in Columbiana told two members of the Imperial Knights of the Ku Klux Klan that they would not be able to have a road block in the area.

The two men appeared at Thursday's council meeting to request permission for their organization to collect funds in Columbiana later this month.

But the ordinance that City Clerk Mary Largin produced stated that in order to be approved, the organization making the request had to have either a chapter or members of the group living in the city.

Claiming that they knew of local residents interested in their group, the petitioners noted that there were even two businessmen in town who were klan sympathizers.

They couldn't mention names though, the klansmen said, because the mens' businesses might be affected.

"We're not trying to stir up any trouble," the men insisted. They said the purpose of the fund raising drive was for the distribution of literature about their organization and for the growth of membership.

Reporting that a Clavern will be established here within 60 days, the klansmen said they would return then to seek permission for a road block.

Another stipulation of the present ordinance is that the proceeds of any drive conducted, be used for the benefit of the community.

So it remains to be seen whether the panel will see eye to eye with the klan on this point.

There was agreement however, that a $65,000 expenditure will prove beneficial to the city.

A loan for that amount, to be paid in 84 monthly installments, was approved for the purchase of a new fire engine.

According to Fire Commissioner Harold McCord, the truck should be delivered within two weeks.

In other business, the council passed a resolution expressing their appreciation to Mary Nell Skelton for her influence on the youth of the city.

Skelton retired in May after operating a kindergarten here for 30 years.

Bahai to meet at UM

Bahai Youth from 9 southeastern states will gather on the Montevallo campus for a 3 day conference beginning June 27 and lasting through the 29, according to Julius (Butch) Fuller, a local Bahai.

Fuller said the conference will be for the purpose of preparing the youth to cope with the current problems facing society. The conference will cover such subjects as courtship and marriage, financial and career planning, and living the Bahai life.

Workshop leaders and speakers will come from the National Bahai Center which is located in Wilmette, Ill.

Some 250 to 300 Bahai youth from age 15 to 25 are expected to attend, representing all the southeastern states.

Fuller said that there are several local Bahai organizations in the Montevallo-Birmingham area, Birmingham having had a group for more than 40 years.

Personnel Board asks deputies to update files

by Bert Seaman

A notice posted in the sheriff's department instructs employees to bring any problems they might have to the personnel board's attention within ten days.

But situations concerning breaks in service the board has considered during the last two meetings both occurred a number of years ago.

So the board decided Wednesday, that all problems that may exist at the present time must be reported by June 27 or they will not be considered.

Employees are being instructed to examine their files as soon as possible to make sure that all information is correct.

Deputy Buddy Wilkinson, who came to the board last week, said he hadn't realized his file was missing information until recently.

His records at the sheriff's department, he reported, show his time of service beginning in 1977. But that was when he returned to the department after a three month leave of absence, Wilkinson said.

At the commission office, Wilkinson's file shows his time of employment dating from 1969, and the deputy said he receives the correct pay and longevity benefits for that period of service.

The only problem that would be created by the difference in the records, Wilkinson said, would be his vacation time.

But the deputy noted he hadn't asked for a vacation yet, so he didn't know if a problem existed. However, he asked that his record at the sheriff's department match his file at the commission office.

The panel agreed to the request after determining that the three months Wilkinson drove a truck was considered a leave of absence by both the sheriff and the commission.

Heart Drive needs $1,500

With three days remaining in the 1979-80 American Heart Association campaign, the Shelby County division remains just $1,500 short of its goal.

Through last week, the Shelby County division had raised a total of $14,550 of the $16,000 goal.

Campaign chairman Red Walker remained confident that they would reach the final amount. "We still have a few days," he said. "and I am sure

Mayor Dunaway's Accomplishments To Accomodate Pelham's Growth

- Served as Pelham's finance chairman for twelve years. Even with Pelham's large and rapid growth, our City operates with a balanced budget. We are debt-free except bonds issued for our new City Hall building and Water Works.
- During my four years as Mayor we have progressed from a volunteer Fire Department with a No. 8 insurance rating to a full-time department with 18 certified career firemen, of which nine are Paramedics. Our insurance rating is now class 6, and class 5 is indicated by the end of this year.
- Worked to maintain orderly growth within our Police Department. Full time police officers increased from seven in 1976 to seventeen this year. The Pelham Police Department exceeds the national average of comparable size departments by 50% in solving misdemeanors and felonies.
- Built a new fire and police substation; added two Fire Pumps, one Rescue Unit, and related support equipment—all debt free.
- Providing financial contributions to our schools.
- Enhanced the quality of our present recreational facilities, and recently purchased 43 acres for a new park in the heart of Pelham—all debt free. Development is under construction.
- Enlarged Pelham's City Limits north to Riverchase, which added a heavily populated revenue-producing area.
- Established a healthy working relationship and effective communications with many government officials and business leaders. This has assisted greatly in securing over a quarter of a million dollars in grants during the past two years. Three million more is projected for our proposed sewer system.

RE-ELECT BURK DUNAWAY MAYOR CITY OF PELHAM

16 Years of Progressive Leadership for Pelham

DID YOU KNOW?

We can all grow 12 years older before a new generating plant is born.

It takes 10-12 years to plan and build a new generating plant. And it's expensive because of construction, labor and equipment costs . . . and the high cost of borrowing money. So we don't want to build plants unless they are needed. To determine if and when new plants will be needed, Alabama Power prepares annual electricity use forecasts. Population growth, economic growth, conservation, and use of alternate energy sources are carefully evaluated. Our past forecasting record has been one of the most accurate in the industry. And that's important.

Happenings around the county

by Becky McDonald

Last week I found an interesting menagerie of animals in Cedar Grove at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Willis. Along with 2 dogs, 3 ducks, 2 rabbits and a snake the Willis children, Cindy and Pam, have 2 pet goats boarding next door at the home of their grandparents Bertha and Herman Brazier.

Connie Standifer is as gracious a grandmother as she is a mother. Last week she kept all five of her grandchildren in her Alabaster home while her daughters and their husbands spent the day in their boats on Lay Lake. Though the picnic lunch was better than the fishing Fran and Kenny Massey, Martha and Lanny Kelly, Margaret and Spud Bishop and Mattie and Alan Picklesimer enjoyed the good company and a relaxing day.

After two hours of tennis, Darlene Armstrong, a dedicated but tired Brownie leader spent 3 hours with the Columbiana Brownie troop last Tuesday. Like good Brownies the girls cleaned up the Columbiana City Park before they had craft time. With the help of Gail Ford and Joyce Willis, Darlene showed the girls how to make hanging planters.

Ken Jackson, who recently followed his father, Dudley Jackson as president of a local company in Helena was honored by his employees with a surprise birthday party last Tuesday.

Congratulations are in order for Steve and Peggy Wood of Cedar Grove who welcomed a new member to their family last Friday. Two-year-old Christopher Wood now has a new baby brother.

My five year-old daughter Janie and I are learning to skate. Janie's doing pretty well but if I don't tire out after half a block I usually lose my balance. For some reason I have visions of plaster casts and I keep trying to protect my right arm when I fall. If all goes well I'll be seeing you next week 'around the county.'

Should you have any items of social interest, please call Becky McDonald at 669-9535 or send them to the Shelby County Reporter. Please be sure to include your phone number.

Shelby County Reporter Sports

By David Moore

'We think we're normal'

Aerobatic pilots pit themselves against elements and odds

Sports. Some people play football. Others play baseball or run track.

And some people fly biplanes upside down at treetop level. They pull into a vertical climb, do a hammerhead stall and scream back towards the earth at 200 miles per hour.

Yes, the aerobatic sports flyer is a special breed of person. But no, this person does not have a death wish.

"Aerobatic flying is a sport hobby for us," claimed Ken Blalock. "We have a good time at it and make a good sport of it."

Blalock flew his Pitts S1 into Shelby County Airport last Friday with his partner Jim Gaston, who flies—or rather flew—a Pitts S2S. Both men are from Arkansas and were here for the air show last weekend.

Gaston crashed his $47,000 stunt plane Saturday afternoon during his solo act (see related article in the Reporter). He will continue to fly.

"I hope we make it look easy," Gaston commented Friday. "But we practice nearly every day. The main thing is safety. You think about crashing after the show, not during the show."

Blalock agrees. "Afterwards, you sometimes think about the face of death. The death factor is there, but there's no place for it in the show."

The conversation was unfolding in the snackroom at the airport. During the interview, Chuck Hale walked into the room on crutches. The Birmingham man had crashed in the 1972 air show, about 200 yards from where we now sat.

As a result, he had lost part of one leg and the other was paralyzed.

The three men talked shop for awhile.

Said Hale, "I've never met a guy who didn't get his pants scared off the first time he hung on a belt (flew upside down). But I'd fly the show tomorrow, as much as I could."

"They sky's the limit when you're flying aerobatics," said Blalock. "The number one thing is to know your limitations."

"I knew my limitations, but I was careless," Hale confessed.

After mentioning several pilots they knew who had been killed doing stunt flying, Gaston admitted that the sport had "an extremely high" mortality rate. But he qualified the statement, saying most of those accidents occurred in planes that, unlike the Pitts, were not designed for aerobatics.

"Hell, let's don't talk about all these guys getting killed," Gaston said, crushing out a cigarette and almost immediately pulling another one from his dwindling pack.

Blalock talked about working together in a duel act with Gaston. Blalock is the leader, and as such is Gaston's "horizon."

"I can lead him into a brick wall and he'll follow me. When you're up there you try to put on a better show than the next fellow, but we never fly against each other. It gets back to knowing your limitations."

"The maneuver is the enemy," Gaston explained. "There's a marriage between the flyer and the plane. It's me, the plane and the maneuver. I want total, 100% control. I want to beat the maneuver."

Blalock, who restores antique airplanes and "swipes hubcaps at air shows" for a living, built the $38,000 Pitts he flies.

Said he, "You try to build one a little better, a little faster and a little more maneuverable. It's competition."

"Flying aerobatics is a self-serving thing," added Gaston. "You've got to have an ego just like any other competitive sport. There's no such a thing as 'I can't'. Yet there shouldn't be any masochism to it, either."

Why does a man with a family and a successful,

Chelsea sports tennis tourney

More than 40 tennis players from Birmingham to Sylacauga participated in the Chelsea Open last weekend. It was the largest field of players to enter the event in its three year history.

Inverness tennis pro Jerry Nixon and Chris Winter of Sylacauga defeated Cheryl Hickey and Jim Hicks 6-4, 1-6, 6-3 to win the mixed doubles.

Randy Carter and Ron Adams, both of Sylacauga, beat UM student Gregg Butcke and Brad Drake of Helena 7-6, 6-4 to take the men's doubles. Carter also won the men's "A" division 6-2, 6-4 over Butcke.

Roger Davis of Montevallo won the finals in men's "B" competition by default.

The tourney was put on by Boo Mason, former UM tennis coach.

His sister, Squealy, who helped run the show, commented, "We're really starting to draw some attention now. Next year we hope to draw even more people and possibly include ladies and children."

Women place high

Two Pelham League teams did an admirable job of representing Shelby County last weekend at the Women's Class "A" slow pitch tourney in Gadsden.

Out of a field of 20 teams, the Helena Tire Wheelers took second place and Abex of Calera came in third.

Michelle Lewis of Alabaster, who plays for the Wheelers, was named the tournament MVP. The short fielder slugged seven homers in eight games, including one grand slam.

Both teams will advance to the state playoffs this August in Montgomery.

The Pelham Womens League finished its season Tuesday night. As of Monday, the standings were: Wheelers 12-0, Abex 11-2, Valley Mills 8-4, Double D's 8-5, Moore-Handley 7-6, Ballbusters 3-10, General Electric 2-11, and Harbert in the basement at 0-13.

Hole-in-one shot

Allen Logan of Alabaster shot the first hole-in-one of his golf career Monday morning on the UM golf course.

Logan aced his Spaulding Top Flight #1 ball with a seven iron on the 160 yard, par three, third hole. His partner was Ronnie Cook, also of Alabaster.

Buzzing Pitts

Ken Blalock buzzes the airport in his Pitts during Sunday's air show, flying over the area where his partner crashed Saturday.

restaurant/resort business go out on the weekends and risk his life flying aerobatics to thrill crowds at air shows?

Gaston admits it sounds romantic, but says as a kid he used to lie in the fields of Kansas and watch the airplanes fly over from a nearby air base. That's when he decided to learn to fly.

Later, while waiting in a hospital for word on his mother who was undergoing serious surgery, he decided to buy a biplane and learn to fly aerobatics.

"You can keep saying 'I'm going to do that one day,' but one day gets gone," Gaston explained.

"We don't challenge death, even though the crowd takes it that way," Blalock added.

"We think we're normal," Gaston said very seriously. "I do it because it makes my life fuller. It's not a death wish. It's a life wish."

Before the crash

Dizzy Dean Braves prove hot

One of the hottest young baseball teams in Shelby County has to be the Cahaba Valley Dizzy Dean Braves. They finished their regular season play Thursday night with a 9-6 win over the Yankees, giving them a 15-1 league record and a 20-1 overall standing.

The only team that proved tough enough to handle them were the Alabaster Dodgers. But the Braves avenged that 5-1 loss by downing the Dodgers 9-5 for the mid-season tournament championship.

The Braves racked up an impressive total of 264 runs against only 78 runs by their opponents. Further demonstrating their ball diamond prowess is the fact that eight of the Braves were named to all-star teams.

"I didn't do it. The kids did it," says coach Ken Holler, who was assisted during the season by Jerry Hinds and Jim Gorman. Holler points out that the Braves were blessed with eight 14-year olds, four of which returned from his 18-1 team last year.

Big sticks for the Braves were Tim Miller (batting .302), Jim Gorman (.327), Ricky Hayes (.373) and Steve Holler (.541), who also pitched two shutouts.

Other Braves team members are Mark Arrington, John Lee, Lewis Gallups, Jeff Baker, Mark Nix, Richard Hinds, Phillip Bearden, Mark Brashier, Wayne Price and Robert Harrell.

Dizzy Dean All-Stars

13-year old All-Stars

"We're living from paycheck to paycheck!"

My husband gets paid every week, but before I started shopping Food World, we used to run out of food before we ran out of week. How did Food World make the difference? Simple. They save me something on everything I buy, so I can buy more, without spending more. What I used to spend for five bags of groceries buys six bags at Food World. So now we eat as good on Thursday... as we do on Sunday. Sure we're feeling the pinch of inflation, but it's a little less painful when you've got a friend at Food World.

You've got a friend...

Columbiana bank names new president

J.D. "Buddy" Wyatt, senior vice president of the First National Bank of Columbiana announced today that the following changes were made at the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors held on June 19.

Karl C. Harrison was elected acting president and chief executive officer.

J.D. "Buddy" Wyatt, senior vice president, will remain at the main office of the bank in Columbiana.

Mike Hill, vice president, will remain as manager of the Cahaba Valley branch. At the same board meeting, plans were announced for the expansion and construction of a permanent building for the Cahaba Valley branch at its permanent site on U.S. Highway 280.

Ms. Patricia Johnson, senior vice president, will remain as manager of the newest branch at Riverchase.

Edwin E. Brasher, assistant cashier, will remain at the Wilsonville branch.

Karl Harrison, in assuming the presidency, recalled when he first became involved with the First National Bank of Columbiana in 1951. That was the year he bought into the bank with partners, J.I. Harrison and Rufus Lackey.

Since that time he has served as vice president and member of the board, and was elected chairman of the board on January 20, 1977.

He will continue to serve in this capacity and states that he will become totally involved in the banking business.

Harrison's first experience in the banking field was as an employee of The First National Bank of Birmingham for seven years.

Working at the bank during the day, Harrison attended the Birmingham School of Law in the evening. He also completed seven banking courses offered by the American Institute of Banking.

Long recognized as a leading citizen and attorney in the county and state, Harrison has practiced law in Columbiana since 1935.

In taking over the presidency, Harrison pledged that the same friendly service and personal people-to-people banking is going to continue to be the prime concern of all bank officers and employees.

Three Shelby Countians were graduated from UAB's School of Community and Allied Health on June 8.

Hollace B. Willingham of Columbiana graduated from the Emergency Medical Technology I program.

Lynn Esther Harper of Montevallo studied in the field of radiologic technology.

James P. Rogers, also of Montevallo, was in the Emergency Medical Technology III program.

in our City's future. John will appreciate your vote and support on July 8th to re-elect him to your City Council, Place No. 2.

JOHN TANNER WORKS HARD FOR YOU AND GETS THINGS DONE

- Made application for, and later obtained a $100,000.00 federal Grant to purchase 43 choice acres for Pelham's new park and recreation facility. An additional Grant application for $100,000.00 is pending for park equipment and related improvements.

- In 1976, Tanner was successful in eliminating South Central Bell mileage charges, reducing Pelham's telephone rates $5.00 to $15.00 per customer, per month.

- Filed a Grant application for, and received federal money to train our Pelham Firemen and Policemen in the emergency handling of hazardous and noxious materials.

- Established a steering committee, which resulted in the formation of the new Pelham Area Chamber of Commerce. Tanner takes an active role on behalf of the City of Pelham.

- Instrumental in securing the law prohibiting massage parlors and pornography in the City of Pelham.

- Initiated a computerized Grant search and reporting procedure. This provides information on all state and federal Grant monies available, which can be matched to our needs. This system has paid for itself many times over.

- Spearheaded the Pelham Street Light Project, and obtained a budget for 200 lights throughout the City. This project is three-fourths complete.

- Actively assisted in acquiring cable television for our community by co-ordinating procedures, and clarification of state and federal regulations.

- Monitors state and federal legislation affecting the Pelham area, and responding appropriately when there is a need.

RE-ELECT JOHN TANNER PELHAM CITY COUNCIL PLACE NO. 2

is to serve as your Legislative Councilman. He has measured-up in every way. And this hasn't been easy.

During the past four years, Tanner has made over fifty trips to Montgomery, and even to Washington, D.C. This much time, a lot of planning and knowledgeable follow-through has resulted in federal Grants to Pelham for over a quarter of a million dollars. And what's more, an additional three million dollar Grant application is in the mill for our Pelham sewer system project. Tanner has spent countless hours co-ordinating with state and federal authorities to move this project forward.

John Tanner has obtained more Grant money for Pelham during the past four years than all the Grants combined since this City was incorporated in 1964.

This financial aid has directly, and indirectly, allowed us to have first-rate Police, Fire and Rescue Departments for protection second to none. Then, there's the recreational facilities. Tanner's efforts has made the difference there also.

Something else important. John Tanner has attended 90% of all City Council meetings. He has kept abreast of what's happening, and what is needed, and Tanner works well with his fellow councilmen.

Pelham is John's home. He and his wife, Debbie, live here and share a personal interest
